CURINE! CURINE! CURINE!

The Most Powerful and Best Preparation in the World.

I WILL GUARANTEE MY CURINE

To be the most powerful paint that medical science can formulate. It will reach deeper-seated troubles and produce better effects for lameness and unhealthy sores than any other preparation in the world, for which local medication is indicated, such as

Spavins, Curbs, Ringbones, Sprung Knees, Capped Hocks and Knees, Saddle Galls, Rheumatism, Shoulder Lameness, Wind Puffs, Navicular Disease, Joint Lameness, Fistulae, Shoe Boils, Quittor, Tumors, Muscle Soreness, Splints, Thoroughpins, Sprung Tendons, Enlarged and Suppurated Glands, Soft Bunches, Bony Growths, Etc., Etc.

W. A. W. TURNBULL, V. M. D.,

Formerly resident surgeon in charge of the Veterinary Hospital, University of Pennsylvania.

CURINE is the most powerful paint known, and supersedes all cautery or firing. It contains no grease and will not blemish or remove the hair.

Its effects are absorbent, alterative, penetrative and antiseptic, and is the only preparation capable of reaching the deepest seated troubles.

Horses can be worked as usual while using this marvelous paint.

It is used with phenomenal success in Europe, and in the leading trotting and running stables in the United States and Canada. Any person who purchases a bottle, and after using half of it according to explicit directions, and finds it will not do what we claim, can return the bottle and money will be refunded. Reference:—First National or Citizens National Bank, Latrobe, Pa. WE WILL WAGER $100 that one bottle of CURINE used according to explicit directions will reach deeper seated troubles, produce better effects for the same uratives than any other compound in the world.

THE LOS ANGELES FAIR.

Balmy Weather, a Good Track and Large Attendance.

OSTLER JOE DEFEATED, NOT DISGRACED.

Lorena II Annexes the Street Railway Handicap, Highland Ball the Santa Monica Scramble and Roadwarmer the Western Sprint.

[WRITTEN BY "HIDALGO."]

The last six days of the Los Angeles fair were such as could not have been had elsewhere. The nights were cool and foggy, but by 10 A. M. there was a genial glow of sunshine and everybody looked healthy and at peace with the world. Monday's programme consisted of two trots and three runs, two of which were stake races. In the 2:17 class Margaret Worth was slightly the favorite, Neernut being second choice and the field, bringing $12 in $55, composed of Osito, Iran Alto, Daisywood and Antrima. Margaret Worth got the first and third heats in 2:16½, 2:15, and the once despised Neernut the second, fourth and sixth in 2:12½, 2:15, 2.16½, the fifth heat being given to Osito, who broke just above the wire, but caught just in time to cross the wire on a trot.

The next was a trot for the 2:12 class and proved a comparatively easy task for that marvelous campaigner, Jasper Ayres, who was ably driven by young Perkins. He sold at $20 against $14 for the field and often as low as $12. The start for the first heat was a poor one for him and he let Ethel Downs have it in 2:11¼ without pressing her much. After that heat, which created no change in the betting, Jasper went on and won as he liked, carrying his horses so hard for three-quarters that they had nothing left to finish with. He is a marvelously shifty horse, to my idea, breaking handier than any horse I have ever seen in the last ten years and catching so cleverly that it takes the best kind of a judge to discern that he has broken at all.

After that came the Santa Monica scramble of five furlongs, for two-year-olds, with selling allowances. Frank Van Ness' good chestnut colt, Highland Ball, was an even-money favorite at $20, Tempse, $12, Saticoy, $10 and the field $10. Highland Ball carried 109 against 101 on Tempse and Queen May, with 98 and 95 on the rest. Once off the race was never once in doubt, for the big son of Inverness romped home in 1:02½ with Tempse second and Saticoy third. Tempse ran a very good race, however, for she was blocked off at the head of the stretch and had to run around all the others.

The next was a selling race for all ages, at seven furlongs, for which Elmer F. and Masoero were alternately favorites at $10, with Little Cripple $7, Sea Spray $5 and Pleasanton and Yule backed at $3. This was the overnight betting, but on the track Masoero was a hot favorite at 1 to 2, with Sea Spray at 40, Little Cripple and Elmer F. each 6, Yule 8 and Pleasanton 50. That worthy descendant of Johnny Armstrong was on Masoero and let him lead all the way into the stretch, where Cripple hugged the rails and got home first. Elmer F. got cut off twice and was beaten a nose for third money.

The last race was the Western Sprint for $600, with twelve nominations, six of which came to the post for a half-mile race; and I saw men in attendance on those horses that I had not seen in years, the antediluvian short horse fanciers of the sixties, old and white but fond of the sport as ever. Uncle Arnett, who bred Queen Emma, Emma Skaggs, Vanderbilt and the pacing horse, Joe Wheeler, came up to shake hands with me, as did Uncle Jim Adams, who bred Cousin Peggy and Geraldine. Ab Ellis was there, too, gouty and fat, but jolly as ever. The betting showed Roadwarmer 7 to 10, Celoso 2 to 1, Bon Bon 7 to 1, Chancey T. 80 and Selkirk and Jessie O. each 15. The good thing of the race was Chancey T., against whom 8 to 1 for show could easily be had. There were two bad bumps in the race and the Baldwin filly got the benefit of both. Roadwarmer literally outgamed the half-breed and, in any belief, Celoso would have beaten the pair of them had she not been interfered with.

FIFTH DAY.

The turnout was good, although dwarfed by the memory of the previous Saturday and even by the attendance of Monday. The first thing on the card was the pacing race for 2:30 classers for which Anaconda sold at $20, Joe $15 and the field $10, consisting of Betonica and Floretta Belle. Many thought that Wheeler had a good chance for the race, but those who had watched the big black colt closely saw that the long-drawn campaign was beginning to tell upon his powers of endurance, and that asking him to meet two such well-seasoned horses as Searchlight and Anaconda alternately was a rather severe question. Wheeler was driven by Hogoboom and won the first heat in 2:09, all out; Keating then went on and took the next three heats and the race. The third heat was so slow (2:15) that the judges dismounted both Hogoboom and Havey, and put up Stimson behind Wheeler and John Vance behind Betonica. This occasioned a storm of angry words from the unseated drivers and the judges not only declared all bets off but ruled Hogoboom off altogether. It is very unfortunate for all concerned that this thing has occurred, for Los Angeles has always been regarded as the "best ditch" of harness racing. It has been easier, up to date, to get 1,000 people to a harness race here than 500 at Oakland or San Francisco. There could be no excuse, either, on ground or poor compensation, for the first moneys in the trotting races were larger than the entire amount of the purses at most points in the California circuit, which the offending parties should have recollected, if only for selfish reasons.

The trot for the 2:24 came next and there were four starters out of the twelve original nominations. Palermo was the favorite at $10, with Nordeau second choice at $7 and the field $5. Claudius won the first heat in 2:17½, then Palermo got two heats and Nordeau the fourth on sufferance. Then Palermo took the deciding heat in 2:18.

Next came the well-contested running races, the first being the Street Railway Handicap at six furlongs, for which Chartreuse and Ostler Joe were alternately favorites, notwithstanding the latter had 127 pounds up. Howard was well thought of and Celoso had her admirers, while Polish, Jim Bozeman and Los Prietos had a few shekels posted on them. When the flag fell, Chartreuse, Celoso, Emma D. and Pescador were the first to show, while Lorena was ninth, Ostler Joe eleventh and Los Prietos twelfth. The positions were but little changed till the half-mile post was passed, when Lorena began to better her position and then Los Prietos and the black horse moved up. By this time Howard's white face was in front and his backers were yelling frantically for him to come on. But Hennessey was hard at work on the contraband and little McNichols, on Lorena, was almost faint with exertion. Both Lorena and Osler Joe had now passed the big Fresno horse and, by the shortest nose that ever won any race, the daughter of Apache went under the wire in front, establishing a track record of 1:14. Howard was over two lengths behind Ostler Joe.

The Blue Ribbon hurdle race worth about $650, came next, and the public would have nothing but J. O. C., who sold for $20 against $12 for the field. They had scarcely gone over the first hurdle when Viking went out to make a runaway race of it, and succeeded in doing so. He was 6 to 1 in the books at the close and many got their money on at 8s. Gold Dust was coming very fast and finished second while the favorite was third. Really I could never see the sense of making stake races out of these hurdle events. They are generally run by cast-offs that have become too slow for the flat, and a $200 overnight purse ought to be enough for them. And the best horse does not win oftener than one time out of five.

The last race of the day was a special at seven furlongs for a purse of $250, with $50 to second. Grady was favorite, but Sea Spray and Alvarado, to both of whom he was giving weight, had their supporters, and finally Lady Hurst was made the subject of a spasmodic play, although her rider was five pounds over weight. It ended up in a close finish, but the Fresno horse got the verdict by a scant length from Alvarado, with the venerable Teuton's horse in third place.

SIXTH DAY.

One would naturally suppose that after the prompt and vigorous example made of the trotting horse drivers on the day previous there would have been no attempt made to break the eleventh commandment on this day. But there are some men in this world who learn nothing from experience and whose pitchers are sure to go to the well just once too often. After the dismounting operation on Tuesday there were frequent growls heard about the races being conducted by "running horse judges" and all that sort of talk. Now the only man in that stand to whom that expression applied was Mr. James W. Brooks, a man whom I knew well enough to believe that he would allow no man to lose his money at any kind of race without a chance to win. The other two were Hon. L. J. Rose, one of the fathers of the trotting sport in this State and a man whose word has never yet been called in question, and Mr. J. W. Wilson, of Sacramento, whom I have known thirty-five years and who probably had judged fifty trotting races before he went into the stand as a track officer of "the sport of kings." The truth is that the Sixth District Agricultural Society had secured men who were not only good magisterial officers but good detectives as well. As for the abuse heaped upon Starter Ferguson, it should be remembered that he had no part in the deliberation of the judges, but merely announced their verdict.

The first race of the day was a special trot for named horses for a purse of $250, the entries being El Molino, Domitian, Helen J., Fanadma and Queen Anne. The latter asked to be excused before the race came off. As there was not one of the quartette that could win in his (or her) class, you would naturally suppose their owners would be glad to get the purse and drive a decent pace for it. But by the time two heats were gone there became evidences of a Senegambian in the woodpile. One of the alleged contestants was a Montana horse called Domitian by Marcus Daly's horse Mascot, son of Stamboul. He was the slowest horse in the race and was fourth in all three of the first heats, two of which were won by Fanadma in 2:22, 2:19½, and the third by Helen J. in 2:22½. The latter was driven by a man who had a great deal of sickness and other hard luck, for which reason I wanted to see him get as big a slice of the purse as possible. But when the books, of which there were eleven, began to open up for the fourth heat, the namesake of the Roman Emperor was 60 to 1 in some books and 80 in the others. It was just seventeen minutes from the time that they began to mark their slates at those figures till the odds were cut down to 3 to 1, and one man (who was in the know, you know) was so anxious to get his money on that he bet $20 even on the son of Mascot, which closed the books. When the heat came to be trotted Domitian went out in the lead and maintained it to the wire in 2:25½, the other three pulling in behind him. The thing was so patent and so barefaced that the judges very properly declared all bets and pools off and the race as well. Hence no summary is given below. If there are only five or six races given at the Los Angeles Fair of 1898, the Directors of that Association will hardly be held culpable for it. They have given good and liberal purses and therefore were deserving of better treatment in the matter. Most of the Directors of the old boards in the years gone by, were men who owned trotting sires and felt interested in keeping up harness racing. Now there is not a man on the board who owns anything but about a $250 buggy horse,and hence they stand merely as would the managers of a theater or a circus, and they will give money for the kind of exhibition that will please the public the best. If the owners of gallopers "cut up rusty" like this they will be served with the same sort of sauce. The summary named in which one running-horse jockey got placed upon the ground will be a sufficient warning to others, especially when it is to be remembered that the self-same jockey committed a fragrant offense at the State Fair and received no punisment for it whatever.

The running races which followed this most remarkable exhibition of bridle leather were three in number and all were good contests. The first was a special at three furlong heats, for which there were six starters—Selkirk, Chauncey T., Red Dick, Bourbon, Lady Kern and Jessie O. The sprinting fraternity were out in full force in this race and Uncle Jim Adams declared to me that Selkirk was a false favorite and that he wouldn't bet a Bellflower apple on his chances. Before they got to the post the betting chopped a good deal and Selkirk was third choice, with Chauncey T. and Red Dick both favorites over him.

Chauncey T. got the best of the start and Eddie Jones made a runaway race of it, but Lady Kern ran him to a head and showed that her friends knew "where they were at" when they boosted her into second choice just at post time. Eddie Jones got off first again but, seeing that Lady Kern had been badly bumped by Jessie O., he laid his horse up and gave him an easy heat of it, Red Dick winning in 36 seconds. The third heat saw all but Chauncey and Red Dick sent to the stable; and Chauncey won the race, although the old chestnut was crowding him pretty hard for the last hundred yards.

The next was a race for horses that had not won since September, but in some way or other the weights were filed upon Petrarch and Major S. in a way that I could not understand, they carrying each 123 pounds, while Nick Hall's old goat Arundel had up only 103 and Whistle Bird 105. It was certainly a fine race—for the bookmakers—as Major S. won in 1:44, Arundel and Petrarch racing their heads off in the early part of the fight and leaving the Major to gallop home quite leisurely, with the unpronounceably named mare in the second place. The owner's price was 8 to 1 and the second's was 5, so there must have been a big rake-off, as Petrarch was the subject of a 7 to 5 play just before the start.

The last race of the day was for two-year-olds,and while it was in no sense a fast race it was a very close contest. The Baldwin stable, consisting of El Salado and Palo Blanco,was the favorite at 4 to 5, while Papinta and Soscol both found backers at 3 to 1 and Amasa at 5. Soscol, ridden by Wilson, got off the best but did to much in the fore part of the race. At the head of the stretch Eddie Jones got on even terms with him, followed by Hennessey, who came with a big rush on Salado and won by a good neck from Soscol, Amasa being four lengths behind the winner.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21.

In the first event to-day, a trot, best three in five, Visalia, at 2 to 5, won the first heat. Visalia sold at 3 to 1 before the second heat. It was won by Chico, even money, with Joe, 3 to 1, second, Iran Alto, 10 to 1, third, and Visalia last. The favorite did not try to win the heat. The time was 2:17¾. Chico then sold at 1 to 2, Joe at 3 to 1, Visalia at even money and Iron Alto at 15 to 1. Visalia won from Chico, with Joe third, and Iran Alto last. Visalia, at 5 to 10, came in last in the fourth heat, Chico, 6 to 5, winning from Joe, 5 to 1, with Iran 10 to 1, third. The fifth heat and race was won by Visalia in 2:16½.

The $800 purse for the second trotting race, 2:15 class, was captured by Caryle Carne.

There were ten starters in the four-and-a-half furlongs for maiden two-year-olds. El Salado got of in the lead, winning in a walk from Roscoe by a length, Amasa third Road Warmer was the favorite in the five-and-a-half furlongs. There was a good, strong play on Alvarado at 2½ to 1. The favorites were nowhere. Polish won, Bozeman second and Masoero third.

'Ostler Joe, handicapped at 120 pounds, was entered for the Southern California stake, one and one-eighth miles. Grady was on the card for the same weight, but when it was found that his Fresno record was made in a match race, twelve pounds were taken off his back and 'Ostler was scratched. The other starters were Little Cripple, 5 to 2, and Vishnu, 20 to 1. Grady at 1 to 4 took the lead and kept it to the wire. Little Cripple was second and Vishnu third.

Howard won the selling race, seven-eighths of a mile, without trying hard.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 23.

The race meeting of the Sixth District Agricultural Association came to a close to-day after nine days of the best racing California has ever witnessed.

To-day's card was made up of two trotting, one pacing and four running events, in which a lively interest was taken. The exhibition of Searchlight, the three-year-old son of Dark Night, against the watch, will go down in turf history.

In this exhibition Searchlight beat the world's pacing record of 2:09¼, for three-year-olds, going the mile in 2:07 flat, official time. In order that he might not be taken out of the 2:10 class he went a mile and an eighth,the first eighth being jogged to the wire. The track was in splendid condition. Tom Keating handled the lines and Searchlight acted admirably with the runner that cut the pace,

The first quarter was made in 0:31½, the half being reached in 1:02½. At the three-quarters the watch showed 1:35¼, and the mile was recorded in 2:07, although numerous private watches reduced that time by a quarter of a second. When the gallant horse came steadily under the wire a mighty cheer burst forth from 1,000 throats, and many were the congratulations showered upon Keating and Lou Crellin, the owner of the young world-beater.

In the postponed 2:12 pacing event, in which was entered Anaconda, Our Boy and Birdroe. Our Boy walked over the course to save the entrance money.

Klamath won the free-for-all trot in straight heats, Neernut doing likewise in the 2:20 class trot.

The handicap of three-ighths of a mile was won by Bourbon, a 20-to-1 shot. The other running events went to the favorites.

THE REIS THOROUGHBRED SALE.

Several Celebrities to be Disposed of to the Highest Bidders November 29th.

Several high-class horses are to be sold by auction on Monday night, November 29th, at the Occidental Horse Exchange. After the Winters sale, on that date, comes the one of John O. Reis, of Alamo, Cal. There are fifteen in this consignment, and it includes:

Charmion, by Tyrant Unit, winner of $18,405, and capturing stakes East and West. She ran six furlongs with 106 lbs. in 1:13 as a three-year-old over Bay District track, went seven furlongs in 1:27 and 1:27¾, and ran several other clinking good races.

Sunlit, (by Monday-Lillie R., by Longfellow), the dam of El Rayo and Don Carillo and sister to Orinda and Eufavia, also excellent producers, will be up for sale. She is in foal to the great stake-winning son of Musket, Artillery.

Olivia, a good winner by Gano-Dollie L., Viola (dam of Melody) by Himyar (Domino's sire) from Vitality, in foal to imp. True Briton; Stephanotis by Shannon from the great Lizzie Whips, dam of Wanda, Challenger's dam; Rubina, by Double Cross; Kosciulottie, by Kosciusko, and the young Ipomea, by imp. Cyrus-Moonflower by Wildidle, in foal to True Briton, complete the list of brood mares to be offered that night.

The only three-year-old in the sale outside of Ipomea is Halsey, by imp. Mertenhurst-Elsie S. (dam of the frequent winner Elsie.

The two-year-olds in the Reis consignment are Morinel, b. f. by Morello-Sunlit (third in a stake race at the recent Sacramento meeting) and Hertha (half-sister to Mercutio), by imp. Islington (sire of Michael III.) from Ernestine, by Bertram.

The yearlings to be offered, among the handsomest and best-bred in this State, are the bay colt by Morello-Viola, bay colt by Morello-Orinda (dam of May R.), bay filly by Morello-Kosciulottie, and bay filly by Sir Reel from Nova Zembla, latter sister to Greenland and half-sister to Luke Blackburn and Ecuador.

Therefore, those looking for a good yearling, two or three-year-old or great brood mare should keep the Reis sale in view.

Bling Blinger has been sold to James M. Murphy, now here, at the reported price of $1,200.

May Gallop, by imp. King Gallop—Melrose, a pretty shifty plater, belonging to George Mosier, died at Latonia the other day of lung fever. The mare was sick when she arrived from St. Louis.

The death rate among the thoroughbreds at Harlem has been tremendously large this fall, and the trouble is that most of those that have died belong to the useful sort. The "real wasters" seem to live in spite of everything.

Three half mile heats were run at the Omaha State Fair meeting in 0:49, 0:49, 0:49¼. Gladys Wells won the first, Emerald the last two. Forty-nine seconds is the best on record on that track for a second heat.

A President's Version.

John A. Decker, president of the Life and Reserve Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn., writes: "I have used Quinn's Ointment and find it to be very valuable." For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all enlargements, use it. Price $1 50 per pacage. For sale in San Francisco by Messrs. J. A. McKerron and J. O'Kane. If you cannot obtain it from druggist or dealer, address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N.Y.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

EDITED AND CONDUCTED SOLELY BY

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

Surfacing Racecourses.—"Gumbo." That rather queer name is given to a kind of earth found in Indiana, and is so highly valued as the top-dressing for a race course that Mr. Corrigan had the Hawthorne track covered with it, though it had to be brought quite a distance on the cars. There have been several attempts in Chicago to better the surface of trotting parks. The Driving Park track was built on sandy ground and a stratum of clay placed on it, but that did not suit the notions of some of the trotting folks and it was covered with cinders from the rolling mills. That was not satisfactory, as it was hard and gritty, wearing on the shoes and trying to the feet and legs of the horses. When General Butler defeated Dexter on it, "under saddle," Budd Doble ascribed the defeat to the cinders thrown into his flank by the fore feet, but as he won the harness race, on the same track, three days before, making the second heat in 2:24½, beating Geo. W. Patchen Jr., and was beaten by Butler, after winning the first heat in 2:33½, in 2:27 and 2:26½, "soreness" was the more likely cause of defeat.

Dexter was a great favorite before the start. James Eoff bought first choice (Dexter) for $1,000, $50 was the bid for Butler, and the poolseller, endeavoring to get better terms, raised the bid five dollars. When Eoff was informed that it was the auctioneer's bid, though the offer was made to "let it go," he replied thaat he did not want his money, but to put again and accept the $50. On second thought no one would risk the odds of 1 against 20 and Eoff saved his money. As the percentage was $31.50, had Dexter won $18.50 would have been the net gain. Before the coating of cinders was put on the track, July 4, 1864, Harry Clay beat Quaker Boy and Princess, and the heaviest betting I ever knew on a harness race was on that occasion. The night previous at the Tremont first choice ran from $1,000 up, Quaker Boy the favorite, Princess second choice, and when Quaker Boy won the first heat few buyers against him. Barney Nellis, who was somewhat "elevated" at the evening sales, against the remonstrance of his friends, bought enough to win $22,000, and the owner of Quaker Boy, "Jim" Conlisk lost in the neighborhood of $25,000. Both were high-rollers and that was the era of big speculations. Conlisk was in a game when a government paymaster lost some $150,000 at one sitting. The play was in Cincinnati in a "club house" of which Conlisk was one of the proprietors. He was arrested, taken to Cairo, court-martialed, sentenced to be shot, unless he surrendered the money, marched to the place of execution, but the bluff did not succeed, and he swore that he would not give up the cash, as it was where his family would get the benefit, and they could shoot and be d——d.

He told me that he expected to be shot, the trial and subsequent proceedings being eminently realistic. And now for the real cause for an iron-clad track in Chicago. The first regular race meeting ever held in Chicago was in September, 1864. I was manager, secretary, factotum of the association after earnest appeals secured the permission to give the gallopers a chance. I went to Kentucky, bought a two-year-old of John Harper and a three-year-old from his nephew to run in the colt stakes. Attended the races at St. Louis (and by the way saw Norfolk run his first race) and fortunate enough to induce owners of some of the best horses to participate.

Notwithstanding the weather was unfavorable, the meeting was successful. I wrote a report, which appeared in Wilkes Spirit of the Times, that was quite eulogistic of racehorses and legitimate racing and also a prediction: "Racing has got a start here now that will insure two good meetings held here next season." That was completely blocked by the cinder embargo. McKeever was killed on the driving park Sept. 22, 1866, while driving General Butler against Cooley. Never an occurrence on American tracks that raised so much excitement; never a crime connected with racing that was so bitterly denounced. The intention undoubtedly was to to cripple the horse or demolish the sulkey. A board was projected from the inner fence, which struck McKeever on the temple, crushing his skull. The Driving Park was closed, never to be reopened. In 1867 Dexter Park was built and the first meeting held in September of that year. The first time in the history of trotting that $20,000 were offered in premiums at one meeting. Buffalo, which in subsequent years gave such immense punses for harness racing, in 1867 put up $12,000, Narragansett Park $10,000. Dexter made his last public appearance on the track that was named after him; these were exhibition premiums, so that it could be called a Horse Fair, and it was a "grand success."

In 1868 there was a racing meeting, under the management of John J. McKinnon, in Dexter Park, and at that some of the best horses appeared, and the racing was heartily enjoyed by the people ot Chicago. In 1869 there were two meetings, trotting in June, running in July. "Combined meetings" in the main successful, but again came antagonism to racing, and as the opposition could not be overcome Dexter Park was coated with gravel from Joliet. Not quite so bad as the cinders from the rolling mills, but an effectual bar to galloping contests. At a cost of $10,000, and the main proprietor, while adverse to the plan, was so much annoyed by the persistency of the advocates of a "hard surface" that he gave way, authorizing me, however, to construct an inside track for the runners. A pitiful apology, nevertheless, for a race course, when, in July, 1869, the crack race horse, Victory, five years old, under 100 pounds, could only run a mile in 1:58¾, and after a rain was beaten seven furlongs in 1:55. A level prairie, almost a swamp, the few weeks from commencing work until the meeting was held precluding all hopes of anything better than an ordinary plowed field.

The last meeting I was connected with in Chicago was held in 1873. Forty thousand dollars "hung up" for trotting and running, and a marked difference between then and now. Not one dollar for pacers, whereas at Washington Park this year the money was all given to pacers. Five days, and four of these it rained. Thanks to the Joliet gravel, the trotting track was in good condition, and those who had carried the job through exulted over the proof of their correct judgment. The inner track was much better than in previous years, though some of the races were run on the gravel, and had the weather been favorable all racing folk and trotting folk would have been well satisfied. Quoting from reports at the time: "Premiums generous in the extreme were offered and the meeting would have been a great success but for the fact that it rained four days in succession. As it was the gentlemen who got up the meeting have no reason to complain, for they will come out several thousands of dollars ahead. * * * For the first time during the week the weather was favorable the livelong day (the fifth) and it is estimated that at least 14,000 people were at the Park."

Thanks to the heavy rainfall the outer track was not so hard and the surface coating in this case beneficial.

Oakwood Park Stock Farm's consignment to the Cleveland sale took a short stop at the Emeryville track before starting on their long journey, and this gave me an opportunity to see them, the first time since they were yearlings. Fine-looking youngsters then, though the fifteen months which have intervened have "worked wonders" in changing good looks into superior form. Size, too, as with one exception they are above the average even for California youngsters, and the smaller is well balanced all through, a "speedy" shape such as the oldtime quarter horses of Printer blood exhibited. Nicely christened, Sylvan-Way by Steinway from Lunado by Electioneer, she is entitled to her inheritance of good looks, and as with little handling she has paced a quarter in 36½ seconds, the blood which flowed in the veins of W. Wood, 2:07, should bring the "pacing habit" thus early shown into a prominent position. Naniwa, brown filly by Charles Derby, dam Clytie II. by Nutwood, is an extra good-looking filly. Her dam is the dam of Neernut 2:12½, by Albert W., so that there is something of the same combination of blood, and as Naniwa has shown 41 seconds soon after she was broken, the chances are favorable for her trotting fast. Upnatan, a big black gelding by Steinway, from May by Anteeo, has a promising shape to go fast, and to that is added the propensity to trot, as he already has shown a forty gait, and as May is the dam of Bay Rum 2:23, natural adaptability is reinforced by family connection. Ronzano is evidently the first pick of Chebova, the trainer, and she is three-quarters the same blood as Derby Princess, her grandam being the dam of that grand big mare, while the intervening strain is Steinway, "high expectations" are fully warranted. She has shown fast also, and will doubtless bring a good price, in fact, it is reasonable to anticipate a big price for the handsome filly.

Wilkes Derby, by Charles Derby, from Alta Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, should meet approval, as in addition to good looks, firm action and speed there is the most fashionable of the sons of Hambletonian, and in this case sound sense endorses the estimate that places Electioneer and George Wilkes at the top, and that when there are so many distinguished members of the clan Hambletonian, is the highest of praise. Old timers who recall the great mare, Sontag, will not object to a strain of this blood, especially when united with Piedmont and other celebrities, so that Sorona, by Chas. Derby, from Rosaline, by Liberty Sontag, is likely to secure approval, as his form and action are indicative of future speed. Elora, by Charles Derby, from Venus, by Woodnut, completes the list of seven which have been bred at Oakwood Park and took their departure for Cleveland on the overland train of last Wednesday. Ever since the early Egyptian era the number seven has been considered a lucky omen, and it may be that every member of the equine heptarchy may become renowned.

In one instance in my knowledge good results came from the magical number being taken as a guide for speculative investments. A devotee of the fascinating game of faro had tried many "systems," all of which tended to show that the only possible method of beating the game was to refrain from wagering. He read an essay on mysticism and became a desciple, a firm believer in the potency of seven as the ground work of good fortune. The seventh deal his money went on the seven, and when there was only one seven left in the box he ventured his limit. Too many ways in which the number figured too plain in a few instances, but losses were restricted and gains augmented, though as it was early in his experiment when I last knew him, whether the oracle continued to give favorable returns I am unable to say.

I shall prefer to pin my faith on the good system of rearing pursued at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm, and the form of the colts to predicate future achievements upon, than cabalistic omens, and therefore have no hesitation in prophesying a good record for the colts.

The blood that has produced Derby Princess, W. Wood, Diablo, Owyhee, Klatawah and several others of celebrity can scarcely fail when in addition to pedigree, size, form, action and a full guarantee of speed for the opportunities offered.

Improvement Alameda Track.—Efforts to have the Alameda track coated with broken oyster shells are likely to be crowned with success. A stratum three inches thick will only entail the cost of a few hundred dollars. That it can be done so cheaply is owing to the fact that vessels can be loaded at the beds, sail up the bay and creek and unload within a short distance of the track. When done the track will be good at all seasons, as the heaviest rains will have little effect on a surface composed of that material.

Plenty of "spring" notwithstanding the hard surface, the elasticity of the substratum doing away with the jar.

But there is another scheme which has the merit of being better if the means can be obtained to carry it through. That is to raise the track two or three feet, the material used being the same as the present grade. The very best material for a trotting track I ever saw in dry weather, and from the first time being good soon after rain with the same chance for the water to run off, that elevation will give, there should be the same result. Three inches of shells, loaded on to vessels, unloaded and transferred into wagons, dumped and spread, it seems to me will cost nearly as much as material, scraped from inside and outside of the present track, to the necessary height. The silt and minute shells pumped from the bottom of the estuary are easily handled when dry.

With the machinery now in use for grading it seems to me that at least eight times as much could be put up for the cost of three inches of shell. That would be two feet added to the present grade, and were the same width retained, or widened so that there would be an average width of 54 feet, twenty thousand cubic yards of filling, and, without being informed of what the cost of moving dirt in that way is, it cannot be very great.

With the "Fresno scraper," the short haul and the friable soil, each team would make quite a section of the work in a day. Working from both sides, there would only be one turn to every scraper load, and then all the work could be done with horse power, that is scrapers, levellers, etc., operated by draft animals.

In conversation with a man who lives in Oakland, and whose only interest is an occasional drive on the Alameda track for the pleasure it affords him, he said that while he would subscribe to the surface application, he would rather give fifty dollars to raise the grade, than five dollars for the coating of broken shells.

The Alameda Driving Club is composed of a few gentlemen who have a fancy for harness horses, not a single member thereof who can profit pecuniarily from the outlay. Quite a large amount is necessary to complete the venture to make it profitable, that is, to fit it for a regular harness-racing meeting, and, consequently, the contemplated improvement can only be made through donations. Under the prevailing conditions the club has been liberal in its expenditures, well worthy of high praise for what it has accomplished, whatever the future may add.

The First Sale Catalogue issued by the Occidental Horse Exchange, in their printing office at 313 Bush street, contains the animals comprising the racing stable of Mr. A. B. Spreckels, to be sold on November 17th next, at their new building, 721 Howard and 225 Tehama streets. A handsome pamphlet, the cover of which is embellished with the racing colors which the horses catalogued have brought to the front so often. The blue above the white and the red below, relieved by the imprint of several kinds of letters give it a striking appearance, insuring attention if even a passing glance is all that is bestowed. In an article which appeared last week there was a reference to the catalogue, and the slightest examination of the pamphlet will show that the praise given was not any too high. On a new plan, or it will be better to state old plans improved, so that under the tabulated pedigree of each animal offered there is a succint history of individual and stock. The catalogue is an important factor in an auction sale, and this initial specimen is proof that part of the work will be well done, very well done.

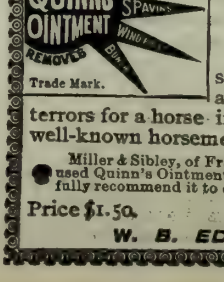
The Reed Estate Yearlings.

Monday night, December the 6th, is the date set for the auction sale of the nineteen yearlings bred at the Oneonta Stud Farm of the late Simeon G. Reed, of Pasadena, Cal.

The stallions represented by sons or daughters in this consignment are imp. Duncombe, (the great Irish horse which ran a mile in 1:37 1-5 in England), imp. Watercress, imp. Golden Garter, Darriwell, Nomad, Verano and Emperor of Norfolk.

The late Mr. Reed was one of the best students of blood lines in this country, and paid fabulous sums for several mares he purchased at sales in England, and they have thrown some good winners since coming to America. The American-bred mares, mothers of yearlings in this sale, are from the greatest racing families known; many are stake-winners, while several have thrown high-class performers by imp. Martenhurst and other horses. Though the Oneonta Stud Farm was established but a few years ago, such clinking good ones as Fig Leaf, Midlight, Brier Hill and Spunwell were bred there, and the consignment to be sold December 6th is a grand one in point of individuality of the animals, while no better-bred ones were ever led into a sales ring.



The largest individual loss on a horse race is said to be that of the Duke of Westminister, who bet $900,000 to $30,000 against Hermit in the Derby of 1867. Hermit won.

Handspring has been sent to McGrathiana and will be in the stud with his celebrated sire, Hanover, next season.

Pueblo, Colo., June 12, '97.

From close observation I have come to the conclusion that De Huy's "Balmoline" is the best "all around" healing salve a horseman can use.

QUINN'S OINTMENT

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well-known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bell Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches, it has no equal.

Price $1.50. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail.

THE SULKY.

Janie T., two-year-old, 2:17 and 2:14. How's that for a Bow Bell's filly?

Rat-a-Tat, a pacer, entered the list at Boise, Idaho, October 19th, getting a mark of 2:21.

Mary Nelson, a bay mare by Nelson, out of a mare by Electricity, got a tincup record of 2:25¾.

Sable Wilkes, 3, 2:18, has another producing son. He is Beverley, the sire of Dark Secret, 2:27¼.

The racing at Santa Ana this season about ends the light harness season of 1897 in the United States.

The horses for the Cleveland sale started on Wednesday. Jack Perkins accompanied Mr. Covey on this trip.

Rosebud, the sister of Stranger and daughter of Goldsmith Maid 2.14, has a Direct (2:05½) filly at foot. It is a trotter.

A pacer called Estella won a race at the Le Grande, Oregon, fair, getting a mark at 2:16¼. Her pedigree is not given in the summaries.

F. M. Day has moved his horses, including Dictatus, 2:21, from the Belmont Stock Farm, to Wilman's farm at Newman, Stanislaus county.

Any Old Thing is the poetical name of a 2:45 trotter that won a race at Hollister, on Wednesday. A horse by any other name might go as fast.

The horses sent East to the Cleveland sale from the Oakwood Park Stock Farm are a far superior lot (for their age) to any ever sent from the farm.

F. W. Loeber has some excellent horses for sale cheap at his farm near St. Helena. They must be sold, as he is making arrangements to leave for Maryland.

Jack Spratt, 2:23¼, by Hambletonian Wilkes was so badly injured in a race at the recent Hillsdale, Mich., meeting that it was found necessary to destroy him.

Limerick, by Prodigal, owned by Marcus Daly, is a great two-year-old. He won a heat in 2:20½, but Weighman, by Wilton won the race in 2:19½ and 2:21½.

Naniwa, a brown filly by Chas. Derby, 2:20, out of that beautifully formed mare Clytie (dam of Neernut, 2:12½) by Nutwood will bring a good price at the Cleveland sale.

Molly Nurse, 4, 2:14½, who took her record on the Montana Circuit this year, is the first foal of her sire, Woodman 2:28¼, by Monon, and his only one over three years of age.

At the Brisbane Jockey Club (Queensland) meeting, a 13-hand pony (Minnie) carrying 161 pounds, won the 2¼ miles handicap trot under the saddle, in 7:02½, winning by a furlong.

The Los Angeles meeting cleared $14,000 on its meeting. It was splendidly advertised, managed and attended. The early closing events in the light harness events proved great money makers.

Betonica 2:06¾, as a three-year-old. Palo Alto always takes the lead, and now the side wheel brigade of three-year-olds of Tennessee must wake up and do something to beat this youngster.

All of Frank H. Burke's trotters and pacers will be disposed of at J. N. Nelson's auction sale at the Alameda race track, November 15th. This promises to be one of the best sales of the year.

Janie T., 2:14, Limerick, 2:19½, Nowaday, 2:16¼, trotters, and Cornelia Belle, 2:17¼, Lady Moryea, 2:16¼, Mazette, 2:17¼, and Walter Wilton, 2:12, are the two-year-olds that have beaten 2:20 this year.

At the Salt Lake races a horse called Bay Bird entered the 2:30 list getting a mark of 2:30 while Emma D. his contestant won the race in the three following heats. Time, 2:29¼, 2:30½ and 2:31¼.

James Wallace Knox, the famous turfman and owner of Nutwood, committed suicide at Kenosha, Wis., October 23d, by shooting himself in the head. He was despondent over business reverses.

Searchlight paced one mile in the mile and one-eighth dash at Los Angeles in 2:07. This was the fastest mile ever made by a three-year-old trotting or pacing up to October 20th, yet it is no record.

Pilot Prince that fine son of Dexter Prince that was crippled in one of his legs as a colt, has been successfully treated by Dr. Stimpson's new method and will be prepared for the races next season.

Alfonso 2:29¼, the son of Baron Wilkes and Alma Mater has put six new ones in the list this year. His owner, J. C. Linneman of Lima, O., writes that he and four of his get are to show at the Chicago Horse Show.

An eastern exchange remarks that The Monk 2:08¼ is the "first four-year-old trotter to beat 2:10." What's the matter with Directum 2:05¼, Fantasy 2:06, Beuzetta 2:06¾, Arion 2:07¾, Onoqua 2:08¼ and Pat L. 2:09¼?

The five-year-old stallion Respond, by Campbell's Electioneer, who recently trotted to a record of 2:24½, is reported an extra good one. Dick Tilden says of him: "I never sat behind a better one, except McVera 2:10¼."

Starter Ferguson thought he could talk to the drivers as he does to a pack of jockeys while acting as starter at Los Angeles, but the drivers were not built that way and resented the strictures made by this "prince of starters."

The attention of our readers is called to the auction sale of trotting stock to take place at the Pleasanton race track, November 18th. There some of the most grandly-bred ones ever foaled on the Pleasanton Stock Farm in this sale.

When Black Bart, by Junio, trotted into 2:29¾, he made the fourth to the credit of old Dolly to enter the 2:30 list. Dolly is owned by C. Z. Hebert, one of the leading young farmers of Monterey county.

At Lexington, Ky., October 13th, in one of the public sales, the bay horse King Nutwood, was sold to Mr. A. Weihl, of New York, for $2,000, the same gentleman buying the brown mare Julia Coulter, 2:15¾, by Wilkes Boy, at a price of $1,000.

The black mare Satin Slippers, foaled 1892, which made a trotting record of 2:13, at Lexington, last fall, paced a sixth heat in 2:09¾, in the 2:25 pacing race at Terre Haute last week. She was got by De Laney 9979, son of Director, dam by Mambrino Alhambra.

The bay mare "Daisy Bell" that has been starting in slow classes this season has been identified as "Mountain Pink," 2:15¼ by "Ellerslie Wilkes." A portion of her unlawful winnings have been recovered by The National Trotting Association and will be redistributed.

C. K. Ragan's trotting mare, Addie E., died on Monday last at the age of fifteen years. She was sired by Algona and had a record of 2:19. She was the dam of Col. K., record 2:22¼, also dam of one colt by Strathway and one by Iris, both of which have shown good speed.

Candidates for Governor of California are cropping up. They must set themselves right regarding appropriations for district fairs when seeking the nomination. The one who is the strongest friend of orchardists, farmers and stock-breeders will stand the best chance for being named.

The gray mare Ladykin, which took a record of 2:30 at Lexington, is much inbred to Miss Russell. Her sire is Velocidad by Electioneer, out of Nutula, sister to Nutwood and daughter of Miss Russell, and her dam is Lady Russell, sister to Maud S. and daughter of Miss Russell.

At Red Oak, Iowa, the last day of the meeting lately held there, John Tilden won the third heat of the special from Star Wilkes and Joe Ben, 2:19¼, with Tenino. This mare is a full sister to the great pacers, Chehalis and Del Norte. Tenino is a trotter and has gone eighths in 14½ seconds.

The drivers on the California circuit this year were all dressed in distinctive colors, light satin jackets and caps, and besides had large numbers fastened on their arms and on the middle of their backs, so that on going away from the stand there was no doubt among the spectators as to the position of the various horses they drove.

W. M. Hughes, representing Return Roberts, the Madera banker, has purchased from Heilbron Brothers, of the Wildflower Stock Farm, the pacing colt, Tocalon, by Richard's Elector, the winner of the harness race last Saturday, says the Fresno Republican of Tuesday. He paced three heats better than 2:27, making a record of 2:25 flat.

The gray gelding "Tom Moody" that has been starting in Connecticut and Massachusetts in slow pacing classes, has been identified as "Rocktown" by "White Cloud," who made a record of 2:23 at Warren, Ind. Sept. 14, 1894. A portion of his unlawful winnings have been recovered by the National Trotting Association and will be redistributed.

Our Daily Breeder and Sportsman devoted exclusively to the winter running meetings will make its annual appearance next Monday. The "tips" selected regarding the winners in 1895, 1896 and 1897 by its reporters averaged more winners than all the other papers and handicappers combined. Hence, for this reason, it had a larger circulation than any of its rivals. Sample copies sent free to any address.

Betonica 2:06¾, the fastest three-year-old pacer in the world, was bred at Palo Alto. He was sired by the half thoroughbred Azmoor 2:20½ out of Nadine (dam of Miss Maude 2:29½, and Amigo 2:16¾), by Wildidle, second dam Norah (dam of Candidate 2:26½), by Messenger Duroc; third dam Mary Hulse (dam of Charley Champlain 2:21¾, Sam Hill 2:30½) by American Star. This mark, 2:06¾, is not a record, we believe, accorcing to the telegrams received.

E. C. Walker (Veritas) has received for fall jogging and winter conditioning at his stables, New York, the black pacing gelding W. W. Foote, five years old, by Steinway, dam Maggie McGregor by Robert McGregor. W. W. Foote made a two-year-old record of 2:15¼, in California, driven by Millard Sanders who says he was the state colt of his year. He is the property of Walter C. Harrington, of Troy, N. Y., owner of Phœbe Wilkes, Garnet, Jane and the first prize team Fod and Kate Angell.

The leading sires of the new 2:20 performers are very close together this year. There are but six who have five or more to their credit, Allerton, 2:09¼, Altamont, 2:26¾, and Pilot Medium each have six, while Baron Wilkes, 2:18, Red Wilkes and Wilton, 2:19¼, have each five. Allerton has a number that is hovering in close proximity to the line and he will undoubtedly assume the lead in the number of 2:20 performers for the year, as he has already in regard to those within the standard line.

Foreigners were liberal patrons at the big sales last year and they exported a great many horses. Some of them have been very successful on the European turf. The American trotter has gained a strong place in the hearts of horse-loving sportsmen of Austria and other countries, and as a result there will be a number of horses sent abroad this winter. The first delegation of foreign buyers has already arrived. There will be several other buyers from across the water here during the winter, and the prospects are looking up for the breeders.

At the Brockton (Mass.) Fair exhibition of horses, Sable Wilkes won the first premium for stallions, with Wiseburn, by Guy Wilkes, second, and Alkalone, by Wilton, third. Only five-tenths of a point separated the latter two, the score card system of judging prevailing. In the three-year old class of stallions Gagnant, by Jay Bird, captured the blue ribbon, and Col. Ralph, by Ralph Wilkes, got second. In the two-year-old class Brooklawn Baron, by Baron Wilkes, won first, and in the yearling class W. H. Wilson, by Simmons, won first, and Lucre, by Superior Wilkes second. In the brood mare class Faustina, by Crown Point—Dell Foster, by A. W. Richmond, which has proved herself to be one of the greatest brood mares in New England, won the blue ribbon. Whisper 2:08¾, by Alcander, was second.

James Butler, President of the New York Driving Club, has expressed his willingness to head the subscription for a building fund with $25,000. Now that the actual work of demolition has begun on the old Fleetwood surroundings, Mr. Butler is very anxious that steps be taken for securing a new track, and hopes to be able to get matters under way. Secretary L. A. Burke has expressed a readiness to subscribe $10,000.

The famous Palo Alto driver Richard Havey was badly injured at Santa Anna on Wednesday last. He was driving the mare Pesonte, when she became unmanageable and commenced backing and plunging. She finally ran away, throwing Mr. Havey out of the sulky and fracturing his leg below the knee. The mare fell after running some distance, and after being unharnessed it was ascertained she had injured her shoulder so severely that she will be unable to start in a race again this season. This accident to Mr. Havey is the first serious one that has occurred to a driver in California for the past four years.

At the Salinas track while Vet Kent was exercising the three-year-old trotting wonder, Uncle Johnny, who has a 2:19¼ record, he noticed the horse suddenly go lame, and then stop altogether. As Uncle Johnny was only going at a 2:26 pace Kent did not understand it. He dismounted and upon examination found that the horse had sprained a tendon of the right foot near the ankle. This will necessitate his being laid off for the balance of the season. Uncle Johnny is a three-year-old sorrel gelding, and is owned by G. E. Shaw of Hollister. The horse is a familiar figure on all California tracks.—Salinas Journal.

There are several causes for forging, viz.: carrying the head low; horse being allowed to shuffle along, and not kept well in hand. Another cause is too long toes forward, or general elevation of the entire forward feet; also too much action behind. The first thing is to quicken and elevate the forward action. To do this, lower and shorten toes. Have the quarters and heels thicker than the toes. To lessen the action behind use a long shoe and small calks. It may be that the front feet have been allowed to grow long and high. In the event of too much feet forward the horse is very liable to forge. Keep the feet reduced and that of itself may correct the fault.

An almost incredible piece of information comes from East View Farm, where trainer John Kelley is carefully handling James Butler's superior equine youngsters. It seems that Mr. Kelley has been experimenting some with the farm's premier, Direct, 2:05½, pacing, for the purpose of seeing what the former champion can do at the trot. He took him out the other day and sent him a half mile at the diagonal gait in 1:05½, timed by several careful gentlemen. Direct has a trotting record of 2:18¼ as a four-year-old, but in order to get it he was obliged (or so supposed) to carry about thirty ounces on each forefoot. When he trotted the other day he wore an eight ounce shoe and carried a three ounce weight. He goes sound and seems able to trot a fast mile at any time. It is possible that Mr. Butler may start him next season.

S. Nuyama, director general of the imperial studs of the Emperor of Japan, who came to this country about a month ago, with the head veterinary of the Japanese Empire and other Japanese experts in horseflesh, for the purpose of buying fine stallions, has finished his mission, W. E. D. Stokes says, and with his party is about to start for home. Mr. Stokes reports that Mr. Nuyama bought only six horses in this country, five of which came from Patchen Wilkes Stock Farm at Lexington, Ky., in which Mr. Stokes is interested, and the other was bought from Maj. McDowell, of the same place. Among the horses bought are Will Stokes, a black son of Patchen Wilkes, and another by the same sire, King Wilkes and Ferland Wilkes. Vodka was brought from the the other farm. Mr. Stokes refused to name the price paid, but said the animals would be shipped in a very few days in charge of Charles J. Prue, a well-known horseman—Horse Review.

The "American Sportsman" of October 14th says: Two sales of trotters were in progress at Lexington last week, and a large number of visitors to the Breeders' meeting from all parts of the United States were in daily attendance, all on the lookout for promising racing and breeding material. From the outset it was apparent, however, that Kentucky had nothing to offer in comparison with the old days, and the youngsters that did come under the hammer brought large and satisfactory prices. The fact that Kentucky, the center of breeding operations—was unable to give a sale which would supply the demand, indicated to all horsemen that we are upon the eve of a horse famine, and this state of affairs was freely commented upon by all the breeders present at the sale and meeting. The coming scarcity in horses was plainly seen two years ago, but the arrival of the famine was hardly expected so soon. A famine is so openly apparent that breeders should prepare now to take advantage of the profit to be made by the increase in horse values which is sure to follow."

An English correspondent calls our attention to the fact that a species of virulent distemper or influenza is killing thousands of horses in Russia. For some time it has been hinted at in England that a quarantine should be enforced against Russian horses, but confirmation of the original statement was lacking until a private telegram was received conveying the intelligence that no less than fifty-seven of the territorial divisions of European Russia has been invaded by the pest. So far no veterinarian has been able to cure any animal affected by the disease and the imperial government has offered a handsome sum of money to any one who will suggest some efficacious remedy. It is at all times difficult to obtain trustworthy information concerning untoward happenings in the land of the Czars and there is in this case the usual dearth of particulars, but enough is known to prove that the disease is a most unwelcome visitor. In the United States we have influenza enough among our horses without suffering the introduction of new and wonderful sorts of the same disease for which reason the port authorities on our Eastern coasts cannot be too careful in examining ships coming from Russia or carrying to our shores Russian commodities that might reasonably be expected to convey infection. We have received but a very few horses from Russia and those from stables not likely to be infected, but the disease may be spread by other media than the animals themselves. Secretary Wilson might do worse than request the State Department to instruct our consular representatives in Russia to at once forward reports concerning the patnology of the malady and the extent of its ravages.—Horseman.

THE SADDLE.

Pat Dunne and Green Morris are to ship to California together.

W. M. Murry "boosted" Marshall $300 when he beat Buckwa at Aqueduct recently.

Blue Stocking is the dam of another winner in Linstock, and Logic is his sire, too.

Jockey Bob Isom is out again. He is still very weak from his month's stay at the hospital.

Isen, a recent winner at Aqueduct, is a granddaughter of Darebin, by that promising sire Ludwig.

Perhaps has been turned out on a ranch near Antioch. He pulled up lame recently at Ingleside.

Fred Taral will ride for Bromley & Co. next season and Charley Hughes will train the horses.

There is a strong likelihood of there being a great race meeting at Washington Park next season.

Presbyterian, by imp. Prestonpans—Dareka, won a six-furlong race in 1:14¼ last Saturday at Harlem.

Flo Honeydew, a 20 to 1 shot, was landed in front by Johnny Woods last Monday in a five-furlong race.

Timemaker and Pacemaker, sons of Kantaka (half-brother to Hermit), won races at Harlem October 21st.

Hastings carried 140 pounds up and ran seven furlongs in 1:28¼ in the Westchester Stakes at Morris Park last Saturday.

James R. Keene haa engaged Thomas Green to train his horses, in place of Frank Brown, well known in California.

W. H. Maloney arrived from the East Monday with his son, W. A. Maloney. This is the latter's first visit to California.

Redleap, Australia's champion steeplechaser, was recently handicapped for the Ladies' Bracelet at Caulfield at 228 pounds.

Limasol, the Oaks winner of this season, at the sale of Lord Hindley's horses was bought at $19,000, the purchaser being Lord Brassey.

Salvable, with 110 pounds up, won a mile race in 1:41¾ at Morris Park last Saturday. Bernardillo, by Emperor of Norfolk, finished third in the race.

Frank Phillips, owner of Marjorie, Candor, Inflammator and others, arrived in town last Sunday night. He sold Shield Bearer over at St. Louis.

The California Jockey Club will give a three or four weeks' meeting at Los Angeles. It will in all probability take place during the month of June.

Ferrier arrived here in a wretched condition and has doubtless run his last race. He is now at Ingleside, but will be shipped to the Hobart ranch shortly.

Guy Neal, a Texas jockey, is to do the bulk of the riding for Louis Ezell in California this winter. He had a few mounts at the Los Angeles meeting.

Major S. N. Androus, President of the Pacific Coast Jockey Club, came up from Los Angeles Monday. He is very enthusiastic about the coming season.

Judicious, a recent winner at Harlem, is by Julien, from Kittie H. The last named is the grandam of the good Martenhurst colt Mercutio and of Hertha.

Quite a number of local men will "cut in" as bookmakers at the meeting which begins Monday, including Phil Archibald, Jack Willis, Ed. Wallace and Joe Rose.

Garner, who rode for G. C. Bennett this year, has joined the Slaughter boys and taken a string of horses to Texas. His contract with Bennett has expired.—Daily Racing Form.

In the Ladies' Bracelet, run at Caulfield (Australia), twenty-two horses started, eleven of them from the Messrs. Miller's Mill Park Stables. Only two of these finished in the first seven.

Hugh Jones reports that Gratify will start Monday at Ingleside and Mainstay will sport colors on the second day. Gratify is looking first-class and gives every promise of standing up.

Eugene Leigh has decided to retire from the breeding ranks, and his entire stud, including the sire Bramble, will be sold in November. The La Belle Stud Farm will also be sold at auction.

The electric cars will make a trip to Ingleside track in six minutes' less time than formerly. The Kearny and Mission street cars will run through without any transferring of passengers.

Maid of Honor, who recently won a six-furlong race at Windsor with ease in 1:15, is by imp. Midlothian from Agnes. La Colina, a winner the same day, is by imp. The Hook—St. Cecilia.

That skillful trainer, H. R. Baker, who filled his contract with Barney Schreiber October 1st, will train for C. C. Maffit, of St. Louis, the balance of this and next season, says Daily Racing Form.

Horsemen who have recently visited the Santa Anita ranch are very enthusiastic over a youngster by Rey el Santa Anita. Col. Dan Burns, according to report, stands ready to pay $5,000 for the yearling.

Johnny Coleman says neither George Wheelock nor Abe Levy will come to the Coast this winter. Both are heavy speculators, and Wheelock is the warmest "dresser" in the bookmakers' fraternity.

At the recent South Canterbury (N. Y.) Jockey Club meeting Marlin, by Artillery—Fallacy, won the Rhodes Memorial stakes, a mile handicap (the big race of the day) and besides ran second in the Flying Handicap the first day.

Miss Tenny, of Tenny, the property of Pulsifer & Karrick, won the Castleton Stakes at Morris Park October 21st, running the five furlongs in 0:58½. The Pulsifer of this firm is Tenny's old owner.

Rummel (by Flambeau), who once gave promise of being a good race horse, is now a buggy horse and can be seen almost any day in the vicinity of the Palace Hotel. George Berry had the son of Flambeau out last Monday.

"Big Jim" Garland is training the thirty-four race horses of A. B. Spreckels, which are to be sold at public auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange, on the 17th of November. The flyers are reported to be in grand order.

Johnny Woods greatly distinguished himself at Harlem track October 21st. He had two mounts (Algaretta and Sea Robber) and won with both—at odds of 12 to 1 and 4½ to 1. The little fellow got a lot of praise for his work in the papers.

J. B. Dyer, who sent Elkwood and other crack horses to the post, is training the Corrigan string, which numbers about thirty. Piggott will do the bulk of the riding, as Songer will not be able to ride for some time on account of his recent accident.

At the sale, October 14th, at Newmarket, England, of the Marquis of Zetland's breeding and racing stables, thirty horses were sold for 21,027 guineas. The brood mares, Santa Felice and Lucy Cross brought 2,150 guineas and 2,500 guineas, respectively.

At the Egmont Hunt Club (N. Z.) meeting Sinner, by Foulshot, bay gelding, ran second with 168 pounds up in the steeplechase of two and one-half miles (the third race) and won the sixth race the same afternoon, a steeplechase of two miles, with 173 pounds up.

Matt Byrnes, accounted one of America's best race horse trainers, will be here, it is said, with two car-loads of horses from Marcus Daly's Bitter Root Stock Farm. After they are developed and their merits shown through racing every one of the gallopers will be disposed of.

Little Johnny Woods, who was first brought into public notice by the Breeder and Sportsman, and who has made a record as a rider this season that he may well be proud of, will probably have a mount or two on the opening day at Ingleside, which is next Monday.

William Day, who rode Guy Momus when Queen Victoria backed him for the Ascot Cup of 1838 (this being the first time she visited the meeting in state), is the only man alive now who had a mount sixty years ago, and his weight at that time was little more than eighty-four pounds.

The Marion County Grand Jury is investigating the actions of certain prominent officials of Sausalito township in relation to the running of pool-rooms. In the cases of Harrison & Co., charged with violating the pool-room ordinance, only three jurors were obtained at Sausalito out of a venire of 150.

At a meeting of the stockholders in the Woodland, Cal., Agricultural Association, held October 20th, a majority of the stock was not represented, but of those voting twenty-seven were in favor of selling the race track and grounds to Col. Dan Burns and Thomas Williams and only three against the proposition.

Diakka, of the Lotillard-Beresford stable, won the Duke of York Stakes, 2,000 sovereigns, at Kempton Park, England, recently. The American won by two lengths from Laveno, while four lengths further away was Minstrel. The distance was one mile, and fourteen started. Diakka was at 3½ to 1 in the betting.

It is exceedingly gratifying to Major Thomas, who is about to retire from the ranks of breekers, that the two stakes run Thursday, though one was at Latonia and the other at Morris Park, were both won by sons of his stallions. Nuto (by imp. Masetto) won the Kimball stakes, and Plaudit (by Himyar) won the Nursery Handicap.

Naglee Burke's race horses, stable equipments and race track material have arrived from San Jose, and he will hereafter have his stables and training quarters on his portion of the Naglee grant estate. About fifty blooded horses in all have arrived, and the work of making the training track will be rapidly pushed forward.—Tracy Times.

Col. Dan Burns is much impressed with the worth of the Strombolis, so much so that he and his partner, Clarence Waterhouse, have purchased four yearlings by the big Sydney Cup winner of Bart Cavanaugh of Sacramento. Should they turn out as good as expected, there will be sorrow expressed over the departure of Stromboli for Australia.

San Antonio, by imp. Clieviden—Orange Leaf, very heavily backed, nearly threw Handpress over the fence in the last furlong of the second race, according to the dispatches. He then went in, but could not beat Ortoland, getting second place, a head behind the winner. The stewards, however, disqualified him, giving second place to Handpress and third to Hardly.

J. M. Murphy, well-known on Middle West race tracks as "Jim Murphy, the turf correspondent," arrived at Ingleside with his string last Monday, which includes the crack handicap horse, Buck Massie (by Hanover), Souffle, the bay Rayon d'Or mare that proved a triple Oaks winner in 1896, and Carnero, a good three-year-old colt by imp. Candlemas—Sister Geneva.

Ben Holladay broke the American mile and three-quarter record last Saturday at Morris Park in the Municipal Stakes, carrying 118 pounds. The four-year-old son of Hanover and Mollie L. ran the distance in 2:59½. The old record, 3:00¾, was made by Hotspur, with 117 pounds up, at Bay District track April 30, 1891. Eastin & Larrabie, of Deer Lodge, Mont., own Ben Holladay.

The Australian papers to hand contain the entries and weights of the Melbourne cup. Battalion has been assigned the top weight of 130 pounds. Coil, by Abercorn and Delaware, by Trenton, are next with 129 pounds each. The crack three-year-old colt Aurum has been weighted at 118 pounds, which is quite a stiff impost for a youngster going two miles against the best horses in the colonies.

Jockey Mike Hennessy arrived from Los Angeles last Monday night. He rode in the far East (after he left here last May), for Burns & Waterhouse some, but principally for Duke & Wishard, who will race here this winter. Hennessy says Ruinart strained a tendon two days before he was ready to start, and but for this accident would undoubtedly have rendered a good account of himself.

A New York dispatch of last Monday reads: "R. L. Rose's grand race horse Clifford brought $7,000 at Morris Park sale to-day. He was bought by John Sanford, master of the Hurricana stud. J. W. Rogers says Clifford is still in shape for racing, but it is Sanford's intention to retire him from the track. Mr. Sanford also bought the young mare, One I Love, winner of the Great Eastern handicap of 1895, for $3,500."

At the A. J. C. Metropolitan meeting (Sydney), Carbine's offspring ran first four times, second three times, third three times; Lochiel's ran first three times, second three times, third twice; Trenton's ran first twice, second once; Splendor's ran first once, second three times; Nordenfeldt's ran first twice, second twice; Hotchkiss' ran second once. Those of the Musket line won eight races, were second seven times and third four times.

H. L. Frank of Butte, Mont., will have a very select string racing here, having purchased Senator Bland, imp. Missioner and two others of Marcus Daly. John S. Campbell, now trainer for Mr. Frank, has carte blanche to purchase three or four serviceable horses at the East, and it is reported he has leased for the California campaign the full sisters and good winners, May W. and Plumeria, by imp. Eagle Plume—Froila.

John J. Carter, the gentleman selected to take Joseph J. Burke's place in the judges' stand, is a native of Nashville, Tenn., and is favorably known all over the Middle West. Mr. Carter began racing in the late seventies, and has been a judge for about ten years. The breath of dishonor has never sullied the Nashvillian's name, and he is reported to be wide-awake, quick to decide and firm in his resolves. Let us hope he will hew to the line, letting the chips fall in any old place.

Tod Sloan managed to win a maiden plate at Newmarket last Monday on the Lorillard-Beresford chestnut colt Quibble II., by Sensation out of Quandary. The Chronicle printed a big picture of the midget man, whose head, from all reports, is already swelled to terrible proportions, and the win of an unimportant race like this will not greatly enhance his reputation, though the Chronicle tries to make out that it is one of the prominent features of the English turf. The fact is, it was just an ordinary purse race for maiden two-year-olds.

Thoroughbred horse-owners and breeders should not forget that Stud Book registration is a matter requiring immediate attention, as the rules of the Jockey Club require that foals shall be registered before November 1st of the year of foaling, if it is intended to race them on courses under the auspices of the Jockey Club. The American Stud Book, now the property and under the control of the Jockey Club, is open for the registration of thoroughbred horses, no matter of what year or what time presented. The fee charged is $2 per head. No charge is made for claiming names nor for recording brood mares.

James F. Caldwell has been selected to do the starting at Ingleside. The veteran (for Mr. Caldwell is considerably past the sixty-year mark) has been doing good work with the gate this year, and has from all reports secured his "second wind." By the way, it's kind of funny how the big blue-eyed Kentuckian about two years ago laughed at the very idea of starting gates ever being used to send fields of flyers on their journeys. Now he swears by 'em, in all probability. But it's a poor man that won't change his mind and admit the merits of man or invention, and Mr. Caldwell is very up-to-date for one that has been in the racing game for nearly forty-five years.

On the night the Kerr yearlings are to be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange two brood mares and a three-year-old colt, the property of Mrs. A. C. Posey of Oakland, will be disposed of by auction. The mares are Carrie M. (a good winner, a sister to Censor, winner of 48 races, and a grand individual, 16 hands in height), by Hyder Ali—Vivian, by imp. Intruder, bred just like Spokane; Haroldine (half-sister to Deerslayer and East Love), by Gen. Harding—Doe, by Uncle Vic. The three-year-old colt is Posey, by Three Cheers—Haroldine. He is a slashing, fine-looking fellow, and has worked quarters in 0:23, half a mile in 0:50. Recently he was sent six furlongs in 1:17 at Ingleside, with heavy shoes on and about 140 pounds up, track slow.

The death of Carbine's dam, Mersey, has been recorded during the week by cablegram from Melbourne. The famous mare was bred by the Duke of Westminster in 1874, and was therefore twenty-three years old. She was purchased for the Auckland Stud Company by Sir Hercules Robinson at the sale of Mr. Blenkiron's stud in 1880. In her first season at the stud she missed to Musket, but next year produced Lady Walmsley to Musket. In 1883 she missed again to Musket, but next season produced Lady Mersey, and the following year, 1885, the mighty Carbine. In 1886 she again missed and next year she slipped to Nordenfeldt. In 1888 Lady Carbine was the result of her union with Nordenfeldt, and the next year her foal by that sire died. In 1890 Carnage, by Nordenfeldt, was the result, but in the next two seasons more ill luck attended her, for her 1891 filly by Nordenfeldt died and she slipped in 1892, and her unions with Trenton in following years were similarly unfortunate. It was thought probable that she was in foal to the imported horse Bill of Portland. Mersey's family have certainly been very unfortunate if we except the champion and his three-parts brother Carnage. Lady Mersey was a cripple and died at early age, Thame being her only living representative. Lady Walmsley has not added to the fame of her dam, but has been quite unfortunate, as her first filly died at three years old and her next at foaling time, and she missed in three other seasons. Carnage was, as most people know, a racehorse, and his V. R. C. Derby win and second in the Melbourne Cup are amongst his achievements. Mersey's name, as the dam of Carbine, the greatest horse produced south of the line, will be handed down to posterity.—New Zealand Press.

Prospect for Royal Racing.

When the judges' stand bell at Ingleside track clangs next Monday afternoon, betokening the inauguration of another extended race meeting, there will be an assemblage at the handsome course wholly worthy of those presenting the attractions and the beautifiers of the racing ground that is so near the sunset sea. So many changes have been made since last spring that Ingleside is as unrecognizable as a man who has just passed through a threshing machine and much prettier to gaze upon. The principal improvement is the making of a steeplechase course in the infield, and this meant the outlay of a sum that would keep a spendthrift out of debt for several seasons. The jockeys' stand, next to that, is the most taking innovation. The riders not engaged in a race have a delightful place in which to view their fellow Knights of the Pigskin and their methods, good, bad and indifferent, and are at the same time secluded and exclusive, even if they are not mentioned in the Blue Book of the local Four Hundred.

And while we are on the subject of riders and pigskin talent, we might mention that there will be no dearth of good horse pilots here, for nearly all the old "stars" as well as the new comets of the American racing sky will be a-twinkle. True, Tod Sloan is not here, but he will be—if his head does not become so badly swollen in the tight little isle that it bursts his hat of latest style. His brother "Cash" will probably keep the family name well before the public, and he's not the worst rider on earth either—no, not by a jugfull. Charley Thorpe will be here to ride for Burns & Waterhouse, O'Connor and O'Donnell bright, particular light-weight stars, will also be on hand, and, re-enforced by Tommy Burns and Tommy Murphy, Clawson, Garner, Gray, Caywood, Piggott, M. Hennessey, George Snider, McNichols, Marty Bergen, Patsy Freeman, Ames, J. Lamie, Q. Morse, Johnny and Joe Weber and great little "Johnny Dugan" Woods, the troop of pigskin artists will more than hold their own in the citadel of the public heart, and there will be no cries of "murther in Oirish" over bad horsemanship.

And as for horses, verily, there are many who can sift sand and win wagers for their armies of admirers. Perhaps the best horse from the East that has, as yet, arrived in California, is a long, low, rakish racing craft called Buck Massie, property of J. M. Murphy, while a stable companion of Buck's, a mare of queenly proportions (Souffle) is not of a much lower class, for she was a triple Oaks winner in 1896 and a torrid bit of horse flesh this season. Other good racers over a distance of ground that will take part in races here are Scarborough, Ruinart, Buckwa, Mt. McGregor II., Installator, Vinctor, Wheel of fortune, Salvation, Senator Bland, 'Ostler Joe, Marcel, Grady, Marquise, Carnero, Flying Dutchman, Salvable, Lorena II., Greyhurst, imp. Missioner, imp. Devil's Dream, Lady Hurst, Foremost, The Roman, Boanerges, Moncreith and Laureate, while there is a strong likelihood that the great Requital, winner of The Futurity and Realization, will race over Ingleside and Emeryville tracks before the holidays, and there is a host of lightning strikers in the sprinting brigade.

The best indication in the world, however, that the coming meetings will be the most notable in the Coast's history, is that all the stalls (and there are about 800 at each track) are taken, and the cry is still, "They come!" There will also be a larger number of bookmakers shouting the odds than ever before, and the present prospect is that no less than twenty-two will be transacting business next Monday afternoon a few moments after Roberto McKibbenio shouteth: "All right! Make book!"

The New Registration Rule.

The Jockey Club of the far East, which has charge of thoroughbred registration matters, has made a good rule. It is to the effect that no charge will be made for registration in the American Stud Book of brood mares whose breeding can be proven, or for naming foals, a $2 fee only being charged for registering foals. As registration in the American Stud Book is all the American Turf Congress requires, not registration of all horses as thoroughbreds, with the Jockey Club certificate of breeding for an animal, as the Stud Book is their authority and their record is kept in that. This is right and eminently proper—that is, if great care is taken in the Registrar's office that no bogus pedigrees are palmed off.

The new rule allowing the registration of broodmares free and that of their foals for a reasonable sum will make a great difference in the receipts of The Jockey Club, too, for we know that many hundreds of horses will be registered when it becomes known that the $50 fine for non-registration at a certain time only affects those who intend racing their horses on The Jockey Club tracks. We personally know of two men living near Stockton who will now register about a dozen brood mares each and all the produce of these stud matrons, and this is a matter of perhaps $200 to The Jockey Club, through its Stud Book Department. Hundreds of pedigrees that would otherwise be forgotten will be recorded, and much good will result through the sensible action taken by The Jockey Club in this registration matter. THE BREEDER AND SPOTSMAN urged The Jockey Club to take off this fine several months ago and addressed a long letter explaining the state of affairs on this coast, hence we feel as happy as the host of breeders must over the matter.

We will shortly print a list of horses to whom many of our excellent present-day turf performers in California are doubtless related, yet very few are registered in the Stud Book. As nothing would please us better than to see these horses, their brothers and sisters and descendants registered, we will give their breeding as it was found in the Transactions of the State Agricultural Society, the horses either being raced or shown for premiums at the State or some of the district fairs.

P. C. J. C. Winter-Spring Stakes.

Eighteen excellent stakes of the Pacific Coast Jockey Club are now open to entry, and the date of closing is November 15, 1897. The distance in the races vary from four furlongs to four miles, and the events are to be decided during the months of January, February, March and April. All sorts of horses are provided for, and owners will have nothing to complain of. Following are the stakes:

The Ocean View Stakes, two-year-old fillies, four furlongs $1,000.

The Malowansky Stakes, two-year-old colts and geldings, four furlongs - $1,000.

The Androus Stakes, two-year-olds, four and one-half furlongs—$1,000.

The Olympic Stakes, two-year-olds, handicap, four and one-half furlongs—$1,000.

The Corrigan Stakes, two-year-olds, five furlongs—$500.

The Schreiber Stakes, two-year-old colts and geldings, five furlongs—$1,000.

The Balboa Boulevard Stakes, three-year-olds, handicap, one mile—$1,000.

The California Oaks, three-year-old fillies, one and one-eighth miles—$2,000.

The California Derby, three-year-olds, one and one-eighth miles - $5,000.

The Tarpey Stakes, handicap, three-year-olds and upward, one and one-eighth miles—$1,000.

The San Rafael Stakes, selling, three-year-olds and upward, one and three-eighths miles—$1,000.

The Lakeside Stakes, three-year-olds and upward, one and one-half miles—$1,000.

The Crocker-Woolworth Bank Stakes, three-year-olds and upward, two miles—$1,750.

The J. F. Ullman Stakes, handicap, three-year-olds and upward, three miles—$2,500.

The Ingleside Stakes, handicap, three-year-olds and upwards, four miles—$3,500.

The Evergreen Stakes, three-year-olds and upward, mile heats—$1,500.

The California Steeplechase, handicap, three-year-olds and upward, full course—$1,000.

With such an array of races to choose from, it would indeed be a strange turfman that could not find something to select from. Address nominations and all communications to the Secretary, Parlors A and B, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, Cal.

THE broodmares, Sunlit, Stephanotis, Kosciulottie and Rubina, to be sold at the coming Reis sale, have Morello weanlings at their side, and they are to be disposed of with the mares.

REMEMBER the great sale of 10,000 acres of land is to sold at Atwater, Merced county, next Saturday, November 6th. Excursion trains will leave this city the morning of the sale. See advertisement.

The Speed Sales of 1897.

In the splendid array of trotters and pacers to be sold by J. M. Nelson on the Alameda race track, November 15th, there are some of the finest looking horses with records and fast trials that have ever been offered in this State. The list appears in an advertising column, and as many of the best stock farms in California are represented, we expect to see a large attendance. The interest in light harness horses is picking up, and as every true lover of a horse admires a fast one that is well trained, sound and kind, and we do not know of a single one that is offered in this sale that does not fill these requirements. These horses will show for themselves, and in our next issue we shall give extended accounts of each to be sold. This is an opportunity which must not be overlooked, and every seeker after campaigners, good roadsters and handsome carriage teams should attend this sale. There are some of the finest bred colts and fillies ever offered sired by Silver Bow, 2:16, Diablo, 2:09¼, Fallis, 2:23, Knight, 2:22, James Madison, 2:17¾, Tom Benton, Wayland W., 2:12, Daly, 2:15, Sidney, 2:19¾, and Dictatus, 2:21, out of some of the finest mares in the country.

California Jockey Club Stakes Now Open.

In this issue will be found advertised the rich stakes offered by the California Jockey Club, the races to be run during the winter-spring meetings of 1897–1898. Entries close November 10, 1897, with R. B. Milroy, Secretary, 204 Sutter street, San Francisco, Cal.:

The Burns Handicap, for all ages; 1¼ miles—$10,000.
The Thornton Stakes, for three-year-olds and upward; 4 miles—$3,000.
The Palace Hotel Handicap, for all ages; 1¼ miles—$2,000.
The Gunst Stakes, for all ages; 1 1-16 miles—$1,500.
The Baldwin Hotel Handicap, for all ages; 1 mile—$1,500.
The Follansbee Handicap, for all ages; 7-8 mile—$1,250.
The McLaughlin Selling Stakes, for all ages; 1 1-16 miles—$1,250.
The Pacific Union Stakes, for all ages; 1 1-8 miles—$1,500.
The Lissak Stakes, for three-year-olds; ⅝ mile—$1,250.
The Rancho Del Paso Handicap, for three-year-olds; 1 mile—$1,250.

NEVER was a better illustration furnished of the great worth of printers' ink, when properly applied and well distributed, than the recently phenomenally successful Los Angeles meeting. The "booming" of the meeting began early in the summer, through newspapers selected by well-posted persons in the employ of the Fair Association. Horsemen were solicited to come from great distances, the programme was made up many weeks before the meeting began, and the splendid purses offered did the rest. Then the question of how to get the people to attend in great numbers came up, and the intelligent use of printers' ink, keeping the meeting ever in the eye of the public, the issuance of 20,000 fair papers and the columns of news of the coming meeting that appeared in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and other papers of the Coast metropolis, had the effect of bringing thousands through the fair ground gates, and after the liberal purses and all other expenses had been paid there was a balance of about $14,000 on the right side of the ledger. Good management and the sensible use of printers' ink brings success every time, at least we have never been called upon to chronicle a failure when the combination was used.

WE understand a number of "would-be" turf correspondents for Eastern newspapers are trying to "work" the jockey clubs for tickets; they also have a number of schemes by which they intend to "gull" the public while here. Messrs. Green and Milroy, the secretaries of the two associations intend to bar these leeches out, if possible, and will see that they get neither tickets nor recognition. Our business men will be notified as to their doings also.

MESSRS. WM. G. LAYNG & Co, proprietors of the Occidental Horse Exchange, have consented to let Messrs. Killip & Co., live stock auctioneers, have the use of their amphitheater to sell the thoroughbreds from the Palo Alto Stock Farm Friday night, November 26th. This will result in making the sale more attractive and no doubt be the means of getting better prices for the grandly bred ones in this consignment.

SCORES of trotting-horse men have visited the new buildings to be known hereafter as the Occidental Horse Exchange, and are delighted with them. A series of trotting horse sales will be held soon.

WM. FITCH, the auctioneer who is to officiate at the big sales at the Occidental Horse Exchange, commencing November 17th, is on his way from Hamilton, Canada, and will arrive in San Francisco next week.

E. F. THORNE

The Putnam Nail Agent.

There have been many rumors afloat on the Pacific Coast that Ed F. Thorne ("Pop"), the well-known traveling agent for the world-renowned Putnam horse shoe nail, had resigned his position and would not be among the horsemen and their friends, the horse shoers, hereafter. To deny this false rumor is a simple matter, for the genial gentleman came into our office on Monday after being all through Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, where he says everyone swears by the Putnam. He will remain on the Coast some time and has promised us a series of articles on horse-shoe nails, their uses and abuses. Wherever "Pop" goes he is always welcome.

Santa Ana Fair Meeting.

Santa Ana, Cal., October 26.—Two new records were established to day at the opening of the eighth annual meeting of the Orange County Fair Association.

Betonica, by Asmor of the Palo Alto Stock Farm, set a new unofficial mark for three-year-old pacers by going the mile in 2:06¾, beating the record held by Agitato of 2:09¼ and Searchlight's best record, made at Los Angeles last week of 2:07 flat.

Betonica traversed the mile without a running mate, the first half being covered in 1:05 and the last half in the remarkable time of 1:01¾. He made the mile easily, without a break or any apparent effort, and while the record is not official, it shows that the horse can easily lower the mark when called upon to do so.

In the exhibition trial Klamath lowered his own record for the Orange county track from 2:11½ to 2:10 flat.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27TH.

Two accidents occurred to-day, which somewhat marred the interest in the races. Havey was driving Pasonte on the road near the track when the mare became unmanageable and commenced backing. Pasonte struck his leg, breaking the member below the knee. Pasonte ran away and fell, dislocating her left shoulder. She will, therefore, be unable to enter the 2:17 trot Thursday.

In the mile hurdle, C. P., ridden by Hanna, fell at the last jump and rolldd over ou the jockey. Hanna was badly injured, but to what extent is at present not known. C. P. regained her feet and finished second with another rider. Anaconda won the 2:12 pacing event fn straight heats.

In the half-mile dash for two-year-olds, Ruiz, the jockey on Saticoy, pulled the horse in the stretch and the judges ordered the race run over. Saticoy, with Fuentes up, won easily from Queen May.

THE WINTERS YEARLINGS.

Thirteen By the Unbeated El Rio Rey and Two By the Great Joe Hooker to Be Sold By Auction Nov. 29.

In the lot of fifteen yearlings bred by Theodore Winters at his Rancho del Sierras, and which will be disposed of by auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange on the night of November 29th are:

A sister to Scarborough, (winner $5,000 California Derby), being of El Rio Rey—Fonsetta.

A brother to Belle Boyd, (winner 16 races), by El Rio Rey—Sylvia.

One by El Rio Rey, from Blizzard, a half sister to Gotham, a great stake horse that won over $25,000.

Youngsters from Rose Hickman and Nellie Post, own sisters to Don Jose, Ed Corrigan, Pocatello and Question. From the famous Hennie Farrow family, that gave us Mollie McCarthy, Kinglike, Mikado, Hidalgo, Fitz James, Joe Hooker, Callfornia and many other celebrities of the turf and stud.

The two by the dead Joe Hooker are from the grand race mare, Miss Courtney (sister to Alta) and Ogzilla (dam of the good performer, Malo Diablo).

Mr. Winters has bred more great winners than any man in the world, probably, in the list raised by him being El Rio Rey and The Czar (never beaten), Emperor of Norfolk, (champion two and three-year-old of America), Rey del Revs, Duchess of Norfolk, Yo Tambien (winner of over $90,000 and unquestionably the best race mare of her day). Jim Renwick, Tormentor, Conner, Don Jose, Ed Corrigan, C. H. Todd (winner American Derby), Pocatello, Sorrento, Fred Collier, Alta, Almont, Dolly McCone, Mandolina, Caliente, Uncle Giles and Scarborough (winner California Derby). Here are two unbeaten racers, two winners of the American Derby (C. H. Todd and Emperor of Norfolk), three winners of the Sheridan stakes, one of the Chicago Derby (Yo Tambien), while Tormentor was a record-breaker.

Most of the youngsters offered this year are from the wonderful Hennie Farrow or Big Gun families, and as nearly everything from them races with marked success, the coming Winters sale should be a good one.

Imp. Cyrus to be Sold.

At the annual sale of yearlings from Palo Alto Stock Farm, to be held at the Occidental Horse Exchange, San Francisco November 26th, there will also be offered for sale the thoroughbred stallion, imp. Cyrus, foaled 1894.

His pedigree is rich in blood lines that have produced Derby and St. Leger winners in England, stake-winners and record-breakers in America.

His sire, Wenlock, won the St. Leger of 1872, and is sire of Isinglass, winner of $290,000. The sire of Wenlock, Lord Clifden, was winner of the St. Leger in 1863. The dam of Wenlock, Mineral, produced Kisber, winner of the Derby, 1876.

The dam of imp. Cyrus, imp. Teardrop, was by the great horse, Scottish Chief, winner of the Ascot Gold Cup, sire of Marie Stuart, winner of The Oaks and St. Leger, and dams of Common, Milton, Goldfinch and Donovan. Imp. Teardrop has produced the great sire, imp. Brutus, sire of Vinctor, Installator, Peter the Great, Lucretia Borgia and other fast race horses. She is also the dam of Raindrop, Tearless, Joe Terry and Muriel.

As a sire imp. Cyrus has contributed many winners to the turf, as the following tabulation will show:

Foaled	Name	Dam	Won.	Secnd	Third	Won

Betonica, the Pacing King.

The following telegram was received Wednesday:

Santa Ana, Oct. 26.—Unpaced and almost unnoticed by the crowd in the grand stand, Betonica, by Azmoor, owned by the Palo Alto farm, to-day made perhaps the most remarkable mile in the history of racing in this State. Driven by Dick Havey, the brown colt appeared on the track between the heats of the special trotting race, and with an ease which attests his ability to do much better, paced a mile in 2:06¾, beating the world's three-year-old record of 2:09¼, held jointly by Agitato and Searchlight.

When the horse passed the half in 1:05 there was nothing extraordinary in his performance, even for a three-year-old, but this served to make the time more remarkable for the mile, for he came from the half to the wire in 1:01¾, covering three-eighths at a 2:03 clip.

When the result of his exhibition was announced, it being simply a trial workout, there were few who realized the importance of the performance, but he was loudly cheered by those who stood in the vicinity of the timer's stand when the time was known. The trial was unofficial and will give him no record, but this little informality is lost sight of, and to-night the feat is being extensively exploited in the horse circles. There are not a few who declare the horse is capable of making a mark of 2:05.

Boanerges, one of W. McGingan's horses which turfmen say will race here shortly, won the Finale stakes at Harlem last Thursday. The meeting came to an end that day.

HOOF-BEATS.

Jockey Lew, recently reinstated, will be seen in the saddle here shortly.

John Quinn, of the big brothers Quinn, of Kentucky, arrived last Tuesday evening. Phil Howell came also.

Steeplechase Rider Higgins got in last Tuesday from the East. He is to school old Pecksniff to jump for Marty Bergen.

Sallie Clicquot, daughter of Salvator, won a six furlong race in 1:11 at Morris Park, last Wednesday. She was a 10 to 1 shot.

Presbyterian, by imp. Prestonpans—Dareka, won a six-furlong race at Harlem, last Wednesday, in 1:14 flat, 107 pounds up.

J. Woods rode Boanerges, Algaretta and May W. to victory at Harlem last Tuesday. They were at even money, 4 to 1 and 8 to 5.

The Haggin yearlings recently sold at Morris Park did not bring such poor figures after all, but prices were not nearly as good as in former years.

Trolley, by imp. Martenhurst-May H., won the Woodburn stake at Morris Park last Tuesday, and Scotch Plaid, by imp. Midlothian-Mottle, was first in a mile race.

Cock Robin, John Mackey's recent purchase, won the first time out in his new owner's colors—five furlongs in 0:58¾, 110 pounds up, Eclipse course, Morris Park, October 23d. Cock Robin is by Tea Tray—Cushat.

Tully Coulter's excellent string arrived on Tuesday last from Harlem. Daily Racing Form, California and Official are members of it, and Lightweight Gray, a much-liked rider in Chicago this season, came out to do the piloting.

Among the arrivals last Wednesday night were Tommy Shannon, John Quinn, Lew Tayon, J. W. Langford, Tom Costigan, Joe Summerfeld, A Eckle, C. Henderson, Ed Conroy, Ed Herman, James V. Norvell, D. Roden and A. L. Kempner.

Every owner of a thoroughbred who intends racing at Ingleside or Oakland should lay in a stock of the celebrated Speed Sustaining Elixir. It has achieved wonderful results throughout the last two years. It is not a "dope;" perfectly harmless and effective. See advertisement.

An Anaconda (Montana) dispatch of October 26th was as follows: William Broderick Cloete of London has purchased at Marcus Daly's Bitter Root stock farm imp. Matt Byrnes, by Hampton, dam Cherry, paying $25,000 for the horse. Mr. Cloete has also purchased six mares. The lot will be shipped to England.

The Coming Palo Alto Sale.

At the Occidental Horse Exchange on Friday night, November 26th, there will be disposed of thirty-one yearlings, bred on the celebrated Palo Alto Stock Farm, near Mayfield, Cal. They are pronounced the best-lookers that ever left that great breeding establishment which is saying a good deal. Besides the yearlings, imp. Cyrus, a very successful sire, opportunities considered, will be put up.

Among the great mares represented by their produce in this sale are imp. Cornelia (dam of Cadmus) by Isonomy, Cuba (dam of Argyle and Conquest) by imp. Australian, Flirtation (best two-year-old filly of 1893), Gerhardine (dam of Gordius and Benham), imp. Fairy Rose (dam of Racine, Fairy, Sweet Rose and Rosormonde) by Kisber, Precious (dam of Peel, Pliny and Philander) by Lever, Riglin, imp. Amalia, imp. Getaway (dam of Capt. Skedance, and Parasang), imp. Goula, Maggie R. (dam of Tim and Pat Murphy), imp. Ouida, Phœbe Anderson (dam of Thornhill and Piquante), Shannon Rose, Rosalie, Rosebud and imp. Rosetta (latter dam of seven winners). Catalogues are now out and to be had of Killip & Co., 11 Montgomery street.

North Amherst, Mass.

I like ABSORBINE very much. It does well,

Yours truly, E. P. Tracy.

Blue Rocks at Redding.

The shooting contest held at Redding on the 24th inst., between the Red Bluff and Mount Shasta Gun Clubs was regarded as the most successful of the kind ever decided in Northern California. The arrangements made by the Shasta Club for the reception and entertainment of the visiting club were complete and pleasant in the extreme. The first event of the day was the free-for-all at twenty birds. T. E. Defreese of Redding won the first prize with a score of 16. Charles Gilmore and H. C. Swain of Red Bluff tied for second with 14 birds. Don Dobrowsky and A. F. Dobrowsky tied on 13 birds for third money. Henry Frickenger and Frank Dobrowsky tied for fourth prize with 12 birds each.

The shoot between teams of nine men each from the Mount Shasta and Tehama county clubs, each man being allowed fifteen birds, resulted in a victory for the home team. The score was 75 to 69. Defreese led the victorious team. George Puls, Jr., and Charles Gilmore tied for the leadership of the visiting club.

The last event of the day was the double-bird shoot. A. F. Dobrowsky got first prize with 14 birds, A. J. Fowler was second with 13 and Defreese third with 11.

Tournament at Medford.

The shooting tournament at the Medford, Or., fair grounds October 20th and 21st, under the auspices of the Medford Gun Club was participated in by a goodly number of sportsmen from Ashland, Grant's Pass, Jacksonville, Medford, and other places, and was greatly enjoyed. The scores were made in many instances in the face of a strong wind.

A lot of valuable prizes were contributed by the business men of Medford. The handsome silver trophy cup, offered as the prize in the team shoot, was won by the home team, in competition with teams from Ashland and Jacksonville. The scores were:

Medford, 63; Ashland, 47; Jacksonville, 41, out of a possible 75.

Gilbert Won.

With the Dupont cup and the world's wing shot championship at stake Fred Gilbert of Spirit Lake, Ia., and J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas City made phenomenal records in their match at Kansas City on October 22d. Gilbert was the victor. Out of 250 birds shot at by the two cracks but one was missed. Six others fell dead out of bounds. For 100 birds the two cracks tied with ninety-seven each. Gilbert's twenty-first, fifty-third and seventy second birds fell dead out of bounds. Elliott killed seventy-nine birds without a slip, but his eightieth and his ninety-first and ninety-sixth fell dead out of bounds. On the shoot-off at twenty-five birds Gilbert won the match with a clean score. Elliott's twenty-fourth bird fell dead out of bounds. He killed the twenty-fifth.

Collision With a Bear.

The Woodland Democrat thus relates a hunting adventure of two local nimrods recently:

While on his recent hunting trip, John Leathers, Jr., met with an adventure that be will not soon forget. One morning he and Ed Black were hunting deer on Willow creek. They separated, Mr. Black taking the crest of the mountain, while Mr. Leathers skirted the side about 400 yards below. Mr. Black was the first to start game and when Mr. Leathers heard the report of his gun and the sound of some animal moving in his direction, he supposed a deer had been jumped and prepared to intercept the animal. Imagine his surprise when a bear instead of a deer came lumbering down the side of the mountain. It was a small black bear and mortally wounded, but Mr. Leathers didn't know that. Besides, he was so frightened that he couldn't move. The bear struck him with such force that he never stopped rolling until he reached the foot of the mountain. The bear was afterwards found stone dead, but whether as a result from the bullet wound Mr. Black gave it or whether from the effects of the fright Mr. Leathers gave it, nobody will ever know.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

"E. C." powder is a safe smokeless compound.

Quail are plentiful in the vicinity of Kenwood.

S. Walker brought down eight sprig at Alvarado last Sunday.

Rail are reported to be plentiful near Alvarado and below.

The rain last week completely flooded the San Leandro district.

F. Walperts' string of twenty rail was made at Alviso last Sunday.

Spoonbills are commencing to come in the vicinity of Mt. Eden.

Ben Baum made a bag of eighteen quail near McGill's on Sunday last.

Chinese pheasants are reported to be a drug in the Portland market.

H. J. Golcher left on Tuesday for a two day's quail hunt near Point Reyes.

The Northwest bluerock tournament will be held at Anaconda in June.

Joe Dwyer and a friend made a bag of eighty-five rail at Belmont last Sunday.

B. Sherock made a bag of six duck and twelve rail near Newark on Sunday last.

John D. Bethel, the well known traveler for sporting goods is back from Skaguay.

Some fair duck and rail shooting can be had on the marsh opposite the San Bruno House.

D. Clawson made a bag of twelve duck (mostly teal) and five rail at Alvarado on Sunday.

Dr. Holcomb made a bag of seven sprig and teal on the Baden Club grounds Sunday last.

Ed Daiss and C. Guscetti had a string of fifteen rail from the Belmont marsh Sunday last.

Max and Jules Berges made a string of forty-five rail on the Belmont marsh Sunday last.

Great expectations were not realized last Sunday. The day was too fine and the ducks flew high.

H. B. Tubbs and John Cadman made a bag of over a hundred canvasback last week at Tubbs' Island.

Mallard, sprig and widgeon are reported in fairly good numbers in the tules near Napa Junction.

J. Karney was at Sear's Point for four days last week, thirty duck (cans, sprig and teal) was the result.

Local sportsmen in San Luis Obispo have been having some good duck shooting recently in the Laguna.

In the absence of duck last Sunday hunters near Mt. Eden, consoled themselves with curlew, plover and snipe.

F. Schultz, D. Echeson, Joe Briggerstaff and P. McCrea were at Oliver's on Sunday last. A few duck and rail was the bag.

Henry Vandall and J. C. Brickell were in the Berryessa Valley, above Napa, last week and bagged fifty-seven quail.

Oregon sportsmen claim the Mongolian pheasant is a hard bird on the wing. They should try some of our valley quail.

Frank Dolliver and Charles Precht are suspected by their friends of having a preserve of their own in Marin county.

W. C. Brown, Frank Cummings and M. Osborn made fair bags of quail over the Tamalpais Club grounds last Sunday.

A combined bag of thirty duck made at Willow Lodge by three hunters was about the best showing for that region on Sunday.

Ed Summerfield and H. L. Judd were out on San Pablo bay a week ago Friday. They shot forty duck, among them seven "cans."

Frank Vernon and Fred Dolliver bagged thirty-four quail at Pt. Reyes on Sunday. Mr. Vernon tried the marsh near there on Saturday and got a couple of duck.

T. H. Heffernan, Ed. Heffernan and W. Sayles, of Stockton, were on a three days' trip to Jennie Lind recently. They report quail plentiful and the sport splendid.

At least one hundred hunters came over on the 5:50 narrow gauge boat from the Alameda marshes last Sunday. The combined bag would not average two ducks apiece.

F. H. Foote, who has a fancy for killing large game, left this city October 21st for a two weeks' outing at Crater Lake in Southern Oregon. He expects to bowl over elk, bear and mule deer.

Hunters galore swarmed the marshes all of this week hunting rail. It is safe to say that at least 5,000 of these birds have been slaughtered during the season. At this rate it will not be long before this species of game will be entirely exterminated in this county.—San Mateo Leader, October 26th.

The Lincoln Gun Club ark has been taken over to the new grounds near Alvarado. Blinds will be erected at once and everything arranged for shooting over the three ponds tomorrow.

George Roup, the popular manager of the Gilroy Hot Springs, has just returned from a month's Mongolian pheasant shooting near Albany, Or. The sport was excellent and birds plenty.

Several members of the Santa Ana Gun Club held a twelve-bird live pigeon shoot, October 12th. The score was as follows: E. R. Curtis 6, C. W. Raney 6, F. W. Hardesty 7, Ed Vaughn, 11.

Quail shooting in the vicinity of Half Moon Bay continues good. Some fine bags were made by local hunters during last week. The birds are more numerous this year than ever before.

Some of the Lincoln Club boys were at Mowry's on Sunday last, the combined bag consisting of teal and sprig, was small. C. Cate, J. Potter, B. Wenzell and Frank Parks were the patient hunters.

Geo. Jackson, Walter Keene and Andrew Jackson were at Los Banos. They left the city Saturday and came back Monday evening. The combined bag was fifty-seven birds; geese, sprig and a few mallard, widgeon and teal.

A Boulder hunting party consisting of W. R. Dow, Joseph Mello and M. Chase, closed the season and brought a a fine 110 pound buck to town. It was killed by Joseph Mello in the Mitchell gulch on King's creek.

J. R. Ellison, of Philadelphia, Hermann Oelrichs, Frank Webster, Johnny Coleman and others, were guests at the Olympic Gun Club's grounds at Ingleside yesterday. They pulled triggers at live birds with the club members.

The "Kindergarten Quartet" of the Pelican Gun Club had a consolation pigeon shoot at Sacramento last Sunday. The following scores were made: Capt. Frank Ruhstaller 23, F. Ruhstaller, Jr., 22; Ed Nicolaus, 21 and L. S. Upson, 17.

The Board of Supervisors of Sonoma county will be asked at its next meeting to pass an ordinance forbidding market shooting. The petition will be strongly supported by members of local clubs which have shooting grounds in Sonoma county.

Quail abound in great numbers in the orchards and vineyards around Fresno this fall. Shooting is not allowed in most of the orchards and this, together with the game law, gives the birds a splendid opportunity to multiply.—Visalia Delta.

O. M. Tuttle and V. La Porte of Santa Rosa returned recently from a hunting trip through northern Mendocino. They were accompanied by Joseph McMinn and J. Ferguson of Geyserville. They had splendid luck, killing thirty-nine deer.

Wads are cut by machinery. Sheets of prepared cardboard or felt are fed to the machines, and sets of punches with cutting edges punch out the wads very rapidly. Another machine does the lubricating. U. M. C. wads are good wads.

At the Spooney Club grounds near Alvarado on Sunday last were P. B. Bekeart, L. Larzaleer, H. F. Miller, John Miles and J. Burfriend. Miller's bag of two sprig and thirteen rail was the best individual bag. The others got five duck and fifteen rail between them.

A Sacramentan brought a wild duck home and while in the act of preparing it for the roasting process discovered in its gizzard $1.50 in free gold. When the fight from the north comes in it may be possible that a sample lot of birds will pan out so much per ton in free gold.

Mrs. Sylvester Scoville, who recently returned from Skaguay, has brought back a fine trophy in the shape of a magnificent black bear skin, the animal having been killed by her near Porcupine hill on the Skaguay trail. She shot him with a rifle at a distance of seventy yards.

Fred Gilbert has accepted J. A. R. Elliott's challenge to shoot a match for the Kansas City Star cup, and names Watson's Park, Burnside, Ill., Dec. 6, 1897, as the place and date for the contest. The match will be at 100 first-class birds, thirty yards rise, A. S. A. rules to govern and for $100 side money.

At the State Association Tournament, Passaic, N. J., Ed Fulford, with his Remington, did good work, and one consulting his detailed scores could see a straight run of over seventy targets, unknown angles. In the twenty-five live bird race he had the bad luck to lose one after killing twenty-three straight.

W. L. Prather, Jr., Jesse Ives, Fred Miller, Frank Umphred and John McClure were at the Pastime Club house on Sunday last. A few sprig and teal were bagged. They report duck plentiful but flying high. During high tide on the marsh they consoled themselves for lack of ducks by shooting rail. They got some good bags.

There is trouble in Colorado between the State Game Wardens and the Utes. The Indians are coming over the line from Utah on their annual fall hunt. Game Warden Wilcox, with a small party, notified the Indians that the game laws were to be observed, they offered resistence and it is reported several men were killed and wounded on both sides.

John Burfriend had a gilt-edged retriever with him at the Spooney Club grounds on Sunday. He borrowed the dog from a friend after being solemnly assured that the "keyser" was all that the most ardent sportsman could ask. He only got one duck during the day, a fine sprig. The dog was quick on the retrieve and a perfect artist in mastication. He just simply laid down with the bird between his paws and proceeded with his luncheon, meanwhile furtively regarding Burfriend with his weather eye. The fact that a slough lay between the dog and the hunter made it somewhat exasperating for Burfriend. He expostulated in a christianlike way with the animal until the atmosphere took on a blue tinge but the duck never came back. John is somewhat anxious to interview his careless friend.

The ducks in Los Banos region are all home-bred birds, the northern flight has not shown up yet although a few widgeon are coming in. The home birds are principally sprig and are in magnificent condition. They are not very plentiful now; market hunters and others have made them very shy. The morning flight has been watched and it is believed they pass the day on Tulare Lake or somewhere in that vicinity. The Los Banos district is an ideal feeding ground for duck and if they had some respite from continuous hunting it would afford plenty of fine shooting.

The Black Jacks were out in force at Sherman Island on Sunday last. The delegation from this city consisted of President J. Lemmer, Secretary J. Markland, A. C. Dietz, Billy Swain, James Maynard, Fred Johnson, Dick Brooks and Al Newman. On Saturday evening, after arrival at the ark, an informal meeting was held for the purpose of considering a series of tropical resolutions, elaborately engrossed on the back of a cayenne pepper label, and which were submitted by the President at the point of a boiler maker's hammer. They were unanimously accepted. The vexed question as to the proper method of addressing the club officers is now positively settled. The weather conditions for shooting on Sunday prevented a good bag being made, ducks were scarce. One of the party accidently touched a live bottle of 10,000 jolt alternating current which had been left carelessly exposed and received a shock that necessitated his being left behind Sunday morning when the hunters started out after duck, but he recovered sufficiently to reach the city in good time on Sunday night.

Coming Events.

Nov. 9—Regular semi-monthly meeting of the San Francisco Fly Casting Club. Office of State Fish Commission, Flood Building, San Francisco.

NOTICE TO ANGLERS.

Every angler is invited to drop us a line occasionally, telling us of the condition of the streams they have visited and the killing lure of the number and size of the fish caught, or any other item of interest to anglers.

Fly Casters' Meeting.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the S. F. Fly Casting Club was held last Tuesday evening. There was a fair attendance of members. Edward Everett is now on the role of active membership. A resolution providing for the appointment of two members as a committee on entertainment during the season, was unanimously carried. Some pleasant and very entertaining evenings are consequently anticipated during the winter meetings. Considerable interest is manifested in the report of the Executive Committee on Classification, which will probably be submitted at the next meeting.

Salmon.

Deputy Fish Commissioner Babcock has just returned from a visit to the Battle Creek hatchery. Three million salmon eggs have been taken up to date, being three times the amount procured at this same date last year. He reports the run of fish to be exceedingly greater than at the same period during last year, the heavy rains last week causing the salmon to move up the river.

Striped Bass.

Al Wilson and W. R. McFarland made a nice catch of striped bass from the wharf at Rodeo on the 20th inst. Five beauties, weighing from three and one half to five pounds each, were placed in their creels. These gentlemen have been endeavoring to catch striped bass with a rod for several seasons past and have only succeeded on this occasion. Mr. McFarland says that the bass make a strong fight and afford royal sport for the angler. They used live shrimp for bait, and report that the fish also went after flies quite greedily. The same day they made their catch, the fishermen caught with seines and sent over to the city about fifteen hundred pounds of bass.

Feathered Fishermen.

One of our interior exchanges has the following to say in regard to the habits of fishing birds in the sage brush regions:—Among the most formidable enemies of pond fish are several kinds of worthless birds, such as the pelican, blue crane, and several kinds of fish-hawks, loons, fish-ducks, etc, which are said to catch more fish than fishermen. Over in Utah pelicans by the thousands from Salt Lake swarm the fresh water lakes and seine the fish almost as artfully as experienced fishermen. In imitation of the fishermen, they will surround an area of water and gradually close up the semi-circle, driving their prospective prey into shallow water and on to the beach, then after appeasing their own appetites they load their pouches and wing their way homeward laden with food for the young.

Salmon fishing is reported to be very good in Humboldt bay.

John Seibe caught sixteen fine trout in Throckmorton creek on Sunday last.

Eel river fishing for trout and salmon is reported to be excellent at present.

Grilse are caught daily at Powell street wharf, and at the Oakland and Alameda moles.

Paper Mill and Sonoma creeks only need a heavy rainfall now to afford first-class steelhead fishing.

Royal coachman and blue rail are the killing flies just now on Eel river. Salmon roe don't go.

Jas. Coddington and C. Meier made a fine catch of smelt, "blue cod" and rock fish on the sea wall at the foot of Fillmore street last Monday.

Jack Cracknell is at Eel river. He tried some flies sent him by John Butler and took thirty fine steelhead out of the Fortuna hole on the afternoon of the 21st inst.

Smelt fishing in the canal near the Park-street bridge, Alameda, has been excellent. The best fishing is from a boat, following the fish on the tides. After the first heavy rains, silver smelt fishing in the estuary will be first-class.

Ned Brown was arrested Friday afternoon with three salmon in his boat, which he had speared in the river, by Deputy Fish Commissioner O F. Macy, who marked one of the fish and exhibited it before the jury at the trial of Brown.—Red Bluff Senttnel.

Salmon fishing near Tacoma. With rod and reel Wallie Fife a week ago Wednesday caught ten fine silverside salmon off Point Defiance in four hours, during which time he went ashore twice. Mr. Fife has caught 75 salmon by trolling since the opening of the silverside season.

Two Chinamen, have been arrested for violation of the fish and game laws. The men were discovered in the act of fishing with seines in the San Joaquin river, which is prohibited by the county ordinance 77. A test case will be made of the matter. The offenders will be tried at Mendota on Wednesday next.—Fresno Expositor.

Foxhound Kennels.

In establishing and perfecting the appointments of the Olinda Foxhound Kennels Mr. W. L. Prather, Jr., can rest assured of the hearty endorsement and co-operation of the fanciers of the Pacific Coast. The kennels are situated in Redwood canyon, Alameda county, on the old Redwood road near the Olinda school. The location is an ideal one, embracing an extent of ground of nearly five acres. The arrangements are such as to include every desired facility and improvement. The feeding pen is divided into separate compartments. In the sleeping quarters the sheds are so arranged that only two dogs can occupy any one bed. The beds are constructed in such a manner that comfort and cleanliness is a certainty, and are made of heavy canvas stretched on wooden frames. Pure and cool running spring water is an important feature that has not been overlooked. The exercising ground consists of about three acres with plenty of shady trees and brush. A woven wire fence six feet high surrounds the entire tract. The benefit of a course of actual training is possible for dogs and in raising puppies the advantages of wide range, careful and judicious feeding, pure water, etc., are not to be surpassed. The conveniences of these kennels are complete and extensive enough so that dogs other than hounds can be looked after; in fact as a boarding place for all kinds of sporting dogs during the close season the Olinda kennels are destined to have a great and deserved reputation. A drive of an hour and a half from Oakland or walk of half an hour from the terminus of the Leona Heights Electric Railroad will enable one to easily reach the kennels.

Mr. Prather is at present the owner of the finest pack of hounds on the coast. His dogs were awarded, at the San Francisco Kennel Club bench show, the elegant Palace Hotel cup, offered as a special prize for the best kennel of foxhounds on exhibition.

Of Value to Dog Owners.

Bones are necessary for the good health of a dog. The teeth are kept bright and clean, the digestion is aided thereby, and they afford a dog the means to profitably while away an hour and keep out of mischief. But like a nip of liqueur they should come after the meal and not before. In a mixed dish of meat and bones, most dogs will pick out the smaller bones first and if hungry the chances are they will bolt them. This may lead to trouble—either choking or to a stoppage in the intestines. Therefore it is best to separate the bones from the feed and give them after the appetite has been appeased. If a dog has swallowed a small bone, a chicken splinter, for instance, and shows signs of trouble, it is a good plan to give a bolus of mashed potatoes or soft crumb bread This will generally aid the passage of the bone.

A good liniment for sprains or bruises is made of equal parts of turpentine and liquid of ammonia (a weak solution), laudanum and rape oil. Rub the mixture well over the affected parts. Should the skin be broken apply Friar's balsam to break and rub the liniment around the broken skin, but take care not to allow it to reach the sore.

Every kennel man should keep a good fever mixture on his kennel shelf. A chill or cold is indicated by hot, dry nose, shivering and lassitude, dull eyes with more or less discharge from the nose and eyes. If attended to at once serious complications may often be avoided. Dogs going to and from shows are subjected to many extreme changes of temperature during express transportation, and a quinine pill will usually work off any ill effects. If, however, the symptoms described develop, the following fever mixture should be given:—Powdered nitre, 1 drachm; sweet spirits of nitre, ½ ounce; mendererous spirits, ½ ounce; wine of antimony, 1 drachm; water, 4 ounces. Terriers and dogs over fifteen pounds, up to pointers and setters, should be given a tablespoonful in a little gruel every four hours.

A good aperient for a bitch due to whelp is Glauber salts. Dissolve in water.

Dogs are some times afflicted with kennel sores on hips and hocks, elbows, etc. They should be attended to at once. Boracic acid ointment should be applied. Callous growths on elbows and joints must be kept softened with vaseline or whale oil.

Ear canker is one of the nuisances of dog keeping and when neglected is a most obstinate complaint. The experienced dogman is always on the alert; but the novice may not detect the trouble until the ear discharges an acrid secretion. The careful kennelman will examine his dogs' ears as a part of the daily grooming. Canker may be caused by several conditions, the principal of which are wet and dirt, wax accumulation, and careless drying after washing the ears. The cruel pulling of a dog's ears as a means of correction may also lead to canker. There are two phases of canker—internal and external. The latter is generally the result of the former. When a dog shakes his head, scratches his ear with his paw, and holds his head to one side, it is high time to investigate and apply remedies.

The acrid discharges, if not cleared away, will lead to irritation of the flap of the ear, the flap swells and looks angry, often breaks out in sores at the tips and edges. This is external canker. The peculiarly offensive odor of the ear passage is a sure sign of internal canker. Wash out the ear with warm water and good Castile soap, drying carefully afterwards with a soft cloth, being particular in reaching every crevice, then apply the following: Iodine, 16 grains; iodide of potassium, 32 grains. Mix these two in a tablespoonful of water and then add one pint of pure vinegar. Keep in corked bottle. After cleansing them as instructed above, pour about a dessertspoonful of the mixture into the ear once a day, then work the base of the ear well with the fingers so that the lotion reaches every part affected. Eberhardt's book, "Everything About Dogs," has another good remedy—Creolin, 30 grains; sulphate of zinc, 16 grains; water, 8 ounces; mix and apply twice a day as above. Bear in mind that an obstinate case demands constant treatment before a cure is effected. The iodine preparation is also good for external canker. It is also well to purify the blood, and there is nothing better than Spratt's "Cooling Powders" or Glover's "Blood Purifier." Either is sold for fifty cents.

When dogs are run on rough, hard ground, the feet may become sore, sometimes in the pads, sometimes between the toes or both. A solution of sulphate of copper, one drachm to an ounce of water, is good for the sores between the toes, and a strong solution of white oak bark is another remedy, especially for the sore pads,—American Stockkeeper.

A Book on Dogs.

Count H. de Bylandt, the well-known judge and fancier, has published a book on dogs which is said to be the most elaborate yet brought out. It embraces every known breed and also every one that is not known except in its own circle. A good many people will be astonished to hear there are 316 breeds and their sub-varieties, of the genus canine, and the extent of the work is indicated from the fact that in the Count's book there are no less than 1,392 portraits of dogs. Anyone aching to go in for a really select breed might try the Pha-Quoc-Le'vier which for the information of our all-round experts we may describe as a hairless dog excepting for a patch of hair on the shoulder, which, but for the name would indicate that it is of Irish extraction. The book is printed in the French language.

Trained Dogs.

At four different points on the Napa valley road there are dogs trained to mail carrying—one at Middleton, another at Union Station, a third at Zinfandel, and two at Trubody's. These dogs meet every train, catch their master's mail as it is thrown from the mail car and carry it home. The two dogs at Trubody's afford considerable amusement to passengers as one tries to best the other in fighting for possession of paper and letter packages.—Daily Register.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The cocker spaniels Brocky Tom and Fanny owned by Jack Sammi, were recently stolen from Sausalito.

A bench show is talked of in connection with the coming poultry exhibit at Tacoma. It is possible that a kennel club will be organized in connection therewith.

On Tuesday, November 6th, the final payment is due, and the draw for the Interstate Coursing Club's annual meeting will take place at Pythian Hall, 909 Market street.

Frank Turner the well-known Victoria handler is making arrangements to bring down a string of dogs from the North. He contemplates taking them over the California circuit next spring.

The annual bench show of the English Kennel Club opened at the Crystal Palace, London, on October 19th, with twenty-five hundred entries, this beats the record. The eighteen dogs used by Jackson, the explorer, in his recent Arctic expedition, and a Schipperke, with a set of false teeth attracted considerable attention.

A car of 200 dogs will leave Chicago for Seattle, consigned to the company in which ex-Mayor Frank D. Black, J. B. Powels and W. H. Lewis are interested. It is the first shipment of the kind ever made to Seattle. During the winter about four other cars will follow making in all 1,000 dogs. The animals will arrive about October 27th. They will be sold to those intending the winter trip to Dawson City.—Post Intelligencer.

Cocker breeders will learn with regret of the death of that good cocker, Woodland Prince, which occurred last week. Death was due to pneumonia, the dog being ill only twenty-four hours. He was a very active, well built cocker, and his breeding was very valuable, for he was a son of Ch. Black Duke and Woodland Jude. He was bred by Messrs. Luckwell & Douglass, and whelped May 3, 1892. He had won several prizes—in 1893 firsts at Boston and Detroit, 1894 first at specialty show. N. Y., 1895 firsts New York and Boston, so that it will be seen that his record was a choice one. Mr. James E. Green, his late owner, has our sympathy, for we know what a "pal" the old dog was.—The American Stockkeeper.

THE BRENTWOOD FARM.

One of the Model Stock Farms of California, Where Location, Climate and Feed Make it Almost a Paradise for Horses.

There are many places along the rivers in the central portion of California which will some day be the homes of many of the finest horses ever bred, as well as sources of revenue for their owners. The pioneer farmers who never dreamed of turning the water from the rich low lands and using the dark alluvial soil for the raising of grasses, alfalfa and vegetables, are beginning to realize that they are years behind the age, for men of wealth who have spent years in studying the problem of making two blades grow where only one grew before are rapidly buying up all the lands that border on our serpentine rivers, and, by using dredging machines, have built levees and embankments along the tule-lined shores, and by draining the lands enclosed have succeeded in reclaiming hundreds of acres of the richest soil in California, on which every kind of verdure thrives. Orchards, vineyards, grain fields and vegetable gardens are interspersed with large pasture fields which never can be anything but a beautiful green the year round. We had heard of these places, and it was our good fortune to visit Walnut Grove Stock Farm, near Sacramento, and describe the marvelous work that has been accomplished in making it one of the evergreen garden spots of the Sacramento valley, but last week we had an opportunity of visiting the place so well-known by the caption of this article. To say we were surprised and delighted would take all the adjectives in the English language.

The nine o'clock boat connected with the cars for Antioch, about fifty-eight miles from San Francisco. The Superintendent of Brentwood Farm, Mr. Frank Nugent, welcomed us at the depot, and the drive to Antioch, about a mile and a half, was enlivened with an account of the interest being taken by the residents of Antioch and Brentwood (twelve miles distant) in a project for a race track, at which good meetings could be given, as the interest in light harness horses was increasing and the fact that prosperity has never forgotten to smile upon this portion of California, but has kept the farmers, orchardists and stock-raisers in the seventh heaven of delight for the past twenty-five years.

Antioch is a quiet place, yet it is the headquarters or shipping point for many thousands of tons of grain. The San Joaquin river, which is nearly fifty feet deep at the wharf, is at the season alive with bass and salmon. The canneries along the river adjacent to this town get all their supplies here, and money is always plenty. A more prosperous community for its size is not to be found in this State. Not a store or residence is vacant and the total absence of idlers makes it a model place to live or transact business.

The distance from Antioch to the farm is nine miles, over a road which might be improved by a little sprinkling; but it was not bad that day. There was no wind to carry the dust, so we jogged along until we reached the new residence erected for Mr. H. Dutard, the owner. It is a credit to the architect and is just as pretty a summer home as one could desire. Mr. Dutard is one of the leading merchants of San Francisco, and this farm (which is only one of many he owns) will some day find him a resident thereon. Twenty-three months ago, when he sent Mr. Nugent there, the place had hardly a fence on it and was as uninviting to look upon as the majority of such farms similarly situated. But money carefully expended, good management, and a thorough knowledge of what was wanted has accomplished wonders. The first thing done was the hiring of a force of thirty men to clean away the underbrush, willows and wild vines that covered the farm. The soil was soft and boggy, and Mr. Nugent, to give it a surface, turned cattle upon it during the dry season and then set about to build a levee around the place, dig draining ditches, build fences, burn out the tules, erect barns and sink wells. After this was done, an immense steam pump was put in place close to the levee and that portion of it which was immersed was placed in a low circular pond, in which all the ditches drained. The land by this means was thoroughly drained, and just before the heavy storms of last winter came, the pump was started and it kept those ditches almost dry while the rain fell in torrents; after the storm the water was never allowed to rise more than an inch in them, consequently the boggy soil on which alfalfa and rye grass was sown became firm and the feed never soured. In dry weather, when Mr. Nugent sees the feed beginning to turn, he has a way of irrigating the land that will, ere many years, be adopted by every farmer who tills land in the reclaimed districts of this State. He had a large siphon fifteen inches in diameter placed over the levee, one end submerged in the river, the outlet on the inner side of the embankment. By using a little pump for a few minutes to exhaust the air, the water rushes through the siphon and empties into a reservoir, from which it finds its way through the ditches to the furthermost portion of this three-hundred acre farm. This system of irrigation and drainage is remarkably simple and effective.

Turning away from the levee and looking across the pear-shaped piece of land the visitor beholds a sight he never can forget. Whitewashed fences separate the different fields, in which bands of horses are quietly browsing the succulent grasses, alfilleria and alfalfa. Further away on a knoll in the center of one of these fields is a large barn surrounded by well-covered stacks of hay and straw. An immense windmill supplies the power to pump the sweetest water ever used into the troughs in the various fields. The hillside is covered with sand, in which horses were rolling and taking that comfort which only well-fed ones enjoy.

Beyond the oval fences and between it and the level are rows of corn and vegetables, while large golden pumpkins and squashes stand out in bold relief from their beds of emerald green. The barn fences are high and safe; not a vestige of wire is on the place and will not be allowed. Going through the gates we noticed the lateral ditches which were made through the place were all fenced so that the stock could never get in. The fields were made perfectly square, so that seemed at a distance to be enclosed by a triple fence. No saddle horse is allowed to be ridden among the stock, and as we entered the first field where Mr. Lester's horses were we were accosted by a well-known colored lad called "Cubs," who was for many years with Ed Corrigan and in days gone by was an exercise lad for Barnum, the iron horse which won so many great races and is still alive acting as a buggy horse for some good Samaritan lady in Cincinnati.

Mr. Lester married Miss Hobart and is the owner of a large number of grand horses: carriage, saddle and trotting stock. Among the latter being the beautiful Silkwood mare Daisy Wood that Walter Maben campaigned this season. In the field here with a number of his fine large carriage horses we recognized that wonderful Axmoor pony Tadpole, which created such a sensation jumping over the hurdles at the last horse show. He was purchased by Mr. Walter S. Hobart in the East and presented to Miss Lester as a birthday gift. Its harness, made by John A. McKerron, and its little cart, are marvels of beauty, but if Tadpole thrives much better on this feed we fear it will be difficult to get him between the shafts. He is as broad as he is long and as big a pet as when he gamboled in the pastures at the San Mateo farm. The coach horses only arrived a fortnight ago, but they looked as if they were stabled, curried and cleaned every day; their coats glistening in the sunlight and their sleek appearance was all the evidence needed that they do not suffer for the want of feed. In an adjoining field were a group of thoroughbred broodmares with sucklings by their sides, and yearlings which looked like three-year-olds. They were sent here from Rancho del Paso and Chas. Kerr's farm near Bakersfield, and belong to Mr. Ed Corrigan. It is almost needless to refer to them, but we would like to be near their owner when he proudly walks around each one and in glowing terms speaks of their condition and the hopes he has for every little one there. These mares were not bred this year, as Mr. Corrigan does not believe in breeding mares continuously. He claims, and rightly too, that they raise far better race horses if bred every other year.

Adjoining the field where these broodmares were was a twenty-acre paddock which Mr. Nugent said was always sure to be the first place visited when injured or broken-down, crippled horses came. About the middle of it is a swale or depression in the land on which water is turned, making a mud bath that is to the sore-footed horses what the Paso Robles baths are to those of the human family who are afflicted with rheumatism. The poor horses flounder around up to their fetlocks in mud and nibble the succulent herbage that grows so plentiful there. For the first three days they stay there continually as if instinct teaches them relief is to be found at that place; then they walk upon the higher ground where the land is almost as springy as a wire mattress, but no moisture is to be met with near the surface. On these places it is almost impossible for the stock to keep the pasture close, so rapidly does it grow.

Directly opposite the residence and perhaps 200 yards from are the paddocks and box stalls for stallions. In looking through them we noticed the following: Junius, Wyoming, Roeder, Royal Flush, Ironmaster, Ashland Eclipse, Tenacity, Woodchopper, Joe Ullman, E. H. Shirley, Ducat, Lou Weir, Trappean and others that won memorable races at Ingleside and Oakland last winter. They were as "fat as butter," although they are exercised a little each day. The paddocks are models in their way, being 48 feet by 104 and fenced with four-inch panels to a height of 12 feet. A shed, watering trough and feed box is in each one, while the alfalfa-sown soil forms a cushion-like sod for the horses to walk on. Everything about the place is as neat as a lady's boudoir. The little lake back of the house, around which willow and fig trees are planted, is a pretty sheet of water. About 100 feet from the water tank and windmill which is only a short distance north of the residence, a perfectly straight slough, which resembles a canal, is cut to deep water. The tide rises and falls here and schooners and sloops load with wheat and hay at the wharf. A steam launch belonging to Mr. Dutard is kept in a neat boat house and a ride around the islands is one deeply enjoyed by all who have visited Brentwood. Before leaving, Mr. Nugent informed us that horses from San Francisco can be shipped on the Stockton boat for Antioch, where an attendant meets them and leads them to the farm.

The town of Brentwood is six miles from the place and the road traversed is directly across the finest land to be found in California. Over twenty-two sacks to the acre were harvested on the 13,000 acres and not a weed is to be found on the carefully tilled soil. The wheat raised here, on account of its cleanliness, brings a higher price in the market than any other harvested on the Pacific Coast; very little of this land is for sale.

With a promise to return again to the farm we bade our host good bye and were in the city at six o'clock, having pleasant recollections of our short visit at this well appointed farm.

ANTRIM STOCK FARM.

Sons or Daughters of Apache, Imp. Calvados, Rio Bravo, Oriz .ba and Nomad to Be Sold.

There will be some handsome baby racers bred on royal lines sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 225 Tehama street, on Monday night, November 22d. We refer to the consignment of Charles Kerr, of Bakersfield, Cal., of yearling thoroughbreds raised on Antrim Stock Farm. There are twenty-one of them in all, and Mr. Kerr says he never had a better-looking lot of youngsters to offer to the public, which is saying a great deal, for no man feeds or cares for his stock better than "Uncle Charley."

The great Apache is well represented in the sale, six of the youngsters being by the son of imp. Mortemer and The Banshee. It is the last lot of Apache yearlings, for the horse died in 1895, when but ten years of age. The success of this stallion, opportunities considered, was nothing short of phenomenal. With few entered in the stakes, the average of his winners will be fully $3,000 at the close of the season. Olive, Mobalasca and J. O. C. have won respectively $9,110, $8,795 and over $6,000.

Several of the youngsters in this sale are by imp. Calvados, son of the Derby-winner Galopin (St. Simon's sire) and Turn of the Tide, by Mandrake. Calvados is a horse of extra fine finish, and his progeny have both substance and "quality." Few of them have appeared in public, yet two (Cauldron and Queen Nubia) are winners of more than average merit. The Galopin family has been at the top of the tree of success for many years in England, and last season they finished one, two, three in the "winning stallions" race—St. Simon, first; Galopin, second; St. Serf, third.

There are quite a number of yearlings in the Antrim sale by Rio Bravo, one of the handsomest horses ever foaled in California, a son of imp. Sir Modred and Mollie Walton (a stake-winner and half-sister to Hindoo), by imp. Mortemer (sire of Exile, Wanda, Cholula, etc.). Imp. Sir Modred, sire of Rio Bravo, has the best average of any stallion in America for the past eight and one-half years, his winners averaging over $7,400. Verily this is a great showing. It is a sire family that Rio Bravo's dam comes from, too, for Fonso and Hindoo are members of it.

Three of the babies are by Orizaba, son of imp. Cyrus—imp. Lalia, and the same number are by Nomad, who won $31,655 in three seasons on the turf. Nomad is by Wildidle (sire of Flambeau, Wildwood, Jim Douglas, Neilson, etc.) from imp. Amelia (dam of Rinfax, Amelia II., Vivace and Picton), by Lowlander, and he can scarcely fail to prove a good sire of race horses.

Among the dams of these yearlings are Eiteena (dam of Viking), Sweet by Hanover; Catherine B. (winner of about fifty races), by Bullion; Belle Platte, by Munster; Amanda, by Jim Brown; Blondinette, by Joe Hooker; Idaho (sister to Orizaba and Pasha); Celia, by imp. Charaxus, Irene (dam of J. O. C.); Juanita, by Joe Daniels; Nadavis (sister to Catalpa), by Hindoo; My Badge (dam of Coupon and sister to Badge), by imp. The Ill Used; Lina and Rosa Bella, by King Alfonso; Nellie K., by Tyrant, Rillito, Sallie Mac and Virginia Dare, by Apache, and Why Not (dam of Misty Morn, Patricia and Investigator III.), by George Wilkes (son of unbeaten Asteroid). This is a grand collection of stud matrons, and Mr. Kerr's success as a breeder in the past should be a guarantee of the worth of those to be sold November 22d.

Three Good Coney Island Stakes Open.

The Foam and Surf Stakes to be run at the Coney Island meeting, 1898, are now open, also the Tidal, to be run at the June meeting, 1899. All have $1,500 added. The Foam is for two-year-olds, distance five furlongs, the Surf for two-year-olds, distance five and one-half furlongs. The great mare, Spinaway, won both of these events in 1880. The Tidal is for three-year-olds, and the distance is one mile. Entry blanks can be obtained in this office upon application. Read the advertisement in this issue and do not forget that entries close November 15, 1897.

DR. H. CLAY GLOVER, HADLYME, CONN.

After using your Vermifuge on my Irish setter puppies, the masses of worms that came from them was something dreadful. I consider your Vermifuge a wonderful thing, and no owner of dogs should be without it. Yours truly,

NEWTON ROSELLE.

"READY-MONEY" RACE HORSES.

The Spreckels Horses in Training in Grand Racing Shape in "Big Jim" Garland's Hands—The Approaching Sale.

As the time for the Spreckels sale of race horses approaches the interest increases, and it is safe to say there will be a "full house" when Marcel, the first animal catalogued, is led into the center of the sales ring on Wednesday night, November 17th, at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

And that first animal in the catalogue (Marcel) is the picture of her handsome sire, Luke Blackburn, and a worthy daughter of so great a racer, for she has won 32 races and $11,000, and her last race at Sacramento and the present fine form she exhibits in "Big Jim" Garland's hands indicates that she will win many more good ones. When one looks over all this mare's long-distance races, it dawns upon one that she has the $3,500 Ingleside Stakes (four miles) pretty nearly at her mercy, and besides she is in the $10,000 Burns Handicap, one and a quarter miles, the J. F. Ullman Stakes ($2,500), the Palace Hotel Handicap ($2,000) and other rich stakes. When pretty Marcel's racing days are over, she will be worthy of a place on the stock farm of any breeder in the land, so beautiful is her breeding.

Foremost is extra good now, judging by the number of great stakes he has been entered in, a list of which appears in this issue. He is a five-year-old, and, like most of the Floods and good wine, seems to improve with age. Nero, an own brother to Foremost, nine years old, won some of the best races of his career during the past season, Foremost was a better horse last spring than he showed to be previously, and, like Marcel, he likes a long journey best.

Gallant is in the Palace Hotel Handicap ($2,000) and four other good stake races, and if any of these are run over a heavy track the horse that defeats Gallant will get the desirable end of the stake. He made a show of such a crack as Lissak when it came to running over a muddy course, and he beat Magnet on a dry track at his favorite distance (six furlongs.)

Then there is Olive, who in less than three seasons on the turf has put over $9,100 to the credit of her owners. She won twenty-seven races, and is one of the handsomest big mares in the country, as sound a bell. Coming from the family that gave us the immortal Lexington, Baden Baden, Blue Eyes, Umpire and Abd-el-Kader, she should be worth a large sum for a brood mare when her racing days are at an end.

Pat Murphy will make a very useful horse for some turfman. He has won fifteen races and over $5,700 and is a brother to the great "old roan horse," Tim Murphy.

Torsion is likely to bring as much as any horse in the sale, for he is exceedingly fast, dead game and a well-schooled jumper, besides being capable of giving a great account of himself on the flat. Torsion is heavily engaged in stakes, and that shows pretty well what Garland thinks of this horse.

George Palmer is about as heavily engaged as any horse in Mr. Spreckel's string, and as his gameness and consistency are well known, the son of Ecuador and Kitty Gunn will elicit some lively bidding beyond peradventure.

Frank James (brother to The Sculptor), who started once and won, is "ready money," and he is likely to win more than his brother, who put over $8,000 to the credit of his owner.

Imperious, perhaps the best maiden two-year-old in the country, will undoubtedly have many admirers with money in their clothes, and as this son of Morello and Helen Scratch is well engaged in the stakes here, will more than likely prove a valuable piece of galloping property.

Con Fianza, Georgies, Makawao, Salvail and Satossa, must have shown "Big Jim" some red-hot trials, or they would not have been put into the stakes as they have been.

Aluminum was a "warm article" at the recent State Fair meeting, and that other winner, Little T. G., one of the fastest two-year-old fillies seen in these parts for many a moon, is in the sale also.

Therefore, it has been decided by all those knowing anything of the values in horseflesh that the coming sale of A. B. Spreckels' will be one of the best ever held on the Pacific Slope.

If you desire to own thoroughbreds that are "keyed up" to a race by one of the best trainers in the land, those that can go right out and fetch the lucre with dispatch, attend the sale of A. B. Spreckels' horses in training at the Occidental Horse Exchange on the night of November 17th. Catalogues may be had upon application at this office.

The San Jose division of Burns & Watarhouse's string, arrived at Ingleside last Wednesday. Recreation, much improved, got in from Colorado.

John J. McCafferty and David Gideon, new as racing men in California' will have excellent strings in training here this winter. Requital, the great winner of The Futurity and Realization Stakes, races in McGafferty's colors.

Tommy Shannon, of Lexington, Ky.. once a great plunger, that started in life as a newsboy, arrived this week from the East. Shannon, it will be remembered, had a $10,000 bank-roll stolen from him in Lexington some years ago.

Almost Performed Miracles.

Salisbury, Texas, Oct., 30, 1894.

The Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, O.

The bottle of Gombault's Caustic Balsam I ordered some three months ago, came all right. I am liable to order some almost any time, for I am running a 2,000-acre horse ranch here, and a 480 horse farm in Cass Co., Iowa, where I was when I ordered my first trial bottle. My first bottle almost performed miracles. It took a hard calloused leg down in 5 or 6 appliations. The lump was nearly as large as the horse's knee, and I put him in races afterward and he didn't show any lameness. H. A. Burton.

CURINE! CURINE! CURINE!

The Most Powerful and Best Preparation in the World.

I WILL GUARANTEE MY CURINE

To be the most powerful paint that medical science can formulate. It will reach deeper-seated troubles and produce better effects for lameness and unhealthy sores than any other preparation in the world, for which local medication is indicated, such as

Spavins, Curbs, Ringbones, Sprung Knees, Capped Hocks and Knees, Saddle Galls, Rheumatism, Shoulder Lameness, Wind Puffs, Navicular Disease, Joint Lameness, Fistulae, Shoe Boils, Quittor, Tumors, Muscle Soreness, Splints, Thoroughpins, Sprung Tendons, Enlarged and Suppurated Glands, Soft Bunches, Bony Growths, Etc., Etc.

W. A. W. TURNBULL, V. M. D.,

Formerly resident surgeon in charge of the Veterinary Hospital, University of Pennsylvania.

CURINE is the most powerful paint known, and supersedes all cautery or firing. It contains no grease and will not blemish or remove the hair.

Its effects are absorbent, alterative, penetrative and antiseptic, and is the only preparation capable of reaching the deepest seated troubles.

Horses can be worked as usual while using this marvelous paint.

It is used with phenomenal success in Europe, and in the leading trotting and running stables in the United States and Canada. Any person who purchases a bottle, and after using half of it according to explicit directions, and finds it will not do what we claim, can return the bottle and money will be refunded. Reference:—First National or Citizens National Bank, Latrobe, Pa. WE WILL WAGER $100 that one bottle of CURINE used according to explicit directions will reach deeper seated troubles, produce better effects for the same uratives than any other compound in the world.

SUBSCRIPTION
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

SEARCHLIGHT, KING OF YOUNG PACERS.

The Great Three Year-Old Sent an Exhibition Mile in 2:05 3-4 at Santa Ana.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28TH.

The most exciting event of to-day's races was the 2:40 trot and the great drive made by Felton behind Judd to win first place in the fourth heat. Judd broke at the start and fell to the rear. At the half he was three lengths behind Nutway. Down the stretch Judd gained rapidly under Felton's whip and won the heat in 2:24½. The horses in this race were all local and the fast time made for the class made it the best race so far of the meet.

SUMMARIES.

Special, 2:17 trot, purse $400.

Nernut, bu Albert W.	Ford	1	2	1	1
Margaret Worth	Franklin	2	1	2	2

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30.

Searchlight is king of pacing three-year-olds. His time made on the track to-day in an exhibition mile eclipses all previous records and puts him at the head of pacers for his age. With a running mate he was driven by Tom Keating and established as his record 2:05¾. His time at the quarter was 0:32½, at the half 1:02½, and at the three-quarters 1:34½.

He went the whole distance without a skip or break, his driver discarding the whip and coaxing him on with his voice. When the grand stand was passed the crowd saluted with great cheering, which broke out again when the time, 2:05¾, was announced.

Searchlight is by Dark Night and is owned by Lou Krellin of Pleasanton. At the Los Angeles meet he went an additional eighth in order that he might still remain in the 2:10 class.

SUMMARIES.

Trotting, 2:22 class, purse $400.

Claudius, by Nutwood Wilkes	Bunch	1	1	1
Palermo	eating	2	2	2

The Bicycle Again.

The following dispatch was received from Los Angeles, California, last week:

"Haggin & Lewis have virtually abandoned the raising of driving horses for the market. H. A Jastro, who has charge of the firm's great ranch in Kern county, has just sold 125 horses and ponies in this city. He says: 'We have not been breeding driving horses to any extent for three years past. The demand for this class of horses has gradually diminished, and the prices have consequently fallen. This state of affairs is to be attributed in my opinion, to the coming of the bicycle and the great progress that has been made everywhere in the State in the construction of electric railways.'"

Here it is again, but this time it is the bicycle. Most generally it is the electric or cable car that ruins the horse market, horse breeder, horse dealer, and even the horse himself—when the daily scribe is discussing mundane progress. Not so long ago the motocycle, the autocar, the horseless carriage, it had a multiplicity of names, was the one thing that was to give the poor horse his quietus and some well-meaning people applied to the governments of various large municipalities for special ordinances relating to the use of these conveyances on the public streets and roads. In Chicago a five thousand dollar prize was offered for the best performance by an autocar. The first "race" was such a farce that another trial was ordered, the money being withheld at that time. The second test was about as bad as the first, but the money was paid over and that was the last the people of the "lacustrine metropolis" have heard of the autocar. In London, the cranks made the lives of the commissioners miserable until special regulations were issued granting special privileges to the operators and occupants of autocars on the Queen's highway. Believing that these people were sincere, the Royal agricultural society of England offered a substantial premium for the best performance by a horseless vehicle at its show of 1897—held last June. One lone machine showed up and it could do so little in the way of going forward or backward that the directors refused to award it a prize. Its miserable failure to work certainly did not warrant its being awarded a prize or diploma for excellence. And so it has gone with the autocar. The bike has to a certain extent curtailed the livery man's business, but in no great degree, and so far as the street car business is concerned the buyers for export send clear out of the year each year far more horses than were ever used upon the cars during the twelve months. We have lost the street car companies business, we have gained a trade infinitely larger and more profitable for the horses go never to return, whereas the car companies sold their infirm animals to farmers at small prices and, coming back to the farm, these animals took the place of younger and fresher stock. As a matter of fact, taking into consideration the export trade in its present volume and the increased demand from other users, we find that for some months more horses have been called for than was ever the case before the bicycle and electricity invaded the equine domain. There is no question as to the truth of this statement—the returns from all the larger marts will verify it beyond peradventure. The reason given by the calamity howlers is not then a true one and the more easily do we reach this conclusion when we consider that really good horses are now bringing more than they ever did and that the demand is very much greater than the supply. The breeder who inveighs against the bicycle, electric and cable conveyances and shrieks that there is now no place on the earth for the horse is exactly like the man who waits twenty-eight years to plant his potatoes in the dark of the moon and then invents all sorts of excuses to account for his neighbor's tubers, planted in good season, coming to maturity so much the earlier. He did not begin right and he did not take advantage of the possibilities in his case. Neither did the unsuccessful breeder of horses He did not begin right and he did not heed the teachings of the market, hence his horses would not bring good prices. But in all such cases we can never get over the fact that the breeder is to blame if his horses do not sell to advantage. Years ago there was an active and remunerative demand for hand looms with which woolen cloth might be woven. Steam was harnessed and larger and improved weaving machinery required. The man who kept on making hand looms and could not sell them had no right to consider that steam had robbed him of his market. Instead of doing so it opened up a larger field for his labor and enterprise. So with the breeding of horses—the man who keeps on trying to fill a demand that does not exist will have an abundant opportunity to rail against fate and to tax his inventive faculties discovering the causes of his failure, while in reality he himself, not the bicycle or other conveyance, is to blame.—Horseman.

RACERS READY TO RUN.

All Those in the Coming A. B. Spreckels Sale of Thoroughbreds at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

Judging by the crowds that daily visit the Occidental Horse Exchange at 225 Tehama street and the steady demand for catalogues, at the A. B. Spreckels sale, on the night of the 17th of this month, there will be some lively bidding on most of the fl yers consigned. There are thirty-four horses catalogued, and there is not a bad one in the entire bunch. On the contrary, there was never as useful a lot of gallopers brought into a California sales ring.

Marcel will be the first animal brought into the ring, and as she has a royal chance to win several of the stakes where the distance is a mile and a quarter or over, there will be a warm discussion on the monetary question over her. Marcel has won thirty-two races and over $11,000, her wins being at nearly all distances up to and including two miles.

Foremost is entered in so many rich stakes that "Big Jim" evidently thinks mighty well of him, and he will undoubtedly "win himself out" several times over before the season ends.

Gallant is looking fine, and when it comes to going over a muddy course this son of Fellowcharm is going to be very much "in it." Besides being good on the flat, he is a well-schooled jumper, and it will take a warm timber-topper to down him.

When Olive is led into the ring there will be some lively work for the auctioneer. This beautiful mare has won twenty-seven races in less than three seasons on the turf, and is fast and dead game. She comes from the same family as did the immortal Lexington, Abd-el-Kader, Baden Baden, Blue Eyes and Umpire.

Pat Murphy, the consistent roan brother to great old Tim Murphy, will bring a neat sum, for he's an exceedingly useful horse that is likely to race as long as his brother, who has been ten years on the turf and is still good for a few more victories. Pat has won fifteen races and over $5 700.

In Torsion many persons say Mr. Spreckels has a real crackerjack, and the horses' races at the Sacramento races would go to prove this.

Where is there a more honest fellow than George Palmer? He is so heavily engaged that his trainer must think George is "some pumpkins" of a stake horse. Therefore, the son of Ecuador and Kitty Gunn is not going to bring much less than $1,500, if we know anything of the direction in which the wind is blowing.

Frank James' winning percentage is 1,000; in short, he started just once and won in the gamest fashion. James is a brother to The Sculptor, who has put over $8,000 to the credit of his owner.

The Morello gelding Imperious, the half brother to Grevhurst, Braw Scot, La Reine and Grandee, is the kind of two year-old for some plunger to own. He is a maiden, and therefore will have a considerable pull in the weights.

Con Fianza, son of imp. Creighton and the triple Derby winner, Mystery, by Three Cheers, is in such rich stakes that he must have shown Garland "suthin'."

All race-goers know of the great speed possessed by Little T. G. and Aluminum, and than there is Makawao and Georgies, also the Salvator—Ailee colt, Salvail, and the St. Saviour filly, Satossa. These are well-engaged in several goodly stakes, and it is therefore inferred that they must be of some account.

The Spreckels bosses will be trained right up to the date of the sale, and will be "ready money." Secure a catalogue and remember that the date of the sale is November 17th, the place the Occidental Horse Exchange, 225 Tehama street.

ACCORDING to the dispatches, Tod Sloan was over confident in the race for the Cambridgeshire, and was under the impression that he had won with St. Cloud II. Comfrey, however, got the verdict by a short head. It was his owner's (Sir W. Ingram's) birthday. "Galtee More ran respectably," said the dispatch.

Bellota Stock Farm.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—

With a pair of trotting bred horses, a stout spring wagon and a camping outfit, your correspondent took a 600-mile prospecting and observation trip through the State last fall. In the course of that trip several of the horse-breeding farms of this State were visited. Most of our horse-breeding farms have been described until they are threadbare but, strange as it may seem, there are some quite large horse breeding farms which have never been written up. Among these latter is the farm of that well known horse breeder and judge, Hon. Chas. E. Needham, at Bellota, San Joaquin county, Cal. If there is an ideal spot on earth for a stock farm it is just this one. I is on the Calaveras river bottom, nestled among the foothills of the Sierras. Mr. Needham has exactly two hundred acres of land, every inch of which is alfalfa land. Just how good alfalfa land it is may be seen in the fact that this year one field produced seventy bushels of barley to the acre.

Here are eighty acres in alfalfa, which produces from seven to eight tons of hay annually, besides affording months of grazing, there is an abundance of running water, fresh from the mountain streams. Every field has wide branching trees, giving shade and shelter to all the stock. In the early days of California Mr. Needham brought from Vermont, his native State, several bands of horses of the blood of Black Hawk and Justin Morgan, Bishop Hambletonian, Harris Hambletonian, Andrus Hambletonian, Young Hambletonian, son of Bishop Hambletonian and Old Telegraph and thoroughbred. In fact Mr. Needham has brought more Vermont horses to this State than any other man, and possibly more than all other men. Here he commenced breeding horses with the strains of blood above mentioned. He has mingled those of Hambletonian 10, Electioneer, Whipple's Hambletonian, Dexter Prince, Joe Daniels, Nena Saib, Belmont, Wheatley, Director and others of the best strains which course through the veins of our best harnes horses. He has produced Steve Whipple 2:12, Needham's Whipple (3) trial 2:10, and other fast and game ones. All of his horses are solid colors, mostly rich seal browns.

They are good-sized, short legged and long-bodied horses. Their disposition is very remarkable. One may go into the field where there is a large band of them, and they will all come around and rub against him and almost walk over him. In size, color, conformation and disposition they will be ideal road and family horses. They have already proved that they are fast and game enough for any track. In all my 600 mile tramp I did not see a spot which has so many natural advantages for a stock farm as this one of Mr. Needham's. I did not see any horses which, as a whole, excelled or even equaled these.

Mr. Needham's younger horses are by a son of Director and mostly out of two Whipple mares. H.

Fast Heats—Only 21 Have Been Made in Which Better than 2:03 Has Been Scored.

A way back at a time when very fast miles—as the term is now understood—had never been paced, Robert J. circled the Terre Haute track in 2:01½, and established a new world's record in harness. Until very shortly before that date the world's record of 2:04 had stood like the proverbial stone wall, impervious to attack, and only three miles—all by Robert J.—2:03¾ at Fort Wayne, 2:02½ and 2:03¾ at Indianapolis—had been paced in much better time.

The record-breaking time at Terre Haute made the fourth and when John R. Gentry defeated Hal Braden at the same meeting, 2:03¾, the erstwhile best on record, 2:04, had been beaten just five times.

Robert J 's next appearance was on the dead level track at Galesburg, Ill, and when, in an effort to beat 2:01½, he paced in 2:02½, the mighty throng of spectators seemed to feel inclined to jeer rather than cheer the performance. A mere handful of these spectators had never seen a faster mile mile paced, and yet the crowd felt disappointed in a measure that it had not received what it paid for.

Not one in a thousand of that multitude could have told without a watch in hand whether Robert was pacing in 2:04 or a 2:00 clip, and still the multitude was disappointed when the third fastest mile ever paced was served up to it. Horses are going faster now, and the crowds are not quite so unreasonable, but there is room for improvement in this direction.

Even with all the increase of speed that has materialized, the very fast miles are easily counted. Star Pointer has paced in 1:15½, 2:00½, 2:00½, 2:01, 2:01½, 2:02, 2:02½, 2:03 and 2:03. John R. Gentry has paced in 2:00½ and 2:01; Joe Patchen has paced in 2:01½, 2:01, and 2:03; Robert J. has paced in 2:01½, 2:02, 2:02½ 2:02¾, 2:03 and 2:03.

From this it will be seen that only twenty-one miles have ever been paced in 2:03 or better, and no trotter has ever succeeded in taking so fast a record.

Miles between 2:03 and 2:05 are much more plentiful, but to pace faster than 2:04 still seems to be more than most horses can accomplish.

Searchlight and Betonica at Santa Ana.

Which of these great three year-olds is the faster? Betonica in his work out mile in 2:06¾ was unpaced by a runner, came the last half in 1:01¾ and did not appear to be extended in any part of the mile. Searchlight, four days later found the track in a little better condition and had a runner to encourage him. His mile was very evenly rated, the quarter in 0:32, half in 1:02½, three quarters in 1:34½, and mile in 2:05¾ his fastest work in the stretches, the second quarter in 0:30½, and last in a shade over 0:31¾. On the last quarter he had more wind to meet than Betonica on the day of his effort, but he appeared to be moving with marvelous ease in all parts of the mile and undoubtedly had a reserve of speed. If it had not been for the unfortunate accident to Mr. Havey, Betonica would have been given another trial later in the week, when he would certainly have improved on his previous effort, other things being equal.

It is the belief of all who saw both great colts in their trials that either could have beaten 2:05 over the Santa Ana track and if it had been earlier in the season when record saving was not so important, a meeting of the two would almost have been insisted upon.

It is a pity that a track made famous by these performances should be in danger of being turned into a barley field, but, from Santa Ana's position at or near the present circuit, the fields of horses that reach there are small; every year shows long lists of unpaid entrances and the attendance is not sufficient to make the game anything but a losing one.

The track had the race record of the coast for three successive years, Silkwood made his mark of 2:07 there, and W. W. Wood and Our Dick paced their best races there. The trotting record of the track is 2:10 but the pacers have beaten that mark eight or ten times, and it would be a great pity to have so excellent a track plowed up.

Tod Sloan's Riding.

LONDON, October 30.—All the morning papers praise Sloan's riding. The "Standard" says: "Apparently he lost the race on Wednesday because he stopped riding. If he had persevered two seconds more St. Cloud would have won."

The "Daily Mail" says: "It is useless to deride the style and methods of a jockey who keeps winning. When Sloan leaves our shores it will be amid a chorus of regrets from the bookmakers. The discrimination he exercised in choosing his times for winning and losing might have been inspired by a desire to make them as rich as himself."

The "Daily Telegraph" says: "Sloan measures the winning post with an accuracy which skill and knowledge of pace alone can supply. Sandia ran straight as an arrow today. This confirms the opinion that Comfrey would not beat him again at the same weights."

"Sporting Life" says: "All unprejudiced observers must allow that Sloan is an artist in his own line. Furthermore, he made friends by his cheery and plucky way of accepting defeat."

Sloan has been so successful lately that the papers are asking whether the American short stirrup and tucked-up action has not a decided advantage in the case of sure-footed animals. Sloan is still positive that St Cloud II won the Cambridgeshire stakes on Wednesday at Newmarket.

The Reis Sale.

The same night the Winters sale of yearlings are to be disposed of at the Occidental Horse Exchange, fifteen horses consigned by John O. Reis will be sold at auction.

Charmion, winner of $18,405 in stakes and purses, is on the list. Also Sunlit (dam of El Rayo, Don Carillo and Morinel), by Monday. She has a Morello foal at her side and is in foal to imp. Artillery.

Viola, by Himyar (sire of Domino), with a Morello yearling at her side, is also in the lot, as are the young mares, Ipomea and Koscinlothe, also Stephanotis and Rubina.

Then there are yearlings by the peerless Morello, the two-year-old Morinel by Morello, and Hertha, by imp. Islington, Halsey, a three-year-old by imp. Martenhurst.

Catalogues will be out in about one week.

C. FINK, owner of News Gatherer, thinks he has been treated a little too severely by the officials at Ingleside, and when one looks over the ground it appears as if the little turfman was right. Mr. Fink says he did have News Gatherer warmed up on Monday, and liked the brother to Reporter well enough to bet $50 on him. He was going well enough when the gelding jumped into Flamelia, cutting her down so badly that she had to be destroyed, and News Gatherer was himself bumped so severely as to be out of the race. When he won Mr. Fink had but $20 on him. The horse has started twenty-six times and been "in the money" nineteen of them, nd invariably won when favorite. Fink says he has been racing since 1886, and had not been disciplined in all that time.

THURSDAY morning Bert Hosteros, an exercing boy in Jim Neil's employ, was seriously injured at Ingleside. He was riding Thyne on the track and was run into by Si McClain on Corriente. Both horses and jockeys fell McClain was uninjured, but Hosteros was unconcious when picked up. He was removed to the Park Emergency Hospital and late last night had not recovered consciouesness. Dr. Stafford, who is in charge, states there is very little hope of his recovery. McClain is not blamed for the accident, as he was working out, while the other boy, who was only cantering, should have pulled out. He apparently tried to, but was too late.

JOHN MACKEY, as keen a character as the American turf knows, was in Chicago Friday and continued his journey to Rancho del Paso Friday night. He came with Walter B. Jennings, who is to train a group of Haggin horses; and Dr. McMilan, the veterinary expert of the great Haggin establishment from New York, on the special train of Mr. Haggin. In it were a lot of brood mares and Trolley, the Martenhurst—May H. filly, bought last Wednesday by Mr. Mackey. She will be raced with the Mackey or Haggin stable in San Francisco this winter. The group is likely to cut a smart figure in the picture.

CHARLES L. FAIR has retired from the turf, and presented Una Colorado to his trainer, "Butch" Fisher. Mr. Fair has nothing but bad luck since he began racing, which was late in 1892 when he gave $30,000 for six thoroughbred yearlings, one of which was the disappointing Yo El Rey. He had one piece of misfortune after another, and when Flamelia was cut down in such a shocking manner that she had to be shot the other day, Mr. Fair said, "Hold! Enough!" Perhaps some day, when he is convinced the hoodoo is chased away from his doorstep, he may re-enter the ranks of turfmen.

THE Kerr yearlings to be sold on the 22d are said to be an exceptionally fine lot. There are twenty-one of them, sired by Apache, imp. Calvados, Rio Bravo, Orizaba and the great race horse Nomad. Almost all the dams of the youngsters are My Badge, Why Not, Eileena, Sweet Catherine, by Virginia Dare, Lena, Nadavis, Nellie K. and Celia. All are from superb racing families. Get a catalogue of Wm. G. Layng & Co., 313 Bush street.

BARNEY SCHREIBER has turned out Braw Scot, the old gray idol of the San Francisco racing public, and the game son of Midlothian and Helen Scratch will hereafter munch grass on the pleasant pastures of the genial German's farm near St. Louis (Woodlands). Schreiber says the gray has earned his retirement and a long life of ease and comfort.

Ingleside.—Bright and radiant the prospects for the California racing season 1897 and 1898.

The opening at Ingleside last Monday was auspicious, and if there were doubts of success in the minds of those who are inclined to pessimism these were dissipated if the prognosticators of evil are not hopelessly under the dominion of the dark spirit. And well worthy of public support the Club that has been lavish in the expenditure to ensure a model racecourse, one that is not only a model for the business of racing, but also an attraction for people who have only a passing interest in the sport. When the shouts that greeted the winner of the last race of the closing day were yet reverberating among the surrounding hills, it might be said that the work of improvement commenced. Beautiful already, so much so that there was a feeling of regret over the thought that months would elapse before the gates were again thrown open, among even those to whom racing is only one feature of enjoyment, the love of the beautiful paramount. People who look at racing from a purely business view may not realize the potency of spending so much money for mere beautification. To that class course and stables are the most important, stands that will accommodate the crowd, plenty of room for speculators, however deficient in adornment all that are required, and any future expenditure a wilful waste of money. Strip modern racing grounds of ornamentations, let stable and stands be homely structures, though ample to accommodate and not lacking in comfort, and however good the racing, however able the management, one large division of the public would lose interest.

Both classes are taken into consideration by modern racecourse promoters, at least those in the vicinity of large towns are aware of the necessity of gratifying aesthetic people.

Californians have ample reasons for being proud of the two race courses on this Occidental side of the American world, and when time gives the finishing touches to the pictures, I have no hesitancy in entering the claim, unrivalled on this hemisphere.

Astonishing to people who are unacquainted with the climate of this section, the transformation wrought in the brief space of time that is measured by twenty-four months.

When the site for a race course was located among barren looking hills and with apparently unsurmountable obstacles, unless overcome by lavish expenditure, even our own folk did not anticipate the glorious results.

A general expectancy that the essentials would not be lacking, though few, indeed, who had the least conception of what the landscape artist would accomplish. Grass, flowers, shrubbery, trees, the first named worthy of the first place in the picture, as were that alone the embellishment, the grounds would still be attractive, when relieved by flowers, shrubbery, masses of bloom setting off beauties of foliage, and though the trees are still young, lend material aid in completing the scene, a harmonious conjunction, altogether lovely.

While the main work of the summer has been directed to the infield, where a steeplechase course has been built, necessitating a large amount of labor in cutting and filling. A great deal has been in other ways.

To me the clubhouse is the superior attraction. Not quite so well placed as the grand stand when there is a close finish to be decided though, if there are doubts as to the actual winner, there is the charm of eagerly awaiting the announcements and then there are times when even the grand stand occupants are also in doubt till the numbers are put up.

Perfect as it is, I would like to see the clubhouse provided with the means of gratifying the propensity that distinguishes the human family from all other branches of the animal kingdom. Speculative desires, putting it in plain words, an itching to wager, an overweening anxiety to venture something so as to have a more direct interest in watching the contest. Not a noisy knight of the block yelling the odds, not a glib-tongued pool-seller urging the people to buy favorite or a long shot, not even the jingle of the bell and the whirl of the wheels of the mutuel.

What then? You do not mean out-of-hand betting so long ago relegated to the limbo of the past? Not a method so incongruous with the surroundings, something in keeping with the beautiful, a companion picture to the "fair women and brave men" that were congregated on the wide veranda.

On the wall separating veranda from parlor a frame of suitable size, perhaps better, a kiosk on the western end of the veranda in which are arranged the names of the horses engaged and under them packets of tickets. The "block system?" Partly, but improved upon in the way of accessories. Better than a kiosk a miniature Grecian temple, the guardian of which a handsome damsel, a Hebe in appropriate costume, that represented in the Praxitilea statue, and if necessary an Athena would prove a potent auxiliary. Quite appropriate, too, as Hebe harnessed horses for her mother Hera, and Athena is credited with teaching the first mortal, Erichthonius, to "yoke horses" and she was also given the name of Hippia as a tamer of horses. She bridled Peyasus for Bellerophon, and she was further immortalized by a splendid statue in the Pantheon, the handiwork of Phidias. Perhaps the classic raiment would be too conspicuous in these days, and California girls nearly as handsome as Hebe and as "knowing" as Athena, in the neat costumes of 1897, will answer the purpose.

There is little question that an addendum of the kind outlined to the clubhouse would be warmly welcomed, and though the army of bookmakers have decided antipathies to any other than the English system, their gallantry would overcome their objections, when the design is to give the ladies who have the entree to the clubhouse an opportunity to speculate.

Evidently out of place, either bookmaker or poolseller plying their vocation in as recherche an establishment as the clubhouse at Ingleside, even, as stated before, the French machine would be an anomaly among such elegant surroundings. But kiosk, temple, alcove, even a niche, appropriately decorated, the frame a work of art, tickets so well executed as to be souvenirs, attendants of graceful manners, pleasing appearance, urbane and attentive, a fitting accompaniment, eminently appropriate, and if I am not monstrously mistaken, receive a hearty welcome from the fair visitors. A paying investment as well, as the rates which prevail in France and Australia would be cheerfully accepted. An "outfit" not so elaborate as that so slightly sketched would answer for a "trial run." Classic simplicity and elegance united, however, though in place of a temple and priestesses, a mural circle or polygon on which could be displayed numbers from one to twenty, representing the starters, their names, numbers and jockeys in plain view these and the programme, giving all the information necessary.

Improvements at Ingleside have not been restricted to work on the infield and beautifying the grounds. An observatory for the jockeys, not waged in the race, over their room in the saddling paddock, where they are free from questioners and arch temptors who would fain lead them astray. Then the reporters are so well fixed that the most captious, irascible members of the press have small chance to grumble or growl on the score of the quarters allotted them and other comforts so welcome on racing days. Not at all hyperbolical to call the room which has been fitted exclusively for them, complete in every respect, from the gorgeous velvet carpet to the roof. On the southern slope of the grand stand, projected so far towards the course that every yard of the ground is in sight, not a movement that can escape the observation, there is little necessity for field glasses to note even kalediscopic changes that often times occur in races where so many starters are engaged. A spacious apartment with wall of plate glass, saving the partition which encloses it from the stand, tables, each of which carries the name of the paper the reporter represents, a dozen or more, with extra chairs for visiting newspaper men, in fact, the most complete and comfortable quarters I ever saw for the accomodation of the people who are of such great importance to the racing industry.

Although I have already commented upon the system of starting at Ingleside, I hold the question to be so momentous that further argument in favor of adhering to the principle that after the barrier is thrown up by the starter an absolute, imperative start follows the signal. The Turf Congress rules are not at hand; 102, California Jockey Club, "Horses shall be started by flag, drum, or starting gate. Once the starter's flag has fallen, the drum been tapped, or the starting-gate been raised, there shall be no recall."

That rule may have been rescinded—it has been practically abrogated by the C. J. C., but it is founded on justice. A great clamor when favorites are "left at the post." Not a whit worse than when outsiders are treated the same way. "Big money burned" the outcry when horses that carry the plungers' dollars get even a moderately bad start. The small bettors are just as much entitled to "protection" of their trifling investments of a few dollars, as important to them as thousands of dollars to the mammoth speculator. One may have gorgeous apartments at a first-class hotel, wear diamonds, live on the best the land affords, and daily regale himself on vintages that only the very wealthy can indulge in; the other board at the stable kitchen, wear jeans, sleep on a cot or truss of straw, beer a luxury, troubled and harrassed to find grub for the boys, hay and oats for his horses; both should be placed on the same level on the course. "All men are equal on the turf and under it" was a maxim of the olden time, and now, the statement qualified by inserting the word honest between all and men, it should still govern. So much cursing and clamor when favorites get a bad start, it is not surprising that starters look after them more closely than those which are considered of no account. And right there "stick a pin." A favorite is left, up goes the recall flag, two or more that are not in the betting in the same predicament, time cannot be squandered on "dogs" and the bunting is kept quiet.

And now for the remedy. If the starter claims that he cannot do good work without he is intrusted with the power to recall he needs an assistant who has more confidence in the Australian system. That assistant to hold a position which the jockeys will respect, and of a temperament that will compel their obedience.

I know one man who would "fill the bill" to a nicety, and were it not that I regard a proffered wager, to aid an argument, as being far from good logic, in this case I will bet a fine road horse against half his value that in less than a week of his discipline refractory jockeys would be unknown at Ingleside, and many of the horses now under the stigma of "bad actors" comparatively well-mannered. The person I have in view is Mr. Corrigan, and should he fail to work a radical cure will not only give up my contention but will couple it with the admission that the gate is a failure. A line drawn across the track a few yards from the barrier, jockeys instructed that crossing it before consent is obtained will inevitably entail punishment, owners and trainers informed that horses making trouble will be assigned to any position that is thought to be less detrimental to others than the one drawn, and with a man like Mr. Corrigan to enforce the mandates—the end of clamors for a recall.

* * *

"There Shall Be No Recall."—The opening day of the Ingleside meeting was an "unqualified success" in the way of attendance, and small opportunity for fault finding.

The untoward start in the first race, in which two favorites were left at the post, was the most serious obstacle, and that is likely to happen under the most capable and careful starter. But the contretemps, of course, revived the discussion over the use of the recall flag, Mr. Caldwell advocating strenuously in favor of bringing them back.

In my opinion when the "gate" is raised that should be an imperative order, one that is inexorable, and must be obeyed. Should jockeys attempt to "beat the gate," punish them so severely that repetition of the offense will not be attempted. If riders are allowed to "break" before the barrier is removed, then a return to the old plan will be the better practice.

So far as information, obtained through reading and conversation with men who have had long experience, can be depended upon, racing in Australia is free from the troubles in starting which prevail here. Large fields, occasionally thirty or more, thirty-eight started in the Melbourne Cup with the gate, only a few minutes occupied in getting them off, and that so satisfactorily as not a word of objection offered.

If Australians are superior educators of horses and boys, let our folks profit by their example, though I am loath to admit that Australians have a monopoly of the patent required to manage racing successfully.

When the jockeys are brought to realize that they are subservient to the starter, their compliance with his orders is the only escape from punishment, not a trivial penalty, like the imposition of even a large fine, but suspension for a period that will entail a long rest "on the ground" and perhaps, when obstinate in their perversity, expulsion, that effectual and Australians will not be the only people who can give satisfactory starts. There can be no question regarding the absolut success of the gate in Australia.

Not one of the Australian papers received that finds fault with the method of starting, not a word expressive of the necessity for any change in the manner the gate is handled.

Not a hint that when the barrier is raised there should be another order, and it is more than a fair inference, that if their methods had been found deficient in the smallest way the antipodean people would be the first to suggest a remedy.

From the printed accounts of the races on Tuesday, one horse rushed at the barrior breaking it twice, and as the account states, "in the end he managed to get a running start." If after the first breaking of the gate the jockey had been punished, in all probability, the others would not have occurred unless the horse was rendered frantic by prohibited stimulants.

It might be a profitable venture for the two California Jockey Clubs to send an agent to Australia to get all the points obtainable bearing on the management of racing. That is not an acknowledgement of inferiority but evidence of a desire to benefit by the teachings of others.

A "dead moral certainty" that Australians are at the head of the class that embracces the racehorse starters of the world.

"Broad Church"—In one of his articles (always interesting) in the Spirit of the Times he has the following to say in relation to the Lexington meeting:

> Tommy Shannon, who used to be known as the boy plunger before Riley Grannan usurped the sceptre, was at Harlem the other day. Tommy made a fortune on the turf, a good portion of which he invested in a big farm near Lexington. The running turf is his specialty, but for a change he took in the late great trotting meeting at Lexington. In speaking of the latter he had this to say:
>
> "I never saw such a success anywhere, with the hotels overcrowded, and money almost as plenty as water. And how most of the visitors did bet! Where they bet dollars at the Spring running meeting here, the trotting people bet hundreds I never saw anything like it. Just think of it, over half a million passed through the auction pool-box in ten days hen there were seven books in line, with every heat a race. Sure enough in the trotting line Lexington takes the cake."

The whole cause, or at least, one of the main reasons for the encomiums bestowed were the judges. Competent and fearless rules were enforced, and people confident that honest racing all through was assured, no hesitancy in venturing their money. Had laying-up heats been permitted, had half measures to correct the "pernicious practice" been the resort, it is safe to say that not one-half the money would have gone into the pool box.

"With every heat a race," honesty had the "pull," chicanery forced to its proper level. The Lexington meeting has materially advanced the interests of all connected with trotting and pacing horses, set an example that must be followed

Somewhat Surprising—What a few months have accomplished in beautifying the grounds at Ingleside.

That is the good mother's handiwork in perfecting grass, flowers, shrubbery and even trees. Little twigs of eucalyptus, trees that were set on the outside of the first turn have shot up at a wonderful rate, even now being quite a barrier to the western breeze, and it will not be very far off in the future when they will form a high and heavy screen.

Well worth the while of those who attend the races to saunter a portion of the time about the grounds. Winners will be in a frame of mind to be readily pleased, those who lose may obtain a modicum of relief from things that are a "delight to the eyes." An expert in floriculture may take extra pleasure in his ability to name each of the many varieties of flowers, but it would surely be evidence of a gross nature when an observer did not show gratification at the beautiful spectacle.

THE SULKY.

BEN KENNEY will winter China Silk and Limerick in Montana.

THE revised 2:30 list will appear in this journal about December 1st.

ETHEL DOWNS 2:10, is the first descendant of Goldsmith Maid to enter the 2:10 list.

ANNIE LEE, by Anteeo, 2:16½, got a record of 2:19¼ at Louisville, Kentucky, October 19th.

COUNTESS EVE, 2:09½, now six, was bred as a three-year-old, and is the dam of a filly now two years old.

ANTRIM, the 11-year-old stallion by Aberdeen, won a race at Walla Walla, taking a mark of 2:24 at the pacing gait.

RECT, by Direct, out of Lily Stanley, was third in a race won by American Belle at Lexington, Ky., in 2:19, 2:17¼ and 2:17.

UMAHOLLIS 2:17¾ which was the track at La Grande Oregon lowered his record to 2:17½ at Walla Walla on Monday last.

THE black pacing stallion Arthur L., 2:13½, by Direct 2:05½, has been shipped east. It is believed he will be sold there.

THERE will be many grandly-bred fine-looking trotters and single and double teams sold at J. M. Nelson's sale. Do not fail to attend.

AS Montana intends to bar out light harness horse racing next year, California and Oregon should give meetings that will attract crowds.

ALMOST every horse taken to Alaska to carry goods to Klondyke has perished. There will be another supply ready when spring opens.

LOCKHEART, 2:08½, scores a good one in the four-year-old pacing filly Laverna, 2:15. She is out of Lady Mascot, 2:25½, by Red Wilkes.

OF the forty-five new 2:10 pacers of the season, twenty-three are descendants of George Wilkes and twenty-two of Alexander's Abdallah.

WALTER S. HOBART, the multi-millionaire, has recovered from the effects of the operation for appendicitis performed on him three weeks ago.

ROBBIE P., 2:10¾, scored his first European victory at Vienna, Austria, October 3, beating Azmon and Col. Kuser for the International Prize.

IT is said that the Empire City Farm people have decided to breed Bouncer, 2:10, to Directum, 2:05¼. The resultant foal should be game to the core.

THE election of officers for the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association takes place about December 1st. Many changes are anticipated.

JOHN RODGERS, the young man who was for many years head trainer under the late John A. Goldsmith, is suffering from pulmonary troubles at Santa Rosa.

ELLOREE, 2:09¾, Town Lady, 1:13½ and Emily, 2:11½, all reared foals before taking their records Elloree and Emily each have had three foals, Town Lady but one.

FITZAYMAN, a four-year-old black colt by Waldstein, out of a mare by Whippleton, paced to a record of 2:28½ at the Ferndale, Humboldt county fair last September.

DET BIGELOW is handling a number of royally-bred trotting yearlings and two-year-olds at the Walnut Grove Stock Farm near Sacramento, and they are doing well.

GIL CURRY says pacers will never be popular with the Australians. Americans have repeatedly made attempts to introduce them, but the people do not seem to like them.

THE most recent shipment of trotters to Europe, by Mr. John Frobisher, of New York, were Peru, 2:26½, by Stamboul, to Glasgow, and Elba, by Sable Wilkes, to Liverpool.

AT the Parkway (Brooklyn) half-mile track, October 16th, Fred Kohl, 2:12½, by Guy Wilkes, trotted three heats in 2:15½ 2:15, 2:14¼, in an attempt to beat the track record of 2:13¼.

B C HOLLY has a number of grandly bred trotters at his farm near Flosden, Solano county, which he will dispose of at public auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange in January.

MAJOR J C. RATHBONE is driving Athavis, 2:19½, a son of Clovis and Arabie (dam of Athanio, 2:10 etc.) on the roads around San Francisco and there are very few that can pass him.

RICHARD HAVEY, the popular reinsman, was brought to this city Wednesday His broken leg has been set and encased in plaster. Every one is sorry for this deserving young man.

TURF papers are somewhat confused over the performance of Island Lass, 2:20, and are quoting her as a new performer. Island Lass, 2:20 (formerly Island Maid, 2:25), is not a new one in the list.

WM CORBITT, of San Mateo, intends to send a number of his choicest brood mares in foal to Oro Wilkes 2:11, to New York about February 1st, where they will be disposed of by public auction.

SEARCHLIGHT'S mile in 2:05¼ at Santa Ana was the fastest mile ever paced or trotted by a three-year-old. He is sound as a pebble and will come closer to beating all pacing records in 1898 than any horse ever foaled.

TEAZLE, who obtained a record of 2:25¾ in the 2:29 class at Danbury, is full brother to Truman, 2:15½. Both are by Electioneer, dam Belle, by Gen Benton. Teazle is owned by John H. Dillon, New Haven, Conn.

GOSSIP, a gray colt owned by Dr. Hurlburt of Arcata, got a record of 2:26½, trotting on a half mile track at the Ferndale fair. Gossip is by the game little trotting stallion Gossiper, 2:14¾.

ADDISON 2:18 has been gelded and fired by Dr. Stimpson and turned over to his owner a much improved horse, and now that he is right it is expected that he will be a very fast horse another season.

GOLDFINCH, by Mambrino King, dam of the world's champion four-year-old trotting gelding, The Monk, 2:08¼, has now at foot a handsome half-bred French Coach colt by the Oaklawn stallion, imp. Perfection, and is again in foal to that horse.

F. P. OLCOTT, of Round Top Farm, Bernardsville, N. J., makes some very happy nomenclatural efforts. He has named three foals of Watercress, by Tom Rogers, Greens, Salad and Garnish, and two out of Surprise, by Lord Eldon, Phew and Astonishment.

THE well-known Souther Farm where Gilbert Tompkins had so many horses and his famous swimming tank, is entirely freed from all equines and is the home of one of Oakland's foremost citizens. Mr. Tompkins is in New York City engaged in song writing.

MR. JOHN PARROTT of San Mateo has a band of hackneys and German Coach horses on his beautiful farm which will bring good prices in a few years. This class averages higher than all others at the sales in the East because there is a demand for them which cannot be supplied.

GILPATRICK 2:19½, is owned by a brother to Wm. Fitch the famous auctioneer who is in this city. Gilpatrick was sired by Junio 2:22 out of a mare by Gilpatrick, and left a number of fine colts and fillies in Monterey county before being taken to his present home in Ontario, Canada.

WE have sent out bills to a great many of our delinquent subscribers, some of whom have paid no attention to our request. Gentleman, be fair; the amount you owe is but a small sum to you but in the aggregate would amount to many hard earned dollars to us. "Do unto others, etc."

C. X LARRABEE, of Brook Nook Stock Farm has bought the Zombro colt out of Lyla, 2:34, by Altamont-Tecora. This colt is said to be a splendid individual and its breeding is hard to improve on, being sired by Zombro, 2:11, out of a full sister to Chehalis, 2:07¼. Del Norte, 2:08, Touchet, 2:15, Tenino, 2:19¼, Coquetta, 3:30.

FRANK BRUNELL, of the Dairy Racing Form, Chicago, will shortly publish "the class" of 4,000 thoroughbreds that have run in North America this season. The task is one that would appall 9,999 persons in every 10,000, but Brunell is one of the most indefatigable workers in the world, and will classify them well beyond a doubt.

OVER 40 000 horses were exported to Great Britain alone in 1896. It is encouraging to find buyers among a people who have looked upon Americans only as buyers of their best blood at fancy prices. The exported horses are mostly drivers of trotting strains, but some are general purpose horses, such as bring very low prices here.

OBVIOUSLY that 2:06¼, of old Johnston's made so long ago is a tougher nut to crack than most folks think Joe Patchen tried to down it last Saturday at Joliet, but though the day was not very cold and the track was fast, the big black horse failed to reach the mark by 1¾ seconds. Oscar Ames could not get him around the track in better time than 2:08.

A COMMON complaint is made of horses rubbing their tails. It may be stopped by bathing the tail with strong salt water three times a day for a few days. If worms cause it use two quarts of strong quassia tea as an injection three times, letting two days elapse between. The enema is made by soaking a quart of quassia chips in two gallons of water.

THE Bow Bells filly, Janie T., is undoubtedly the greatest two-year-old trotter that was ever raced. When she secured her record of 2:14 at Lexington, she was not to her limit, and Mr. Fuller, her owner and driver, says that had there been anything in the race that could have driven her out she could have beaten her present record fully two seconds.

J. B. NIGHTINGALE intends making a race track on his ranch in Green Valley, on that portion known as the Ramsey field. All of our local horsemen should assist in this movement as it will afford a splendid opportunity to brush out all the differences that might exist between the various owners of the numerous thoroughbreds in this locality.—Suisun Republican.

HARNESS racing and fair associations never had a more profitable year than the present, nearly every association in the country having made "plenty of money," as managers express it. With all conditions constantly improving, the greatest year the harness horse and his owner ever had may most reasonably be looked for next year, and a substantial increase in the earning capacity of trotters and pacers will certainly follow. Meetings will be more numerous and purses larger.—Horseman.

THE influence that the horse show is having on horse-breeding interests in the West is particularly marked. Secretary S. D. Thompson of the American Percheron Horse-Breeders' Association declares that no such activity has been manifested since the Columbian Show as that which now characterizes the trade. He thus sums up the situation: "There is a demand now for good horses and a consequent increase in the price. Good coach and carriage horses as well as big draft horses are becoming very scarce and breeders who have hung on during the hard times are now about to reap their reward. It is a fact that good sound draft horses which a year ago could be bought at from $150 to $200 a pair are now worth from $300 to $600, with few offering at any price, and the owner of a good, large, stylish coach team can name his own price and get it. The outlook for horse breeders is very bright and I fully expect to see as high, if not higher, prices paid for good breeding stallions the next five years as were ever paid during the boom times in horse-breeding from 1880 to 1893 The great difficulty is that there will not be sufficient numbers in the country, and undoubtedly large importations of French, and Scotch breeding stallions will be made next season."

THE number of road horses in use in San Francisco at present exceeds that of all previous years. Bicycle riding is a back number in the winter and many a "bike" rider who has tasted of the joys of getting out in the woods nearer, as it were, to Nature's heart, is trying to select a nice horse and buggy so that he can continue to enjoy outdoor life without labor or danger, hence the excellent demand.

A REPORT from the farm of J. Malcolm Forbes is to the effect that the young colts have all been weaned and the yearlings and two-year-olds are being educated to harness and the road. The reports stating that Arion will be raced next year are incorrect. It is the intention of Mr. Forbes to race Bingen, and for this reason the son of May King will be given but few mares. On the other hand Arion will be kept busy.

THE five-year-old bay stallion Anteeman, 2:24½, by Anteo, 2:16½, dam Mill Girl, 2:22½, is the fifth member of Mill Girl's family to take a record better than 2:30. Herman L. Riggs purchased Anteeman a little over a year ago. This year, after a short season in the stud, and with no preparatory work, he has started eight times over slow half-mile tracks, taking his record over it in form of a course. He is a pure-gaited trotter and goes with light shoes and no weights. In addition to his races, he has taken first prize this fall at the Canandaigua, Palmyra and Newark fairs.

THE pleasing announcement is made that Ed A. Tipton, who returned on Saturday from Kentucky and the East has signed contracts under which he will again have the management of the Butte and Anaconda race tracks next year on practically the same terms as heretofore. His present contract does not expire until December 1, and it is understood that the new one extends beyond the year 1898, although how much longer than that it runs is not known. There is no danger, however, of its running too long to suit the race goers of Butte and Anaconda who have come to regard Mr. Tipton as the ideal race track manager. He is now formulating his plans for next year and he will make formal announcement of them about the first of the year, when the approximate date of the meetings will be given. It is also officially stated that the sister cities have seen their last harness races and that next summer's meetings will be devoted entirely to the thoroughbreds. Improvements will be made at both tracks and they will be converted into exclusive running courses. The track at Anaconda is now being resoiled and six inches of loam added to it. With exclusively running meetings next year the attendance of the best thoroughbreds in the country is guaranteed.

REFERRING to the consignment of Touraine to J. M. Nelson's sale at Alameda it may be said that such a horse is seldom consigned to a public sale. Touraine is a mahogany bay, four years old. By the great Altamont, sire of six 2:10 performers, the leading sire of new 2:20 performers for 1897, sire of Chehalis, holder of the two mile harness record, 4:19½, and grandsire of Klamath, the present champion trotter of the Pacific coast. Touraine's dam is one of the greatest brood mares ever foaled; dam of Chehalis, 2:07¼ (champion two-mile harness horse), Del Norte, 2:08, Touchet (three), 2:15, Tenino, 2:19, and Coqueta, 2:30. Touraine is full brother to all these. Two of Tecora's sons, though yet young are sires of speed—Chehalis, sire of Umchalis, 2:17¾, Del Norte, sire of Walter Q. 2:18¾. Tecora's first foal is the dam of Vinmont, 2:21½, and Althaia (two-year-old record to high-wheel sulkey, 2:27½) Altamont and Tecora have produced more extreme speed than any other couple of equine stars that were ever mated. But this is not all. Though Touraine is practically undervalued, having had very little work, he will be shown in harness on the day of the sale, when it will be demonstrated that he is entirely worthy of his lineage. He is a pacer and goes without hopples or complex rigging of any kind. Who knows of a better prospect for a great stallion?

E. E HALL, assignee of the Pleasanton Stock Farm, an insolvent debtor, and E B Young, who is seeking to establish his claim to the Pleasanton Stock farm of Salisbury trotters and the necessary accoutrements to an extensive racing stable and a kindergarten of trotters, have concluded that horses eat while lawyers and courts grind and that it is easier to wage a legal war over money than live stock. In accordance with that conclusion, Mr. Hall has applied to the Superior Court to be allowed to sell the personal property of the Pleasanton stock farm at public auction In his petition to the Court Mr. Hall states that Mr. Young is willing to stipulate that the property be sold at auction and that after deducting all the expense of sale the remainder of the money shall be deposited in banks in the joint names of Young and himself; the money so to remain until the termination of the litigation and the courts have decided who is the rightful owner. Judge Hall has issued the necessary order and it is understood that the work of preparing the stock for sale will be begun at once. The property to be sold consists of 9 brood mares, 3 two-year old colts, 3 four-year old colts, a half dozen geldings that have seen track service and a dozen yearlings sired by Direct. Besides the blooded stock there are a number of farm horses, cows, implements, sulkies, carts and harness.

DURING the ten days $74,250 was distributed among the horsemen in stakes and purses. The following is a list of the winners of $500 or more as taken from the books of the association: Village farm, New York, $7,600; O. A. Hickok, California, $7,300; George A. Fuller, Illinois, $6 700; John A. Wetley, Ohio, $2 750; W. O Foote, Texas, $2 750; Marcus Daly, Montana, $2 600; Wilson Bros., Kentucky, $2 225; Hermitage Stud, Tennessee, $2,125; C. F. Emery, Ohio, $1 500; F. W. Noble, Pennsylvania, $1,200; H. V. Haws, Illinois, $1,250; J. T. Hugueley, Kentucky, $1,200; P. P. Parish, Kentucky, $1,200; John Dickerson, Indiana, $1,100; David Cahill, Kentucky, $1,100; F. S. Gorton, Illinois, $1,025; F. D. Crocker. $1,000; John Hussey, Iowa, $1,000; Peter Johnston, $1 000; Scott Hudson, Kentucky, $975; B. H. Demarest, New Jersey, $970; S. J. Fleming & Son, Indiana, $850; C. H. Anthony, Indiana, $7 0; Caton farm, Illinois, $750; Charles H. Kerner, New York, $750; Henry Simon, Kentucky, $650; J. B Whitney, Ohio, $625; McCall & Garvey, Pennsylvania, $550; J. B. McFerran, Jr., Kentucky. $550 Reed & Weeks $ 00; L. Grant, $500; Empire City Stud, New York, $500; J. A. McIntire, $500; W. Albin, $500; Highland Stock farm $500; H. A. Bell, $500; George W. Saunders, Ohio, $500; J. A. Boyd $500. The balance, $15,000, was distributed in amounts from $100 to $450.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

THE SADDLE.

Jockey Joe Narvaez has been engaged to ride by Judge J. H. Tam.

El Rio Reys (Corington Ky., and Weenatchie), ran one-two in a mile race at Harlem, Oct. 29th.

Aleck Ullman's cashier, Fred Fishel, is missing in New York, and incidentally, $12,000 to $18,000, also.

The dead Newminster (by The Marquis—Spa, by Leamington, heads the list of winning sires in Australia.

J. J. Moran, formerly under-trainer to Matt Byrnes, has opened a public training stable at Hamilton, Mont.

The Baldwin string of twelve, including El Salado, Celoso, Argentina, Algorta and Los Cerillos arrived at Ingleside track Sunday. This lot raced at Los Angeles recently.

Gen. Shafter's string at Ingleside is likely to act as a magnet on the military stationed at the Presidio during the coming winter.

Salvable, with 114 lbs. up, ran seven furlongs in 1:28½ at Morris Park last Saturday. The Californian horse was piloted by H. Martin of California.

Grand Sachem, the grand looking Tammany colt, whom many Montana people expected to win the Futurity, has been sold to Sam Lucas and J. J. Moran.

Messrs E. S. Gardner & Son have sold to Mr. J. Seradino, Cincinnati, O., the bay colt Millstream, by imp Quicklime, out of Monte Rose, by Mr. Pickwick, for $1,200.

Frank Ireland, of Louisville, of the well known firm of Ireland Bros, will be here shortly. He left his good long-distance horse, Grannam, at By. Holly's place, Flosden.

Tea Rose, the fastest filly in California up to seven furlongs, is the property of Charles Kerr, of Bakersfield, though the mare was foaled at Ranch del Paso and leased to John Mackay.

The carpenters are busily engaged on the new sale yards on Howard street, and by the time of the first sale, which is November 17th, the place will be the finest of the kind west of St. Louis.

H. Martin, the Santa Clara boy, rode two winners and a second at Morris Park on Saturday, while Doggett, Sanger, Pat McInerney and Marty Bergen piloted one victorious galloper apiece.

Amongst the youngsters to be sold at the S. G. Reed estate yearling sale is a colt by the great swayback, Tenny, from imp. Fun (dam of Playful), by Fiddler. This fellow ought to be a warm article.

E. Bunn, who rode Castaway II to victory in the Brooklyn Handicap and was regarded as a very high-class horse pilot, made his first appearance Tuesday in San Francisco on the back of Brown Prince.

Imp. Glenelg, one of the best sires in America, is dead. He sired Firenzi, Los Angeles, Ferida, Mintzer and many other celebrities, and was a stake-winner at Saratoga and elsewhere in the early seventies.

Daily Racing Form of Chicago, in its issue of October 30th, prints the results of the Stockton, San Jose, Fresno, Los Angeles and Sacramento races. It will be greatly appreciated by the paper's patrons here.

Turney Bros. bought back, at an advance, the chestnut colt, Dr. Catlett, sold to Bromley & Co., at the auction sale Saturday. They made an offer for Tillo also, but J. W. Rogers did not wish to part with his purchase.

St. Calatine is all we claimed for her last September—that she was the best two-year-old filly in California. She is also about as fashionably-bred as any, being by St. Carlo from a sister to Inspector B., Bella B. and Getaway.

B. C Holly will sell five or six splendid broodmares, including Ninena and Miss Jessie, all in foal to El Rayo, the same night the Macdonough yearlings by St. Carlo are sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange—in December.

The New York correspondent of the Chronicle telegraphs as follows: Dave Gideon will ship Phillip, Eakins, Colonial Dame and Destruction to 'California on Friday. Gideon himself will not go to the Coast until January.

H. T. Griffin and Mike Dwyer engaged in a little selling-race war at Morris Park last Tuesday during the second race. The irrepressible Griffin claimed Hardly for $1,050, and in return Dwyer claimed Hindoonet from Griffin for the same price.

Atkins & Lottridge have twenty-one head quartered at the Oakland Race Track, and all look well. Scarborough, (the bay son of El Rio Rey), winner of the California Derby last spring, is in fine fettle, and will be heard of during the Meeting.

Lee Blasingame, the popular owner of Major S. and others, has become a benedict, he having recently been married to Miss Minta Owens, the daughter of Tom Owens, owner of Grady, et al. May the best of luck attend him in his new venture.

The Hungarian Jockey Club has published in its official journal a contradiction of the report circulated by the Vienna press that Galtee More, winner of the Derby and St. Leger, had been purchased by the Hungarian Government for $100,000. We never placed any credence in the report.

W. L. Appleby will put two horses in training into one of the Occidental Horse Exchange sales soon. They are the four year-old brother to Kylo (by imp. Cyrus—Kathairon) and the three-year-old bay filly Rachel, by imp. Merriwa from the good race mare Raindrop. Both are in training and very fast.

Flamelia, badly cut down when three furlongs from home in the race for the University Stakes, was put out of her misery with a bullet. The unfortunate filly was by Flambeau from imp. Cornelia (dam of Cadmus), by Isonomy. She belonged to Charles Fair, and we believe it was her first start in public.

Ed Purser had a good season at the far East. He recently added to his string the good performer Cromwell, (five-year-old ch h by imp. St. Blaise-Flavina). The Dipper (br c, 2, by imp. Prestonpars-Starlight), and Song and Dance (b g, 6, by The Bard-Heel and Toe.) The horses are in W. M. Murry's hands.

London, November 1.—At the first day's racing of the Lincoln autumn meeting to-day, the Lorillard-Beresford stable's six-year-old bay mare Angelina, ridden by Tod Sloan, the American jockey, won the Great Tom Stakes. This race is a handicap of 500 sovereigns for three-year-olds and upward. Eight horses ran over the straight mile.

The thoroughbred stock of the Bitter Root Stock Farm, including a number of the choicest broodmares and horses in training, the property of Mr. Marcus Daly, will be sold privately and not at public sale, as previously announced. Breeders and owners should take note of this fact, for this is a rare chance to secure animals of the highest class.—N. Y. Spirit of the Times.

New York, November 3.—The Saratoga Racing Association has declared off its twelve guaranteed stakes, which were to be run in 1898, 1899 and 1900. They were only recently announced and their value amounted to $89,500. President Walbaum states that this action has been taken owing to the declaration of the leaders in the Horsemen's Protective Association.

A group of turfmen in Chicago were talking about good-looking ladies the other day, and Kent, of Covington & Kent, owner of The Swain, etc., hit the Windy City a hard lick and gave San Francisco a lift when he remarked: "Why, you can get on a car at the ferry, ride out to Ingleside, and see more good-looking ladies on that car than you have seen in the Harlem grand stand since the meeting opened."

Secretary Ed Hopper, of the American Turf Congress, telegraphed the Pacific Coast Jockey Club Sunday to accept entries of horses outlawed through racing at Aqueduct and that the objectionable rules will be abrogated and never intended to cover tracks that conformed with Jockey Club rules. A great load has been removed from the Pacific Coast Jockey Club and it has been saved from serious complications.

Col. Ed Applegate, the prominent Louisville capitalist and bookmaker, will in all likelihood put up his slate at Ingleside or Oakland ere long. Col. Applegate has been a mighty good friend to Riley Grannan, according to all reports, and his advice to Grannan regarding the keeping of his betting operations to himself seems to have done the young plunger a considerable amount of good, for Riley is declared to be a very tidy winner on the season.

The great Austrian race horse, Tokio, has been purchased by the Austrian Government for 70 000 florins equivalent to $33,600 in our money. Tokio is a grandson of the famous Hungarian mare, Kincsem, and won twenty-one out of twenty-seven starts during the last four years. The total of his winnings amount to 489,225 crowns, equal to $587,070. This is twice as much money as any other horse ever won in any of the English-speaking countries.

The management of the Montana racing circuit has again been intrusted to Ed Tipton. The season this year is to open at Butte instead of Anaconda, as in former years, and the opening day has been set for July 2d. As exclusively announced in the "Chronicle," there will be harness racing in Montana this year. There are to be six running races every day and, and the tracks will be especially prepared for the bangtails. A feature of the season is to be the Montana Derby.

James Woods, father of Jockey Johnny Woods, who has made such a great name for himself this season, is full of praise of the Harlem meeting, which just came to a close. He declares he never saw such racing anywhere, and this is a good deal for one from the "old country" to say. The play in the books, however, is hardly as large as in San Francisco. Mr. Woods is much pleased over the success of his little son, who is fairly idolized in Chicago, and to say the lad's employer, Barney Schrieber, is happy, is to draw it mild. The featherweight was badly shaken up by a fall on the closing day at Harlem, and may not be right for several days.

The Lorillard-Beresford stable's Sandia, ridden by Tod Sloan, won the Old Cambridgeshire handicap at Newmarket (Eng.), October 29th. Later Meta II., also of the Lorillard-Beresford stables, with Tod Sloan up, won the Newmarket handicap. The Old Cambridgeshire handicap is £500 forfeit to the fund, the second horse to receive $50 out of the stakes. Six horses ran over the Old Cambridge course, one mile and 240 yards. After Sandia came Balsamo, owned by the Duke of Devonshire, and Brayhead, the property of Mrs Langtry. The Newmarket free handicap is of £100 each, £25 forfeit for two-year-olds. Eight horses ran over the Bretby stakes course. The second and third places were taken by Mrs. Larnach's Jedda and Mr. Belmont's Bridegroom II., respectively.

The sale of horses in training, the property of the Kensico Stable, James R. Keene, O. H. P. Belmont, J. W. Rodgers, James McLaughlin, and W. O'B. Macdonough, in the saddling paddock at Morris Park yesterday, was well attended, and fair prices were obtained. Details of the sale are as follows: Divide, ch f, 3, by imp. Rossington—Unite, W. L. Powers $500; Azure, b c, 3, by Plevna—Sapphire, J. A. Bennet, $350; Full Speed, b c, by Lovegold—Nimble, P. Lawler, $250; Juda, b f, 3, by Britannic—Judy, H. H. Hunn, $500; Brandywine (brother to Potomac), ch h, 5, by imp St. Blaise—Susquehanna, John Brennan, $1,600; Great Bend (brother to Brandywine and Potomac), ch c, 2, by imp. St. Blaise—Susquehanna, J. W. Colt, $2 100; Chestnut colt, (brother to Brandywine and Great Bend), 1, by imp. St. Blaise—Susquehanna, O. H. P. Belmont, $2,500; Rodermond, b c, 3, by Tremont—Armiel, Frank Brown, $1,500; Chalmers, ch c, 2, by Luke Blackburn—Lythe, R. Dunne, $1,200; Regulator, ch c, 3, by imp. Order—Lucy Wallace, Frank Marrone, $1,050; Oceana, ch f, 2, by Onondaga—Ocean Queen, W. Jennings, $325; Tent Pin, b f, 2, by Tournament—Dart Maiden, J. Kneale, $325; Field Lark, ch c, 2, by imp. Goldfinch—Musical Gem, H. H. Hunn, $300; Eastertide, ch c, 3, by Lisbon—Anna Ferguson, J. Ward, $250.—New York Times.

Among those booked to visit the Coast this winter might be mentioned the well-known racing man, James Rowe. He was formerly presiding judge at Bay District track, and also acted as starter, making a great success of it in both positions. "Jimmy," as he is familiarly termed, a Virginian by birth, started in with Col. McDaniel as an exercise lad, and became a noted jockey, winning most of the great stakes at the far East on the back of Harry Bassett. When he became too heavy to ride he took up training, and brought to the post many of the best racers ever owned by the Dwyer Bros., including Miss Woodford and Hindoo. After severing his connection with the Dwyers he went into the show business, then became an official starter at the big far Eastern tracks, and after making quite a name at that and at judging, went back into the ranks of trainers. Among his charges was the great Requital, winner of The Futurity and Realization Stake and L'Alouette, winner of The Futurity this year. Rowe is a man of great force of character, and the chances are that had he received a classical education would have been a United States Senator.

There is considerable talk of J. B. Haggin transferring his thoroughbred stallions and mares to Kentucky, some color being given the matter by his recent purchase of Elmendorf stud. This place was owned by M. Sanford, and Vigil stood there. The late Dan Swigert purchased it of Mr. Sanford, and for several years past Col. Enright, of Louisville, owned it. Many famous horses were bred there, including Salvator and Firenzi. The trouble with California, however, is carrying on many, many kinds of business on too large a scale. The people of the country would be much better off if the land was in the hands of four or five times as many persons as at present, if there were more railroads running through the State and to the north, south and east, and if no breeder owned over 60 brood mares. Where there are 200 or more broodmares bred every season on one ranch, the variety of colts to choose from is great and some of the youngsters, getting better care than others, outshow and outsell the "weeds" and poorly-cared for ones. It would be better, therefore, to bring to a sale fifty or sixty well-nourished, fine looking youngsters every year than say 200, with perhaps one-third of them undersized and anything but "taking" in appearance. Marcus Daly evidently is a believer in the theory advanced above, else why would he sell off most of his brood mares? Certainly it is not lack of money that causes this action.

The Joint Traffic Association has adopted the following rules to govern the transportation of horses on cars attached to passenger trains: "1. With race horses, one trainer for each shipment belonging to one owner may be carried free in the second class or smoking car of train or in the car in which the animals are transported. One attendant for each such horse may also be carried free in the car with the animals, provided that not exceeding six attendants shall be carried free with any any car. All additional persons accompanying race horses shall be charged full second-class limited rates for passage in the second-class or smoking car of train only, and shall be charged first class limited fares for the privilege of riding in any other passenger cars of the train. 2. With horses other than race horses, attendants may be carried free as follows: One attendant with each consignment up to and including three cars belonging to one owner; two attendants with from four to seven cars inclusive belonging to one owner, and three attendants with eight cars or more belonging to one owner. Three attendants is the maximum number which will be carried free for one owner on one train, and such attendants will be permitted to ride only in the second-class or smoking car of the train, or in the car in which the animals are transported."—New York Times.

Mr. Marcus Daly, Bitter Root Stock Farm, Hamilton, Montana, has recently made the following sales: Matt Byrnes, br h, 6, by Hampton—Cherry, by Sterling, William Broderick Cloete, London, England, $25,000; Bute, b c, 4, by Hampton—Buttermore, by Doncaster, J. B Haggin; Senator Bland, ch c, 4, by Inverness—Wood Violet, by Ill-Used, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont; Loch Ness, ch c, 3, by Inverness—Butterfly, by Kyrle Daly, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont; Tullamore, ch c, 3, by Inspector B—Turmeric, by Great Tom, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont.; Missioner, ch c, 2, by Galliard—Miserere, by The Miser, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont.; Punter, b f, 2, by Inverness—Lottery, by Sir Modred, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont.; Amazonian, ch c, 2, by Tammany—Amazon, by Ill-Used, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont; Barracan, b f, 2, by Tammany—Barcamere, by Barcaldine, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont.; Bitter Root, b c, 2, by Royal Hampton—Buttermere, by Doncaster, H. L Frank, Butte, Mont.; Ternary, b c, 2, by Tammany—Lady Judette, by Highland Chief, H. L. Frank, Butte, Mont. With the Frank consignment go four yearlings not yet selected. Grand Sachem, b c, 2, by Tammany—Belinda, by Kingfisher, J. J. Moran, Hamilton, Mont.; Taghairm, br c, 1, by Inverness—Wind, by Sir Modred, J. J. Moran, Hamilton, Mont. There will be no public sale of the Daly horses, though one is being advertised.

The Princess of Wales and The Jockey Club Stakes, each worth $50,000, which there was a possibility might be discontinued, have at last become more than self-supporting, and naturally will be annual fixtures until the tide turns. London "Truth" gives the following interesting details in regard to them: "The two £10,000 races at Newmarket appear to have turned the corner, and some writers who have been croaking and wailing over their failure will be doubtless surprised to hear that this year there was a surplus of £230 over the Princess of Wales' Stakes, and £442 on The Jockey Club Stakes, so that not a farthing was drawn from the fund for either event. In 1894, when these races were run for the first time, there were 272 entries for the Princess of Wales' Stakes, and 276 for The Jockey Club Stakes, and the result was a surplus of £1,916 on the one race, and £2,312 on the other. In 1895 there were only 178 entries for the Princess of Wales' Stakes, the result being a deficit of £1,662, while the fund had to contribute £1,277 to The Jockey Club Stakes, which had obtained 179 entries. Last year there was a deficiency of £1 994 over the Princess of Wales' Stakes with 184 entries, while the same amount of subscriptions for The Jockey Club Stakes resulted in a deficit of £2 377. This year there 243 entries for the one race, and 247 for the other. The fact is that it is impossible to estimate the pecuniary prospects of a stake of this kind from the number of entries when the race originally closes. Everything depends upon the number of horses left in after the second forfeit is declared.

San Francisco, Saturday, November 6, 1897.

The Racing Season Commenced.

The winter's racing commenced under most favorable auspices at the Ingleside race course last Monday. The attendance was estimated to be over 5,000, and,from the expressions of delight heard from the majority of those who noticed the many marked improvements on the grounds, the management has just cause to feel proud.

Many were the new faces noticed in that immense throng, many who had never attended a race meeting west of the Rocky Mountains before. When the last race ended these people did not fail to express their surprise at the beautiful location of the grounds selected on which the Jockey Club has erected its palatial grand stand, club house, track and buildings. All the stories these people had heard of our California track were verified, and those visitors who had been here before did not forget to ask: "Well, are you satisfied now that all the statements we made about this place were true?"

The racing was excellent, although Starter Caldwell did not seem able to keep the cold chills from racing up and down the spinal columns of at least nine-tenths of the spectators by his leaving two favorites at the post. Thousands of dollars changed hands on the result of the day's races, and most of this money was brought to California by the men who follow the thoroughbreds and are men of wealth who love the excitement of "betting on the races." Nearly eight hundred horses are stabled at the track, and are much better individually than any heretofore ridden in California. The association is striving to give events which will bring out long entry lists for the various classes that are eligible to race, and, so far, their efforts have not been in vain. As the Eastern crackajacks become acclimated they will be in evidence and the "students of form" will be kept busy studying the difference between the Eastern and California tracks.

Many "soreheads" claim that winter racing is detrimental to the best interests of thoroughbreds, their owners and the public. Have they ever considered what the addition of over two thousand people (most of them men of wealth) means? Have they ever calulated the amount of hay and grain one thousand horses at the race track consume, or how much it takes to clothe, shoe and care for these grandly bred and valuable racers? Have these pessimists ever estimated the cost of purchasing enough land to make a race track like that at Ingleside, and then what a vast sum must have been expended for skilled labor and materials to improve such property? A winter race meeting does more to induce strangers to come to California than any ever devised and these people come to stay at least six months. They live in our best hotels and residences, and many of leave in the summer tens of thousands of dollars poorer than when they arrive for they cannot "job" races and make the "killings" they were in the habit of doing on their road to attain prominent positions and place them where they can be called "plungers." Everyone is benefited; the farmer, mechanic, merchant, business man, hotel-keeper, property owner, milliner, dressmaker, shoe dealer, everyone, in fact, is benefited by the racing during the winter.

There is one evil, however, which we trust will be remedied and that very soon in connection with racing, and that is the prevalence of down town pool rooms at which crowds congregate to "back the ponies." It was bad enough to have these places running all summer, but it is much worse during the winter, and we hope they will be closed for good.

Too Much Trotting Blood.

The Western Horseman in its last issue published the following which is well worthy of a place in our columns: We have had occasion of late to refer to the efforts being made by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson in awakening farmers especially to the necessities of method in the matter of horse breeding, and while his ideas may not be above criticism on every point, his efforts, nevertheless, eminently commendable. In one sentence, however, Secretary Wilson makes a grave mistake, though doubtless a thoughtless one, and we are willing to accept it as such. He says: "Too much trotting blood has been used by many farmers." As farmers as a class have used very little trotting blood, and as "trotting blood" gives to every nation its most valuable horses—a fact that Secretary Wilson well knows, we are prone to believe that the Secretary did not mean literally what he said. He doubtless meant to say that trotting blood had been used too inconsiderately, i. e., those who had used trotting blood were too inconsiderate of the class and quality of the individual trotting-bred animals used for breeding purposes. The idea that size, finish, and even lofty action cannot be produced with trotting blood is fallacious to an extreme degree. The twelve hundred pound trotting horse is of easy and ready production, and every thoughtful and considerate horseman will readily admit that in density of texture durability and diversity of utility, the twelve hundred pound trotting bred horses is the equine king of horses of that size—a size that is in great request by European buyers in our markets. But blood alone,even trotting blood, will not insure to the breeder a profitable annuity, and this point is cleverly touched upon by Secretary Wilson when he says: "The Western farmer who has corn does not feed it. The Western farmer who has oats and good hay does not feed it. He treats the young growing stock pretty much as the ranchman is compelled to treat his. He turns them into the stalk field and around the stacks and lets them rustle through the winter while he has plenty of corn but will not feed it. It will do very little good to improve the blood unless we follow improved blood with better feeding. There is no question whatever that the people of the United States can produce a horse cheaper than he can be produced anywhere else—that is a serviceable horse weighing 1,200 pounds and upward. The European armies require a horse weighing about 1,100 or 1,200 pounds. For carriage purposes a horses weighing from 1,200 to 1,400 pounds is required, while draft horses should weigh from 1,600 pounds upward. All these horses can be produced cheaper in the United States than anywhere else because we have cheaper grains, grasses and forage. To illustrate this point we may call attention to the foreign beef market. We are driving the European feeder to the wall because we have cheaper feed here. We can do the same thing with regard to horses. Our beef men have met the requirements of foreign markets by breeding and feeding to a finish; our horsemen must follow their example if we are to create a foreign demand for our horses or supply the demand that now exists."

The Nelson Sale.

It has been a long time since a number of track performers were offered for sale by auction in the vicinity of San Francisco, because the owners thought they would bring higher prices in the east. J. M. Nelson of Alameda, believing that good horses are as much in demand here as anywhere, has been striving for the past four weeks to collect a number of desirable trotters and pacers as well as double teams to make up a speed sale, and how he has succeeded may be learned by reading his advertisement in this issue. The sale is the all absorbing talk among horsemen and we anticipate a large crowd will attend and good prices prevail.

The plan is to have all horses shown to harness, and Mr. Nelson says the sale will take place rain or shine. He has a very fine collection of elegantly matched teams stylish roadsters, besides such well-known horses as Challenger Chief 2:15, one of the best bred and best formed stallions in California; Bessie Rankin 2:16¼, by Altamont, capable of getting a mark of 2:10 next season; Lustre 2:22½, (trial 2:17) the finest trained, most stylish and sweetest gaited 16-hand horse in California; Fallacy 2:17½, another strongly made speedy gelding that never knows what it is to be tired, an ideal gentleman's roadster, and one that can be driven anywhere: Cora S 2:19½, by Richard's Elector, a smooth gaited, typical Electioneer; Orland, a red roan gelding with a record of 2:23¾ pacing, goes without boots and paces as smooth as Joe Wheeler. Then there are two Silver Bows and a Wayland W. colt out of Vision that is the making of a 2:10 performer. Chauncey Kane, who broke him, says: "He's the finest gaited and speediest youngster I ever hitched to a breaking cart." Calaveras, by Eclectic, and at least a score of others equally as good. Only competent men have been engaged to handle the stock and all who go there will see for themselves that this is the place to get the best horses offered for sale in California in 1897. Remember the sale takes place Monday, November 15th, at the Alameda track, Bay street station. Catalogues will be ready next Tuesday.

Coney Island Jockey Club.

During the June meeting of 1898 there will be two stake races decided at the Coney Island Jockey Club's race course, Sheepshead bay, New York, which should be well represented by colts and fillies now in California. The Foam Stakes ($1,500 added) for two-year-old foals of 1896; five furlongs; and the Surf Stakes ($1,500 added) foals of $1896, five and a half furlongs, are the names of these events and a colt or filly to be entered in either of these is enhanced that much more in value. It costs nothing to enter and only $10 to declare out by May 15, 1898. The Tidal Stakes with $1,500 for three-year-olds to be decided in 1897 should also be attended to. Entry blanks may be obtained at our office for these events. Remember they must be filled and forwarded on or before November 15, 1897.

THE Pacific Coast Jockey Club must order the use of a recall flag, if only for the protection of its monetary interests. The public want it, the leading bookmakers say the betting will be decidedly light until it is put in use, and what argument can be brought against its use? If a crooked jockey wanted to get left at the post he couldn't do so if a recall flag were brought into requisition, and it looks as if its use gives the betting public the protection they so much desire. One thing is certain, all the safeguards possible must be thrown around racing, and as it is the public which supports the game, they are the ones whose interests must be looked after. Race-goers remember the day when Moylan and Argentina, two heavily backed horses, were left standiug at the post and the coin wagered on them went into the pockets of the pencilers without any "run for the money." Montgomery was left on the opening day of this meeting and proved his ability by winning the next time out, when he got a fair start. Many cases could be cited where the use of the recall flag would have saved thousands of dollars to bettors and satisfaction would have taken the place of general feeling of disgust. Barney Schreiber would not "cut in" Thursday because the recall flag was not to be used, and lightness of the betting is complained of by the pencilers on all sides. It can be traced to the feeling of uncertainty prevalent among speculators at present.

THE new amphitheatre, box stalls, exercising rings, etc., of the Occidental Horse Exchange, are finished. The painters will put on the finishing touches and the electric lights will be in place by next Saturday. Scores of people have visited the place and all are praising it. Nothing like it has ever been erected in this State before. Wm. Fitch, the auctioneer, arrived Monday, and after testing the building for accoustics, said it was in every way satisfactory. An entrance to Third street is being arranged for and when it is completed there will be three entrances, the other two being on Howard and Tehama streets.

THIS is the last notification our readers will receive that the stakes for the winter and spring meetings of The California Jockey Club will close next Wednesday, November 10th. There are ten stakes in all; the titles, distances and amounts are published in our business columns. None of the stakes offered are for less than $1,200 and they range all the way to $10,000. The distances covered are from seven-eighths of a mile to four miles and every horseman who wishes to make money with his horses should forward entries to Secretary R. B. Milroy, 204 Sutter street, on or before the date of closing.

THERE should be a long list of entries forwarded to the Pacific Coast Jockey Club for the splendid stakes offered by this organization which are to close Monday, November 15th. The advertisement appears in this issue and should be read by every owner and trainer. These races are made to suit all ages and are to be over all distances. Entry blanks may be obtained from Secretary F. H. Green, at the Palace Hotel, at this office, and at the Ingleside track.

The Coming Kerr Sale.

The Kerr catalogues are out, and present a very neat appearance. There are twenty-one yearlings to be sold November 22 at the Occidental Horse Exchange, including three by Nomad, three by Orizaba, and six by the dead Apache. The rest are by Rio Bravo and imp. Calvados. The great mares that have foals in this sale are My Badge (dam of Coupon and sister to Badge), Catherine B., Eileena (dam of Viking), Idaho (sister to Orizaba), Irene (dam of J. O. C.), Lena (dam of Castake), Nadavis (sister to Catalpa, Dungarven and Mabel Glenn), Play Toy (sister to Antrim), Sweet (by Hanover-Matagorda), Virginia Dare (sister to Olive) and Why Not (dam of Misty Morn, Patricia and Investigator III.)

On the same night Mrs. C. A. Posey, of Oakland, will dispose of Carrie M. (a good winner, the dam of a winner, a sister to Censor, winner of forty-eight races, a half-sister to Jennie Harding, winner of twenty-eight races), Haroldine (by Gen. Harding-Doe, therefore a half-sister to Deerslayer and East Love), and the very promising three-year-old colt Posey, by Three Cheers-Haroldine. This youngster has shown quarters in 0:23 and halves in 0:50, and is a magnificent individual.

Catalogues of these sales will be sent upon application to Wm. G. Layng & Co., 313 Bush Street.

THE attention of our readers who are seeking to obtain first-class horses is called to F. W. Loeber's advertisement. Mr. Loeber is known as one of our best judges of what a good horse should be, and he bred his grandly formed mares to the best sires procurable, hence, whoever gets one of these matrons will secure a bargain that will increase in value every year. He has splendid driving horses, double teams, and yearling two-year-olds, three-year-olds, four-year-olds and weanlings that are bred in the purest of trotting strains and are individually as handsome as pictures and as promising as any foaled in California. It will repay stock farm owners who have forethought enought to see that prices for trotting are bound to improve, to write to Mr Loeber at once and make arrangements to purchase all he has.

The Winter's Sale.

If you want to buy an El Rio Rey or a Joe Hooker from a famous producing mare attend the Rancho del Sierras sale on the night of the 29th of November, at the Occideutal Horse Exchange.

In the sale is a sister to the Derby-winner, Scarborough and the grand colt, Padre Jose.

Joe Hooker yearlings from the grand race mare, Miss Courtney, and Ogzilla, dam of Malo Diablo.

A brother to Belle Boyd, winner of sixteen races in two seasons.

El Rio Revs from Nellie Post and Rose Hickman, who are sisters to Don Jose, Ed Corrigan, Pocatello and Question.

Catalogues of the great sale will be issued in about one week.

TOM HURNS, the horse owner, is in a peck of trouble. Some time ago his fast mare, Helen Wren, was seized and spirited away by a constable, the pretext being that Tom had omitted to pay the butcher bill owed by the stable kitchen. This, Hurns claims, was no concern of his, as he was simply paying the parties who ran the kitchen for his own board and that of his employes. Incensed at what he considered an injustice, the horse-owner swore out warrants for the butcher, the constable, and Justice Salisbury of Mandell, who issued the writ, charging them all with horse stealing. In retaliation, they had Hurns arrested for conspiracy, and when he furnished bonds, placed an attachment on his horses. Milwaukee and Helen Wren, for $2,000, the damages they claim to have sustained by being unjustly arrested. Thus the matter rests, and the horses also, for, under the charge of a custodian, they are eating the oats of idleness in the Harlem stables, instead of attempting to earn their winter's keep at Roby.

IN our issue of the 30th ultimo, amongst the "Sulky" notes, the following appeared: "Limerick, by Prodigal, owned by Marcus Daly, is a great two-year-old. He won a heat in 2:20¼, but Weighman, by Wilton, won the race in 2:19½ and 2:21½." This was an error. It was Weighman that won the first heat, Limerick winning the race—the Lexington Stakes.

DR H. CLAY GLOVER, CLAREMONT, N. H.

My Dear Sir—I am pleased to inform you that your Imperial Mange Cure has been of great benefit to me in curing my dogs whenever they have been afflicted with any skin trouble. I always keep it by me. Wishing you the success with it that it deserves, I am very truly, WM. JARVIS.

LINSTOCK, a colt which won at Latonia a few days ago, is perhaps the most closely inbred horse in America. He is by Logic out of Blue Stocking. Logic is out of Badge, she out of Buff and Blue. Blue Stocking is out of Buff and Blue.—Thoroughbred Record.

TOM KILEY'S string of gallopers, including Towanda and Salabar, have arrived. They came out with the Haggin and Mackey horses, which are in charge of Walter B. Jennings.

PALO BLANCO, in the first race, is by the sire of Americus and Lady Bess (Emperor of Norfolk) out of the dam of the Derby-winner (Rey El Santa Anita), Aloha.

Elmendorf Sold.

"J. B. Haggin has purchased the Elmendorf Stud Farm, a property consisting of 544½ acres. All the buildings, which are the best, are included. He secured a bargain at the Easton sale recently, as all he paid was $100 an acre. I understand that Mr. Haggin has come to the conclusion that California is not the best place in the world in which to raise thoroughbreds. Thus, in the near future, we will probably see the entire Rancho del Paso stud transferred to Kentucky."

"Centaur" makes the above statement in the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, but I am strongly inclined to the opinion that his understanding of Mr. Haggin's intentions are anything but correct. As an adjunct to Rancho del Paso, the Kentucky farm will be valuable, though it would require a good many places of that size to accommodate the thoroughbreds on the California rancho. Greatly advantageous, however, as an auxiliary where unsold animals can be kept until the market is favorable. As to the standing of California racehorses, especially in regard to those bred on the American River, it is sufficient to point to the place Sir Modred occupies among the winning sires of the country. First and second more than once and that high position due entirely to horses bred by Mr. Haggin.

Now if it is necessary to recount what California-bred racehorses have done on Eastern racecourses, and all that within a few years, to prove that it is the equal, if not superior, to any other section, much room would be required to record the notable performances.

If any other country, where racehorses are bred, is the equal of California, as to climate and soil, for producing the highest type of horses, some portions of Australasia will be the successful competitor, and great as Kentucky has proved to be in the same field, there are good reasons for the assertion that the natural advantages of California are superior to those of the famous "blue-grass region.

J. CAIRN SIMPSON.

He Knew Them All.

"Never has there been a great rider for the last half a century that I have not known," declared the patron of the turf as he gave his diamond pin a twist to the right and patted his light necktie just to see that the ends were even.

"Have you any personal acquaintance with Centaur?' asked the man with classical features who seemed to be gazing abstractedly out of the window.

"Centaur? Centaur? Knew him like a book. Kansas boy. First mount he ever had was a Hambletonian colt and I owned the colt. He was bred for a trotter, but turned out a runner and little Centaur rode him. That boy would have made one of the best riders that ever straddled a saddle, but he went foolish and joined a circus. Last I heard of him he was turning back somersaults through paper hoops."

"I suppose you knew John Gilpin?"

"Did I know Johnnie Gilpin? Better than he knew himself. Johnnie and I were side partners for four years. Eat at the same table and slept in the same bed. There's a lad that could ride any horse that ever looked through a bridle. and a more graceful rider never brought a candidate down the stretch. Johnnie Gilpin? Well, I should say. Poor Johnnie! One of Corrigan's fillies kicked him in the ear at Lexington."

"Ever happen to run across Paul Revere?"

"Didn't I bring Paul out? Nobody else could ever finish a race as that boy could. I've seen him beaten at the stretch and win by a length. But what's the use of us two talking? I knew 'em all. Can't go amiss on me. You find a jockey that I didn't meet and I'll show you a pumpkin husker trying to ride a horse."—Detroit Free Press.

Spohn's Distemper and Cough Cure, advertised elsewhere in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN by the Spohn Medical Co., Goshen, Indiana, is declared to be an absolute specific for distemper, influenza, pink eye, epizootic and catarrhal fever, or any affection of the throat. Furthermore it will keep sound animals in the same stable with the diseased ones, entirely safe from attack. Not a powder. Easily administered. Absolutely safe at any age or condition. Three to six doses often cure. One dose a preventive. Given universal satisfaction in the best stables in the world. 50c a bottle, $5 a dozen. See ad for names of dealers in California.

WARRENVILLE, Ill.

I find ABSORBINE a first-class remedy for what it is claimed to cure. Yours truly, H. G. SAVAGE.

The Oneonta Stud Farm Yearlings.

There will be twenty of the grandest-looking yearlings anyone ever saw from Oneonta Stud Farm sold by auction December 6th at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

The yearlings are by imp. Duncombe, Tenny, imp. Watercress, imp. Golden Garter, Verano, Nomad and Emperor of Norfolk, from some of the best-bred mares in the United States.

We will shortly print pictures of a number of the youngsters, and our readers will say they never gazed upon such a beautiful collection of baby racers.

VIGILANT, in his comments in the London Sportsman of October 11 on the Duke of York Stakes, writes of Diakka, the winner, as follows: "The carthorse," as some of the ladies in the paddock at Kempton styled Diakka before the race for the Duke of York Stakes, proved himself sadly too good for his more lightly-framed opponents. The following description of Plenipotentiary might well be applied to Diakka: "He was a horse of such ponderous muscle and carried so much flesh that he always looked like a fat bullock when in training. . . . Robinson, whose orders to try and cut down Plenipo (with Glencoe) by the severity of the pace, remarked after the race: 'I came the first half-mile as hard as I could lick; but on looking round I saw the great, fat bullock cantering by my side, Connolly at the same time exclaiming, "I'm here, Master Jemmy; only waiting till I'm wanted." Glencoe, believed till then to be the fastest horse of his day, was beaten four lengths.'" Very similar was the experience of those runners on Saturday who made play to the bend. The "cart horse" was right there when wanted, and never gave his backers a moment's uneasiness. All the same, Diakka, never since I have seen him so little deserved the above title. He was not like the same horse that we saw big as a bull and sweating and lathering in the paddock at Lincoln last spring. He stripped hard and clean; a really fine specimen of the weight, carrying thoroughbred. The immense improvement he has made of late is due to the fact that he has now completely recovered from the splints that at one time troubled him and caused him to quite lose his action. They were punctured with complete success, and now the horse is not afraid to extend himself. His victory points to the value of the Albert Victor line of Orlando. Diakka is a bay colt, 4, by imp. The Sailor Prince (son of Albert Victor and Hermita by Hermit), dam Rizpah, by imp. Mortemer out of Parthenia by Alarm, was bred by Mr. P. Lorillard in the Rancocos Stud, N. J., and is trained by John Huggins, an American trainer. He was not first class in this country, but is holding his own in England.

THE well-known bookmaker, Billy Beverly had the following to say the other day of a number of persons interested in racing: "Riley Grannan, I think, will be here, but he won't come until the Washington meeting is over, and that will not be until after the holidays. I understand Riley made some money this summer. He had a share in a book with Charley Quinn and Henry Harris, and it made $200 000 on the season. I suppose they split it up between them. Harris is going to Europe for the winter. He made a fortune this summer. He was successful in the book and out. I don't believe Grannan won much on the outside. Charley Quinn will be here after the Washington meeting. He lost on the outside, but is ahead on the book. I think Quinn and Grannan will come together. Dave Gideon will bring some horses, and I believe he will ship with Pat Dunne. I don't think McCafferty will come here, though he may. I heard he was going to New Orleans. I know Mike Dwyer is. He has entries in every stake at the New Orleans track. Sam Doggett will be out and spend the winter. Doggett was in bad form this summer, but is liable to get good again, like old Marty Bergen. There was a time when Marty couldn't win on Henry of Navarre, but now he pilots a frequent winner. I don't know of any other jockeys who will be here except Maher."

ETHEL DOWNS, 2:10, daughter of Boodle, 2:12½, proved to be one of the most consistent performers on the California circuit. She started in eleven races and got part of the money every time. She won two races and was four times second to the great Jasper Ayres.

A TROTTING-HORSE meeting is being held at Gilroy today. A full report will appear in our next issue.

QUIEN SABE?

Horses of the Long Ago in California Entered in Races or For Premiums as Thoroughbreds—The Vast Majority Unregistered, Yet Their Descendants Raced Well. Information Is Solicited.

Now that the Jockey Club has made it a rule to register broodmares free and foals for the reasonable sum of $2, hundreds of horses names and pedigrees will doubtless be recorded in the near future. Had the $50 fine been insisted upon by The Jockey Club many a well-bred horse's name would never have appeared upon the pages of the American Stud Book and its pedigree would have remained in the tangled net of neglect and sunk deeper and deeper into the Lake of Mystery. However, with a knowledge of the action taken by the big turf organization of the far East in regard to registration of horses will come a hunt in cobwebbed garrets and old "lumber rooms" for ancient trunks containing documents, yellowed by the flight of time, bearing upon the breeding of some thoroughbred owned perhaps by a grandfather or great uncle in "early days." The document, when found, will go far to show that the animal was "bred in the purple." Its descendants may have gone on winning grand contests of the turf,but the careless owner was unaware of his animal's royal descent, and never took the trouble to look the matter up. With the idea of awakening an interest in breeding race horses that has laid dormant for too many years in California, we print this week a list of horses that neither raced or were exhibited for prizes at fairs in the Golden State, the period covered being from 1859 to 1874. Few of the animals in this list, nearly all entered as thoroughbreds, have been recorded in the American Stud Book, and we print their names and breeding (whenever possible) in the hope that persons owning gallopers tracing to them will take the trouble to register the stock and supply many a missing link in a handsome pedigree chain:

In 1859 Edward St. Louis, of Yolo, entered Tom Duroc as a roadster, and he was "sired by Jerry Duroc, he by Duroc, dam of Trustee stock." He also exhibited Tom Moore, pedigree not given. Tom Duroc sired the third dam of Directum, 2:05¼.

Idaho, b s, by Volsican, dam Endra; exhibited at the State Fair in 1859.

T. C. Barney, of Yola, had at the State Fair of 1889, Fanny Moore,described as a sorrel Californian, sired by Tom Moore, out of Ariel mare. Boneset, by Ned Burns, was also exhibited by John P. Rhoades, of Sacramento.

Bois d'Arc, by Norfolk, dam Liberty, by Rifleman; second dam Glencoe mare, exhibited at State Fair in 1869.

Rose, b m, by Muley (son of Æther and Lady Clifton); exhibited at the State Fair of 1859, by F. Werner of Solano. Muley was a brother to Black Swan, the earliest of our long-distance gallopers.

Susey Moore was exhibited in 1859 by W. Montgomery of Yolo, and described as a sorrel filly, three years old, thoroughbred, by Young Tom Moore, he by Old Tom Moore; he by American Eclipse; dam Anne Harper, by Blocknose, he by Medoc.

E. Roberts, of Yolo, exhibited at the State Fair of 1859 the b s Frank Wallace, by Pilgrim (he by Sawyer's Press; he by Simpson's Ariel, Pilgrim's dam Maid of Oaks), dam Amanda Wallace, pedigree unknown.

Old Ned Murray's pedigree is given: By Winnebago, dam Rosanna.

In 1869 Isola, b m, by Colossus, dam Zador, and Cricket, by Rifleman, dam Fashion, by Belmont, were exhibited at the State Fair. Cricket is the grandam of Little Esperanza and Conde.

Carrie Miller, by Veto, dam Fanny Howard, owned, 1873, by N. W. Randall, Stockton, Cal. This mare won the first heat of a two mile-heat race at Sacramento Sept. 15, 1870, in 3:43 1-5. Black Willow by Monday was one of her foals.

Alice Douglas, by imp. The Lawyer, dam, Fanny Frazer, owned, 1873, by Dr. Carpenter of San Francisco.

Billy, by Norfolk, dam Julia, by imp. Nena Sahib, owned, 1873, by L. M. Darling of San Francisco.

Lady Franklin II., by Woodburn, dam Lady Franklin, by imp. The Lawyer.

Firetail, ch h, by Norfolk, dam Fanny Howard, owned, 1874, by G. H. Buchanan, Stockton.

Compromise, b h, by Langford, dam Fanny Howard.

John Tyree, by Norfolk, dam Fanny Howard.

Gladiator, 2 years old in 1872, by Norfolk, dam Fanny Howard; exhibited by John Tyree, Stockton, 1872.

Susie Shepherd, exhibited as a thoroughbred at Stockton by Charles Blood in 1873.

Dolly Varden, given as by "Woodward" (think it should be Woodburn), dam Minnie Warren, exhibited as a yearling thoroughbred at Stockton in 1872.

Mark Moore, b s, by George Moore, dam Sallie Franklin, exhibited as a two-year-old at Sacramento in 1870 by A. Musick of Sacramento.

Jennett, b f, by Woodburn, dam Esperanza, by Ringgold, exhibited at State Fair in 1870 as a two-year-old by John Hall of Alameda County.

Lady Norfolk, b m, two years old in 1870, by Norfolk, dam by Billy Cheatham.

Jerry Sparkle, by Bleakwind, dam by Ambassador, owned in 1874 by S. C. McCullough.

Scamperdown, by Norfolk, dam Nettie W., by Belmont; exhibited State Fair, 1874

Minnie Ball, by Norfolk, dam Brooklyn Maid, by Old Fellow, grandam Lola Montez; exhibited State Fair, 1874, by D. P. Diggs of Yolo.

Snip, a mare by Didapper (he by Bulwer), dam a Whip mare; owned, 1874, by Samuel Barnes, Cache Creek.

Marshal McMahon, ch h, by Norfolk, dam Mary Britton (was it Fanny Britton?), by Jim Brown; owned, 1874, by T. Atchison of Sacramento.

Alpha, by imp. Hercules, dam Waxy (grandam of Gunol), by Lexington; owned, 1874, by R. T. O'Hanlon, San Jose. Alpha was a grand race mare.

Carrie Simons, b m, by Norfolk, dam Santa Clara, by Owen Dale; owned, 1874, by R. T. O'Hanlon, San Jose.

Osceola. b h, by Norfolk, dam Black Maria, by Belmont; owned, 1874, by Taylor & Buckley.

Kirby Smith, by Gladiator; Kate Kirby and Fanny Meuse, owned, 1874, by J. P. Woods, and exhibited by him at a Northern California fair. Kirby Smith sired the frequent winner, Stoneman.

Sappho, by Shiloh, dam by Owen Dale; owned, 1874, by George Treat of San Francisco.

Kitty, by Owen Dale (grandam of Top Gallant and Rosedale). This mare's extended pedigree is said to be in the possession of persons in Santa Clara County, and she is believed to have been strictly thoroughbred. The running of her descendants would go to prove that.

The Matthew Borland mare (said to be by imp. Glencoe), dam of the celebrities, Maids of the Oaks and Lady Hawkins, by Jack Hawkins. Revolver, Mt. Air, Bryant W., Belle Mahone, Blue Bonnet, Ricardo and many other well-known performers trace to this mare, who was brought across the plains to California in 1854, when she was a two-year old.

Modesto, by Veto (Tyree's); owned, 1874, by John Tyree of Stockton.

Veto, (Tyree's), foaled in the early '60's, and by Williamson's Belmont. The breeding of his dam, as given to us, varies so that we are at sea in the matter. One person tells us his dam was Fanny Howard, by Illinois Medoc, another says it was a mare brought across the plains and presented to Gen. Miller, and said to be by a son of Boston.

Budd Doble (won a mile race in 1:34 at Sacramento); owned then by Theodore Winters, of Davisville, Cal.

Pastors; owned by Joseph Gluckauf of Butte County.

Lady Vale, seven years old in 1872, by Owen Dale, dam Mary Blain; exhibited, 1872, at Stockton, by Andrew Wolf of San Joaquin County.

Sally Thurston, 2 years old in 1872, by Norfolk, dam Quien Sabe; exhibited at Stockton, 1872, by John Tyree of Stockton.

The Brookdale and Other Sales.

The broodmares at the Brookdale Stud sold at Morris Park track, October 21st and, did not sell very well, $550 being the top price that being for Castalia, by imp. Mortemer—Castagnette.

A large crowd was in the paddock at Morris Park October 23d, to see the horses of L. S. & W. P. Thompson, from the famous Brookdale Stud, as well as several other good horses, owned by Turney Brothers and J. J. McCafferty, sold at auction.

As Requital, the winner of the Futurity of 1895 and the Realization of 1896, was among the lot offered, there were more spectators than intending purchasers in the crowd Requital was bought by John McCafferty for $8,600, which is a trifle less than 10 per cent. of the amount the horse has won in stakes and purses during the past three seasons. Requital is a remarkable horse, and but for the fact that he became ill at Morris Park last spring he would have been heard of more frequently in the big stake events. As a two-year-old, Requital, in the Flatbush Stakes, made the best performance ever recorded for a horse of his age at a mile. He ran seven furlongs in 1:26, and finished out the mile in 1:40 4 5

L'Aloulette, the Futurity winner, was bought by T. J. Healey for $3 300. Dr. Catlett and Tillo, two high-class three-year-olds owned by the Turney Brothers, brought $14,000, the former going to Charles Hughes and the latter to J. W. Rogers.

OCTOBER 25TH.

Clifford, one of the most brilliant performers the American turf has ever known, was the star of the sale of thoroughbreds at Morris Park October 25th. He was purchased by John Sanford, the Master of the famous Hurricana Stud, for $7,000, and, although he is only seven years old, and apparently in condition for another year of campaigning, he will be retired to stud service.

Clifford's crreer has been an eventful one during the five years he has been on the turf. As a yearling he was one of the poorest-looking animals of the lot in which he was offered for sale, and nothing great was expected of him. Yet, during his five years of active work, in which he took part in sixty-two races, he was unplaced only twice, and on each of these occasions he was left at the post. He won forty-two races and $65,730 in all.

The fact that the rain made traveling a disagreeable task did not prevent the attendance at Morris Park yesterday from being large, for, besides Clifford, there were upward of 100 brood mares and stallions to be disposed of. The balance of the lot from the Brookdale Stud, together with a large consignment, the property of R. L. Rose, W. H. Forbes, W. B. Jennings, W. A. Engeman, and O. H. P. Belmont, were catalogued, and throughout the sale the bidding was spirited.

Always Used With Success.

Altoona Ia., Dec. 5, 1894.

The Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, O.

We have used Gombault's Caustic Balsam for years and in all cases where a severe blister was necessary, with success. We have removed curbs, bunches caused by kicks, and strained tendons by repeated applications of your remedy and have never had a failure, when used according to directions. Combs & Crawford.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba

The changes are as follows:

The Rifle in Alaska.

We take the following interesting account of some big game shooting from the Sitka Alaskan, of October 16 h:

Among the passengers who came down on the "Dora" was Mr. Dall Deweese, a prominent real estate man of Canyon City, Colorado.

Mr. Deweese is a thorough sportsman and has estabiished a reputation among his associates in Colorado, of which any sportsman might be proud. He left his home in the Rockies about four months ago. On reaching Sitka he took passage on the "Dora" for Cook's Inlet, where he engaged a canoe and Indians to help pack the provisions and guns to Kusiloff River. Arriving there he sent the Indians back, merely retaining one white man, to assist in getting the specimens down the river.

Among the rocks and glaciers he succeeded in killing eight white mountain sheep Encouraged by this he proceeded to Kusiloff Lake, a long, hard trip, but he was well rewarded for his trouble, for in the spruce and birchwood he espied three splendid moose, and with a few well directed shots soon brought them down. Two of them are the largest ever killed in this country. Magnificent heads, large and massive, each set of antlers having thirty-two points, one having a spread of sixty-five inches and the other sixty-nine.

After such hard work, climbing over rocks and glaciers, crawling through dense underbrush, one would have thought the game secured would have satisfied the most enthusiastic hunter, but not so with our friend Dall; he had seen the tracks of a bear and he must follow the trail, securing two large bears and one Alaskan brown bear, measuring ten feet seven inches

Even the Alaskans who are used to big game, expressed great surprise on seeing the fine specimens brought down by Mr. Deweese. He is thoroughly satisfied that Alaska is the happy "hunting ground" for the sportsman who is not afraid of hard work, and we will be pleased to welcome him back to the far northwest at some future time.

Buffaloes Shipped East.

A curious shipment passed through Missoula lately on a special freight consigned to Austin Corbin's great game preserve in New Hampshire, says the Missouri Democrat. The invoice consisted of three full-bred buffalo calves taken from Charles Allard's famous herd on the Flathead reservation and estimated to be worth $1,000 each as they stand in the car. They were driven on hoof in company with a band of 15 more from Allard's ranch to the railroad station at Ravilla, a distance of about 20 miles, it being necessary to herd that number in order that the few desired would be prevented from breaking away. Some half dozen herders were engaged in the task, but notwithstanding the precaution taken, two of the valuable animals killed themselves while en route to the station. It is almost impossible to drive the pesky creatures, as the following will show:

The band had traveled peaceable to within a few miles of Ravilla, when one of the calves sought an encounter with a massive fence post, leaving the aforesaid fence post hors de combat. Another foolish bull caromed against a telegraph pole with the result that there was another good buffalo gone. When the consignment reached Ravilla it was two buffalo short and it was with difficulty that three were landed on the cars safely, though not the desired three, as two of the elected ones had already gone to buffalo heaven in the manner stated. The shipment made, the remaining animals were returned to their range, to which they scampered faster than the herders could follow them. The dead calves were relieved of the hide and skull and forwarded to taxidermist Tracy of this city for preservation, and which, when mounted, will be worth almost as much as were the animals alive. The meat was also secured and will sell readily at 30 cents a pound.

Rio Vista Notes.

We are in receipt of the following communication descriptive of the doings of the Antioch Gun Club at the bluerock tournament at Rio Vista, Oct. 22d:

"Eight members of the Club went over in the steam launch Stella, Capt. Christianson in charge; Joe Taylor, Sr., Dr. George, L. Hartley, Lee Durham, Joe Roes, Wm. Remfree, Sr. and Wm, Remfree, Jr. In the ten bird warm up, Ross and the two Remfrees made nine birds each; George, Hartley Durham and Taylor eight birds. In the merchandise twenty bird race, the score stood Remfree Jr., eighteen; Remfree, Sr. and Durham, seventeen each; Ross, sixteen; George and Hartley, fifteen each; Taylor, fourteen. Just at this time when matters were going along smoothly and Antioch was holding its own, an evil-minded bull made his appearance on the scene. Wm. Remfree Jr., better known as "Windy Billy" was at the trap with a credit of five straights. The word "pull" and the bellow of the charging bull were heard simultaneously. Windy Bill missed his bird by ten yards, dropped his gun and shouted, "run boys, run!" The Antioch team broke for cover in a body. Dr. George and Lawyer Hartley being slow of foot and ponderous in body were nearly left at the post, but managdd to make a home stretch spurt for the nearest hog-wallow, in which they made futile efforts at concealment. "Windy" lit across the field, "hbent for election." The others made a flying leap for shelter on the weather side of the levee. At this juncture a small boy came to the rescue and drove the bull away by pelting him with clods.

However the damage had been done, and in the subsequent shooting, the Antioch's guide and crack shot couldn't hit a balloon. Remfree Sr. was unnerved and broken up, some say by the bull, others insinuate it was beer, the rest of the team followed in equal hard luck and curses both loud and deep were heaped on the horns of the invading bovine; notwithstanding the team managed to make a score of seventy-six birds. They attribute thei rdefeat, of course, to the bull. Remfree Jr. got second prize, a gun case in the twenty-bird event. Remfrees Sr. and Jr. and Ross divided second in the ten-bird event. "VERITAS."

Eastern Dianas.

Among its notes of the many and varied attractions in the Maine woods this autumn, the Field, Forest and Shore, has this to say of the fair sportswomen of the East: An interesting feature of the Moosehead landscape this season will be one hunting party, composed exclusively of women. All of them have been in the woods before and are accustomed to roughing it. But heretofore they have been under masculine escort. They want to show their husbands that women can go about in the Main woods with entire safety, and have a far better time in a party by themselves than in company with the men. Under the new guide law it is easy to secure responsible men to conduct parties of this nature, and it is likely that there will be other strictly feminine excursionists into the deep woods. No danger of their shooting men for deer is apprehended.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Duck are in Tamales bay in large numbers.

Load "E. C." just as you would black powder.

The Black Jacks will be out in force to-morrow.

Duck are reported to be quite plentiful in Salmon Creek.

The shooting was indifferent near Alvarado on Sunday last.

Duck are reported to be plentiful in Sherman Island district.

Duck shooting on the Suisun marshes and up the river is improving.

Duck shooting is reported to be choice in the vicinity of Moss Landing.

Harry Golcher made a fair bag of quail at Point Reyes on Wednesday last.

Duck shooting along the river in the vicinity of Ventura is reported to be good.

John Orr returned from Point Reyes last Sunday evening with a good bag of quail.

J. and M. McDonald bagged six teal and seventeen rail at San Bruno on Sunday.

Dr. E. N. Ayers and J. Maynard bagged fifty quail at Brannan Island last Sunday.

Some good quail shooting and also fair duck hunting can be had in the flats near the mouth of Russian River.

Good bags of duck were made last week in the vicinity of Black Point district and up on the Petaluma marsh.

G. Hough made a bag of sixty-four "cans" on Sunday last near the drawbridge between McGill's and Shellville.

C. J. Pease and R. S. Mason were at the Bridges on Sunday last. Ducks were scarce, they made a good rail bag.

S. Sharp and two friends bagged sixty rail at Laurel Creek (between Belmont and San Mateo) on last Sunday.

W. Hynes and two friends made a bag of one hundred and thirty quail whilst shooting near Nicassio on Sunday last.

Fred Gilbert used the Du Pont Smokeless (3¼ drams) in the recent matches he won shooting against J. A. R. Elliott.

The lagoons in the vicinity of Santa Cruz afford good duck shooting at present. Teal are plentiful and in good condition.

Frank Vernon at Point Reyes made a bag of twenty quail on Saturday last and on Sunday brought down twenty-six ducks.

Frank Dolliver and Charles Precht on Saturday and Sunday last made a combined bag of sixty-four quail near Point Reyes.

Harry Miller and John Miles were at the Spoony Club grounds on Sunday. The bag was small. Duck were scarce.

The Remfrees, Sr. and Jr., had thirty-seven cans on their straps as the result of a hunt over Sherman Island on last Monday.

Frank Hofleng had a fine string of quail Friday last week when he came over from San Leandro. Quail shooting is good near there.

C. L. Dietz and Frank Hofleng were out on the hills near Haywards on Sunday, forty quail was the bag. Dietz also gathered in a coyote.

Charles Grant, M. C. Allen and others were on the Olmypic grounds last Sunday but birds were scarce and comparatively small bags were the results.

P. McCrea, A. Priest and J. Price hunted near Mt. Eden on Sunday last. Six ducks was the result. Few birds were about the shooting grounds.

We are pleased to note that Arthur Rochfort, of the Point Reyes Hotel, is getting along nicely; he will be out in a few days with the aid of crutches.

George Walker, H. Friedlander, Dr. Cornwall and E. Newton were at the Empire grounds on Sunday. The average was about six ducks apiece.

The outlook is promising for good shooting near Antioch this season. Carp are becoming scarce and the feeding grounds are in fine condition for ducks.

The rail placers in the Belmont district are still producing large weekly dividends. Portable chilled lead amalgamators give the best results in the output.

"Cans" are commencing to be in evidence around Antioch. A brace of fine birds sent to Jack Lemmer by Bill Remfree was shown at John Butler's on Wednesday.

It is reported a market hunter got eighty-four "cans" on the edge of the Tubbs' Island preserve last Saturday and Sunday. They were shipped to market in this city last Monday.

H. and L. Doulton, of Santa Barbara, spent a week recently at Lake Guadaloupe on the preserve of the Santa Barbara Gun Club. The sport was first class and ducks were plentiful.

D. Ostrander, A. Wilson, E. Kleversahl and C. Shaw had their initial shoot over the new Lincoln Club grounds near Alvarado last Sunday and made a combined bag of of forty duck, principally sprig.

The E. T. Allen Co. have recently secured the agency for the famous Kenwood sleeping bag. These bags are just the thing for protection in cold or wet weather. Large sales are anticipated for the Alaska trade.

The Black Jacks were strictly in it on Sunday last. Fred Johnson and a friend pre-empted a bag last Sunday composed of twenty-five black jacks, eight cans and thirty-one other birds, sprig, teal and widgeon.

The Indian Gun Club has been organized at Haywards. The members are G. S. Langan, Frank Hofleng, Dr. B. F. Simmons, Geo. Smalley and Sam Simons. They have secured shooting ground near Mt. Eden.

Geese are coming in fast and thick in the vicinity of Willows. Duck are plentiful and plover fairly numerous. Local hunters had good shooting last week, one party bagging seventy-five geese in a morning's shoot.

On the Belmont marshes last Sunday some of the rail bags made were: F. Walperts and P. Bilton, thirty; Ed. and Max Berges, twenty; J. Shackleton and E. Forster, forty-four; P. Sweeney and F. Jones, twenty-five.

A DISPATCH from Ashland, Wis., says that a lady passing under the nom de fusil of "A Suitor," has taken out a license to hunt deer in that State. She is reported to be fifty-five years old and is the first woman in that State to take out a deer-hunting license.—Am. Field.

A test case will probably be made in San Jose of the county ordinance forbidding the buying and selling of quail at any season of the year. The Sportsmen's Protective Association have commenced proceedings against John Maloney, a prominent game dealer, charging him with selling six quail.

Geese are plentiful in the tules near Stockton. The following bags were made last Sunday: Geo. Ellis and brother, sixty-three; Will Ditz, Geo. Bromfield and T. J. Woods are reported to have shot nine apiece; Nels Brown and Wm. Sessen found forty-two and F. Jackson and W. Bates got twenty-one. The wind and the day were both perfect for hunting. Ducks were not plentiful.

Two dozen wild turkeys from Missouri were recently turned out at a point in Douglas county, Oregon, where they will have good shelter in winter and where berries and other feed is plentiful. It is thought they will pass through the winter in good shape and be ready for breeding in the spring. Proper notices have been conspicuously posted asking hunters to refrain from shooting or molesting them and the promoters of the enterprise are sanguine that the birds will increase.

The ingenuity of the sportsman is, perhaps, no better illustrated than by the use he puts the English language to in designating particular groups of animals, says the New York Herald. The following is a list of the terms which have been applied to the various classes: A covey of partridges, a nide of pheasants, a wisp of snipe, a flight of doves or swallows, a muster of peacocks, a siege of heron, a building of rooks, a brood of grouse, a plump of wild fowl, a stand of plovers, a watch of nightingales, a clattering of choughs, a flock of geese, a bevy of quail, a cast of hawks, a trip of dotterell, a school of herring, a skulk of foxes, a pack of wolves, a troop of monkeys, a pride of lions, a sleuth of bears, a gang of elk.

A number of graphic pictures were taken recently by an amateur photographer who goes out with the Black Jacks, one of the series entitled the "Cheese Quartette," is an apt illustration of certain fundamental principles necessary to make early morning shooting pleasant and easy.

The blue-rock tournament at Rio Vista was well attended by shooters from Dixon, Vacaville, Davisville, Winters, Antioch and Rio Vista. The River News gold medal was won by Jno. Feudner, he having made the best individual score, nineteen out of twenty birds, In the merchandise shoot at twenty birds he made a clean score and won first prize. He also made eighteen out of twenty in another event.

The Greenwing Gun Club was organized on Tuesday evening, Nov. 2d, with the names of thirty-five charter members on the list. The officers are: President, A. M. Shields; Vice-president, J. Peltier; Secretary, M. O. Feudner; Treasurer, E. Cramer; Directors, C. A. Haight, Dr. E. N. Ayers, C. F. Sinkwitz, Wm. Pickett and H. E. Carter. It is proposed to procure shooting grounds on the Miller and Lux tract which will give the club members hunting on the best portions of the Los Banos marsh. A special meeting of the club will be held Wednesday evening, Nov. 17th.

Jack Fanning says he has a hoodoo in two-bird races just now. At Clifton, N. J., he ran twenty-four out of twenty-five in the Jersey Handicap, and didn't get a cent back out of his entrance money. At Baltimore he scored another twenty-four, but got back $12 50 for his total. In both of the of the above cases he killed every bird, but lost one each time dead out of bounds. Jack has made many friends in the East. He proposes to do plenty of live bird shooting this winter, principally at Ellwood Park, New York, where he no doubt will give a good account of himself.

The Portland Oregonian has the following to say regarding shooting in the vicinity of that city. Sportsmen who went down the river on Sunday, Oct. 25th, hunting ducks, enjoyed the best day's sport known in this section for five years. A party of seven, consisting of Watt Monteith, F. Hart, F. Swift, E. Thorne and others, shot 320 ducks, and some 50 geese, among them a number of "summer" geese, nearly pure white. At Jewett's lake a party of six bagged 440 ducks. City Surveyor Gilham and six others bagged 418 ducks at Force's place, on Columbia slough. These are the only parties of hunters heard from, and they are much elated at their success, and look forward to more good shooting this winter. This somewhat disproves the recent report that the carp had almost destroyed the feeding grounds.

The company was hot. Forest and Stream in commenting on the Baltimore Tournament mentions the following noted trap-shooters present: Rolla O. Heikes, of Dayton, O., and Fred Van Dyke, of Dayton, N. J , the representatives of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company of New Haven, Conn; John J. Hallowell, now known among the boys as U. M. C. Jr., representing the U. M. C. Co., of Bridgeport, Conn.; W. F. Parker, a member of the firm of Parker Bros., Meriden, Conn., and O R. Dickey, a representative of that firm; E. D. Fulford and B. Leroy Woodword, the latter from Campello, Mass., both of them shooting Remington guns; Capt. A. W. Money, of the American E. C. & Schultze Powder Company, Limited; H. P. Collins, the Baltimore and Southern States representative of the Du Pont and Hazard Powder Companies; T. H. Heller, representing the King Powder Company and the Peters Cartridge Company; Harvey McMurchy, of the L. C. Smith gun; Jack Fanning, the representative of the U S Smokeless (Gold Dust) Powder Co.; Sim Glover, shooting a Parker gun and Schultze powder; J. L. Brewer, shooting a Francotte and Schultze well to the front on the first day at targets, and on the last day at live birds, etc.

Nov. 9—Regular semi-monthly meeting of the San Francisco Fly Casting Club. Office of State Fish Commission, Flood Building, San Francisco.

NOTICE TO ANGLERS.

Every angler is invited to drop us a line occasionally, telling us of the condition of the streams they have visited and the killing lure of the number and size of the fish caught, or any other item of interest to anglers.

Deep Sea Fishing.

The final trip of the season to the Cordell Banks, was made by the tug Fearless on Sunday last. There was on board about seventy-five excursionists who had availed themselves of this opportunity. The day was a perfect one and the catch of deep sea fish was very good, nearly two tons of fish being caught, consisting of red and blue rock fish of from four to thirty pounds each. One of the fishermen, by way of variety, caught a fine yellow-tail weighing fifteen pounds. Some twenty miles off Point Arena a large school of whales was encountered, the evolutions of these finny monsters were interesting in the extreme. At one spot the sharks were so numerous that the tug had to shift to other fishing ground. Some of the sharks caught tipped the scales at one hundred pounds, affording a great deal of exciting sport and plenty of hard work bringing them to the surface and on board.

Channel Fishing.

The best fishing in Southern California can be had near Santa Barbara, and the water is so smooth that it affords the finest kind of boating. Almost any day a small crowd of anglers can be found on the wharf with rod and reel, and as the mackerel and smelt are running now, they have rare sport, and some of the lucky ones often catch one hundred or more in a short time. By taking a boat and going out beyond the kelp, sea bass and many other large fish can be taken. Yellow tail, barracuda and Spanish mackerel afford fine trolling, while ground fishing is nearly always good. The shell fish found along the shore are also fine; sea clams, soft shell and razor clams are abundant; crawfish and crabs are taken in large numbers.

An enormous sea perch was recently caught off Aden by some men of the "Carthage." The bait used was the head of a shark weighing seven pounds, and when this was bolted there was not much difficulty in getting him on board, with the help of a running bowline. His length was seven feet, his girth five feet one half inch, and his weight, four hundred and twenty-four pounds.

Five Chinamen arrested about two weeks ago at Point San Pedro for taking small fish in shrimp nets were tried at San Rafael on November 3, before Justice Rodden, the jury after deliberating thirty minutes, brought in a verdict of acquittal. The mongolians seem to be getting the best of it lately.

The case against two Chinamen who were recently arrested for illegal fishing in the San Joaquin river has been dismissed. The defense claimed that they were fishing in navigable waters and that the Fresno County ordinance against fishing with a seine could not apply.

W. A. Cooper went up to Paper Mill Creek on Sunday morning last and whipped the stream. The result was that thirteen fine trout reposed in his creel when he returned to town, one of them weighing two and one half pounds.

Striped bass can be had in the city restaurants at the call and pleasure of customers. The only objectionable feature about this fact is, that fish under weight and illegally taken seem to be the favorite dish.

Ellis Robinson has been the recipient lately of some fine fishing goods forwarded by Jno. Gallagher, Jno Butler, etc in recognition of his efforts as host and guide in their late trip to Eel river.

G. N. Morgan, mine host of Duncan's Mills, says the black bass fishing in Eel river has been excellent lately. Steelhead fishing will be considerably better after a heavy rain.

G. Waldemeyer Jr. was out on the bay, off Belmont, last week and caught with a rod two fine striped bass weighing respectively eight and ten pounds.

It is reported that several shad have been caught with a hook and line recently from the narrow-guage pier. The bait used was spile worms.

C. Guscette, Ed. Daiss and I. Phillipson made a fine catch of rock-fish and blue-cod off California City last Sunday.

After the next rain good sport is anticipated on the Big Sulphur in the northern part of Sonoma county.

Steelhead have commenced to run at Point Reyes, but not in great numbers.

But few grilse were caught from Alameda mole during the past week.

Smelt fishing has been good in the Alameda estuary during the week.

Coursing.

The patrons of coursing and all lovers of clean sport have been enjoying recently, and more particularly on Sunday last, some very fine and interesting meetings at the Ingleside Coursing Park. The attendance has been large and an indication of appreciation on the part of the followers of the sport is shown by the increasing patronage. The programmes have been excellently arranged and the field work, especially that of the veteran Judge of the course, John Grace, has been all that could be desired. Recent improvements and renovations have been made in the grand stand, the platforms on the ground floor being now so arranged that they slope up from the fence, giving spectators a clear view of every turn from start to finish, even though one should be taking a nip at the bar or putting in a bet at one of the pool-boxes. A part of the grounds on the southwest side, between the kennels and stand will probably be arranged for the convenience of sportsmen who drive out from town and desire to view the races whilst seated in their vehicles. The stake today and tomorrow will be limited to dogs that have not won third or better this year. The entry will probably reach sixty performers and will create some little interest as these two days will afford the last opportunities for Merced candidates to be tried out. The management announce that for the future, dogs winning equal to third prize in any stake will be allowed to run with non-prize winners after six months; provided they have during these six months run in open stakes and been defeated. Heretofore such dogs were barred for twelve months.

The popularity of coursing is signally evidenced by the great interest taken in the meeting of the Interstate Coursing Club at Merced next week, when probably the greatest coursing match ever held in this State will be run.

For several years past it has been the custom to hold an international coursing match on the plains near Merced each year in October or November, and each succeeding year the attendance is larger. This year an extra effort has been made to raise good purses, with the result that the races now promise to be the greatest ever held in the United States. The entries to date promise to show the largest number ever entered in a coursing match in this country.

Dogs have been entered from all parts of the State and from the East. The colonies will be represented by one from New Zealand and one from Australia. Some dogs that were recently the pride of English kennels, will have a chance to show their mettle, taking them all in all the standard of the dogs entered is of the highest quality.

The first prize will be $1000, second prize $500, third and fourth prize $200 each, and a number of smaller prizes. John Grace of San Francisco will act as judge, and James Grace, his son, will be slipper The coursing will commence on Tuesday morning, November 9th, and will continue four days. The dog owners and the spectators will leave Merced at 7 o'clock every morning for the coursing grounds, a few miles in the country.

The San Francisco delegation will be looked after by that genial sportsman Dominick Shannon and Secretary I. F. Halton, the train will leave from the foot of Market street at 9 o'clock a. m. nex Monday morning.

Crystal Palace Bench Show.

The event of the year, in the eyes of English fanciers has passed, particulars of the Crystal Palace Bench Show held by the English Kennel Club have not yet been received. The entries reached the enormous figure of 2,432. A summarized list shows: 188 in collies, 221 in fox terriers, 121 in bulldogs, 116 in setters, 100 in spaniels, 130 in dachshunds, St. Bernards muster 92 retrievers 92, Newfoundlands 70, beagles 54, Bassethounds 74, bloodhounds 48, mastiffs 21, Great Danes 46, Irish wolfhounds 18, deerhounds 42, Borzois 45, chow chows 42, Foreign dogs 24, greyhounds 18, pointers 39, old English sheepdogs 44, Dalmatians 8, poodles 33, bull terriers 46, whippets 11, Airedale terriers 25. Welsh terriers 37, Bedlington terriers 15, Irish terriers 47, black and tan terriers 12, white English terriers 17, Skye terriers 42, Scottish terriers 61, Dandie Dinmont terriers 61, Schipperkes 42, Pomeranians 84, pugs 50, toy terriers (smooth) 27 (rough) 23, Maltese terriers 3, toy spaniels 95, Italian greyhounds 5, toy spaniels Griffon Bruxallois 36.

An Intelligent Poodle.

The responsibility for the following unique knockout of the lone and truthful fisherman rests with the Omaha Herald:

"As a Wabash train was approaching Talmage the other day a lady with a poodle dog came into the smoker. A traveling man called her attention to the character of the car and told her she had better go into one of the others. She declared that she was going to remain right there, and she told him he must not light and smoke the pipe he was filling with tobacco. He opened the window and calmly lit his pipe, and was puffing away when she again demanded that he desist. He again told her that she could go into one of the rear cars. It went on for a few minutes, when she leaned over and snatched the pipe from his mouth and threw it out of the window. The traveling man was at a white heat with rage, and, turning around, grabbed the poodle and chucked it out of the window. Then she went on the warpath. She declared that she would have him arrested at Talmage, where, she said, she knew everybody, and he said if she did he would have her arrested for stealing his pipe. The argument was hot and heavy, and when they got off the train, they rustled around for the town marshal and finally found him, and were telling their troubles when the poodle came running up the track with the pipe in its mouth."

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Coursing will be inaugurated at Agricultural Park, Los Angeles, in the near future.

R. S. Wadsworth sold recently to Mrs. A. W. Lee, Alta Kennels, Toledo, Ohio, the prize-winner Melro-Sylvia.

Some fine Llewellyn puppies are for sale. Attention is directed to the announcement in our advertising columns.

The regular meeting of the St. Bernard Club will be held on Monday evening, Nov. 8th at the office of Dr. Cluness, 406 Post street.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Advisory Board was not held on Wednesday; enough members present to constitute a quorum were lacking.

Sally Brass, the well-known pointer bitch, has been placed in charge of Arthur Rochfort, of the Point Reyes Hotel, by her owner, Howard Vernon.

Echo Cocker Kennels, (Stockton) cocker spaniel bitch Black Duchess, 2,775 C. K. C, Oct. 4th, whelped 6—3 dogs to same owner's Ch. Bronta, 17,064.

C. R. Roggens of San Leandro has sold the R. C. St. Bernard bitch Beauty (McIver's imp. Jumbo-Capt. Poole's Victoria) to a party who will take her to the Klondyke.

Two Great Dane pups owned by Oscar Gordon, night clerk of the El Capitan Hotel, Merced, have captured the fanciers of that town, they are said to be two very fine and promising pups.

Warren Lewis, Ypsilanti, Mich., has bred recently his famous cocker bitch, Lewis Jappo, 45,348, by the great Grey Silk, to Ch. Pickpania. Puppies are already spoken for at $50 apiece.

Spratt's Patent are shipping large quantities of their dog cakes to the various points of departure on the coast for the supply of parties taking dogs to the Klondyke. These biscuit have proven to be very satisfactory in recent polar expeditions.

Between Third and Fourth Sts., ENTRANCE "TATTERSALLS." SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Great November, December and January Sales of

THOROUGHBREDS

YEARLINGS, TWO-YEAR-OLDS AND HORSES IN TRAINING.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Having engaged in the business of selling live stock, horses and cattle in this city, we deem it necessary to call your attention to a few facts which may be of interest:

FIRST.—We will have erected a large building at the above place, which is about three blocks from the Palace Hotel, Call, Chronicle and Examiner Buildings, and will fit it exclusively for the holding of auction sales. The seating capacity of this amphitheater is to be 1,200, so that all who attend may be seated and have an excellent view of each animal offered. The sales ring will be 35 feet in diameter, and elevated so that the view will be unobstructed. The building will be lighted by electricity, and well ventilated.

SECOND.—Ample box stalls will be provided for the horses in adjoining buildings, and the passage way from these to the sales building will be covered and lighted, so there will be no danger of the stock catching cold or injuring themselves.

THIRD.—These sales will be advertised at once, so that not only our local buyers but any who are in Japan, Honolulu, British Columbia as well as the Pacific Coast States and Territories will be informed of the date of the sales, the class of horses, their pedigrees, performances (if they have any) and detailed descriptions of each and every one will be plainly given.

FOURTH.—We have all the facilities for tabulating pedigrees, as our turf library is considered the most complete in California. On its shelves may be found all the English, Australian and American Stud Books and Guides, and our collection of sale catalogues, covering a period of twenty years in California, is unsurpassed.

We believe in advertising where it will do the most good, and besides the large subscription list of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, we have lists of all the leading horsemen in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Hawaiian Islands, Australia and New Zealand, to whom we shall send catalogues, which, for completeness and authenticity, have never been equaled on this Coast.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be made an auxiliary advertising medium, through which we shall show the advantages of attending these sales and purchasing horses.

We shall take the very best care of horses sent; see that they are led by competent men to our stables from trains or boats, and after they get there, will have personal supervision of their feeding, watering, bedding and care. The well-known horseman, A. F. BOOKER, will attend to this department.

For further particulars, address,

OCCIDENTAL HORSE EXCHANGE,

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Office, 313 Bush Street, San Francisco, Cal.

WM. FITCH, the auctioneer engaged for these sales, has a national reputation. He sold this season over $1,000,000 worth of auction pools in Montana, and disposed of Marcus Daly's thoroughbreds at auction, to the great satisfaction of the multi-millionaire. Competent judges declare him to have no peer as a salesman and his work is spoken of as thorough in every way. He is a horseman of ability, and thoroughly conversant with the points and pedigrees of our thoroughbreds.

The demand for first-class thoroughbreds will never be supplied, but we believe that at our sales we shall be able to show as fine a lot as ever were offered, and with the addition in our midst of the most prominent horsemen of the far East and Middle West, we have no hesitancy in assuring owners that the prices they will receive (if the stock is in fine condition) will be much higher than those heretofore obtained for similarly bred ones.

The interest in thoroughbreds and racing is increasing throughout the world, and especially in California, where so many opportunities are now offered owners to make money with their horses.

The following have already agreed to consign their horses to these great sales;

A. B. SPRECKELS,	WM. & CHAS. BOOTS,
CHAS. KERR,	GASTON M. ASHE,
W. S. HOBART,	J. B. CHASE,

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

THE MELBOURNE CUP.

The First Son of a Musket Mare to Win Any Important Event is Gaulus, by Gozo.

There are Melbourne Cups and Melbourne Cups, from the magnificent record-breaking performance of the great Carbine, when he not only won it with the greatest weight on record, but also in the fastest time, down to the insignificant victory of the little black gelding Zulu, who, with the "straw bat" of eighty pounds on him, galloped in ahead of The Czar and Tom Ivvey's old Sweetmeat, with honest Darebin in fourth place with 118 pounds up at three years old. The next year's race was but a trifle better, for Darebin was out of place with 129, while Assyrian, five years, 111 pounds, was first with Stockwell (brother to Malua, who won it with 135 pounds up in 1884) and game little Gudarz behind him.

But the Cup is a great race, all the same. To my notion Carbine's cup is the best race, Malua's next, and then Patron's victory in 1894. He was four years old and had 129 pounds up; and as no four-year-old had ever won the Cup with that weight, the books peppered him hard. In that race was his full brother, Ruenalf (Flaneur spelt backwards), and as he had beaten the four-year-old at weight-for-age in the Melbourne Stakes on the previous Saturday (one and a quarter miles) in 2:09½, the knowing ones looked no further for the winner, for he was to carry fifteen pounds less in the Cup than in the stakes, while Patron had to pick up three pounds more. Judge of their consternation when the five-year old "quit" at the last furlong and Patron galloped home a clever winner in 3:29¼ in a field of thirty-four starters. His post price was 20 to 1.

The second and third horses are not given in the telegram from last Tuesday's race (which was Monday here) but the winner is Gaulus, by Gozo (imported by Mr. Charles Baldine), out of Industry, by Musket, from imp. Pearl Ash, by Lord Clifdon and therefore a full sister to Pearl Shell, who won the V. R. C. Oaks in 1883. I shall never forget the shouts of the little New Zealand contingent on the lawn at Flemington on that day, when the black filly buckled up to Volley and beat her home under a pull. I was not wholly unprepared for it, because in the Derby of the Saturday previous she was third and could have beaten Melos but, could not catch Ensign, so her jockey eased her up in the stretch. Poor unlucky Ensign! I had a double on him that called for £1005 and on the morning after the Derby I had a dozen offers of £100 for it, but it had only cost me £5, so I wanted it all or none. By 5 o'clock on Tuesday the Cup was over, Mentor had won, Tradition was second and The Yeoman third, while The Australian Peer, of the same age as the winner and conceding him fourteen pounds, was fifth and not two lengths away. Of twenty-nine horses, eleven had finished under the whip. And there was poor Ensign, with a broken foreleg, Dick Swiveller with a broken hind leg and Spade Guinea, with a broken shoulder, all three shot and carted off to a manure heap.

Gaulus must have had a very light-weight on him or I would have heard of him before. I send you his pedigree because he is the first winner of any great event that has come from a Musket mare. The Hova, by Ingomar, out of Happy Land, by Musket, from imp. Atlantis (dam of our King Ban) was second in the Cup of 1895 with the goodly impost of 112 pounds on him, but I never heard of his winning anything over $2,500 of our money. The best horse for the Musket mares, to my mind (and for almost any other's also) was poor old Chester, the sire of Abercorn. He got a very high-class colt in Projectile, whose dam was Percussion, by Musket. He was a very high-class colt in his three-year-old form, but I lost the run of him after that.

The writer in scanning Gaulus' pedigree, noted the strong inbreeding of Touchstone and his sire Camel, who, while he got no Derby or Oaks winners, got two winners of the St. Leger. One of these, Touchstone, also confined his three-year-old running by winning two Ascot and two Doncaster cups. The Birdcatcher blood in Gaulus is evenly divided between Oxford, grandsire of Isonomy line and Stockwell, that was maternal grandsire to that great stallion who is the only one, so far, to get two winners of the triple crown of the British turf.

I used to think that Sir Modred was the most remarkable case of a Herod horse showing a preponderance of Eclipse blood but this fellow can "give him spades." Still if carried out to 32's he would show more Herod and less of Eclipse.

I have many sunny memories of "Marvelous Melbourne" and long to see her stately towers again. My liking for the Australian people grows out of the fact that they maintain racing as a sport and do not seek to convert it into an industry.

HIDALGO.

A Peculiar Condition.

For years it seemed that the three-year-old pacers could not get the world's record for their age and way of going down below 2:09¼, Judge Hurt having set it at these figures, which were afterwards equalled by King of Diamonds, Sulphide, Agitato, and during the Butte meeting last summer by Searchlight. The 2:09¼ scored by Judge Hurt at Galesburg in 1895 and afterwards equalled as above stated stood as the record for the age only because Directly's mile in 2:07¼, paced early in 1895, was dubbed irregular by the Year Book compilers and the record rejected. Last summer it was conceded by all who saw him go his races on the Montana tracks that Searchlight could have paced in faster time, but somehow or other he did no more than equal the mark. When Manager Ed. A. Tipton came east he did not scruple to say that he believed Searchlight had speed to pace in 2:05 or thereby, and consequently great expectations were entertained that he would set a new mark. Nor did he disappoint his admirers, for a week ago last Friday he paced the Los Angeles course in 2:07, but the performance has already been marked as irregular. Had it been strictly to rule it would have been very welcome, for being faster than Directly's best performance as a three-year-old it would have put an end to all controversy concerning the rightful claimant to the championship of the age. Searchlight was destined, however, to enjoy but a short reign, such as it was, for again the unexpected happened—a pacer bred, trained and raced by Palo Alto wrested the honors from him. The late Senator Stanford's dislike of the pacer is too well remembered to need more than passing reference, and in all the mighty roll of honor graven for that farm appear the names of but few lateral gaited performers. Never until this season was a pacer trained at the pace at Palo Alto, and had it not been that Superintendent Frank W. Covey himself vouched for it, the statement that a pacer was, under the shadow of the lone pine, being prepared for the races would scare have been believed. Mr. Covey gave us the name of Betonica as that of the first pacer ever trained at the pace at Palo Alto and he added the information that he thought the three-year-old record would be an easy one for the colt to beat. This prediction has been well verified, for at Santa Anna, October 27, Betonica went a mile against time in 2:06¾, dethroning Searchlight and in a measure proving what some of the best judges have all along contended, to wit, that had it been desired Palo Alto would now be just as famous for pacing speed. Later, however, came the news that, like Searchlight's, Betonica's performance was irregular, and while there is no doubt he paced in 2:06¾, the three-year-old record remains 2:09¼. Betonica is a typical Palo Alto product in pedigree and individuality, full of running blood, and while he did not show remarkable form early in the season, he has, like all the other members of the farm's string, been steadily improving and likely to still further reduce his mark. The performance is certainly a very good one and one that holds out promise of the four-year-old champion record held by Online at 2:04 being lowered next season. Had the performance been regular, in addition to the three-year-old pacing crown, Betonica would have won for himself the honor of being the fastest performer of the year. Official confirmation of the irregularity is yet wanting. As stated above, he is a typical Palo Alto product, being by the half-breed horse Azmoor, 2:20½, by Electioneer—out of Mamie, by the English thoroughbred horse, Hercules, and his dam is the half-bred mare Nadine, by thoroughbred Wildidle; second dam, Nora, by Messenger Duroc; third dam Mary Hulse, by American Star This pedigree is wonderfully strong in running blood, but the three dams are all producers of speed. Nadine produced the very fast horse Amigo, 2:16¾, Miss Naude, 2:19½, Bellina, and Betonica. She had but few foals, as every other year during her career in the paddock she has been barren, her possible quota of foals being thus reduced one-half. Nora, by Messenger Duroc, himself very full of thoroughbred, is the dam of Candidate, 2:26¼, and Mary Hulse got from her sire, Seeley's American Star, much of the blood of the runner. In fact the only trotting lines, strictly speaking, in Betonica's pedigree are those stretching to Hambletonian, one through Electioneer and one through Messenger Duroc. All the other lines in his pedigree run direct to the desert. According to the generally accepted theory, this is a most extraordinary pedigree for a pacer.—Horseman.

A Splendid Training Track.

San Francisco is now, and will be for years to come, the great center for winter racing. Most of the large stables on the other side of the Sierras send their best horses out here to spend the winter, where they have a chance to "earn their oats," and, consequently, from the first days of November to the first of April, six days in the week, rain or shine, they will have from four to six races on one or the other of the two tracks at the Bay. We are not going to discuss the good or bad effects of this long continued meeting on the morals of the people. The institution is here, and it has come to stay. Owing to the climatic conditions, the nature of the soil, and the sporting proclivities of the inhabitants, winter racing can be conducted in California to better advantage than anywhere else in the United States. This is so well understood that thousands of horses—with their owners, trainers, riders and rubbers—are now on the ground. There is not room at the two tracks above mentioned for the proper training and handling of this large number of horses, and, therefore, interested parties are looking over the ground in the vicinity of the bay of San Francisco for suitable training and boarding quarters.

The Petaluma Agricultural Park can be made an ideal place for this purpose. If the owners of this property will expend some money in digging drains, filling in the stalls, and in giving the track a new dressing, hundreds of these horses and a large number of men will be sent here to occupy the place. If the owners can not see their way clear to justify them in making the necessary expenditure by themselves, there are a good many of our citizens that would be directly benefitted by the enterprise who could well afford to contribute a small sum each towards it.

With Agricultural Park in good condition, a slight effort would cause every stall to be filled each season, and more to be built. We have more sunny days in the winter time than at any other location near the Bay. It is not only grand on this account, but the facilities for transportation are the best—which is an important factor. Horses could be taken back and forth on the Steamer Gold, which is a great improvement on other transportation. Horses trained here could be put in condition, shipped by the boat and be ready to race the next day.

This is a matter worthy of serious attention. The keeping of even two or three hundred thoroughbred horses and their attendants here would help our home market considerably and would make work for our blacksmiths; the butcher, the baker, the groceryman and the merchants in general would all come in for a share in the increased trade. The railroad and the best hotels would make money out of the liberal horse owners who would take frequent trips to see "trial runs" in advance of important events. The farmer would feel the impulse of the new life in the demand for hay, oats and straw.

This enterprise promises more in the way of increasing, a self-supporting population and business, in proportion to the cost and trouble of securing it, than any other upon the tapis.—Argus.

THE old Cambridgeshire handicap, which Sandia, ridden by Sloan, won on Friday last, is run over a different and much more severe course than the Cambridgeshire itself, for, though the distance is the same, the finish is up a steep incline, so it takes a horse with great staying powers and indomitable courage to win it. There were originally a large number of entries for this race, though but six came to the post. August Belmont's Keenan was among the runners, but disgraced himself, for though a five-year-old and in receipt of five pounds actual weight from the three-year-old Sandia, he finished last, thus bearing out what has been frequently stated in these columns, that it is poor policy to take a horse trained and raced on this side across the water. Both Sandia and St. Cloud were taken over as youngsters and received their early education on English training grounds.—Exchange.

Fifth race—One mile selling, purse $400. Imp. Devil's Dream (Ames, 106), first, easily by three-fourths length; Hermanita (Piggott, 109), second by one-half length; Lena (Morse, 102), third. Fashion Plate, Don Clarencio, Atticus and Outgo finished as named. Time, 1:43¼.

Sixth race—Seven furlongs, purse $350. Fortunate (Piggott, 117), first easily by three-fourths length; Mercutio (E. Jones, 110), second by one length; Claudiana (Morse, 101), third. Alma, Los Cerillos, Whirlwind II. finished as named. Time, 1:29½.

The Manhattan Meeting for 1898.

Ed A. Tipton, manager of the Butte and Anaconda race tracks, was in town yesterday. Mr. Tipton returned from the East last week and has been in Anaconda until yesterday. He is already engaged in arranging the stakes for next season's races, and he has two important items of news to communicate. One is that the racing in Montana next season will be confined to runners, and the other is that the Butte meeting will precede the Anaconda meeting.

"The races will start Saturday, July 2, at Butte," said Mr. Tipton. "I believe that for the races on the Fourth of July just as many people will come from Anaconda to Butte as would go from Butte to Anaconda, and there is a bigger local population to draw from. I do not know yet just how long the races will continue, or when they will be transferred to Anaconda. Probably the number of days of racing will be about the same as last season, but there will be better horses, more horses and richer stakes.

"For the opening day, July 2d, we will have a new stake called the Montana Derby. It will be for three-year-olds, and will be worth not less than $2,500. There will be another big stake for July 4th, but it is not yet determined just what it will be. Those two days will be the biggest racing days Montana ever had. The decision to have no trotting or pacing races has been reached after careful consideration. Many of the best running stables would not come to Montana because the owners did not think it possible that a track could be made good enough for running where there are harness races. The announcement that the meeting will be for running races only will have the effect of bringing here many stables not heretofore represented. The track will be fixed especially for running. The betting on running races is so much better in California and Montana than it is anywhere else except New York and Chicago, that Montana is the natural place for the California running stables during the summer. The California horsemen have learned that their horses after running in California during the winter and spring are not in condition to go East and compete with Eastern horses in the very hot summer there. But by sending the horses to Montana they strike about the same weather that they have in California in the winter and spring meetings. The California runners do not win much in the East. We will have six running races each day.

"Among the things which make me believe that next year will be the greatest year for racing in Montana than ever is that local people are getting stables together and will compete. Heretofore men have bet on horses owned by other men, but now they are beginning to get stables of their own. The fact that H. L. Frank and others are going into racing will greatly increase the interest and enthusiasm.

"Another thing worthy of note is that three of the best trainers in the Middle West are thinking of coming to Butte and opening public stables. One has decided to come, and I think two others will come. Local lovers of fast horses who dread the expense of keeping a stable of their own can have one or two good horses and keep them at these stables, where they will be trained as well or better than if the owner maintained a stable of his own. A Butte man can then go into the racing business on a modest scale at slight cost. J. J. Moran has bought a ranch at Hamilton and will open a public stable there. I have seen a good deal of racing during my absence from Montana. I visited the tracks at Chicago, Cincinnati and New York. The racing at all these tracks is good, but it takes a very good horse to win at any of these places. Chicago seemed to have the best attendance, New York had the best betting and Cincinnati was the lightest in both. Cincinnati had excellent racing, but the crowds and the betting were light.

"The best betting I saw was on the trotters at Lexington. I saw first choice sell as high as $5,000. The most money that ever went through the pool box on one race at any track in America was on the Transylvania Stake at Lexington. The total sum was $123,000. A. J. Welch of Hartford had up $29,000 and N. W. Hubinger of New Haven, $20,000. This was in the auction alone without counting the books. There was very heavy betting on the Futurity for three-year-old trotters. China Silk was the favorite, but finished third in the grandest race ever trotted among colts. Two of Mr. Daly's horses started at Lexington. China Silk and Limerick Limerick won one race there and was third in another. China Silk finished second in one race and third in another. The winnings of these two horses at Lexington were $2,575, and there winnings for the season were $15,575. That is a splendid showing, considering that both horses were sick the early part of the season. The get of Prodigal are well thought of back there. Mr. Daly could sell Prodigal colts and fillies for as large an average as any trotters in the United States.

"The Daly trotting stable will be shipped from Lexington next Monday and will probably arrive at the Bitter Root Thursday or Friday, where they will winter under Ben Kinney's charge. The stable includes China Silk, the three-year-old and Limerick, Red Tape and Past Master, 2-year-olds. Red Tape and Past Master did not start the past season.—Butte Record.

The Trotting Interest.

The earning capacity of the trotter on the turf is still great, and as long as this is the case fast trotters will sell for big prices and there will be a premium on the sires and dams and families of horses that produce such trotters. There is nothing of the "bubble" about this; it is a plain matter of business.

In this is certainly a big items of the attraction in the trotter; but it is not all, for in every general sense the trotting breed of horses is the best all-round breed produced. The range of size in trotting-bred horses is such that they are all the way from the pony to the Percheron or Clydesdale proportions. They show all the colors and all the styles, and in no other breed do we find finer dispositions or more intelligence, joined to a spirit and a courage equal to those of the thoroughbred.

Still, all that can be done has not yet been done with the trotter; for though some of the most beautiful horses in the world are trotting bred horses, many of the very fastest trotters are not only not beautiful, but are really just the opposite. The demand away from the track is fast correcting this. Indeed, to-day about the only horses the demand for which is ahead of the supply are handsome trotting-bred horses—horses that are free from all meannesses and that can handily go a mile in a little better than three minutes and keep it up.

This is the direction in which the skill of the breeder should go; and that even now it can so go and have the best sort of material to work on is shown by the fact that many of the greatest turf horses are among the most beautiful.

So the trotting turf properly conducted is all right. It is needed and fills an important place, and in Kentucky especially it should be encouraged. Our own trotting now going on is deserving of a hearty home encouragement, and if this be given it will become one of our most important and attractive institutions.—Louisville Times.

Horse Shoers' Association.

For years this journal has advocated the formation of a Master Horse Shoers' Association on the same plan as those organized in all the large cities throughout the United States. The necessity for such an organization was never more apparent than at the last session of the Legislature where several good bills were introduced to benefit the indispensable members of this craft, but which were virtually "killed" because of a lack of organization on the part of those most deeply interested.

Two weeks ago a number of horseshoers met in this city, and after a little deliberation formed an association, calling it the Master Horse Shoers' Association of San Francisco, and a committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws.

Last Tuesday night at 1539 Mission street another meeting was called by President pro tem P. Friedhofer. The constitution and by-laws were read and adopted. After the reading, the names of thirty-five applicants for membership were added to the roll. Nominations for officers for the ensuing year being in order, the following were nominated: For president, T. J. Crowley, Martin O'Dea, John Grace; Vice-president, Jos. Mooney; Secretary, John Twomey, F. Piechort; Financial Secretary, Wm. Melia, J. Sullivan; Treasurer, Jos. Reilly, Jos. Scheid, N. Morrisey; Sergeant-at-Arms, Mr. McGee, J Baxter.

Many speeches were made by those present. "Pop" Thorne the traveling agent for the Putnam Nail spoke feelingly of the great benefits to be derived from a thorough organization and congratulated those present for their earnestness in working for each others welfare. He was loudly applauded. The Breeder and Sportsman was made the official organ of the association, and the reports of all meetings will appear therein.

Mrs. Lillie Langtry's Merman, which was the favorite for the Liverpool cup, has been scratched. Mrs. Langtry has purchased the Australian crack, Aurum, the winner of many races in the Antipodes during the present season. The actress is thought to have lost heavily by the defeat of her entry, Maluma, in the race for the great Lancashire handicap yesterday.—London (Eng.) dispatch, November 11.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

A Racing Syndicate.—Never a better opportunity than that afforded by the Spreckels sale of race horses in training for a syndicate to secure a stable of "useful" horses, one that would win its full share during the coming seasons. A big basket, full of plums, now hanging from the trees in the orchards of the P. C. J. C. and the C. J. C. Likely to be more than the capacity of one to hold, unless of the size of peat creels, and in place of waiting for the ripening the most backward of the crop ready for harvesting in May next.

I mention a syndicate, as the union of forces will give the chance to get a strong stable in place of one or two, and in this way reduce the liabilities of the speculation. For instance, one person could only risk an amount necessary to buy one of the great bargains offered. Combine his venture with that of a few others and six or more could be purchased so that if the one or two selected went wrong the others would pull him out. Then, too, were the purchase limited to one or two, it would not pay to keep a trainer, and the owner be forced to send them to a public stable, not nearly so satisfactory as being in a separate division. So many advantages connected with one system over the other, and that so well understood, that a mere mention is all that is necessary to anyone conversant with racing affairs.

And then again there is a good deal of satisfaction in being a part proprietor of a stable that is frequently the recipient of the plaudits of the public, more so, perhaps, than being the proud sole owner of an occasional winner. From a mercantile standpoint the syndicate has altogether the best of the outlook. A small stockholder the same return in proportion to his stock as the holder of many shares, and with the further advantage of obtaining the benefits of the capital others have furnished. Thus, if a tenth of the amount invested is contributed, an amount that might soon be swamped if not protected, has nine times the amount risked to carry it successfully along. This is also too plain a proposition to require argument. Not oftentimes that a big stable in training is offered at public sale at the opening of the season. Were it necessary to wait months before the animals would have a chance to repay the purchaser, the risk would be greatly increased.

Under the present conditions the next day but one will afford the opportunity of winning, and in less than twenty-four hours after the title passes the horses purchased can be located at the racecourse when races are in progress. Again there is an advantage tried by the truest of all tests, public performance. Winning capacity, exemplified by races won, and in proper condition to "repeat." Hard to imagine a better preparation than these horses have received for an active campaign. Rested from the time the gates at Ingleside were closed, and then a portion of the string fitted for the racing at the State Fair. Winning then and since then a freshening and judicious work under the care of a skilful trainer.

Underrating the intelligence of my readers to dilate on what these horses have done, as doubtless, few of them who are not fully informed in regard to the standing of the stable, the blue, red and white oftentimes in the lead, and the horses which carried these colors to the front in better shape than ever before. At least that is the verdict of capable judges of form, and it is beyond successful contradiction that the trainer who has had them in charge is not lacking in capacity, and this closing out sale, in place of relieving him from responsibility, adds to his anxiety to have them in readiness to show their best. Should one person or a syndicate become the owner of the largest part or even a fair portion of the horses, the trainer could also be secured, in all probability, and also the exercising lads.

Syndicates, the plural being more appropriate when so many race horses are offered as thirty-four, many of them winners and all of them in training, can be divided into several strings, might be gotten up, as the benefits to be derived are certainly apparent. That "good bargains" are also sure to be obtained is another inducement to forming partnerships.

"McDaniel Confederacy."—A syndicate is not unknown in the history of racing. Partnerships in plenty, so much so that large majorities of racing stables are the property of partners. Not quite in keeping with the usual custom to call a duo, or trio even, a syndicate a number of people connected for the purpose of conducting a business with the presumption that it will be better for the owners. That there are advantages cannot be denied, and in one case, at least, decidedly beneficial to the partners. Though entries were made in the name of D. McDaniel & Co., the stable was popularly known as the "McDaniel Confederacy," and for several years established the name by a constant succession of victories. Harry Bassett, Hubbard, Joe Daniels, Tubman, Katie Pease, Springbok, Mattie A. and others were a powerful confederacy, indeed, and the formation of the syndicate, or rather occurrences that led to it, saved Col. McDaniel from bankruptcy.

As to the propriety of and probable results from forming syndicates to purchase at the Spreckels sale or on those of subsequent date there can be no question in one case, odds altogether in favor of the purchaser in the other. As stated before, a member of the proposed syndicate gets the benefit of added capital to his own, that addition being in the nature of an insurance, a protection of the money ventured. There are risks in every speculation, some greater than others, as a rule those of the greatest uncertainty showing the largest profits. In the case of race horses there are various degrees of risks. When horses are fit to race at the time of purchase, the dangers of going wrong, before that point is reached, are passed. There is also a risk that private performances will not be duplicated in public, and, when winners are offered, that difficulty has been overcome.

The proportion of winners in the Spreckels sale is one-third, all of them, winners and non-winners, in training. The buyer, whether as an individual, a partner, or one of a syndicate, has an opportunity of forming a new stable that will contain many elements on which success can be authoritatively predicted. Suppose that there is capital enough to secure from six to ten of those offered, and the division I would make would be in the ratio the catalogue shows. It must be borne in mind that in six weeks the two-year-olds will rate a year older, so that there is material among the young division to run at all distances, and should the venture prove profitable from the first, a couple of the foals of 1896 could be added. I would urge those who are debutantes on the turf, however, to avoid getting a large number of horses at first, in fact, even should my idea of a syndicate materialize, had I the management, six or less the limit. Many advantages to offset those that the large stables present.

One that is limited to five starters in a week, while the big concern has five times that number, may show a better credit side of the ledger, and then a trainer with six horses to handle is in a much better position to get them in order than when a score or more demand his attention.

Far outside the bounds of probability that the thirty-four animals in the sale catalogue will be divided in bands of from five to eight, but if that could be effected, and new owners for each division, it would be a good thing for the sport.

* * *

Happily Rescued.—There was a time when Col. Mc. Daniels was sorely troubled. His horses were under attachment at the Secaucus race course, at that time managed by him, and he had tried every scheme he could think of to raise the necessary amount of money—quite a large sum.

Sauntering up Broadway, absorbed in gloomy thoughts, he was accosted by a man who was an occasional visitor at the race course and somewhat fond of speculations thereon.

Appalled at his own rashness, he uttered a stammering statement of the state of his affairs, without the least hope of relief, when despair was banished, "joy sprang exultant on uprising wings," when the answer was: "Glad to have it in my power to help you. Come to the store and I will give you a check." The kindness was not restricted to a sum sufficient to pay the debt, enough besides to carry him along till the racing meeting commenced.

That kind friend was Harry Bassett and the final result the establishment of the McDaniel confederacy. Mr. Bassett was in the millinery and straw goods business, and connected with the same line of trade, Albert S. Gage, John E. Brewster, Tubman, Hubbard, Joe Daniels who also figured on the turf subsequent to the time of the transaction mentioned.

Mr. Brewster, the popular Secretary of the Washington Park Club, Mr. Gage one of its most active members, Joe Daniels brought Springbok here, Mr. Gage Katie Pease and Mattie A. Springbok was taken back, Hubbard, Joe Daniels Katie Pease and Mattie A., once members of that famous stable, remaining in California.

System-Betting—That any method can be devised to insure winning on races is affirmed by some, denied by others, both sides urging their views of the question with apparently equal ground to base their argument upon. Our far-away and highly-valued contemporary, The Asian, Calcutta, gave a whole page to the consideration of the question, showing conclusively that the "figure system," i. e., doubling losing bets, would entail the command of a "heap" of money, and if even that were available, in this country at least, after not very many consecutive losses it would be impossible to get the money on.

Starting with a ten dollar bet, and following it up on the doubling system, after five trials, all losers, the debits would aggregate $540, and should the bad run of luck continue, ten losing deals, $196,830, gone where the "woodbine twineth." I saw a man lose twenty-one consecutive bets, of $100 each, at faro, and as he was an expert the money, in all probability, was judiciously placed, had "luck" not gone so dead against him. The Asian gives different figures, a different and much more elaborate set of calculations, and while it may be claimed that ten consecutive losses is nearly impossible were favorites chosen, there is still a chance for it to happen.

The Asian concludes the article by referring to a system invented by one of its correspondents, which, when submitted to practical racing men, was pronounced a "dead moral certainty." Win it must. Now "Flambeau", not contented with the daylight furnished in the long summer days, has burned many cubic feet of gas and not a little kerosene studying guide books, calendars, form charts, in going over and over again the figures furnished, and finally evolved a system that stood the test so far as the past could endorse it, and it may be that the East Indian has dropped on the same scheme. Mental telegraphy, perhaps, the cause if they should prove coincidental, and I hope that "Flambeau" will enter into a correspondence with "Sambur," care of The Asian.

Sending his system may result in the East Indian reciprocating the compliment.

Quite strange should there be even a partial resemblance, though when both stand the crucial trial it is fair to infer that they are somewhat similar.

Champion Three-Year-Olds.—As Searchlight has made a mile on the same track one second faster than Betonica, it would seem as though he were entitled to the honor. But in the case of Betonica the first half was made in 1:05, the last in 1:01¾, whereas the mile in 2:05¾ of Searchlight was evenly rated.

Two big, fine-looking colts, it may be that the Kentucky bred has the best of it when beauty is the test, and also far away the advantage in races won. It was at the very end of the circuit that Betanica gave indication of being a sure-enough race horse, and that might be owing to a lack of appreciation on the part of the trainer. Made ample amends, however, when he did get him agoing, as it is the opinion of as competent a judge as William Donathan that he is destined to be the "king-pin" of the pacers. Formerly claimed by authorities that a pacing tendency proved that near thoroughbred crosses were imaginary; plenty of testimony on the other side of the question now.

The Nelson Sale.—Next Monday at the Nelson stables near the Alameda track, there will be an auction sale of trotters and pacers well worthy the attention of those who are looking for road horses or those which are likely to participate in the track sports of 1898, and with a good chance of taking a good share of the "money hung up." I saw some of the horses that will be offered at the sale, on Tuesday last, and they were looking well. Challenger Chief, 2:15, Fallacy, 2:17½, Bessie Rankin, 2:16¼, Luster, 2:22½, a whole lot of them that have records or shown trials inside of 2:30, and should the weather continue favorable, they will prove that the speed claimed is still ready for exhibition. Good looking horses, too, that will attract attention on the road, some of them plenty of size for phaeton, or two-seated wagon, and thus fill the bill for whatever is wanted, ready to do duty as family horses, or for the speed drive. Not often that speed and tractability are united in the same individual, that is the road horse that will go in company without pulling and that can be hitched to the family vehicle without fear of giving trouble.

Mr. Nelson has had several of these horses long enough to understand their peculiarities, and he will not recommend without feeling justified from his own knowledge. Should there be rain between now and Monday the streets of Alameda are so good that the horses can be shown in harness, even heavy rains falling having little effect on the gravelled and sandy streets.

The advertisement in this paper gives the necessary information, with fuller descriptions in the catalogues of sale.

* * *

The Coming Auction Sales.—Mr. Spreckels has come to a kind and liberal conclusion by giving purchasers a chance to make the cost of their selections before full payment is required, ten per cent, on the fall of the auctioneer's hammer, satisfactory security for the balance. Fortunately Mr. Spreckels is in a position to offer such an inducement, the same as a wholesale merchant gives time to dispose of the goods purchased.

Credit is capital, and when judiciously incurred, debts may lead to fortune.

Not that it will do for a person who has no knowledge of a particular line of business to engage in it with anything like a promising hope of success, but the syndicate plan removes the objection.

A union of forces, now that so little is required in the way of capital, and the employment of the stable will entail small risk and a good profit of remuneration. At all events a great deal of satisfaction to those who have a fondness for the exciting recreation.

Everything favorable now for the coming sales, so far as can be told from the present outlook. A grand lot of youngsters to follow the sale of the horses in training, and as there is not a cloud on the California racing horizon, with clear skies for the summer outing in Montana, there must be more than a favorable prospect for the owners of racehorses.

A Veterinary's Experience.

Dr. I. Wixom, Veterinary Surgeon at Calistoga, Cal. writes as follows: "I have had occasion to use Quinn's Ointment on a case of blood spavin of one year's standing; one application has, so far as I can see, entirely removed the tumor. I have been in constant veterinary practice forty years, but have never been able to handle soft tumors satisfactory to myself until I used Quinn's Ointment." For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all bunches it has no equal. Price $1.50 per package. If you cannot obtain it from druggist or dealer address W. B. Eddy & C., Whitehall, N. Y. For sale in San Francisco by Messrs. J. A. McKerron and J. O'Kane.

Blempton Kennels, Hempstead, L. I.

Dr. H. Clay Glover, August Belmont Jr., Prop.

I have used your Distemper Cure, and state with pleasure that I found it a most valuable remedy in several severe cases. Your Mange Cure is also very efficacious.

Yours faithfully,

Germain Hopkins, Mgr. Blempton Kennels.

Do not forget to attend the sale of choice trotting stock which is to take place at the Alameda race track next Monday. Catalogues have been issued and the list of really first-class trotters and pacers shown therein is surprising. Remember the sale commences at 10 A. M.

THE SULKY.

The Hon. J. C. Welty, of Canton, O., refused $6,500 for Pilot Boy, 2:09¼, a few days ago.

The trotting stallion King, Directum 2:05¼ will be returned to California in about two weeks.

Miss Zura Bell, by St. Bel, earned a record of 2:19¼ in a race at Ft. Worth, Texas, Sept. 29th.

Chico, 2:14½, was sold in Los Angeles to F. E. Browne a prominent business man of that city.

Zombro, 2:11, may make the season of 1898 in the vicinity of San Francisco. He would do well there.

Those two fast mares, Pixley, 2:08½, and Derby Princess 2:08¼, will be sent into the auction ring this fall.

Elira, by Expedition (son of Electioneer) trotted to a record of 2:29¼ at Wapakoneta, Ohio, Sept. 29th.

Chide, by Chimes, is a newcomer to the list. She earned a record of 2:29¼ in a race she won at Edinboro, Pa., Sept. 22d.

Trimmer, a bay gelding by Sultan out of Ella Madden got a record of 2:25½, at the Poughkeepsie, N. Y. meeting, September 29th.

Sam Abell has arrived at Pleasanton with a few of Orrin A. Hickok's horses. This great driver, as usual, will spend the winter in California.

Delmar Wilkes, a bay gelding by Delmar (son of Electioneer) entered the 2:30 list at Nassau, N. Y., Sept. 23d, getting a mark of 2:28¼.

The Nelson sale of trotters takes place at the Alameda race track next Monday, Nov. 15th. If you want to secure bargains attend this sale.

All the Palo Alto horses that were campaigning on the California Circuit have been returned to Palo Alto. They are looking exceedingly well.

Indications point to the fact that Nutwood will probably lead the brood mare sires this year, as he did last. His sire Belmont, will also be well up in the list.

Not one of the pacers in the 2:04 list, and not one of the five fastest mares, Bessie Bonehill, Lottie Loraine, Pearl C., Pearl Onward, or Angie D., wears hobbles.

Sam'l Gamble will take a carload of horses east next month. They are from the Santa Rosa stock farm and have been specially selected for the Eastern trade.

Legation, a bay gelding, got a record of 2:23¾ at Oakland race track at the Breeders' meeting. Legation was sired by Frazier's Secretary, out of Maud by Nutwood.

The filly by Diablo, 2:09¼, out of Stemwinder, 2:31 (dam Directum, 2:05¼, etc.), is a chestnut in color, a trotter in gait and a typical Stemwinder in comformation.

Mabel, the dam of Nightingale, 2:10½, and Creceus, 2.11¼, secured her fourth 2:80 performer recently, when her daughter, Miss Mary, by Bay View, took a race record of 2:24¼.

Dr. Ira Barker Dalziel removed a bothersome tooth from the great Diablo two-year-old Hijo del Diablo 2:11½ on Monday last. This molar has been aching this horse for a year.

Vigney, a black mare by Sidney out of Flight 2:29, (dam of Fleet 2:19, Sid Fleet 2:26½, etc.), by Buccaneer, entered the 2:30 list at Poughkeepie, N. Y., getting a mark of 2:27½ on Sept. 21st.

Director, 2:17, has only a few sons in California in the stud. If Directum 2:05¼ should make the season of 1898 here we believe there would be no trouble about his book being filled.

James Sullivan, of Willows, has been sojourning in this city for the past week. He will leave for his home next Monday, and after the first of the year begin working his trotters and pacers.

Remember the great speed sale at the Alameda race track which commenes next Monday at 10 A. M. Catalogues are now ready. J. M. Nelson has a rare lot of good ones to dispose of at this sale.

Florine, a handsome brown mare by Memo (son of Sidney, 2:13¾), got a record of 2:21½ at the Breeders' meeting in a race against Blue Bells. Florine's dam was Flora Allen, by Vick's Ethan Allen, Jr.

There has been only one horseless carriage brought to California. It appeared for a few days in Golden Gate Park and was then put away to rest. It is a noticeable fact that this seems to be the ending of nearly all these vehicles after being a short time in use.

The well-known Souther Farm where Gilbert Tompkins had so many horses and his famous swimming tank, is entirely freed from all equines and is the home of one of Oakland's foremost citizens. Mr. Tompkins is in New York City engaged in song writing.

When the foals at Woodburn Farm are weaned the sucklings are separated from their mothers twice a day. Only a fence divides them, and neither parent nor offspring frets. The youngsters have access to troughs of oats, and learn to eat grain while being weaned.

Eleven head of horses recently sold at auction on the farm of Charles S. Clark, New Castle, Pa., brought an average of $254.50 each. John H. Tucker, recently with Palo Alto, has been engaged as superintendent at Mr. Clark's Locust Grove Farm and is now in charge.

Now that the dam of the handsome, game Edgewood Farm stallion Pedlar, 2:18½, has produced a trotter with a race record of 2:11¼, and one of Pedlar's daughters, Amelia Pedlar, has taken a trotting race record of 2:21¼, horsemen can breed to that 10-heat race-winning son of Electioneer with more confidence than ever.

The best lot of horses ever shipped to Honolulu left this city on the 6th on the Barque Archer. These were consigned to J. A. McDonald. Besides being fine looking, many of them have shown their ability to trot and pace below 2:30. There were eighteen head in all and were selected with great care.

The mark of 2:23¼ taken at Huntington, L. I., by the black filly Jummye, by Directum, makes her dam a double producer. Fanny K, by Redwood, the dam of Jummye, is also the dam of Miss Kate (3), 2:21½, and Beatrice (2), 2:33. Jummye is owned by Frank P. Clark, New Haven, Conn., and was developed by Herman Fox.

The Griffith string of horses that have been campaigning in the East arrived here to day (Sunday), the horses unloaded were Azote, Lady Salisbury, Jib Albert, Tuna, She, Pattie D, W. Wood, Javelin, Directina, Miss Margaret, Rect, Erastus C, and Mr. McIvors' Director colt. They showed the effects of the long, arduous campaign they have had.

Among a certain class of horsemen can be found some really great chumps, albeit they profess to know it all. None of them read a turf paper unless it be a sample copy, yet they are wise beyond their generation. Among the multitude of their beliefs, the strongest seems to be that at some time in the "dim and distant past" an English horse ran a mile in exactly a minute.

Allerton, 2:09¼, and Axtell, 2:12, are living proof of the incorrectness of the theory that racing unfits a horse for reproduction. When some horse foaled the same year that these two young stallions were, and that was not raced, equals their showing in the stud, then it will be time enough to pay attention to the arguments of the few who still believe that a stallion raced is harmed for stock purposes.

Flying Childers, who died in 1741, at the age of 26 years, and Eclipse, who died in 1789, at the age of 25 years, were two of the most remarkable horses on the English turf. The latter was never beaten; he was remarkable for his strength and endurance, and at the post-mortem examination of his body it was discovered that his heart was of most extraordinary size, weighing 14 pounds.

Cavel Rodriguez brought over from Watsonville and will handle at the Salinas race track the following young horses, viz: Tim Horgan's three-year-old gelding by Adrian; Pete Thompson's four-year-old by Orphan Boy; Nic Jessen's yearling, Sidney Wilkes, by Sable Wilkes, dam by Guy Wilkes, second dam by Speculation. Cavel will put them through their first lessons and if there is extreme speed there he will find it.

In answer to an inquiry as to who were in the judges stand at the Los Angeles meeting while the light harness races were in progress, we believe they were James P. Ferguson, starting judge of the Cal. Jockey Club, J. W. Brooks, the official handicapper of that club, J. Wilson presiding judge of the Pacific Coast Jockey Club and L. J. Rose who was formerly of the most prominent breeders of light harness and lately interested in a select band of thoroughbreds.

The blood of Miss Russell is found in no less than three of the season's new 2:10 trotters, namely Praytell, 2:09½, Countess Eve, 2:09¼, and Cheyenne, 2:09½, certainly a remarkable showing. Reason as one may on the subject, if guided in his conclusions by plainly manifested evidences, he must conclude that the blood of great dams is the essential element in great performers and great producers. Seven 2:10 trotters carry the blood of Miss Russell—to say nothing of the 2:10 pacers.

In Europe the blood of the old-time trotting champion Goldsmith Maid, 2:14, is highly valued, and with good reason. The stallion Colonel Kuser, by Goldsmith Maid's son Stranger, has been the sensational horse of the year on the European tracks, and has reduced the trotting record of that country to 2:14 1-10. Nominee, another son of Stranger, was taken to Russia a couple of years ago, and at St. Petersburg won the greatest events of the year, defeating all the crack stallions in that country.

Edwin Forrest's blood is by no means without representation in the extreme speed list. Instead it is rather abundantly represented; such noted performers as Roan Wilkes, 2:05¼, Heir-at-Law, 2:05¾, Bright Regent, 2:06¼, Ananias, 2:06¾, Hail Cloud, 2:07¼, Palmyra Boy, 2:07¼, L. L. D., 2:08¼, Passing Bell, 2:08¼, Silver Chimes 2:08¼, Milton S., 2:08¼, The Monk, 2:08½, Stella, 2:09¼, Woodford Jay, 2:10, Forrest Herr, 2:10, Argoreat, 2:09¼ and Alcyo, 2:10, carrying well defined strains of blood of that old time popular sire.

Secretary J. H. Steiner has issued official notice of the coming meeting of the Board of Appeals of the American Trotting Association which will be held at the Victoria Hotel, Chicago, and will begin Tuesday, December 7, at 10 A. M. It is important to all persons who may have cases before the board to know that the notice of the meeting contains this clause: "All new applications and written evidence must be received at the office of the secretary not later than November 20, 1897." The address of that official is room 1105, Ellsworth building, 355 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

The export of fine trotting stock to Europe during the past few months has been quiet though it bids fair to have an immediate revival. Several important purchases have been made recently and a number of foreign bbyers are here while more may be expected as soon as the great winter sales commence. But the year's business promises, for all classes of horses, to far exceed any previous season. Up to September 1, or for eight months of the present year we exported 30,628 valued at $3,728,192 as against a valuation for the same period last year of $2,476,828. If we assume that the last third of the year will be as prosperous in proportions as the other two-thirds in the value and number of the exports the total exports for the year will be worth close to $5,000,000. While our exports are increasing rapidly our imports are rapidly falling off as during the eight months the total imports were 450 head, valued at $71,500, as against 819 for the same period the previous year, valued at $93,024. It must also be borne in mind that a large number of horses from the Western States are shipped from Canadian ports, and therefore do not enter into the calculations. It is satisfactory to note that the trade is on the increase and that it will tend to keep the market firm.

We shall have about twelve first-class trotting meetings in California in 1898. The plan of entries will be patterned after the successful ones devised by Ben Benjamin and adopted by the thrifty Los Angeles Agricultural Society, of which L. A. Thorne is the wide-awake up-to-date secretary. This plan will be more fully exemplified in these columns hereafter.

Con O'Connor, one of the leading progressive citizens of San Francisco, died last Monday, in this city, after a brief illness. The deceased did more to have good roads built around San Francisco than any other citizen. He loved a good horse and considered road driving the acme of pleasure. For many years he was familiarly known to all who drove through Golden Gate Park. His teams were always stylish and speedy and he took great pride in them. His death is deeply deplored by all who knew him.

The long wintry nights will soon be here, and we would deem it a special favor if our readers will forward us any items we have missed observing during the past year regarding their horses or those belonging to their friends. Any suggestions that may be offered regarding our next years' meetings will be thankfully received. Send us in any news you may deem important. We shall take pleasure in publishing the same. It is to your interest to do so. The Breeder and Sportsman's columns are always open for its readers and subscribers.

In well-formed horses the tail should be tall at the root, rising high from the croup, the direction of which it follows. When this is horizontal the tail is gracefully carried, especially when the horse is moving. With powerful, good-shaped horses it is often carried upward, or even curved over the back, especially when the horse is lively. The health and strength of the animal are, according to popular notions, indicated by the resistence the tail offers to manual interference, and by the way in which it is carried. To some extent also it affords an indication of the horse's disposition.

Negotiations are pending for a mammoth sale of trotting stock at the Occidental Horse Exchange early in January. There is stable room there for over 200 trotters, box stalls, large yard and a good track upon which a horse's gait can be shown. Wm G. Layng, editor and proprietor of this paper, will soon be ready to "boom" this sale, as he has the sales of thoroughbreds. In building his mammoth amphitheatre exclusively for the sale of horses he has done more for the benefit of horseowners in California than anyone heretofore in the business and he intends to merit their patronage. He can handle sales of all kinds, carriage horses, drafts or thoroughbreds, just as well as fast trotters or pacers, on remarkably low terms.

The authorities in Washington City refuse to permit a horseless carriage or delivery wagon to be used on the streets of that city, and placed a ban on all horseless vehicles on the ground that they are dangerous in frightening horses and are likely to cause accidents. Some enterprising merchants like to use them because of their novelty as an advertisement, but the best merchants have never found anything more attractive than a handsome horse for their well-equipped vehicles. A handsome horse or fine team of horses gives dignity and character to the merchant and manufacturer, and many of them have these attractive advertisements, drawing their loaded wagons through the streets as the proudest achievement of success.

This man had been a lifelong dealer in horses, an exchange says. He had probably bought and sold thousands of animals and there was hardly a man within the radius of fifty miles but had had dealings with him. In his later years he became interested in and finally joined one of the local churches. One evening while giving an exhortation on prayer meetings he said: "If I have wronged any man I am willing to pay him four-fold." He was aroused late at night by loud rapping at the door. Raising his window he called out, "Who's there?" "Blank, of Ashland, who bought such a horse of you," came the answer; "I heard what you said in prayer meeting last night and came early for I thought that by daylight there would be such a jam I couldn't get in sight of the house!"

Electwood 14074 (by Whips, out of Manette, dam of Arion 2:07¾), owned by Mr. Geo. B. Inches, North Grafton, Mass., gets a new performer in the bay horse Phallaneer, 2:27¼. Phallaneer won the 2:20 class for trotters at Wyoming, Ill., September 3, at the end of six heats. The first heat was dead between Midnight Hal and Frank P., in 2:24½; the second and third heats were won by Midnight Hal in 2:19¼, 2:25. The fourth, fifth and sixth heats were won by Phallaneer in 2:13½, 2:22¼, 2:26. Phallaneer had a record in 1894 of 2:32½, which he secured at Mendota, Ill., July 10, in the first heat of the 2:40 class for three-year-olds, winning second money. In 1895 he started in several races, which were won in fast time, but, although Phallaneer finished inside of the money in nearly every race he did not win a heat. That year at Morris, Ill., August 8, he finished second to Pandora in 2:24½. Last season he only started twice and at Wyoming, Ill., September 4, he won third money in the 2:32 class, finishing second to Wilkieros in 2:29, and was inside the money at Princeton, Ill., September 10, when the heats were all below 2:30 and three of them below 2:24. The dam of Phallaneer is Belle Queen, by Phallamont.

Many men who breed horses on a small scale have no money with which to pay trainers' bills. These men should acquaint themselves with the methods of development practised by some of the most successful modern trainers, and then practise them upon their young horses, so as to learn which are the most promising. There are always customers who are looking for something which is promising enough to warrant training, but the most of them will not buy green, half-broken young horses, no matter how attractive their pedigrees may be. There are books giving the experience and methods of practical trainers, from which young men and older ones, too, who have never been around a trotting track can get valuable information. Many trainers scoff at book learning. Of course no one who has not good judgment and is not a natural horseman can ever hope to succeed as a colt-breaker and speed developer by studying a book, but these works, which give the methods of practical trainers, contain many suggestions that may prove of great value to the country farmer who breeds on a small scale, and whose means are so limited that he cannot afford to pay a professional trainer to find out whether his colts are worth handling or not.

THE SADDLE.

W. J. ROGERS, trainer of Clifford, is training the Ormonde-Countess Langton colt, which is a half-sister to Count of Flanders.

CARRIE M., by Hyder Ali, one of the mares to be sold November 22d at the Occidental Horse Exchange, is in foal to St. Carlo.

H. ("SKEETS") MARTIN will soon be riding here. John Quinn wired him on Thursday that he was not ruled off on account of his Aqueduct engagements.

LOBENGULA, of Green B. Morris' string, won a mile race at Washington, D. C., Tuesday, and Millstream, half-brother to Marquise, won a six-furlong race at Nashville.

CAPT. PIERSAL, the black three-year-old Favor gelding, is one of the best young jumpers seen here since J. O. C.'s time. Andy Blakely evidently knows a good timber-topper when he sees one.

MAXLONE, a two-year old by imp. Maxim-Abilone, in the Spreckels sale November 17th, is pronounced one of the best youngsters seen in California in a long time. There will be some lively bidding on this fellow, also on Con Fianza, Salvail, Ideal, Little T. G., Imperious and Aluminum.

EDDIE JONES is very likely to be first jockey for H. L. Frank this winter, at least John S. Campbell, the famous trainer, is negotiating for the services of the lad. Eddie rides brilliantly at times (in fact no person could wish a better pilot), but often is out of luck for weeks at a time.

MARQUISE ran the most phenomenal race ever seen at Ingleside, Monday. Getting away absolutely last, six lengths at least behind the bunch, she won in the last stride by a nose from Grady, with Tea Rose another nose away. Marquise is a rare good one. There's no mistake about that.

IN the coming Macdonough sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange there will be disposed of an own sister to St. Cuthbert and a half-sister to Orestes. Besides, there will be several grand brood mares and yearlings by imp. Islington (sire of Michael III. and brother to Isinglass, winner of $290,000).

THE Fresno fair grounds were taken possession of November 5th by a constable on an attachment issued to William Helm against L. Rockman, who has had the place leased. Helm owns the property and the attachment was to secure what was due on rent. It is reported that Mr. Rockman is in San Francisco.

MRS. JOHN CLAWSON and children left for Alameda on this morning's train, where the family will reside in the future. Young Jockey Clawson has bought a beautiful home at that place for his folks at a cost of $4,000, which is some of his earnings during a short career on the turf.—Yolo Democrat, Nov. 4th.

THE fastest time in the records of the English Derby was made by Persimmon, the course being covered in two minutes and forty-two seconds. The record had previously stood at two minutes and forty-five seconds, credited to Kettledrum in 1861, Blair Athol in 1864, Merry Hampton in 1887, Ayrshire in 1888, and Isinglass in 1893.

THE Harlem track has virtually gone into new hands. Yesterday P. Ryan, acting for Messrs. Anglin, Condon & Co. paid $70,00 and $2,650 interest on the first of two notes, the original installment upon which $20,000 was paid last spring. The Ryan syndicate also assumed a $60,000 note due two years hence.—Daily Racing Form, November 4th.

TORSION, the Torso-Ricardo gelding in the Spreckels sale of the 17th of November, is likely to bring the top price of the sale, as it is rumored Mr. Spreckels refused $2,500 for him. This is one of the horses at stake in the dice-shaking match at Sacramento, but Torsion is so good now there is no likelihood of his fate ever being determined by a rattling of "the bones."

THE first yearling sale of thoroughbreds at the Occidental Horse Exchange will be that of Charles Kerr on Monday night, the 22d of November—twenty-one youngsters reared at Antrim Stock Farm, near Bakersfield, Cal. Get a catalogue of Wm. G. Layng & Co., 313 Bush street. The yearlings are by Apache, Rio Bravo, Orizaba, imp. Calvados and Nomad, out of superbly bred mares.

NICK HALL saw his old idol, Floodmore, the other day at W. S. Hobart's San Mateo ranch, and, struck with the idea that the great jumper would stand training, asked Mr. H. to let him train him again. He acquiesced, and the greatest jumper ever seen in California, bought by Hall for $260 and sold for $7,000, will again be seen soaring over the timbers; at least Nick thinks Floodmore will stand training.

FOUR Duncombes have won races in England and Ireland up to August, and $4,720—Sligo ($2 600), Dunmorgan ($1,250) Roseal ($470) and the Wise Chief gelding ($400). Dunfanaghy ran second in a two and one-half miles steeplechase. Sligo won the Visitors' Welter Handicap at Newmarket and the Brighton High Weight Handicap. Dunmorgan was victorious at Nottingham and Catteridge Bridge, England.

B. C. HOLLY will send to the Occidental Horse Exchange, to be sold the same night the Macdonough yearlings are to be disposed of (December 20th), Kathleen, by Long Taw, Ninena (a winner and dam of a winner), by Jim Brown, Lucinda (sister to Wicklow), by Leinster, Aunt Jessie, by Baden Baden and a bay filly, 2, by St. Saviour—Glen Queen, by imp. King Ban. All the mares are in foal to the excellent race horse, El Rayo, son of Grinstead and Sunlit, by Monday.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "The thoroughbred yearlings at Charley Kerr's farm, which he is to send to your sale, are the finest looking ever seen in this part of California, and as they are from noted sires of race horses and from dams that have thrown winners, they should prove invaluable. Racing is here to stay, and every farmer who has any idea of making money should attend your well-advertised sales, select a few colts and fillies, and take care of them until next November, send them to the races and get some of the rich purses to be offered by the association. It only takes a few good races to bring out the merits of a thoroughbred, and if he is good, the price he will bring will pay for a farm."

DAN HONIG arrived Saturday morning from St. Louis. He brought Magnet out, and will endeavor to get a few more races out of the speedy son of St. Blaise. In the spring Magnet goes to the stud. Burns & Waterhouse have expressed a desire to breed half a dozen mares to the horse, and John Mackey would book twenty of the Rancho del Paso mares if the horse were sent to the great breding establishment.

THE only son of the greatest pugilist England ever had, Tom Sayers, is at Latonia. The scion of this great fighter is an owner. He only has one horse. It is Barbee. The son of England's champion pugilist has been in this country since 1872. He is not a chip of the old block, in stature at least. Tom Sayers, Jr., is a jockey instead of prize fighter. For years he rode at 100 pounds. He doesn't weigh over 130 pounds now.

THREE stakes were run off last week at Ingleside, and the winners were Altamax, St. Calatine and Marquis, sired by imp. Maxim, St. Carlo and Marquise. St. Calatine won easily, but Napamax was away so poorly in that race and finished so strong that her owners, Burns & Waterhouse, were anxious for a match, and the two superb fillies will meet on the first day at Oakland and settle the question of which is the better one of the pair.

THE South Australian sportsman, Mr. John Crozier, has had the ill fortune to lose his three-year-old colt, Concussion, who on Saturday succumbed to inflammation of the intestines. He was bred on similar lines to Aurum, being by Thunderbolt from Instep, thus combining the Musket and Footstep blood which courses so freely through the veins of the champion two-year-old. Concussion was thought to be a colt of considerable promise.

LONDON, November 9.—At the second days racing of the Lingfield Park November meeting J. V. Long's two-year-old colt Amherst, ridden by Tod Sloan, the American jockey, won the Cage selling Nursery handicap. Sixteen horses ran. August Belmont's bay filly Souveraine won the Catherham maiden two-year-old plate, Lord Dunraven's Cowl second, T. R. Dewar's Maid of Perth third. The race is for 100 sovereigns. There were eleven starters.

AN Irishman was shoeing a mustang near the Occidental Horse Exchange last Monday. The animal was branded with as many different brands as the different owners could find space for. But they did not cure his temper, so it was nip and tuck between an ugly bunch of muscle and bones and the impatient shoer. Finally the latter after vainly trying to tack on a hind shoe, said in a disgusted voice, "There, be gorra! kick away! kick away! I'm d———d if I ivir liked a harse covered wi'd writins' any way!"

THE California Jockey Club has arranged a very interesting race for the opening day, Monday week. E. D. McSweeney's chestnut filly St. Calatine and Colonel Burns' bay filly Napamax will try conclusions at six furlongs, each carrying 115 pounds. When the two fillies met in the stake race last Wednesday the St. Carlo filly got away well and won handily, but Napamax closed up a lot of ground and left it an open question as to whether she might not have won with an equal break. On that occasion they carried 120 pounds each.

W. W. WORTHINGTON, of Louisville, received a letter from his partner in Detroit to the effect that he had a bona fide cash offer of $2,500 for their good two-year-old filly, My Maryland, by Bramble out of Palianthus, which won several races at Fort Erie, and advising that they accept it. Mr. Worthington wired his partner to accept the offer. The sale is as good as made. The party who secures the filly gets a cheap animal. Mr. Worthington said that he would not have accepted the price but for the fact that he needs the money in his business. The have four yearlings at Lexington and one of them is a full brother of My Maryland. He is said to have worked a quarter over the Lexington track in 0:24, with 117 pounds up.

A NEW Marty Bergen extra dry jokelet blew in from New York yesterday. They were racing at one of the big tracks of the far East. In one particular race a horse had opened at 4 to 5, and notwithstanding a good play, had "gone back" to 5 to 1. In short, he was as dead as the proverbial door nail, "a mackerel, "a lobster" or whatever you might wish to call a horse that was "not meant." Marty Bergen and a friend were amongst the spectators gathered along the quarterstretch fence. When the field had gone an eighth of a mile there was daylight between every one of the contestants and the lobster was absolutely last. Bergen's side-partner remarked: "Looks like a funeral procession, don't it?" "Ya-as," drawled Marty, "but the hearse is on the wrong end."

A WELL-KNOWN Western gambler and turfman yesterday left New York for his home in San Francisco to be in at the races in his home city. Before he left he said to a number of friends in the Hoffman House that although Westerners have the reputation of being the nerviest bettors and gamblers in this country they must yield the palm to the Easterners now. He says that he knows personally that Pittsburg Phil last Friday at Morris Park took $140,000 out of the ring on three races. He backed Nautch Girl from 20 down to 6, Rhodesia from 15 down to 6, and wound up by placing $50,000 on his own horse. The Winner, knocking his price from evens to 3 to 5. And all these horses winning, he won the $140,000. Just before this he had his several bad days, but the most conservative of his intimates place his winnings on this season at $250,000.—Buffalo Enquirer.

CHARLIE REIFF'S return to the McLean stable promises to prove a benefit to the lad, who is beginning to show flashes of his old-time skill, says Domino in the Cincinnati Times-Star. Trainer Blackburn has taken Charlie in charge and promised him and engagement for next year if he will obey orders. He will require him to cut loose from evil influences, retire early at night, be out at daybreak to exercise the horses and reduce himself to weight by good, hard work. Before he joined the McLean stable several days ago, Reiff could not do under 112 pounds; Thursday he rode at 108. Riding requires a quick brain to be successful, and no boy who dissipates or keeps late hours can do other than begin to lose form. Reiff has shown in the past that he is competent, and if he will stick to Blackburn and remain away from associates who would keep him up late at night, he will save himself from becoming a has-been.

CHARLIE PATTERSON will winter at Memphis, not at Louisville, as the following extract from a letter written by him to a Lexington evening paper shows: "We will leave here for Montgomery Park about the 15th or 20th of November with quite a number of horses—Ornament, Hamburg, Plaudit, Howland, Benares, Fixed Star, Burlesque, Delhi and Chang. We will also have about twenty yearlings by such sires as Hanover, imp. Order, Bramble, Falsetto, Hindoo, Fonso, Leonatus, Sir Dixon, Fordham, Duke of Montrose, Candlemas, Great Tom, Pirate of Penzance, Onondaga and Isaac Murphy out of producing mares. Our yearlings are as nice a lot as ever I saw in one bunch, but I can hardly expect to get an Ornament or a Hamburg out of this lot. Ornament and Hamburg are doing fine, and, barring accidents, should win their share of the money next season. Of all the race tracks I have been to this season, Memphis had the best meeting and best attendance for the size of the town. Malvolio will also be entered at Memphis.

BEFORE the races began at Morris Park Tuesday, November 2d, J. J. McCafferty sold his horses in training with the exception of Requital and Gotham and a couple of yearlings. Following is a summary: Dutch Skater, b h, 6, by imp. Dutch Roller—Tena, F. D. Beard, $2.200; Saratoga, b f, 2, by Buchanan—Re-Echo, S. Levy, $900; Kitefoot, ch f, 2, by Buchanan—Longshore, W. Lakeland, $3,000; Peat, br g, by Jim Gore—Nannie D., J. McLaughlin, $2,200; Gala Day ch c, 2, by imp. Rayon d'Or—Glory, H. Hunn, $2,000; black colt, yearling, by imp. Darebin—Gondole, J. S. Wadsworth, $300; bay colt, yearling, by Bishop—Kennebec; F. Berlew, $500. The prices obtained were remarkably good. Frank Bean, who purchased Dutch Skater, will have him schooled for jumping, and a remarkably good 'cross country horse he will make. Nick Chandler, his trainer, has no superior as a schoolmaster for horses over the sticks. He will have ample time to educate the horses properly, for he has fully six months to school him.

MARCUS DALY is keeping good his promise of making wholesale reductions in the large number of horses at his Bitter Root stock farm, and sales are constantly being made. The latest purchase was that of J. S. Dougherty of Anaconda, who bought ten of the best brood mares on the ranch, and it is evidently his purpose to go into the breeding and racing business on a much larger scale than was anticipated last summer. The following is a list of his purchases: Palfiena, b m, by Hyder Ali—Pandora; Barmaid, ch m, by imp. The Ill Used—Bahama; Homeless, b m, by Uncas—imp. Sweet Home; Model, ch m, by imp. Sir Modred—Mollie Walton; Caravel, br m, by Hidalgo—imp. Camilla; Nominal, ch m, by imp. Inverness—imp. Namesake; Wyoming, b m, by imp. Sir Modred—Wanda; Alice Himyar, b m, by Himyar—Ailee; Bandana, b m, by imp. Darebin—Bessie Peyton; Mascot, b m, by imp. Glenelg—Mignon. The mares are all in foal to Tammany, imp. Inverness and other sires of the Bitter Root harem. The large purchases of Daly stock by local horsemen augurs well for next summer's racing in Montana.

HANDICAPPER J. W. BROOKS announces the following weights for the opening handicap to be run Monday next at Oakland: The Opening Handicap, purse $1,000—a handicap for three-year-olds and upwards; entrance $10; $25 additional for horses not declared by the time of closing the entries November 13, 1897. The California Jockey Club to guarantee the value of the stake to be $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Weights to be published in November 9th; declarations to be made to the Secretary at the track before 12 o'clock (noon), Saturday, November 13th; one mile, Ruinart 122, Tea Rose III 102, Argentina 100, Libertine 112, Crescendo 102, Thelma 90, Dura 85, Con Moto 95, Candelaria 98, Caspar 105, Colonel Wheeler 103, Mt. McGregor II 115, Sweet Faverdale 100, Shasta Water 100, Altamax 112, Truxillo 105, Etta H. 102, Installator 117, Vinctor 116, Hohenzollern 101, The Roman 105, Flashlight 112, News Gatherer 108, Senator Bland 118, Loch Ness 103, Wheel of Fortune 112, Fortunate 96, Chartreuse II 90, Mamie Scott 94, Sly 91, imp. Trance 100, Naranja 90, Grady 115, 'Ostler Joe 114, Satsuma 110, Greyhurst 107, Aquinas 103, Schiller 105, Lady Hurst 96, Lode Star 96, Summertime 100, Ike L. 90, Horatio 101.

WHEN Marcus Daly named the most expensive failure he ever bought, the colt by Hampton—Cherry, Matt Byrnes, after his favorite trainer, he little thought that the name might become world famous in turf annals. Still such may be the case, for the brown son of Hampton has been repurchased from the Montana millionaire by his original owner, the rich London banker, Broderick Cloete. Mr. Cloete is reported to have paid $25,000 for the popular trainer's namesake, but it is more than probable that his check for that amount also covered the purchase money for the six brood mares he selected at the same time from the Bitter Root Stud. Even if this was not the case, Mr. Cloete could well afford to give a large sum for Cherry's handsome son, for when he was sold at auction as a yearling at Doncaster, England, Mr. Daly had to bid the extravagant price of 6,000 guineas to become his owner. As a race horse Matt Byrnes was a failure, for, though considered a likely winner of the American Derby won by Rey el Santa Anita, he did not even start in that race, trouble with his feet preventing his astute trainer from preparing him for the event. The same trouble, which is by no means uncommon among horses imported from England, prevented him from ever distinguishing himself as a race horse, but, according to Johnny Campbell, who manages Mr. Daly's Anaconda ranch, he has now outgrown it and developed into a magnificent specimen of a thoroughbred. He goes to England to take the place of dead Paradox, with whom the London banker won the Two Thousand, and ran second to Melton for the Derby, at the head of that gentleman's select stud. Matt Byrnes' sire, Hampton, is too well known to need description. His dam, Cherry, was by Sterling, out of Merry Duchess, by The Duke. She was herself a good race mare, and was full sister to Enthusiast, who took the Two Thousand Guineas for Mr. Douglas Baird in 1889, in this race gaining the honor of beating the famous Donovan, a task no other horse was ever equal to. That a horse bred like Matt Brynes must prove a successful sire when crossed with such mares as compose the Cloete stud goes without saying. It is much to be regretted, however, that such a grand individual should ever be allowed to return to his native shores, for we need him, and more like him, here.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Spreckels Sale of Next Wednesday.

Everything is now in readiness at the Occidental Horse Exchange for the sale of the Spreckles thoroughbreds, thirty-four in number. Great interest is manifested in this particular sale, because all the horses are in active training, in the hands of a successful handler of horses, "Big Jim"Garland, and besides, about one dozen in the consignment are performers whose merits are well known to most of our turfmen and race-goers. Being trained up to within three days of the sale, buyers can enter the horses in races and win many of them out in perhaps less than a week.

No such offering of useful racers was ever made in California. It is not like buying an "unknown quantity," for the capabilities of those that have not been raced will be told about on the night of the sale. The records of those that have appeared in public is given in the catalogue.

Marcel, the first galloper catalogued, has won 32 races and $11,020. She is engaged in stakes worth about $25,000 at the two big tracks here, and her chance of winning the Ingleside stakes, four miles, is of the rosiest description, for she is a "stayer" of the first water. Marcel has run some great long-distance races. She was beaten but a head in 2:07¼ at a mile and a quarter, and won a two-mile stake race in 3:32½, 105 pounds, eased up. She could have run the distance in about 3:30 that day. She only lost the Ingleside stakes here last spring through the over-confidence of her jockey. And when Marcel is through racing she should be worth several thousands of dollars as a brood mare, for she is by the great Luke Blackburn from Martica, by Daniel Boone (brother to Gilroy and Kentucky, latter sold for $40,000). Luke Blackburn won 22 races in 24 starts as a three-year-old, and his get have won over $500,000 on the turf of this country. Proctor Knott, Young Luke and Rambler were amongst his progeny. Marcel comes from the same family as Miss Ford, Surinam, Princess Lorraine, Reporter, Zoo Zoo and News Gatherer.

Foremost is fully as heavily engaged as Marcel, so that Trainer Garland must think mighty well of him. Foremost's brother Nero, nine years old, is a good winner this season.

Gallant, winner of over $6,000 on the flat, victor over Lissak, Magnet, Ed Kearney, Wheel of Fortune and many other celebrities, is in the list. He is a well-schooled timber-topper, and is very likely to win over the sticks, if not on the flat.

Olive, the beautiful big Apache mare, winner of over $9,000 in less than three seasons on the turf, as sound as a dollar, will, without doubt,elicit some lively bidding.

Pat Murphy, Torsion, George Palmer, Frank James and Florimel complete the list of horses three years old and upwards. All are as fit as a clever trainer's hands can make them, and beyond a doubt will render a good account of themselves at any early date.

Among the two-year-olds in the sale entitled to special mention are Maxlone, Imperious, Con Fianza, Little T. G., Salvail, Aluminum, Satossa, Makawao, Racio and Georgies.

Maxlone is pronounced a stake horse of the very highest class by competent judges, and will surely cause an unloosening of purse strings when he is led into the ring.

Con Fianza's dam, Mystery by Three Cheers, won three Derbies.

Imperious, a great, rangy fellow, by the peerless Morello, from the dam of Greyhurst, Braw Scot, La Reina and Grandee is one of the likeliest two-year-old maidens in the country.

Little T. G. is a winner and one of the fleetest fillies in the two-year-old division.

Salvail is by the mighty Salvator from the great the champion Fashion, Reality, Bonnie Lizzie, Surprise stake-winner Ailee, by imp. Hurrah, and of the family of and Revenge.

Satossa is a filly by St. Saviour (sire of Gilead, De Bracey, etc.) from imp. Atossa, a winner by the Melbourne Cup victor, Dunlop.

Makawao is by the good race horse, Almont (winner of nearly $12,000), out of the winner, Folly, sister to the great Sinfax.

Aluminum (by imp. Idalium—Glitter) won at Ingleside last spring and was also victorious at Sacramento last September.

Racio is a gelding by the phenomenal race horse, Racine, out of Fidelia (winner of the Vestal Stakes, etc.), by Flood, her dam the great Flirt, by Hermit winner of the Derby).

Georgies is a bay filly by Prince of Norfolk (sire of Rey Alfonso, Tigress, etc.), out of Lady Cleveland, by King Alfonso (sire of Foxhall, Fonso, etc.).

The horses in this great sale arrived at the Occidental Horse Exchange last evening, and we will take pleasure in showing them to intending purchasers The sale takes place next Wednesday night. Buyers should come early so as to get a seat as near the ring as possible.

The horses can be secured for ten per cent. of the purchase price of animals and security satisfactory to Mr. A B. Spreckels, and surely this will please those that would like to secure these horses.

The Kerr Sale of November 22.

On the above date twenty-one yearling thoroughbreds from the Antrim Stock Farm of Charles Kerr will be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange. Mr. Kerr has been in the business of breeding horses but a few years, still he has had the pleasure of rearing many gallopers of renown and money-earning capacity, including Olive ($9,110), Mobalaska ($8,795), Crawford ($6,040), J. O.C. (over $6,000), San Emegdio ($4,350), and Semele ($3,070.) Lorena II won stakes at both Sacramento and Los Angeles, while Lena has captured six races since July 1st.

The stallions with representatives in this sale are Apache, imp. Calvados, Orizaba, Rio Bravo and Nomad.

Among the mares with foals in this sale are Belle Platte (half sister to Jennie K.), Blondinette, Catherine B. (winner of 50 races), Celia, Eileena (dam of Viking), Idaho, Irene (dam of J. O. C.), Lena (dam of Castake and Tacoma), My Badge (sister to Badge and dam of Coupon), Nadavis (sister to Catalpa, Dungarven and Mable Glenn), Nellie K. by Tyrant, Play Toy (sister to Tournament), Rillito (sister to Antrim), Rosabella by King Alfonso, Sweet by Hanover, Virginia Dare (sister to Olive), and Why Not (dam of the winners Misty Morn, Patricia and Investigator III.)

On the same night Carrie M., Haroldine and Posey, property of Mrs. C. A. Posey, of Oakland, will be sold to the highest bidder.

P. C. J. C. Entries.

On Monday, November 15th, entries to the additional stakes that are to be decided at Ingleside between January 1st and May 1st will close. There are eighteen stakes in all, and are for all distances from four furlongs to four miles and the purses are from $1,000 upward. It is of vital importance to every owner of thoroughbreds to make entries in the splendid stakes. It enhances the value of the winners besides being the means of bringing out the true merits of every horse entered The advertisement in our business column, conveys all the information regarding these stakes that is needed. Entry blanks may be obtained from the Secretary, F. H. Green, Parlor A, Palace Hotel. We earnestly hope horse owners will not overlook those valuable stakes. They all want to own stake winners. It is an honor everyone interested desires. Here is an opportunity to give your horses a chance to become famous. Remember entries close next Monday.

On Tuesday, November 30th, Messrs. Killip & Co. will sell at the Pleasanton Stock Farm, Pleasanton, Cal., all the horses, sulkies, road carts, harnesses, blankets, etc., belonging to the Pleasanton Stock Farm Company. This will be an opportunity to get very valuable material at a very low figure.

The Nelson Sale.

The greatest interest is being taken among all lovers of light harness horses in the sale of J. M. Nelson's trotters and pacers which is to take place next Monday November 15th at 10 a. m. A partial list of those to be disposed of appears in this issue and as a large number of catalogues have been issued a good crowd is anticipated.

It is seldom that such really first-class trotters and pacers have been offered. Lustre, 2:22½, Challenger Chief,2:15,Fallacy,2:17½, Bessie Rankin,2:16,Wow,2:21½ Daylight 2:22½, Orland 2:23¾, and a score of others with trials better than 2:30. These trotters and pacers are bred in the most fashionable lines and all of them, without an exception, are fit to be taken in hand and prepared for the next season's races.

There are single roadsters and double teams that are finer than any ever led into an auction ring in California. Besides, there will be some extra good horses suitable for business purposes. The sale takes place at 10 A. M. at the Alameda race track, Bay station, (broadguage), and whether rain or shine Mr. Nelson says there will be no postponement. Here's an opportunity for those seeking fine horses to get just what they have been looking for, and by purchasing now they can rest assured they will never get as fine horses at such figures again. Remember this is the last notification of this great sale.

The Palo Alto Sale.

On Friday, November 26th, at the Occidental Horse Exchange, thirty-one yearlings from Palo Alto Farm and the successful sire imp. Cyrus, will be disposed of at auction. The youngsters, pronounced a very fair lot, are by imp. Loyalist (sire of Dunboy), Flambeau, Racine and Flood. The recent wins of Dunboy, by Loyalist, Joe Terry, by Flambeau, and Fashion Plate, by Racine, will cause good prices to be secured for the youngsters. Amongst the mares with foals in this sale might be mentioned imp. Fairy Rose, Flirtation, Rosecub, Pow Wow, imp. Amalia and Cuba, latter dam of Argyle and Conquest. Many celebrities have been bred at this great breeding establishment, among the notabilities being Fairy, Racine, Rinfax, Guenn, Flint and Nomad.

Coney Island Jockey Club.

The entries to the three big stakes advertised in this issue by this sterling organization, are advertised for the last time in this issue, as they will close Monday. The Foam Stakes $1,000 added for two-year-old foals of 1896. The Surf for two-year-olds, $1,500 added, foals of 1896 and for the June meeting The Tidal, $1,500, for three-year-olds, foals of 1896. Entry blanks may be obtained from Ralph H. Tozer representing the Breeder and Sportsman at the Ingleside and Oakland tracks, or at this office. Remember this is the last notification.

The formation of the Master Horse Shoers Association of San Francisco is one of the most important events that has occurred in the ranks of the members of this craft. In all large cities of the East similar organizations are in existence and their influence is wide-spreading and beneficial, not only to themselves, but to every horseowner, farmer and stock breeder. At the meetings in this city no doubt many of the leading scientific horse shoers of America will be invited to lecture upon shoeing, while veterinarians will also be called upon to describe and illustrate for the benefit of those present the structural growth of the horse's foot. When laws are needed to protect these hard working men for their labor the same as those which protect every other trade in California. We earnestly hope this organization will increase in numbers and strength, for it is much needed in California. We congratulate the founders of it for the thoughtful and energetic manner in which they have started in to make this association a success.

The telephonic reports of the great Cleveland sale are so meagre that we will wait and publish full particulars in our next issue. We understand the average received for the California horses was in the neighborhood of $350.

All of the horses owned by Thos. Brown, Esq., of the Bank of California and which were purchased by Dan McCarty, will be sold by public auction at Fresno, December 4th.

Special attention is called to the sale of F. W. Loeber's sale of fine trotting stock. They are offered at remarkably low prices. Write him for further particulars.

THE Trotter and Pacer says: For several recent years what was to become of the range horse of the West has been a much discussed question. The general consensus of expressed opinion has been that the range horse must go. Indeed it is not so long ago that we had ample reports of range horses being sold in great numbers in Oregon and Washington for three or four dollars each for canning purposes, but this enterprise proved a failure. We are pleased to notice recently in a Montana paper that Dr. W. M. Bruette, special commissioner of animal industry of the Department of Agriculture, who has been investigating this subject, is of the opinion that the range horse will work out his own salvation. He finds the range horse a remarkably well developed and hardy animal, and believes a foreign demand can be created for them, more especially as cavalry horses. In a recent long distance test between the two types known as bronchos and rangers, it was demonstrated that the Western range horse can travel 2,400 miles in ninety days and subsist on grass and water along the route without grain, and without being shod. Already the French Government has brought range horses to the test for military purposes, and it is believed their rugged endurance will be recognized by European nations, and that they will be in demand abroad for cavalry use. Should this desirable result come about, it would mean great profit to the ranchmen of the far northwest where these horses literally roam in thousands and have for years sought a market in vain. It is not any trick for a Montana rancher to ride or drive 60 to 100 miles in a day, and it would appear that horses capable of this should be almost the ideal type for military service. The range horse is not wholly lovely in all his ways, but we should be glad to see him find his place and his value in the world's affairs.

The Success of Green Horses.

Perhaps the most wonderful feature of the season's racing is the wonderful success of such green horses as The Monk, 2:08¼, Rilma, 2:10, The Abbott, 2:11¼, and many more which are not only among the largest winners of the year, but have raced against the best of old brigade and trotted fully as fast as those who have the advantage of several years track experience. Time was when a really good horse could be campaigned year after year, and by reducing his record a little each season win in his class, but now it is a single step from the three-minute class to the free-for-all and a horse which is campaigned through the big circuit and wins, is reasonably sure to land there in one or two seasons.

The tendency of late years, says an exchange, is to get all there is out of a horse in as short a time as possible, and instead of following the old idea of educating and racing horses into condition in races, owners now prefer to train them over the home tracks until they have arrived at approximatety their best speed and have gained experience which will enable them to win. One often hears it remarked how many horses fail to improve their records made the first season out. Certainly outside of the colt classes very few of the really good horses of each season reduce their records more than a second or two. Better methods of training and improved appliances have much to do with this result, but the principal reason for it is the fact that it is the most profitable.

To prove that this is so is only necessary to go through the list of each year's big winners, Many of them are sold at the end of the season at long prices and how few of them afterwards come up to expectations. At the pace at which they have to go to win nowadays a horse's first season on the turf is about the best. It is evident that shrewd breeder C. J. Hamlin appreciates this, as it is announced that in the future the entire Village Farm racing stable will be disposed of at auction at the end of the season and an entirely new lot of horses campaigned each year. It would hardly seem possible that material for this could be found on one farm, but the wonderfully good lot which Geers brought out this season goes to show that it can he done. One advantage of this scheme is that it will enable them to develop everything of promise on the farm.

Driving.

The first requisites of a good driver are a cool head, a watchful eye and a ready finger, with a quick understanding of the needs and requirements of his horse, says Our Animal Friends. He must also be ready to detect any object by the roadside that would be likely to annoy the horse, and to comprehend in a glance the character of the road that lies ahead of him. No quick-tempered, loud-voiced man can expect to have a quiet, obedient horse, and the undue haste of the impatient driver to correct what seems to him misbehavior is one of the reasons why so many horses are dangerous to drive. Much of the abuse, however, to which the horse is subjected arises more from ignorance and carelessness than from wanton cruelty. Few persons give proper attention to the details of driving, forgetting that it is attention to detail which makes the difference between the expert driver and the unskilled.

Before starting out for a long drive you should examine the horse, the harness and the vehicle. The bit should be as easy a one as possible; the harness must be comfortable and well fitting. Do not use a check rein if the road is long and hilly; but should a check-rein be necessary, uncheck the horse before ascending the hill, when going through muddy roads and also when you stop, as it is natural for him to lower his head when he makes an extra exertion, and also to droop it when he is resting. A horse should not only be allowed to walk slowly along the steep or muddy parts of the road, but also occasionally on level ground; the change from one set of muscles to another rests him.

When a horse begins to feel fatigue he will strike one of his hoofs against the opposite ankle, often bruising and cutting it. As it is generally one of the hind ankles, an ankle boot should be worn during a long drive, even if it be unnecessary on other occasions.

Two other indispensable articles for a long drive are a wooden scraper for removing foam and a hoof pick for dislodging stones. For one who is often on the road it is wise also to have a few pieces of stout cord, a coil of thin rope,and some brass wire and nails, as with these in his possession anyone of a little ingenuity can quickly repair ordinary damages.

It is a well-known fact that horses in traveling should have water frequently in reasonable quantities. If you drive slowly for awhile after watering your horses no injurious results will follow, and they may be refreshed by a few mouthfuls of grain, hay or grass. Should you chance to stop where there is a strong breeze blowing, blanket your horse, even if the weather is warm. Do not at any part of a long trip yield to the temptation of racing with passing teams; for a quickening of a horse's steady "road gait" to racing speed heats him unnecessarily, and, if done frequently, is very fatiguing.

The manner of holding the reins in the hands is really of little moment, provided that a firm grasp on them is secured; but is well to cultivate what the English call "hands," which is really a light, firm grasp of the reins, bearing no weight on the animal's mouth, but keeping him always under perfect control. Never saw, or jerk upon the reins, nor flap them on the animal's back; if you wish him to increase his pace speak to him, if he does not respond, touch him lightly with the whip. Accustom him to stand quietly until you have taken your seat and are ready to proceed, then start him slowly and gently and quicken his pace by degrees.

Remember always that your mood communicates itself to your horse. Be gentle, patient and cheerful in your manner toward him, and allow him to derive as much comfort as possible from the drive.

HOOF-BEATS.

ROLLINS, a race winner at Lexington, Ky., is by Fresno from Rosette.

W. H. CHEPPU, the veteran Kentucky bookmaker,breeder and racing man, arrived Thursday.

THE Burns & Waterhouse barn at Emeryville has been repainted and presents a much more pleasing appearance than formerly.

GARNET FERGUSON has had the eight Kentucky yearlings he brought out broken, and boys ride them every day on the Emeryville track.

SALLIE CLICQUOT, by Salvator, won a mile race at Washington Thursday, track heavy. Premier, another Californian, finished third in the race.

STARTER FERGUSON still talks of bringing the horses of his Kingston Stud to California. He owns Prince Royal, imp. St. George and some of the best-bred mares in the country.

THE veteran horseman, George Howson, has February, Sleepy Jane and a two-year-old filly by Fellowcharm in training at Emeryville track. February was a warm filly at Sacramento, running six furlongs in 1:13½.

MALVILIO,owned by Jake Marklein and John Fahey,died at Cumberland Park, Nashville, Tenn., last Wednesday night of catarrhal fever. He was one of the best two-year-olds in the West, and the owners recently refused $10,000 for him.

PAT CORRIGAN, the well-known turfman of the middle West, a brother to Ed. arrived yesterday, and will spend the winter in the land by the sunset sea. He did not bring any racers and says he does not intend buying any, but those best acquainted with the veteran turfman say he will pick up a few flyers sure.

THE finest place in California to winter horses is the Brentwood Stock Farm. All of Corrigan's and Linnell's horses were pastured there and these owners will tell how well satisfied they were with this spiendid place. The terms for keeping horses are very reasonable. Horses can be left at Morshead's City Front stables and will be taken from there direct to the farm.

THE Horse Review says, concerning the late J. W.Knox, that he showed "that his (Arion's) grandam was Addie, instead of the Middletown Mare." With the trifling exceptions that Mr. Knox showed, not Addie to be, but on the contrary not to be the grandam of Arion, and that no person ever got the Middleton Mare mixed up in the matter, with which she had no more connections than had the Godolphin Arabia, our contemporary's remarkable statement is approximately correct.

MATT BYRNES the celebrated trainer, retired from the Bitter Root stark farm and with his wife left for the East on Monday. At Easton, N. J., Mr. Byrnes has a good stud farm and some famous sprinters. Here he will reside. Before leaving Hamilton, Matt Byrnes announced that he had permanently retired from the turf. J. J. Moran has left the employ of the Bitter Root stock farm and proposes to establish a public training stable in his Sleeping Child ranch. A first-class three-quarter mile track and a 10 stall stable will shortly be constructed and fitted up with all modern appliances, and Mr. Moran will receive horses for training. Mr. Moran is widely known as one of the best trainers and finest horsemen in America and will no doubt attract patronage that will insure his venture to be handsomely remunerative from the start. A number of horsemen have already engaged his services.—Hamilton (Mont.) News.

SEVENTEEN years ago Sweetheart and Fred Crocker electrified the horse world by beating 2:30 as two-year-olds, and people began to think there must have been some witchery in the California climate or the California grass when the unheard of feat of two-year-olds beating 2:30 was reported from the Golden Shore. In 1897, so far, twenty-one of the newcomers in the 2:30 list are two-year-olds. Verily, in the words of Horace Greeley, "progress is a law of our being."

WHILE the American horses are proving their superiority over all on the lines on which they were bred, viz, speed, their Australian cousins are also demonstrating to the world their superior stamina and gameness over a distance. By the latest English files we see Mrs. Langtry's br h Merman, for which she paid $8,000, after winning the Lewes Handicap, valued at $6,000, was specially prepared for the Cesarewitch, which he won, carrying 103 pounds, and establishing a world's record for the distance, two and one-quarter miles and 32 yards, negotiated in the wonderfully fast time of 3:57 2-5, and this over an English turf track. This means the journey was accomplished at the rate of 16 7-8 yards per second, which would bring the two and one quarter miles down to 3:55 3-5, which would eclipse the American record made by Springbok and Preakness in their memorable dead heat, each carrying 114 lbs., in 3:56¼.

AT the second day's racing at the Liverpool autumn meeting, Dr. Seymour's five-year-old bay mare Sapling, ridden by Tod Sloan, the American jockey, won the Liverpool Stewards' Plate by a length and a half. The race is for 350 sovereigns, for three-year-olds and upwards. There were ten horses and the distance was nearly six furlongs. R. O. Oswald's Dule Tree was second and Sir S. Scott's Advourlie third. The betting before the start was 9 to 1 against Advourlie and 10 to 1 against Sapling. Sloan has won high approval here and the newspapers which formerly criticised him acknowledge that he is a great rider. The "Globe" says: However ugly Sloan's style, it pays, and we must admit that he is a perfect artist in the saddle and that at his weight we have little stock in this country to cope with him. The 'Sun" says: Even the most prejudiced are forced to admit that he knows how to beat most of our men when his mount is good enough. There is something in his method deserving of consideration.--London (Eng.) dispatch, Nov. 11.

A WRITER in the Philadelphia Ledger recalls an interesting reminiscence: "Electioneer has sired 161 trotters and two pacers since the day the master of Palo Alto first sat under the oaks of Stony Ford. Horse and master sleep under the lone pines, while the soft winds of the Occident gently caress their lofty branches and sing an eternal requiem for the horse and man. Messenger Duroc has also gone the way of all horseflesh, survived, however, by his owner. Messenger Duroc has only twenty-two sons and daughters that have trotted or paced in 2:30 or better, as against the 163 of Electioneer. The writer chanced to be in Senator Stanford's library a few hours after he had parted with Arion, 2:10¾, at two years, to J. Malcolm Forbes, of Ponkapos, Mass. The great breeder and financier was in a meditative mood. Finally he broke the silence of several seconds and remarked: "Perhaps I have made a great mistake in parting with that colt. But Mr. Forbes was so insistent in the matter. Then, again, I thought of how much good I might do with that $125.000 he offered me by giving it to tho Leland Stanford Jr., University for the education of young men. As I continued to dwell upon this phase of the question my resolution not to part with the animal melted away.' Then raising his huge frame slowly from his chair (for he was a veritable giant--a noble physical specimen even in his declining years) he said as he paced the floor: 'That colt will make a great sire!'"

The Season Reviewed.

Although the season about to close has been the most notable in the history of the harness horse, it is a peculiar fact that for the first time the pacers occupy the most prominent part in the history of the year's doings. The phenomenal record-breaking feats of the champion, Star Pointer, and the hardly less remarkable performances of Joe Patchen, John R. Gentry, Robert J., and numerous lesser lights of the pacing division, have monopolized public attention almost to the exclusion of the more aristocratic trotter.

Nevertheless, the season's trotting, taken as a whole, has been noteworthy and shows a normal advance in the general speed average of the various class contests, with numerous records made. The disparity in extreme speed, however, between the two gaits has been so noticeable that for the time being the plebian pacer must be accorded first place in the annals of harness racing. The immense gap between 2:07¾, the fastest trotting record of the season, and the 1:59½ of Star Pointer is simply a peculiar incident of the season which an analysis of the year's records will show to be abnormal. The total failure of the free-for-all trotting division was one of the remarkable features of the year. Of the half-dozen or more which at the opening of the season gave promise of sensational trotting in the open class, but one, William Penn 2:07½, actually entered the campaigning list, and his best mile, the fastest of the year, was 2:07¾, a half second slower than his own record. Of the others, Alix 2:03¾ and Azote 2:04¾, would not stand training. Fantasy, after Geers had used his utmost efforts to prepare for a fast mile, was sent home. Beuzetta, likewise, failed to stand the test. Of the others, Onoqua was reported to be in good shape, but was never started.

Of the forty-eight living trotters in the 2:10 list at the close of last season, but one, Dan Cupid, made any reduction in record, and he cut but a quarter of a second from his former record of 2:09½. But while the fast list remained practically unchanged, so far as reductions are considered, the addition of new material was notable, there being thus far a total of nineteen newcomers to the 2:10 list. Of these the fastest is the chestnut mare Grace Hastings, by Bayonne Prince, dam Emma K. 2:33, by Burger, who reduced her record from 2:12 to 2:08. Next to her in the list of additions to the fast ones is the great four-year-old The Monk, by Chimes, dam Goldfinch, by Mambrino King, whose record of 2:08½, made in the great Transylvania Stake at Lexington was not only the fastest heat ever trotted in that event, but was also the fastest mile ever made by a four-year-old gelding, and the best mile ever made by a trotter in his first season. Although the trotting of two-year-olds is not as common as a few years back, most of the breeders being opposed to early training, the present year has been an exceptionally satisfactory one, both as to the number and quality of the baby racers. Over a score have trotted in 2:30 or better, while the best of the year, the filly Janie T., by Bow Bells, dam Nida, by Monon, easily surpassed the best previous performances of her age and sex. The best previous record made by a two-year-old filly was 2:15¾, held jointly by Silicon and Impetuous. This mark Janie T. reduced in successive races first to 2:15½, then to 2:14. Another of the season's two-year-old fillies, Nowaday, by Lookaway, secured a race record of 2:16½, while the two-year-old colt, Amby, by Ambassador, trotted a mile in 2:16¾. The three-year-old division was also of an exceptionally high class calibre, the chestnut colt, Crescens 2:11¼, by Robert McGregor, being by all odds the best of his age ever seen on the track, while Thorn, American Belle, Hastings and several others of the same age will stand comparison with the best of any previous season. Among the season's notable record-breaking performances, that of trotting the mare Elloree 2:09½, by Axtell, dam Flora McGregor, by Robert McGregor, is most prominent. Her mile in 2:10 hitched to a road wagon was a reduction of 6¾ seconds from the former record to wagon.

Aside from the lack of free-for-all trotters, the number and quality of the racing material was exceptionally high, and the average racing speed far in excess of previous seasons, the effect of which is fully appreciated by the examination of the season's records. Even the comparatively fast time of 2:15 has been beaten no less than by 120 new performers during the present year, while numerous reductions have been made by those previously within that limit

The importance of the purchases recently made by the foreigners this season cannot be too lightly estimated, for it shows that all the trotters sent abroad in the past have been satisfactory, and as many were bought for speculation the original purchasers must have made money or they would not be so eager to buy again. America is now very well represented in Europe by first class trotters, and judging from the summaries of the races trotted throughout the continent they have held their own and done credit to their native country. The purchase of the good mare Countess Eve is bound to stimulate the Europeans to buy more of our best, for she is not only extremely fast, but steady as well, and is a mare of high form and considerable beauty.

The Japanese made a few purchases but they selected with great care and the animals shipped to the Orient are bound to attract marked attention and will redound great credit to their breeders. This purchase by the Japanese must open up a new field for the American trotter, and doubtless the land of the Mikado will, in the near future, contain many representatives of the most useful horses known; and judging from what was said by Mr. Nyeyama while in Lexington, trotting races will soon be held throughout his country. Nothing can help the breeding industry as well as these importations. With the natural demand in this country for the best, and the scarcity of the latter article, combined with the demand from Europe, the really first-class trotting horse will have a great value, for there is no use denying the fact, the first-class material is comparatively scarce in this country and will continue to be so for several years to come. The chief reason is that the percentage of mares that have been bred in the last few years is small, and mares of inferior quality have been thrown out of the various breeding farms. This leaves only the better class to do stud duty, and the consequence is that the number of youngsters being trained has been reduced to a few, compared with former years.

This sifting out of the inferior mares will have its effect, and for that matter has had already, for the yearlings throughout Kentucky are a much better lot individually than has been seen heretofore, and they have been more carefully bred. The misshapen, coarse brood mare that was once used for stud purposes is now almost valueless. Men are no longer willing to pay stiff service fees for mares of inferior individuality, merely because they were well-bred. The thoughtful breeder is anxious to produce something above the ordinary, and he now knows that to do this he cannot breed promiscously. The depression that came in 1892 and 1893, although terrible in its effect, cannot but work a benefit to the horse industry in the end. The better class of horses will be bred, and it is simply a question of the survival of the fittest as regards the horses themselves.

Stallions of merit have gradually forged to the front, while those of no capacity have sunk into oblivion. Mares with good breeding and good form have been given a chance to show their ability to produce, and the result will soon be seen. Doubtless the average trotter of five years from now will be a much higher formed animal than that of to-day. There was a time when almost any animal, no matter how illy formed would command a good price if the pedigree was all that could be asked. All this has been changed, and the royally bred youngster in America, if he is unsound and a bad individual, would either be passed out of the ring or sold for a song. Horses, and particularly young ones, are looked upon with little interest while in the sale ring unless they can show evidence of speed. This is as it should be, for as buyers become more critical the breeders must be more particular.

When some favorite mare produces a small, misshapen colt, it may be very disappointing to the owner, but he must not expect the public to give him a good price for it. He must try again. Last year at one of the great English sales of thoroughbreds, a colt by a Derby winner and out of a mare that had won the Oaks stakes for $200. This year a a full brother brought $17,500. The first was a bad looking thing, while the last was well formed. "Breed for a type" has often been quoted, and it is a good maxim, for as soon as the American trotter becomes a distinct type its value will be doueled.—N. Y. Sun.

Trotters in Honolulu.

In the neighborhood of one thousand dollars has been contributed toward the Kapiolani Park Race Track fund. Several hundred dollars more are needed before there will be sufficient money to put the track in first-class condition, says the Honolulu Star.

As yet the donors, with very few exceptions, are those who are constantly called upon to dig up for the success of horse racing in Honolulu. They include such men as Judge Widemann, W. H. Cornwell, W. M. Cunningham, J. C. Quinn, Major Chas. J. McCarty, Gus Schuman, James Dodd, M. H. Norton, John S. Walker, Cecil Brown, S. G. Wilder and several others.

Said a prominent horseman to day: "A little investigation develops the fact that merchants profit very largely from the holding of a fair and race meeting in their town, especially in Honolulu. The merchants generally are loud in their praises of the race meets for seemingly everyone has money to spend on these occasions, and wants to buy something with it. The business of any city should always contribute liberally toward the support of their local association for in ordinary times they may rest assured what they give will come back again with handsome interest."

After an adequate amount has been raised a committee will be chosen whose duty it will be to have the track put into the best possible shape for the money they have on hand. The track is to have a soft clay top, and is to be leveled, necessitating the raising of the track from the five-eighths pole to the three-quarters pole. Considerable work will be needed from the wire to the three-quarter pole.

The suggestion to have the race meets in the spring and fall is being received with favor from all sides. It is contended by many that such an arrangement would give considerable impetus to horse racing in the Islands. That it would please the owners of the animals competing is certain.

The coming meet promises to be the best ever known in Hawaii. In addition to those animals which have competed in the past three or four years, there will be new blood which will give a new life to the races.

Some of these animals are already known. Gus Schuman's Hawaiian bred mare Juda will compete. Jim Quinn's 290 Girl, a speedy pacer from the Coast will have her friends. E. C. Macfarlane has received a clever horse from Adolph Spreckels' string, which he will probably enter, Ed McInerney's new mare, Wisteria, may surprise some of the old Island horses. Charles David has a swift gray mare pacer. John Grace's sorrel and bay colts, one pacer and the other a trotter, which arrived with a shipment of horses from the Coast recently, have been seen and admired by a good many horsemen.

Colonel Cornwell, it is said, will bring some new horses with him from the Coast when he returns this fall.

Limerick, 2:19 1-2.

The champion two-year-old trotting gelding of 1897, is a bay with black points, and is a horse of much substance as well as quality. He started first at Goshen, N. Y., in the match made last winter by his owner and Mr. E. H. Harriman. He won the race, but subsequent events showed that luck played an important part in his race, as Nowaday had much the most speed. Limerick is a colt of unusual gameness, and although there were several two-year-olds out the past season that had more speed than he, none showed more determination or race horse quality. His victory in the stake at Lexington showed his quality for he won the race on his merits by simply out-gaming his opponent. Limerick was bred by his owner, Marcus Daly, at the Bitter Root Farm in Montana, and was brought East last winter by his trainer, Ben Kenney. His action while frictionless seems a little strained, and he does not strike one as being a colt that will ever attain an extremely high rate of speed, but he can always be depended on to do his best, and will often beat horses that have more speed than he. Limerick is by Prodigal, the richly-bred son of Pancoast and Beatrice, and is therefore a full brother to Patron. Prodigal's success has been very pronounced and he seems to sire early speed with great uniformity, having in addition to Limerick the good mare China Silk and India Silk, as well as several other fast youngsters. The dam of Limerick is Annie Wilton, by Wilton, dam Anna B, by Hambletonian Mambrino, and the cross seems to have been an excellent one, Limerick having much of the finish of the Wilton family. The way the Prodigals have been handled has had much to do with their success, and Ben Kenney stands to-day without a superior as a colt trainer and driver. He is one of the few men that can sit still in his sulky. He is one of the best judges of pace in the country, and is witnal a master of the art of driving. Limerick will winter in Montana, and is sure to be heard from in his three-year-old form. He retires with a record of 2:19½ made in his winning race at Lexington but he was timed separately in 2:17 in a losing mile previous to this. He has also been timed a quarter in thirty-three seconds, which indicates that he should trot a very good mile in 1898.

The Gilroy Races.

The races drew forth a small crowd on Thursday, the opening day, at the Gilroy Driving Park, says the Gilroy Advocate, Nov. 5th. The weather threatened rain which caused many to stay away. The track was in fine order for fast time. There was some exciting races. The first was a trotting race, 2.20 class. The entries were: May B., driven by Van Bokklen, who won; Mabel W., driven by Wise, second; Ned Thorne third, driven by Helman; Naylox, driven by Beach. Time, 2:23½, 2:23, 2:24½.

A mixed race was next. Grey Jack was entered by Ferguson and won; J. S. C. driven by Helman, second; Miss Paine driven by Holbrook. Time, 2:45, 2:43½, 2:45.

A half-mile running race closed the day's sport. It was won by W. Martin's Iron Packer; Mayock's Cyclone second and Tarral's Xopos third. Time, 0:52.

Friday, the day was brighter and the attendance larger. The races were more exciting. The first was won in three straight heats by Monogram, Lotto B. second, Nancy W. third. Time, 2:25.

The second race is unfinished. Will finish to-day. Grey Jack has two heats, J. S. C. one. The other entries are Jaun Chico and Any old thing. Time 2:35.

The three-eighth mile dash was won by Mayock's Cyclone in 0:38. The other entries were Iron Packer and Xopos.

J. A. McKerron, of San Francisco, the famous horse-boot manufacturer, has presented the Association with a fine set of harness valued at $75 to be given as a prize in one of to-day's events. This gift is much appreciated by the Association.

Naylor, Ned Thorn, Mabel W. and May B. are entered for J. A. McKerron's prize of harness to-day.—Gilroy Advocate, Nov. 6.

Tyree's Veto.

We reprint the following, which was taken from the Breeder and Sportsman of October 19, 1889. It clears up the pedigree of a horse whose progeny ran well in California:

The pedigree of the above mentioned horse has been a mystery for many years, and as his name appeared in the catalogue of many California breeding farms, a great deal of time has been spent in trying to clear it up. It remained for Dr. Latham to solve the puzzle, and he has obtained the following certificate:

In 1847 I bought a thoroughbred mare, named Chealan, from Joe Campbell, of Russellville, Ky. Chealan was sired by Woodpecker, and at the time I bought her was five years old. In 1848 I bred her to the thoroughbred horse Veto owned by Corvet & Blevins, of Cass County, Mo. This horse Veto had been bought by Corvet & Blevins in Buttel's Lick, Ky. In 1849 Chealan foaled a sorrel filly. In 1853 I brought this filly to California; I named her Veto after her sire. In 1854 I sold this Veto mare to Mr. Thale Potter. From Mr. Potter's hands she passed to the ownership of Mr. Sam Miller. She was bred to Williamson's Belmont, and she foaled a colt known as Tyree's Veto.

Stockton, Sept. 28, '89. Anderson Davis.

By a deal recently consummated, General W. H. Jackson has become the sole owner of the thoroughbred stock in the Belle Meade stud, having purchased Richard Croker's half interest. The price paid has not been made public. Five years ago Croker paid Jackson $250,000 for a half interest in the thoroughbreds of Belle Meade. Following this deed the stud was materially strengthened by the addition of Longstreet, Yorkville Belle, Clarendon, imported Loyalist and other notable thoroughbreds. Croker's stud in England, consisting of Dobbins and sixteen mares, will be continued for the present, at least, as a thoroughbred nursery, his greatest ambition now being to breed a Derby-winner. Jackson having arranged all his other business to his satisfaction, will, from this time on, devote his entire time and attention to the careful breeding and raising of thoroughbred horses. There are eleven stallions and 150 brood mares in the Belle Meade stud, but these will be reduced next year to seven stallions and seventy-five brood mares.—Nashville, (Tenn.), dispatch, Nov. 6.

The leading winning owners in America up to date are as follows: L. S. & W. P. Thompson, $66,520; M. F. Dwyer, $62,765; J. E. Madden, $52,230; A. H. and D. H. Morris, $47,270; August Belmont, $42,347; J. R. Keene, $26,435; P. J. Dwyer, $26,965; G. E. Smith, 22,760; Patrick Dunne, $22,755; C. Fleischman & Son, $19,452; David Gideon, $18,300; W. C. Daly, $19,870; Bromley & Co., $14,227; J. E. McDonald, $13,960; Eastin & Larabie, $13,240; J. J. McCafferty, $12,990; J. E Seagram, $12,480; Marcus Daly, $10,562; Kensico Stable, $10,482; W. Laimbeer, $10,437; James Galway, $7,720; F. R. & T. Hitchcock, $9,465; E J. Baldwin, $9,345; Lewis Elmore, $9,192; C. T. Patterson, $8,945; Oneck Stable, $8,455; Turney Bros., $8,325; C. W. Stanton, $7,830; W. B. Sink, $7,610; R. C. Hall, $7,373; Sensation Stable, $7,215; E. W. Purser, $7,165; Hayman & Frank, $7,982; J. McLaughlin, $6,837; R. L. Rose, $6,677; W. M. Barrick, $5,945; Mrs. Jere Dunn, $5,500; Burns & Waterhouse, $5,260.

Success With Spavin and Ringbone.

Hebron, N. Dak., December 10, 1894,

The Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, O.

I have used your Caustic Balsam with good success both for spavin and ringbone, both cases being over one year's standing. I also used the Balsam for swellings of different kinds with good result.

Collenwood, Ohio.

I have used ABSORBINE with good results.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:

Alpine—Deer. Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1.
Fresno—Market hunting and shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Los Angeles—Shipping game to markets outside of the county prohibited.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st.
Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb, 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).
Riverside—Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
Santa Barbara—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 14. Use of hounds prohibited. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited).
San Mateo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Use of dogs prohibited). Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. (Shooting from boat at high tide prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Sutter—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Doves, July 15 to Jan. 1.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

A Protected Game District.

The following account of the conditions that at present exist in Humboldt county concerning game and fish is one that will be appreciated by hunters and anglers.

Humboldt county has deservedly acquired the reputation abroad of being one of the best in the State for entertaining devotees of either gun or rod. Those who have had occassion to test the favorite hunting or fishing grounds of California are the ones who bear willing witness to the fact that nowhere within as easy reach of San Francisco is the same opportunity afforded to spend a vacation season in wooded highlands and by mountain streams, with the same certainty of recompense and rational enjoyment as may be found within a day's journey from Eureka. The almost universal success which attends such visits is appreciated by intelligent and law-abiding sportsmen.

The open season for killing sea fowl is now fairly ushered in, and the broad-billed and web-footed contingent of the feathered family is here in abundant force. The waters of Humboldt bay for a distance of twelve miles, the river entrances from the Mattole to the Klamath, and the numerous lagoons on the northern coast of the county, afford vantage ground for all the sportsmen who may care to indulge in the unequaled abundance that will offer until the lawful season for killing is past.

The late rain was as much an invitation for the feathered family to come as it was to the finny beauties who know their places when the spawning season approaches. The time for brant to be in plentiful evidence is not yet at hand, but it is awaited with earnest anxiety by those who appreciate that bird above all others of its class. If the statement, coming from a source well worthy of recognition, may be relied upon, no other arm of the sea between the Golden Gate and mouth of the Columbia, is blessed with such an abundance of this rare bird in its season as is Humboldt Bay. The assurance is confirmed by those who are most familiar with California coast waters.

Only in occasional years have salmon been so plentiful at the opening of the fall season. These justly esteemed food fish are here in variety—the King, Silver Side and Steelhead. So plentiful are they, and the junior contingent of the species, known as salmon trout (though Prof. Jordan, of Stanford, persists that they are steelheads), that they have been caught in abundance along the wharves since the season opened. The smaller fry referred to are if possible more delicate and delicious than the full-grown fish. The catches usually run from half a pound to two, three and five pounds in weight and fresh, pickled or smoked are esteemed a rare delicacy. These also find their way to the bay and and its tributaries and to the headwaters of all streams in the county in the greatest abundance, affording free license to all who may choose to catch and prepare them opportunity to cure as many as are desired for future use. Usually these fish are so fat that the use of lard or butter in cooking may be dispensed with.

The year 1897 has been prolific in the supply of wild game and food fish so far as this county is concerned. The universal report is that deer are becoming more plentiful on former hunting grounds, often so much so as to be a pest to orchard and vineyard owners and in cornfields remote from the coast. From what can be learned the bear family seems to be diminishing in numbers, although enough of them will likely be heard from after the stock ranges are covered with snow. A similar report will probably come from the highlands in regard to the range-pests—panthers, cats and coyotes—when freezing weather has sharpened their appetites for blood and flesh food. The species of rabbit known as "cotton tail" is also reported to be in greater abundance everywhere than is usual at this season. These are in fine condition and are generally esteemed to be one of the rarest delicacies in the wild game line. Yet the writer regrets to acknowledge that he is familiar with people who will turn in seeming disgust from wild game—deer and rabbit—which subsist on vegetable matter alone, and yet esteem a dunghill fowl an incomparable luxury.

Whether it may or may not be so with the fish family, there must be a reason why deer, quail, wild ducks and other protected game are becoming more plentiful in the high altitudes and lowlands of Humboldt. It is because these classes of game have been protected as the law dictates. Those who have given the matter attention are aware that both game and fish wardens doing service in this county have been vigilant and fearless in the performance of their duties, and that those who have defied the law were dealt with accordingly. If a like course is continued the reputation of Humboldt county as a favorite resort for sportsmen from a distance will be maintained.—Eureka Times.

Sport With Bruin.

A hunting party consisting of J. B. Griffin, J. C. Tolman and five others were out in the mountains in the vicinity of the Ashland—Klamath Falls road, Oregon, recently. Mr. Griffin, on his return to Woodville gave the following account of the trip: During the first four days they were successful in capturing one black and one brown bear. They were unfortunate, however, in losing three of their bear dogs and spent several days in looking for them. In the search for the dogs the hunters got separated and as Tolman didn't show up the rest of them were alarmed for his safety, and started out to find him. Owing to the inclemency of the weather Tolman had remained under cover at a camp at Buck Lake, and when the searchers arrived at Hunt's Dead Indian stock ranch they found the missing man. All three dogs found their way back to their camp at Johnson prairie, and are by this time safe with their owner in Ashland. Four days seems a pretty long time for dogs to trail a bear, but that is what these dogs did.

Another adventure with a bear brings to mind a style of capture that was frequently made in the early days in this state and illustrates that the spirit of the old sport still survives. Two cattle-men were out on the Dorris hill, east of Montague, in Siskiyou county, Cal., looking for stock, when they suddenly came up to a large black object in the sage brush, which on closer inspection proved to be a bear. Then the fun commenced. The boys unloosened their lariats, and took after bruin. After a long chase, with the assistance of their dogs, they lassoed the bear. Terwilliger caught him by the hind feet and Pope by the front, and they soon laid him out. In this shape they took the bear home, a distance of three miles. When bruin was washed up neatly they sent for Barnes & Dimick, who took three pictures of the boys and bear. One dog is missing, the bear having killed it with a swipe of his paw.

Santa Barbara Trap Shooters.

The sportsmen of Santa Barbara will before long have at their disposal and use a well appointed trap shooting ground. Mr. C. A. Loud, who has recently taken charge of the sporting goods department in H. S. Short's "Emporium" has already made the preliminary arrangements. The place selected is at the race track and will be properly and conveniently fitted up. A gun club will soon be organized and no doubt before long will make some creditable records at the traps as Santa Barbara has a number of crack shots, besides many others who are lovers of the sport. Mr. Loud will coach the beginners at trap shooting whom it is safe to say under his experienced direction will become proficient and skilful in a sport that is winning new members to its ranks daily.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Rail shooting in San Mateo county closes on the 15th inst.

Dr. Payne made a fair bag of quail at Point Reyes on Sunday.

Sprig and mallard are in fairly good numbers at Point Reyes.

The Alviso district is reported to afford fairly good duck shooting now.

Sonoma county has fallen in line and placed the ban on market hunting.

Los Banos district has been good, bad and indifferent at various times lately.

Sam Hughes returned from Point Reyes Sunday last with a good bag of quail.

Harry Golcher was at Point Reyes Sunday. A good bag of quail was the result.

C. Cate bagged ten and R. G. Wenzell seven prime sprig at Mowry's last Sunday.

H. H. White and friend made a small bag on the Olympic Club grounds last Sunday.

A first class boat for bay shore work is offered for sale in our advertising columns this week.

John Karney was out one day last week near Sear's Point and brought in nine "cans" on his strap.

E. Schultz, P. McCrea, A. Priest and J. Biggerstaff were at Mt. Eden on Sunday. Ducks were scarce.

Frank Vernon made a bag of thirty quail and fifteen ducks at Point Reyes on Saturday and Sunday last.

H. C. Vandall, C. J. Morgan and G. Alfreds were at Brentwood last Sunday. A small bag was made. Ducks were very scarce.

C. A. HAIGHT and Dave Thom spent last Sunday at Suisun. They devoted their attention to English snipe. A fair bag was the result.

Jules Bruns and Jim Brownwig sustained their reputations with a bag of twenty-five birds, nearly all "cans" at Sear's Point last Sunday.

The Spooney Club had a fair representation among the hunters on the other side of the bay on Sunday last, but the duck delegation was non est.

A. H. Clow, Charles Debenham and W. Wetmore were at the Pastime Club house near Alviso last week. A fair bag of ducks and rail was made.

The ducks are still wary of the shore and marsh hunter. The bay affords them plenty of rest and an ample opportunity for flight these pleasant days just past.

George Hindes, C. Guscette, and I. Phillipson were at the Shellville Gun Club's house on Sunday last. A small bag of teal and English snipe fell to the three guns.

The Empire Gun Club was well represented on their grounds last Sunday. The hunters had fair bags, principally of sprig and teal. One of the boys made a nice bag of "cans."

The Lincoln Club ark was visited on Sunday last by C. Shaw, E. Klevesahl, D. Ostrander, M. Le Gal and G. Clanson. The bag was sprig and teal. Clawson was first chop with twenty birds!

A party of five hunters were at Los Banos on Sunday last. The combined bag was "one duck!" They report the water very low, and birds scarce. They anathemize the ox hunters with their big guns.

E. Forster, on the Lincoln Club shooting grounds, had the satisfaction of coming in Sunday night with twenty-two "cans," three teal and three sprig. This bag is a good day's shooting for any one.

W. H. Bradley, M. Chick and F. Fishback last week had a most successful hunt for quail in the vicinity of Oceanside. They report the birds plentiful, although they do not announce the size of their kills.

The wild cat Frank Dolliver mustered out at Point Reyes on Sunday last was turned over to a delegation of Cum Cook hatchet-men who held high wassail over a choice stew brewed in the Bun Sun Low.

Ducks and geese were plentiful at Los Banos last week. Four members of the Los Banos Gun Club made a bag of two hundred on Friday and Saturday last. The ducks were principally sprig and widgeon.

Frank Dolliver and a friend hunted "over grounds they knew of" on Saturday and Sunday and had a count of forty quail, twenty ducks and a large sized wild cat in their bag. All this not so very far from Point Reyes.

The Missoula (Mont.) Gun Club propose to hold a tournament on Thanksgiving Day. This shoot promises to be the most interesting one of the year. It will close the season on the South Missoula range. The number of entries will be large.

A party of twenty-six left the city Saturday night in a carry-all for the purpose of indulging in a rail battue on the Belmont marshes on Sunday. The bag was ten rail and three kegs of steam beer. A level country with plenty of street cars is the proper ground for that kind of a shooting (?) party.

The Black Jack assembly on last Sunday consisted of President Lemmer, Secretary Markham, Billy Swain, "Sherman," "Hello" Eaton, C. L. Deitz and the Antioch contingent. The shooting was not productive of a very large bag, about forty birds, principally sprig and widgeon was the result.

Washington Game Laws: Section 14, effective June 9th, 1897, reads as follows: "It is unlawful to hunt or kill game of any kind for the market or sell same at markets or restaurants during any month of the year except the month of October. It is unlawful to buy game or keep same during any month of the year except the month of October."

Moonlight shooting in the vicinity of Alvarado, Thursday night a week ago, provided a bag of sixty-nine ducks for the raiders. The contingent of sportsmen who went over that way Saturday and Sunday last did not get many birds. They drew certain inferences in regard to the scarcity of birds when they heard of the night shooting. Remarks uncomplimentary were plenty.

Pheasants are reported to be doing finely in the vicinity of Woodland. Each year they are seen more frequently and if unmolested that part of the Sacramento Valley will afford good sport in the future. It is to be regretted that a fool with a gun recently flushed a flock of the birds and killed three of them; his crime was all the greater because he inquired of the first person he met "what kind of fowl they were.

Quail shooting in the vicinity of Los Angeles is reported to be in a remarkably good condition. Hunters who go out equipped for several days' shooting are now rarely disappointed in having fine sport and making full bags. Some excessively large bags are credited from that district, but while it goes to show that birds are plentiful it is hardly necessary to make a slaughtering expedition of a trip supposed to be taken in a spirit of sport and recreation.

Frank Merrill captured the Friedberger medal in the live pigeon shoot at Jackson's baths, Stockton, Sunday, Oct. 31, with twenty straight birds, while Winders, Charles Merrill and Mehrtens, with eighteen birds each, divided the money—$20. The scores are as follows: Frank Merrill 20, Winders 18, Mehrtens 18, Charles Merrill 18, W. Ditz 17, Johnson 17, Sperry 17, Longers 17, Jackson 17, Condy 16, Salbach 14, Lastreto 13. There was a large attendance of spectators and the weather was perfect. The medal had been won by Charles Merrill, the father of Frank, at each of the two preceding shoots and now passes from father to son.

A very successful tournament was held by the Los Angeles Gun Club on Sunday, Nov. 7th, the occasion being the fifth semi-annual of the organization. Shooters from San Francisco, the San Joaquin valley, Santa Barbara and other Southern points were in attendance. The individual championship was shot for by a very large number and went to W. H. Seaver of San Francisco, who scored 44 out of a possible 50. Alexander was second with 43, Fishback, Lighton and Vaughan tied with 41 for third place. In the sweepstakes Bruner was first with 18 birds, Packard was second with 15, Black and Vaughan tied with thirteen birds each. The "twos" new championship was won by Vaughan, 22, and Leighton 21, a total of 43 birds. The other teams scored as follows: Fishback and Ralphs, 41; Breed and Seaver 40; Van Valkenberg and Alexander 39; Bruner and Packard, 39.

The Board of Supervisors of Sonoma county have informally discussed and turned over to District Attorney Seawell for consideration a petition signed by a prominent member of each of the following clubs: Empire Gun Clubs, W. F. Andrus; Lincoln Gun Club, Edgar L. Foster; Midwinter Fair Gun Club, W. H. Williams, president; Sons of Rest Club, Henry J. Smith; Alameda Gun Club, E. H. Knowles; Olympic Gun Club, Merton C. Allen.

The petitioners say that for several years past they have been accustomed to hunt in Sonoma county, that they have appreciated the natural advantages offered by Sonoma county for recreation and sport, and that they have erected a number of cabins all along from Black Point to Schellville for the purpose of coming to the county at various times during the season for hunting.

The petitioners state that during last winter the market hunter, by his wholesale onslaught, materially diminished, if not altogether destroyed, the incentive for them to continue their visits to the county. The sportsmen claim that unless something is done to restrain the market hunter this winter, he will drive off and totally exterminate the wild game from the county, and thus destroy one of its many attractive features.

The petition shows that many boards of supervisors have provided for the repression of the market hunter and the preservation of the wild game, and they ask the supervisors to do the same.

The board will probably take action in the matter at the December meeting by passing an ordinance.

The following notes are taken from the Solano Republican of last week:

Widgeon are more plentiful this year than for the past five seasons.

John A. Wilson made a good single-handed record at Pringle pond and came back with a bag of nineteen ducks.

Under Sheriff T. L. Robinson and John W. Harper betook themselves to the Tomassini grounds and returned with forty-three fine ducks.

Efforts will be made to induce sportsmen to discontinue night hunting. To this cause is attributed the scarcity of canvasbacks this year. [The complaint in this respect is general —Ed]

Claire Morrill accompanied by two friends from San Francisco, had a successful day's sport east of Suisun and seventy-five ducks were brought to town as evidence of this statement.

Hunters turned out in large numbers last Sunday, and the best sport so far for the season was enjoyed. When the sportsmen returned in the evening there was a good supply of ducks in town.

A live pigeon shoot took place at the Olympic Club grounds on Thursday afternoon which attracted quite a gathering of the club men and their friends. In the warm-up at six birds the scores were: A Roos, five; H. B. Hosmer five; H. Wickar, four; H. Wagner, four and F. H. Bushnell, three. In the Market-Street Individual Championship for a dinner, at twenty-five birds, the results were: H. Wagner, eighteen; A. Roos, seventeen; F. H. Bushnell, fifteen; H. Wicker, fourteen; and H. B. Hosmer, thirteen. A second six-bird shoot showed a score as follows: Ed. Briggs, six; Bushnell and Wagner, five each; Roos, four; Hosmer and Wicker, three each. A wine dinner at Ingleside was generously provided by the losers who also paid for the birds.

The President of the Black Jacks sometimes walks in his sleep. One night recently, he attempted to rivet together the ears of two of his "push" on the ark, he was luckily awakened before any damage was done. To obviate similar adventures on the president's part in the future, the Sangerbund Section of the Black Jack Verein, after much difficulty and great effort, have composed an "ode" dedicated to the "High B. J." which it is firmly believed will cure his or anybody else's sleep-walking. They tried it all over Antioch in the wee sma' hours and it works to perfection. Secretary Markland has been authorized to supply the words and music to those who may desire them.

Deer are said to be so plentiful in some parts of Mendocino as to be be somewhat of a nusiance. At Potter Valley the deer come in the night and eat out of the vegetable gardens. The farmer who loses a head of cabbage, or at times a few wormy windfall apples is rather apt to look upon his loss (?) as an infliction of Providence and is always somewhat disposed to use hard language in condemnation of the cause. Keep the fences in repair and set in an extra ounce or two of vegetable seed. The deer are worth a great deal more to the county than the small damage they do to carelessly guarded truck patches. Some years hence they won't be called a nuisance.

The Carquinez Shooting Club has been organized with the following list of charter members and officers: President, B. J. Devlin; Secretary and Treasurer, Wm. Boyle; Will Hartnett, Ed Hartnett, Bart Foley, Wm. Foley, Jos. Salz, Jas. Mannix and Jas. Bolton. They have secured the Freeborn tract, situated within three miles of Cordelia and comprising about two hundred acres. A comfortable club-house has been erected, and Wm. Mannix has been appointed head keeper.

The annual meeting of the Olympic Gun Club was held on Wednesday evening. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, H. H. White; Financial Secretary, C. F. Grant; Recording Secretary, M. C. Allen; Treasurer, A. Borlini; Captain, L. D. Owens; Directors, C. A. Haight, E. T. Allen, W. J. Golcher and C. W. Hibbard.

Mr. E. T. Allen went East last Saturday on the overland train, for an extended business trip, during which time he will visit the principal manufacturers and importing houses of sporting goods. He contemplates returning about the middle of December.

L. Thibault and O. Frigler had their usual trip to San Pedro last Saturday. They made a fair bag of quail. They took the precaution to wrap bagging around their nether extremities as a preventive measure against sunburn.

The members of the Willows Gun Club are making preparations to hold a shooting tournament on Thanksgiving day. Cash prizes will be awarded to the winner of the club shoot, after which pool shooting will be in sway.

C. H. Hilbert left on Thursday for a few days duck shooting at Suisun.

Herbert Finley, of Ætna, Cal., while hunting in the Salmon river country on the 15th of last month, espied a band of eight deer, and while they were on the run he killed seven of them with his trusty rifle.

Well done "Trombone"! The individual championship medal leaves the southern country for the first time and is now in the possession of W. H. Seavers, representative of the Winchester Arms Co.

Nov. 23—Regular semi-monthly meeting of the San Francisco Fly Casting Club. Office of State Fish Commission, Flood Building, San Francisco.

NOTICE TO ANGLERS.

Every angler is invited to drop us a line occasionally, telling us of the condition of the streams they have visited and the killing lure of the number and size of the fish caught, or any other item of interest to anglers.

The Fly-Casting Club.

The regular meeting of the Fly-Casting Club was held last Tuesday evening. There was a large and interested attendance of members of the club. The report of the Executive Committee was submitted and accepted. Friday and Saturday, September 9th and 10th, 1898 are the dates set for the open-to-the-world tournament. The Chicago Fly-Casting Club, in a communication read to the meeting, expressed their cordial indorsement of the proposed tournament and their intention of assistance and support in making this competition a success.

The regular club season for next year will consist of a Saturday series and a Sunday series, each to embrace twelve contests.

The casting will commence in February and end in August. The winners of each series will compete for final title to the season's medals. The method of classification for next year's events show that three classes are to be provided for long distance casting, and two classes each for distance and accuracy and accuracy and delicacy. The classification is to be made up on the basis of averages made in seven classification contests. The classes are to be as follows:

Long distance—Championship class, members with an average of 95 feet or better; first class, members who average less than 95 feet and not less than 80; second class, members who average less than 80 feet.

Distance and accuracy—Championship class, members who average 85 per cent or better; first class, members who average under 85 per cent.

Accuracy and delicacy—Championship class, members who average over 80 per cent; first class, members who average under 80 per cent.

Black Bass for Hawaii.

In response to a request from the Hawaiian government the Board of Fish Commissioners shipped via one of the Spreckels' line of sailing vessels, the St. Iago, on September 23d last, a consignment of yearling small-mouthed black bass. Under the direction of Chief Deputy Fish Commissioner John P. Babcock the necessary transportation arrangements for a long sea voyage were made, two five-hundred gallon tanks were constructed, the one suspended over the other so that at certain intervals the water could be pumped from the lower receptacle to the upper one, thus giving the necessary aeration to the water all the time; this plan worked admirably. A letter received from W. S. Wise, the agent of the Hawaiian government, states that seventy of the fish were received in fine condition and have been successfully liberated in a lake close to Hilo, Hawaii. This is a remarkable showing for a sea voyage of nineteen days' duration and is probably the longest time shipment of live fish on record. The survival of such a great percentage of the fish in transitu shows well planned transportation methods.

A Big Sea Bass.

A large sea-bass weighing forty-seven and one-half pounds was caught on Tuesday last near the "white house" at Point Reyes, by A. C. Hirschfeld. He was fishing for steelhead with a light rod and a Wilson spinner when he was astounded by a strike and tugging that made him think his tackle had fouled a "seventy-four" under full sail. In a few seconds he found he had a fight before him. He held on to his rod with one hand and with the other steadied his silk hat. (Mr. H. has the reputation of being the only angler in California who wears a silk hat when he goes fishing) This struggle continued for several hours. He didn't know whether he had the fish or the fish had him, when the dago at the "white house" came to the rescue and shot (!) and killed the fish with a shot gun. The fish was on exhibition at a Market street cigar store on Wednesday and during that time Hirschfeld, to counter-balance the dry condition of the fish, moistened the anatomies of his friends in a manner to create envy in the breast of a Nabob. He feels justly proud of his capture, which was one of those tragedies of the unexpected that the Point Reyes regulars never get a chance at.

Pokegama Dam Fish Ladder.

Under the supervision of the engineering department of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, a new fish ladder has been placed in the Pokegama dam in the Klamath River. Two ladders have been previously destroyed and for the past two years it has been impossible for fish to pass the dam, thus rendering the spawning station at Shovel creek comparatively inoperative. The conditions which prevented replacing the ladder have deen happily set aside by a mutual combination of effort and interest on the part of the lumber mill company, the Board of Fish Commissioners and the railroad. The construction of the new ladder embraces the latest and most practicable methods and it is of sufficient strength to prevent being carried away in the manner of is predecessors. A boom placed above the dam will afford ample protection from the saw logs which are floated down the river.

A new salmon hatchery station has been established in Humboldt county, it is located on Price creek (a tributary of the Eel river) about six miles from Fortuna and is now ready for operation.

Wm. Bentine and a friend were fishing for cat-fish one day last week off the railroad wharf at Port Costa. They suddenly noticed that a large school of anchovies were making desperate efforts to elude the pursuit of larger fish that were in evidence from time to time as they jumped from the water. They procured a net and caught some of the smaller fish and then used them as bait with the result that they made a catch of thirty striped bass from ten to sixteen inches in length.

The introduction of the quinnat salmon to Eastern waters has been auspicious so far; 5,000,000 eggs were transferred from the Battle Creek hatchery during last fall, and as a result, 4,000,000 fry were liberated during the past spring in the St. Lawrence, Hudson and Delaware rivers and also in Maine waters.

"Doc" Watt sustained his piscatorial reputation last Sunday. The largest catch of fish made during the day, at Cotton Mill wharf, was in his creel. It's all the same, whether salmon, black bass, trout, etc., the finny denizens know their master.

Steelhead fishing at Point Reyes is not so good. The fish are in evidence, but they will not make a strike. Several anglers have tried them lately but the result was far from satisfactory.

Eggs taken at the Battle Creek hatchery are transferred to the Sisson hatchery where they remain until they get "eyed;" they are then ready for distribution to various points.

John Siebe spent last Sunday whipping the lagoon on the Tamalpais grounds. He caught a few nice trout, but could not induce some fat striped bass he observed, to take the hook.

It is reported that about a dozen large sea bass make their headquarters in the "white house" pool at Point Reyes and can be frequently seen disporting therein.

A business meeting of the Fly Casting Club will be held in the rooms of the Fish Commission, 78 Flood building, Tuesday evening, November 16th.

Trolling for salmon has afforded fine sport recently at the mouth of Mad river. Fine catches have been made.

Sixteen grilse, weighing from one-half to a pound each were caught on the Narrow Gauge pier last Sunday.

Salmon fishing is reported to be fine in Monterey bay. Some good catches have been made recently.

The Battle Creek Hatchery has passed the 18,000,000 mark in the production of salmon eggs.

The rainbow trout has been successfully naturalized in nearly every State east of the Rockies.

Smelt are still running in the Oakland estuary, though none are now caught in the canal.

A few shad are caught with hook and line on the railroad wharves across the bay.

An hour before or after high tide is the best time for fishing in the Oakland estuary.

Black bass are now being caught in goodly quantities in Russian river.

Trolling for salmon is first-class at the present time in Eel river.

Nov. 13-14.—Ingleside Coursing Park. Regular meetings every Saturday and Sunday.

The Merced Coursing Meet.

The eighth annual meeting of the Interstate Coursing Club held at Merced, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week will be remembered by leashmen as the greatest and most successful meet ever held on the Pacific Coast. On the first day there was the largest attendance of ladies and gentlemen that ever witnessed a coursing race on the plains, this attendance and interest was kept up during the meeting. The weather was all that could be desired and the hares were in the pink of condition; time and again getting away from the dogs. The performances of the dogs were up to the anticipations of the owners and spectators alike, lack of space forbids our presenting a summary of the different courses. A number of sensational courses were run that will long be green in the memory of lovers of this royal sport. Sportsman are unanimous in their regret over the fate of those gallant dogs, Zoe, Magician and Systematic, who ran their races well and gamely, but succumbed to the exhaustion afterwards.

A word of praise is due the president of the club, Mr Dominick Shannon, for the perfect order maintained in the field and the systematic and satisfactory arrangement of the many and varied details that told so signally in making this meeting a brilliant success. Associated with Mr. Shannon were the following field officers: Judge, John Grace; slipper, J. F. Grace; slip steward, I. A. Givens of Modesto field stewards, I. Wren, T. J. McHugh and C. C. Griswold. The judging and slipping was highly satisfactory and met with unstinted praise from both owners of dogs and spectators.

The "Consolation Cup" stakes, for dogs beaten in the first and second rounds, will be run at Ingleside Coursing Park on Sundays, the 14th and 21st of this month. The interest taken in the outcome of these races is as great as was tha in the Merced meeting, and it is more than probable that a large and enthusiastic gathering of ladies and gentlemen will be present.

A New Dog Hospital.

The location selected by Dr. A. E. Buzard for his dog hospital at 2128 Market street (just a block west of Valencia, and in street car communication with all points in this city) is a most excellent one. The newly selected quarters are very conveniently and practically fitted up in every respect. All the comforts of a home for sick and ailing dogs. An elegantly appointed office for the reception of the Doctor's clients is an agreeable feature of the establishment. The kennels are exposed all day long to the sun and well protected from the wind. A perfect system of drainage insures dry and healthy sanitary conditions. Experienced attendants will be at the hospital day and night. The yard is large, just the kind of a place for exercise that a dog would naturally want.

Dr. Buzard's successful treatment of canine ailments during a long experience on the Pacific Coast and in the East, his general acquaintance with fanciers in this State and people who just indulge in a favorite pet dog, is an assurance of an increasing patronage and large practice.

Mr. D. J. Sinclair, a gentleman well known to fanciers will look after the business management of the hospital.

The Pointer Club of San Francisco have elected Merton C. Allen as their delegate to the Pacific Advisory Board.

Los Angeles Coursing Park.

A company has been organized for the purpose of constructing a coursing park, about seven miles out on the Sixteenth-street branch of the Santa Monica electric line. This, it is said, will be the largest coursing park in California covering 100 acres of land, which will be enclosed with a fence extending ten feet above the ground, and fifteen inches under ground to prevent hares from burrowing. The fence will be whitewashed. There will be a grand stand and music stand and seventy-five kennels. A well-known coursing judge from San Francisco will be engaged. It is stated that the park will open about January 1.

Capt. J. L. Waller's R. C. St. Bernard dog Nicodemus the Great (King Frisco—Grand Duchess), is a promising young dog. He is eleven months old, weighs one hundred and forty pounds, has a fine head, is strong boned and beautifully marked.

Among recent registrations are H. A. Wegener's cocker spaniel dog, Dufferin Pastime (Viscount—Polly Pastime, Aug. 29, 1896), No. 45,540, and same owner's cocker spaniel bitch, Tootsie W. (Woodland Duke—Peg Woofington, Feb. 7, 1877), No. 45,451.

The indications are that the all-age stake of the Pacific, Coast field trials next January will be one of the best in the history of the club. Besides a large number of the fine youngsters that contested for the Derby honors last year, there will be quite a number of older dogs in the race.

G. P. Diggs, one of Woodland's leading citizens, owns a curious animal that is noted for its intelligence. She is by a coyote out of a thoroughbred collie bitch. In color she is black, white and yellow spotted and streaked. Her eyes are piebald and her bark is a yelp like that of her "wild daddy." She is very cunning and only has to be shown what is expected of her once and thereafter she needs no more lessons It is believed Mr. Diggs will send her as a curiosity to the next dog show to be held in this city.

One of the most faithful animals in Contra Costa county is a black and white shepherd dog on the Brentwood stock farm. His left forefoot and right hindfoot was accidently amputated in a mowing machine when he was six months old. The "stumps" healed but they never touch the ground. The dog hops along on his two legs and manages to do all the chores, such as driving home the cows, bringing in the paper as faithfully as if he had a complete set of limbs. Mr. Nugent, his owner, says "Money cannot buy him."

Saratoga's Bold Stand.

The Saratoga Association took a bold stand last evening by declaring off all the stakes it had announced to close and to be run in 1898, 1899 and 2000. The members of the Horsemen's Protective Association opposed the system of guaranteed stakes by which the entrance and starting money went to the race fund and not to the winners of a stake. This action on the part of the horsemen seems to be ill-advised and will react on themselves. The movement was in the nature of a labor strike. The Saratoga Association took the bull by the horns by what might be termed a lock-out.

Other associations, with the exception of Brighton, have announced their stakes, and they are now being arranged by the Secretary so that they could be announced early next week. What effect the action of the Saratoga Association will have cannot be foretold. Certain it is that the more liberal racing associations are in a general way, the less their work is appreciated. The bigger the purses the smaller the field seems to be the rule. Owners of horses very close together in point of merit seem inclined to give each other half the road when big purses are to be contended for. That was the experience at Brighton last year. Mr. Engeman was more than liberal with his money for purses and stakes, and forced the Coney Island and Brooklyn Jockey Clubs and the Westchester associations to largely increase their premiums, and yet the racing at Brighton was not as good as it had been in former years. Owners and trainers picked their own races, getting out of each others' way, and the result was that there were more actual and practical walkovers than had occurred during the previous eighteen years in the history of the association. At Aqueduct, on the other hand, where paltry purses of $300 and $400 were hung up, the fields were excessively large. It seems an anomalous state of affairs, but everybody who has paid the slightest attention to racing in our circuit this year, knows that what I write is true.

Of course no one can blame horsemen for endeavoring to improve their prospects. The maintenance of a racing stable is very expensive. Mr. Belmont's stable this year has won about $45,000, and yet that will hardly cover the expense of running it. But in its relations with the Saratoga Association the Horsemen's Association hardly acted judiciously. The veiled threat that many of them would make no entries, was an indication that something akin to a boycott would be attempted.

It is probable that in a week or so conferences between representatives of different racing associations will be held with Mr. Belmont as to what course to pursue.—"Centaur" in New York Com. Adv.

The Finish at Morris Park.

The autumn meeting of the Westchester Racing Association ended Saturday, and with it the metropolitan racing season. The weather was forbidding, but in spite of that fact the attendance was remarkably good, and the racing was better than could have been expected in view of the sticky condition of the track. The meeting has been extraordinarily successful. Mr. Crickmore, as usual, got out his list of winning owners promptly, and the subjoined list shows how well the money was distributed:

As might have been expected, John E. Madden, through the victories of Plaudit, heads the list. The fight for place was a close one, but, thanks to Don de Oro, who recovered something like form at the last moment, Mr. Belmont managed to run a close fourth to Pat Dunne and J. A. Bennett. Handsel was Mr. Bennett's sheet anchor.

HOWARD MANN, the winner of the Brooklyn Handicap this year, arrived Thursday. This son of Duke of Montrose was taken from "Pittsburg Phil" by Roy Carruthers out of a selling race. Howard Mann is perhaps one of the greatest "mudders" that we have seen. His win of the classical Brooklyn Handicap last Spring goes to prove that. He will be in the stable of Atkin & Lottridge and local turfites will have an opportunity of seeing him measure strides with Lucky Dog and some of our other famous mud larks before the season is over. Mann is also quite high class on a dry track, as he beat Sir Walter and others at Monmouth.

WEENATCHIE and Nero, by El Rio Rey and Flood respectively, ran one-two in a mile and three-sixteenths race at Lakeside, Ind., November 4th. Weenatchie is a half sister to Almont, while Nero, a nine-year-old, is a full brother to Foremost. Hester, a winner on the same date, is by imp. Midlothian from Nina.

THE McKinneys that are to be seen in the northern and central parts of California are such a fine lot that the owners say they will breed their mares to this great son of Alcyone should he stand in Oakland again next year.

CARROLL REED has purchased from the estate of Clifford Porter, Sister Stella, brown filly, 3, by Sir Dixon, dam Mercedes, by Melbourne Jr. Price said to be $800.

"W. G." asks: What is the breeding of Miss Boots? Answer—By Boots, dam Lady Stracy, by Wildidle; second dam by Norfolk; third dam by Billy Cheatham, etc.

JACKANAPES has been purchased from the estate of the late Dr. McLean, by the mother of Jockey Reiff for $2,000.

THE following excellent description of a wonderful ride is contributed by a correspondent of this journal, old enough to remember the facts in all their detail, of a single cavalryman's charge on a whole regiment in line. It seems that the two bodies of men were standing face to face, and the bullets were flying thick and fast through the air. The fight was a desperate one, and each side seemed determined to stand its ground. Suddenly, as the fight was at its hottest, a horse dashed out of the confederate line, and started in a direct line for the Yankee regiment. On the horse's back was a man named English, who was leaning back in his saddle and pulling with all his might in a futile effort to stop the frightened horse. Our correspondent proceeds as follows: "The animal was yellow in color, and in running took long, clumsy jumps. The rider finally saw that he could not stop the frantic animal, and he made up his mind to make the best of his situation. He leaned forward in his saddle until his head almost touched the horse's neck, and his hands clasped the bridle near the bit. Even the rider's ears seemed pinned back, so great was his effort to make himself as small as possible. His face was as pale as death. The Yankees saw the horse with its rider making straight for them. Some of the soldiers ceased firing and looked excitedly at the half-maddened animal flying toward them. He reached the regiment, but did not stop. The Federals almost fell upon each other in their efforts to get away from the animal's heels. The animal went plunging through the center of the line of soldiers, foaming at the mouth and with head down, and then dashed on through the whole regiment, the soldiers making way for him all down the line. Not a shot was fired until he had run on out of range, and then nearly half of the regiment, who had managed to recover themselves from their astonishment, fired at a cloud of dust rising in the air, but the horse and rider were at a safe distance. The horse made a complete circle, returning to the Confederate company in safety. When they saw their comrade had returned without a scratch from his dangerous ride, they almost forgot the fight that was before them, and there went up a great cheer." This ride would appear to put that of John Gilpin entirely in the shade.—The Road.

ALL of the sporting writers and nearly every one of the bookmakers, jockeys, horsemen and attaches of the race tracks, who were at both meetings of the Fort Erie Jockey Club this year, knew John Sherwood, of Detroit, the clever young form writer who made the chart for both the Enquirer and Courier-Record. He was very popular with everyone and his tips were the talk of the town for many a day. After the close of the fall meeting here he returned to his home in Detroit expecting to go to New Orleans for a syndicate of well-known papers. The yellow fever scare, however, kept him away and news was received yesterday that Sherwood accidentally shot himself while hunting on Monday. With a number of friends he was out hunting quail when his gun was discharged and the ball entered his leg near the knee nearly severing an artery. Surgeons were at once summoned and, although they probed several times, they could not find the bullet. It will be several weeks before he will be about.—Buffalo Enquirer.

JOCKEY WILLIE MARTIN was called up into the stand of Judge Joe Murphy Thursday and requested to stay down for a period of 30 days for not persevering with the heavily-played Outaway in the first race. Martin declared that he was "afraid the horse would fall with him," but that looked very flimsy to the officials, who, if they keep up this good work of looking after the public's interests, will become very popular.

Great Contest Between Norfolk and Lodi at Two Mile Heats.

NORFOLK THE WINNER.

That large, influential, highly respectable, but somewhat "slow" portion of the community who did not attend the meeting at the Ocean Track yesterday can congratulate themselves on having escaped a huge amount of dust and discomfort; at the same time they failed to witness one of the most exciting and notable races on record. Wind and dust are not by any means strangers to this locality, but our citizens can generally calculate on enjoying a portion at least of each day from the nuisance. Yesterday, however, there was no let up from morning till night; the cold wind that commenced blowing early in the forenoon continued without intermission till late in the evening, and it was generally conceded that a worse day for the races could not have been selected any time during the last two months. Notwithstanding this drawback, the attendance was larger than was probably ever before seen at a similar gathering on this coast,and appeared to be limited only by the possibility of getting conveyance from the city to the course. Every known means of locomotion was brought into requisition. and fabulous prices for coaches, barouches, rockaways and buggies were offered during the last few days before the race, and generally offered in vain. After stripping Oakland of all its available vehicles and even sending as far as Sacramento for turn-outs, our citizens were compelled in the last extremity to resort to express wagons, grocery wagons, vegetable carts, omnibuses, saddle-horses and Shanks' mares. By one or the other of these various modes of transit,the tide of masculine and feminine "sports" commenced to set in over the hills to the Ocean House as early as 10 o'clock in the morning, and continued in one uninterrupted flow until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. By this time something like 8,000 people had arrived on the ground, covered with dust and trying to hoax themselves into the belief that they were delighted. After brushing the dirt from their clothes and rinsing their throats at the Ocean House bar, the crowd turned their steps to the track.

Our readers have already had a description of the new Ocean Race Track, and it is only necessary to say that it was yesterday in excellent order and in every way fitted for the great race that was to inaugurate its opening. The wind, however, blew almost a gale from the ocean, and here, as elsewhere, the dust blown up from the track (which for a running match was necessarily in a soft condition) filled the eyes of the spectators and sadly interfered with the pleasure of the occasion. By 2:30 o'clock every seat in the grand stand was occupied by ladies and gentlemen, the former filling the east end, and numbering from 200 to 300. The tiers of benches running round on the high banks opposite the first quarter of the track were also crowded with spectators, while on the inside of the track a long line of coaches, barouches, and wagons, extending for a quarter of a mile east and west of the judges' stand, displayed from their cushioned seats a bright galaxy of feminine beauties, sandwiched between broadcloth, and clad in veriegated silks and ribbons. At a quarter before 3 P. M., a simultaneous ejaculation, "There they come," from hundreds of voices, announced by the APPEARANCE OF LODI AND NORFOLK UPON THE TRACK.

They were led in by their respective trainers Bird and Rice, and accompanied by their riders, dressed in their jockey suits. Very few of the spectators had ever seen the famous Norfolk, and the greatest curiosity was manifested to get a look at him and see how he handled his limbs. Though Lodi has been the favorite horse up to within a day or two, yet the kind of mystery that surrounded Norfolk, owing to his having been kept so carefully from public view (having been brought up from San Jose yesterday morning, and this being his first appearance on the track), tended to increase the curiosity of the people which was not at all diminished by the rumors flying about that the knowing ones among the sports were offering odds on the new horse. The appearance of Norfolk's rider, too, a mere boy, whose antecedents and even name had been carefully kept in the dark, added to the excitement, and a large crowd soon collected round the horse, while Lodi was for the t me almost forgotten. To the surprise and amazement of the bystanders it was soon discovered that Norfolk had caught the exclusive spirit of his master, and would not suffer himself to be closely inspected. He looked upon the crowd that surrounded him with a sort of noli me tangere expression and if the caution was unheaded a spiteful kick from behind would warn them not to gather too near. At length his rider, whose name was ascertained to be Dick Rice, son of Norfolk's trainer, mounted the horse and trotted gently round the track, followed by scores of admirers. As he passed the grand stand he called forth a great variety of comments on his appearance and on the improbabilities of "that little boy" being able to ride a race successfully against the world-renowned Gilpatrick. The ladies, as a general thing, wouldn't believe it possible, and most of of their pin money was staked on Lodi, and as Lodi was evidently the handsomest, gentlest and best behaved horse, they unanimously adhered to the brown "beauty" with the tenderness of a fist love. When Norfolk had completed his survey of the track, he took his place beside his competitor,and a drum beat from the judges' stand announced the time for clearing the track.

The betting this time was generally even, though some were reported to be offering odds in favor of Norfolk at the rate of 100 to 80. There was some betting on time, though, in consequence of the high wind, no one anticipated any remarkable speed. At a quarter past 3 o'clock the horses were stripped, the riders mounted and the preparations were all complete for the First Heat.—The inside was given to Lodi; at the signal of the drum they started off, Lodi being nearly a length ahead as they passed under the starting line. He held this position with a slight gain, up to the half-mile pole, when Norfolk, who had been held pretty well in the check, was allowed a freer rein and passed Lodi, who afterwards gained on the homestretch, but on passing the score Norfolk was nearly a length ahead. On the second mile Norfolk gained the inside track before passing the first quarter, but Lodi gained on the second, and in passing the half-mile pole they were nearly neck-and-neck. They maintained the same position all the way on the homestretch, and passed the score so nearly even as to warrant the judges in pronouncing it a dead heat, though a majority of the spectators, who were in a position to see, maintained that Norfolk was at least half a neck in advance. The judges, however, decided it to be a dead heat, and those who advocat d the superior bottom of Lodi were gratified at the decision. The time was announced to be 3:43 1-5.

Second Heat.—This time the horses got an even start. Lodi, however, got the lead before reaching the quarter pole, and by a little crowding, which was generally regarded as exceeding the rules, passed Norfolk and took the inside track. Norfolk's rider, however, took no other notice of the fact than to loosen the curb upon his horse, who plunged forward, regained the pole, and left his antagonist two or three lengths in the rear. In this position they passed the score, and, although Lodi appeared to make great effort to regain his ground on the second mile, it was without avail,and Norfolk came in nearly four lengths ahead. Time, 3:42 3-5. This was a very exciting heat and prettily run by both horses, but the result knocked Lodi stock down 50 per cent., and bets were very freely offered on Norfolk at the rate of 100 to 40.

During the recess large crowds gathered around Norfolk, who had now become the favorite of everybody except a few who talked "bottom," and looked forward to the three-mile race on Monday next, when they were confident they would recover their money. Before starting for the next heat Lodi's trainer gave him a taste of Bourbon, but it did not seem to agree with his palate or add vigor to his limbs, and he took his position for the Third Heat—A dead cock in the pit, decided by his heaviest backers, and only retaining the sympathy of the fair sex, who still believed that beauty was bound to win. Some maintained that Lodi was not well, and he certainly betrayed much greater fatigue than his antagonist or than his boasted bottom would seem to warrant. Impartial observers, however, were satisfied, both from the running itself and from the appearance and action of the two horses at the close of the two seats, that Lodi had found more than his match in any race he might run, long or short. The first start on the third heat was pronounced false, and the horsemen were brought back to their positions. The second start was as nearly even as possible, but before they had reached the first quarter mile Norfolk was two lengths ahead, which was increased not less than five lengths at the half-mile pole, and retained through the rest of the run. During the second mile Norfolk was held in such strong check as to suggest a fear on the part of his rider that he would distance Lodi—a thing which many believed he could have done if he had been allowed his own way. Great applause followed the close of the last heat, and in due time the judges declared Norfolk the winner of the match and stakes, the time of the third heat being 3:51 4 5.

The highest praise was accorded to both riders for the manner in which they handled their steeds, and "little Dick" was the pet of all the boys on the track.

Many of Lodi's backers are confident he will win the three-mile race on Monday next,and are making even wagers to that effect.*

SUMMARY.

OCEAN HOUSE TRACK, MAY 23, 1865.—Purse of $2,500, with an inside stake of $2,000. Two miles and repeat.

Mr. Winters' b h Norfolk	0	1	1
Mr. Bryan's br h Lodi	0	2	2

Time—3:43 1-5, 3:42 3-5, 3:51 4-5.

Most of the spectators left the track at the conclusion of the race between Lodi and Norfolk, but a second race came off immediately after, in which three horses contended for a proprietor's purse of $100, with $25 entrance, mile and repeat. Sweetwater, Jennie Hull and Picayune entered. The race was won by Sweetwater in two straight heats. Time—1:56, 1:55.

*Our readers have already been informed by telegraph that the three-mile race resulted in Lodi's favor by Norfolk paying forfeit, he being out of condition to run on the day of the race.—Ed. WILKES' SPIRIT.

THE MALE LINE OF MATCHEM.

As Exemplified in the Breeding of the Futurity Winner, L'Aloutte.

I have always contended that the male line of the Godolphin Arabian was superior to that of Eclipse or Herod in one respect—that of bone and substance. I think Mr. Haggin must have been of the same opinion when he imported Darebin from Australia as an outcross for our American mares, as he is a Matchem horse without the same maternal lines as Alexander's Australian (sire of Joe Daniels and Fellowcraft) from whom all our Matchem male lines had been previously derived. As early as 1846 it was evident that the Matchem male line would become extinct but for Melbourne; and the hope that lay in him at that period was centered in his son. Sir Tatton Sykes, who won the Two Thousand and the St. Leger (then the fastest on record) but who turned out to be a most painful disappointment.

At that time there were other Mulwith horses besides Melbourne, any one of them his superior as a turf horse. Neptune, by Tiresias, who won the Derby of 1819; Jericho, who twice ran second for the Emperor of Russia's Vase at Ascot and sire of the Promised Land, who won the Two Thou' and Goodwood Cup; Nutwith, winner of the St.Leger of 1843;Clearwell,winner of the Two Thousand of 1833; Gray Momus, the first three-year-old to win the Two Thousand and the Ascot Cup in the same season; Ralph, who repeated Gray Momus' feat five years later; and numerous others of high note as performers but not one of which contributed anything towards the preservation of the male line of the Godolphin Arabian.

It is a rare thing to find more than three crosses of this line in any horse, but especially in American-bred horses.

Some time ago, Mr. Belmont sent out to me to do a 24x36 sheet tabulation of Hastings for him and to my astonishment there were no Matchem crosses in him. After getting that done, I made one of Ferrier who is out of the same mare but by a different sire, but he also showed seven Matchem crosses because he was by Falsetto, whose dam was by Australian, a Matchem line horse. If any man had offered to bet me $100 to $20 that no horse could be found to beat those two stallions I would not have taken the bet.

The next day I picked up a New York paper with L'Alonette tabulated out to 32s—16 sires and 16 mares—but thought nothing special of it. Next day I ran her out one generation further and I found she had eight male line crosses of the Godolphin Arabian, and here they are: The "E" stands for the male line of Eclipse, "H" for that of Herod and "M" for that of Matchem, who was a male line grandson of the Godolphin Arabian:

THE CARDINAL LINES.

	Crosses	Per cent.
E—The male line of Eclipse	30	47 7-16
H—The male line of Herod	26	40 1-16
M—The male line of Matchem	8	12½
Total	64	100

It will be noticed that the winners from the Matchem line since 1800 show a greater number of long racers to their credit than of short ones. In the interval which has elapsed they have won six Derbys, eleven St. Legers, ten Oaks, eleven of the Two Thousand and only five of the One Thousand. This shows very clearly a predilection for a long race, the St. Leger being 132 yards over one and three-quarters miles, while the Derby and Oaks are each one and a half miles and the two given races a mile and sixteen yards. Was it not the stout Matchem blood that stood L'Alouette so well in hand in that memorable struggle for the Futurity?

THE SPRECKELS THOROUGHBRED SALE.

Thirty-one Gallopers Bring Excellent Prices—The Occidental Horse Exchange and the Happenings There on Wednesday Night.

The first sale held at the Occidental Horse Exchange—that of A. B. Spreckels' horses in training—was an unqualified success from whatever point of view one observed it.

The pavilion was well-lighted, ample to hold the large assemblage of horse-lovers that gathered from all over the country, the bidding was at times sharp and spirited, the prices realized thoroughly satisfactory, the best members of the consignment eliciting lively competition, the poorer looking individuals probably bringing about what they were worth.

The auctioneer, William Fitch, of Buffalo, N. Y., was a revelation to San Franciscans who have attended sales here in the past, and soon became an overwhelming favorite. The great amount of magnetism possessed by the little Easterner, the grand voice that is his, the convincing and winning way he has, and, above all, the good humor he kept the crowd in at all times, shows him to be a master in the art of getting 100 cents on the dollar for horseflesh put up at auction. The host that had heard him expound sound money doctrines from the auction stand said he was a "star," and the crowd present last night, by the close attention bestowed and the liberality manifested, proved him worthy of all the kind, words that had been said of him, and more. The old saying, "He's little, but oh, my!" fits Fitch to a nicety.

By the time the first animal (Marcel) was led into the ring all the seats had been filled and perhaps 150 from the race courses were standing in the ample ring. Amongst those we noticed in the big enclosure were Hon. M. F. Tarpey, Reel B. Terry and Thomas Owens, of Fresno; John Crane, of Turlock; John A. McKerron, Sam C. Hildreth, W. M. Murry, Barney Schreiber, Dan Honig and "Pop" Thorne, of St. Louis; Rienzi Hughes, Jack Atkin, Tom Lottridge, Phil Archibald, Zeke Abrahams, G. Bertolacci, John S. Campbell, W. Fisher, B. C. Holly, W. McClellan, James Woods, Charles M. Chase, N. Brough, Horace Egbert, Frank Skinner, Ben Benjamin, Tom Magee, Sam Leake and about all the horsemen from the track. An innovation appreciated by the public was the posting of the prices upon a blackboard over the auctioneer's stand. The utmost good feeling prevailed during the sale, the closest attention was paid at all times, the horses were brought out promptly, and when Zinfandel, the last animal catalogued, was disposed of, hundreds of hands were thrust out in token of congratulation to Mr. Layng and his co-workers for the excellent management, for the careful attention paid to every detail, and it was assuredly gratifying. The craft is launched in smooth waters, beyond peradventure.

STORY OF A PLUNGER.

St. Louis Clerk Made a Fortune, Lost It and Is Now a Jockey's Manager.

Eddie Gaines, the well-known St. Louis bookmaker, accompanied Jockey Tod Sloan to England. This time last year Gaines was rated as one of the most successful turf plungers in America, but a run of bad luck at the San Francisco winter meeting separated him from his winnings, says a Mound City exchange. Gaines worked for Abe Levy on the New York tracks the past season. He went to England with Sloan as the latter's secretary and manager.

All the fashionable jockeys have their managers, as well as valets, nowadays, and Gaines has a pleasant job, no doubt, acting as such for Tod Sloan, the most fashionable of all the American riders. Gaines' rise on the turf was as rapid as his fall, so to speak. Seven or eight years ago, when he was a clerk in a St. Louis mercantile establishment, and the champion amateur pedestrian of the West, when winter racing was inaugurated at the South Side and East St. Louis, Gaines went on the turf and became a bookmaker. He operated fast from the start and showed keen judgment in handicapping the horses.

Dame Fortune lavished her smiles on Eddie, and it took him no time, apparently, to make $100,000. Gaines made books according to his own ideas. He was remarkably successful in knocking down favorites, and never booked on a race that he didn't like. Frequently he paid $300 for the privilege of booking three days at the fair grounds, and then made books to only one or two races a day. In the spring of 1895 Gaines come up the line from New Orleans with Billy Barrick, the owner of Dr. Hasbrouck, Maurice, Figaro and other cracks.

Gaines was interested in the stable with Barrick, and the pair planned a big coup with Figaro in the St. Louis Inaugural. Unfortunately for them, the horse was claimed by Dr H. E. Rowell out of a selling stake at the Memphis meeting. Gaines never forgave Rowell for claiming Figaro, and made it his business to "boost" Rowell's horses every time the opportunity presented itself. As a result of the feud, he took the selling plater Collins away from Rowell. Betting on Collins is said to have been partially responsible for his undoing as a plunger at 'Frisco last winter.—Buffalo Enquirer.

ED ARMSTRONG, of Oakland, has sold his Steinway pacer, Capt. Hackett, to J. Delaney, of San Francisco. Capt. Hackett is one of the most promising green pacers in California, and will no doubt be seen in the circuit next year.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

Annual Meeting P. C. T. H. B. A.—Monday, December 6th, the first Monday in the said month of each year is the time fixed by the constitution of the association for holding the annual meeting. Important at all times that the members of the society attend the meetings, this year the interests at stake demand extra consideration. Questions are presented, so momentous and imperative, that they must be given attention. It is an absolute necessity, a positive requirement, that the immense interests dependent on the proper administration of the business connected with racing shall be protected, and nothing left undone that has a tendency to premote the welldoing of the large number of people engaged in breeding, rearing, educating and racing harness horses.

Paramount above all other issues is honest racing. Remove the general and widely spread distrust that prevails,or, at least, prove that those who are in charge of the meetings at which harness horses are the main factors, will do all in their power to prevent fraud, and punish, with inexorable firmness, those who attempt to carry through swindling schemes, and the battle is more than half won. Temporizing policy, half-hearted endeavor, dread of correcting those who are under just suspicion must give way to sterner methods. Worse still. When the evidence of crime is so palpable, that anyone of ordinary perspicacity can see that wrongdoing is contemplated, to forego taking steps to frustrate the job on the plea that the acknowledgement brings discredit on the sport; that establishing guards is proof that guards are necessary, and, therefore, the crime must be hidden is emphatically criminal negligence. Nearly as bad, denouncing criticism, castigating the critic as a person who has broken the door of the closet and exposed the skeleton when all but "natural-born" idiots were aware that the den was so crowded with bones and putrid, bloated carcasses, that hinges were twisted off and if a semi-transparent curtain covered the fissures the stench so overpowering that people turned away in disgust.

The only hope of regeneration is thorough reformation. A code of higher ethics than that which has governed so many of those prominently connected with harness racing, and people who will not "take notice and govern themselves accordingly" compelled to forego their inclinations, or be forever banished from future participation in a business they have done their best to kill, and so nearly successful that only heroic measures can save.

It may appear to casual observers that little can be done at the annual meeting of the P. C. T. H. B. A. to overcome the bad effects which have followed some of the transactions of the past season, though I am more hopeful, and that the adoption of resolutions condemning evil practices that have prevailed, and insisting on the enforcement of all the laws by officers of the association and urgently soliciting the co-operation of all the other societies in reformatory work. There must be a solid foundation. An imperative requirement that there is a necessity for action, and that acknowledged, before remedial measures can be advocated. If there have been suspicions cast, wrongfully, if accusations are not based on tangible misdeeds then action is superfluous.

At one of the most important meetings of the California Circuit there have been accusations and counter accusations. Drivers charged with laying up heats, and throwing races. Judges charged with maliciously intending to cast unwarranted reflections in order to do harness racing an injury where heretofore harness-horses had earnest supporters—where trotting and pacing were more highly relished, a greater number of ardent admirers of trotters and pacers than any other section of the Pacific Coast.

One charge is supported by such an overwhelming mass of evidence, in my opinion, that it cannot be controverted, the other necessarily falls— not only into the category "not proven," but also into that which can be ranked as "too absurd for belief or comment."

That is comments to show the fallacy of the accusation.

In place of the "racing folks," who occupied the stand when trotters and pacers were contending, showing a desire to cast aspersions on the fair fame of the sports of the tracks, they were altogether too lenient, evidently more anxious to interpose obstacles to protect bettors than to punish transgressors. This was probably due to two causes, one of them a desire to guage their work to the requirements of that one meeting, the other a lack of knowledge of harness-racing laws.

Had they been governed by anxiety for the future welfare of harness racing they would have made an example of the violators of laws, a warning to those, as well deserved punishment of the offenders, and from my knowledge of the judges, had it been known to them that rule 26 N. T. A., containing this sentence: "When pools and bets are declared off for fraud the guilty parties shall be fined, suspended or expelled" one of these penalties would surely have been inflicted.

That this, the banner harness racing town of the Coast should have been selected as the theater for such an exhibition, is peculiarly obnoxious. Not that wrong doing is pardonable in any place but there are degrees of injury, and the consequences much more serious in one place than another.

Then, too, the prospects are none too bright for the harness-horsemen of California, at least for the coming year. That 1899 will bring a resumption of the District Fairs is assured as nearly as anything, of like nature, in the future can be guaranteed, but the interim may prove a serious drawback to a full success even with all the fairs rehabilitated.

The embargo laid in Montana on harness racing the coming year cuts off one prominent source of revenue to owners of trotters and pacers. At the same time an advantage to California, provided there are sufficient inducements to keep the horses in training which heretofore have depended upon the mountain circuit, at least, the early part of the season in Montana and later in this state.

With public confidence restored the first move towards complete success is made. There may be misgivings and fears that notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts of the Breeders, reformation cannot be accomplished, but owing to the occurrences mentioned, the supreme necessity for vigorous action so palpably apparent, that there is small danger of a lack of attention, and quite safe to predict that effectual methods will be employed to make violations of the law hazardous in the extreme.

This will be made so plain as to "carry conviction" and secure the good will of the general public, and even those who heretofore have looked at crime as being sanctioned by the customs of the past brought to see that their livelihood depends on a change of tactics. That policy demands that honest racing shall be that governing principle, more than good policy connected with straightforward racing. Now-a-days when people—at least a large majority of those who attend the races—are shrewd observers, and even the most cunningly contrived schemes are detected.

Suspicions aroused and every move is watched, every motion however insignigcant, closely scrutinized. A matter of life and death to harness-racing on this coast, and hence I have too high an opinion of the judgment of a majority of drivers if they fail to lend their aid to remove the obloquy that has followed some of the questionable transactions.

The Antrim Yearlings.—That speed and endurance in horses are best secured by being bred in a warm climate is very nearly an established fact.

Better, perhaps, to state that if the region in which thoroughbred horses are reared has cold winters then it is an absolute necessity that the ill effects of cold should be counterbalanced by artificial control of temperature. Thus, in Nevada and Montana where the winters are short on places so well equipped as Rancho del Sierras in the Carson valley where Mr. Theo. Winters transferred his stock a few years ago, and Bitter Root Farm, in the valley sf that name which Mr. Marcus Daly has supplied with such grand specimens of the thoroughbred, and spared no expense in all the adjuncts of a breeding farm, untoward climatic conditions are overcome.

The valley which contains the farm of Mr. Kerr is famed for its productiveness, and no one can gainsay the fact that the climate is just the thing for perfecting the form, and adding to the physical power and mental force of the colts.

Even without a great deal of assistance in the shape of extra attention from man, good horses could be reared, but Mr. Kerr has an abiding faith that high feeding and plenty of opportunity to exercise is the only true foundation to build real race horses upon.

And with everything to carry out this belief. Alfalfa fields for the mares when suckling their foals. Pastures in which are native grasses, the very best of all herbage, to make the right kind of muscles, tendons and bones. Then California hay that is surely superior as certified by those who have taken it across the continent in preference to using the finest timothy obtainable in the East.

Plenty of grain completes the commissary department,oats, the main dependence, though I am partial to occasional feeds of sound barley or a mixture of wheat when there is a tendency to "scour."

The Antrim colts reached here early Monday morning and are now quartered in the boxes of the Exchange.

Knowing Mr. Kerr's method of racing his colts I anticipate seeing a lot of lusty, well-grown yearlings, and was not disappointed.

In the rough. That is after the long journey on the cars, about forty hours they were somewhat gaunt, and rest was of more consequence than grooming.

Plenty of size, plenty of flesh evidently in rugged, robust health, by the time of the sale they will be in shape to suit the most exacting spectator. Plenty of racing form, too, and even after the briefest examination was struck with the "racing cut" of many of them.

There may be those who can chose the "pick of the basket' in thirty or forty colts, as readily as to select the biggest apple on the platter, but that kind is a "sort" that is very rare. And yet quite a proportion that anyone would be justified in pronouncing good prospects in these days when to win requires a high rate of speed. A glance at all of the colts showed that the lot were more than an average size, some of them large, few small.

The Palo Alto Yearlings.—Some time ago I made a trip to Palo Alto the main objcct being to see the thoroughbred yearlings, to be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange on Friday next. The third time I have seen them during the summer. At the first visit they were looking well and from that time on steadily improved. Intelligent handling Mr. Davis knowing full well that exercise is the most potent factor in the life of racehorses. That and liberal feeding being not only the sheet anchor but all the a chors necessary to hold the vessel from drifting be the gale ever so hard.

Well grown the rule, and form in keeping with the breeding, and that is certainly of an approved kind. Not much necessity for individual mention as that will be shown in the ring, and I am greatly mistaken if my high estimate is not shared by those who see them. Mothers and sisters to celebrities, when near kinship to good ones is accompanied with racing form, and good size, there is an assurance of like qualities.

From a somewhat critical examination I came to the conclusion that a number of the animals offered were more than likely to prove high class.

Rather a disagreeable day in a Californian's opinion wh I saw them. Chilly and an occasional shower, roughenin their coats, and when led out of the stalls a tendency to frisk about and plainly signify, that it would be very agreeable to take their customary gallops in the adjoining field.

Collectively a fine looking lot of youngsters, the majority ot them above the average size, free from defects, scarcely a blemish, hardly an "out."

Healthy and hearty most of them; in just the right shape to go into the training stable, flesh hardened with exercise, gallops in the field supplemented with kindergarten work.

Were I contemplating purchase there would be a good deal of trouble in making.

Rosebeam and the Flambeau—Fairy Rose filly, from her blood-lines near consanguinity to Racine, Fairy, Sweet Rose, Rosemonde, Flirt, etc., close relationship to the big guns of the turf on both hemispheres. The filly of fair size though a late foal, May 5th, good length of body, in fact,superior in all the racing points.

Plenty of good-lookers, and, outside of those which will be the most fancied by practical horsemen a good opportunity to secure a good prospect for a racehorse. Two big chestnut geldings by Racine-Aurelian and imp. Ceres, the dams are of the right stamp, and another Racine from Evangeline will come in the same category, and I must acknowledge decided leaning to the Racines, though the Flambeaus will take the eye and, in all probability, secure the greatest number of admirers

There is a filly by Racine that I have marked with several stars which will be watched with great interest,confident that she will justify the opinion.

And, by the way, the dislike to purchase fillies is from the notion that they are inferior to colts in the springtime, and while this may have a good basis when the estimate is made on the result of early stakes, many of the truly great race-horses of Europe and America have been of that sex.

A galaxy of brilliant stars; in England, Crucifix,Beeswing, Alice Hawthorne, Blinkbonny,etc.; in this country, Reality, Haynies' Maria, Fashion Reel, scores of others worthy of a place; in this state,Mollie McCarthy, Duchess of Norfolk,etc. Yo,Tambien, Acclaim, and several more.

Stake-winners among these Palo Alto yearlings. and as they are "well engaged" that will be an additional inducement to purchase.

The fillies are named as well as the colts in important stakes, and those to be decided in the fall of the year are "more than likely" to be one of the sex that so many times have captured the St. Leger.

Imported Cyrus.—This highly-bred stallion is included in the Palo Alto sale of next Wednesday at the Occidental Horse Exchange, and I would like to see him secure a like opportunity to that awarded his half-brother, imported Brutus. The success of the last-pamed has been so pronounced that it is fair to infer that the mares with which he was coupled were important factors. And these mares mainly bred on the old lines. A cross of imported Hercules on Belmont, American Eclipse etc.,a Wildidle strain with the same backing, in fact all of the celebrities bred and reared on the Elmwood farm, a mixture of modern English blood, and the old time families of America.

I have long entertained the opinion that climatic changes had the same effect in animal propogation as it has in the vegetable world.

The advantages of a change of seed, especially when the locations are far apart, are well known to cultivators, and there are numerous instances when the same results have followed in the production of racehorses.

The grand success at Elmwood is the most conspicuous, inasmuch as it has been shown so often and repeated so frequently that it is constantly before the public. Plenty of other illustrations could be offered, but when the consanguinity of Brutus and Cyrus is so near that one example is sufficient.

Brutus, by McGregor from Tear Drop, Cyrus by Wenlock from the same mare. With like blood on the side of the mares, there should be good returns, or the doctrine that "like produces like" is a fallacy.

The Oneonta Sale—While is is some time off yet before the sale of the Oneonta Stud Farm yearlings viz.: Monday December 6th, it is not out of place to make a note of it now. There are great expectations that the highly-bred youngsters will prove of a very high class, sires and dams being a good and sufficient warranty when coupled with good form, and those who have seen the colts rate them as beyond the ordinary in the way of good looks.

The get of Duncombe are running well on both continents. With few representatives in either country, in the old four winners of eight races, in this with only two two-year-olds winning. Briarhill and Spunwell, both are bracketed. Grand lines of blood in imported Duncombe, the same lines on the paternal side as are found in St. Simon, St. Cerf and Galopin, first second and third in the English winning sires of 1896—and the only one which leads St. Simons this year is Kendall. Owing to he phenomenal success of the triple winner Galtee More, St. Simon having fourteen winners to twelve for Kendall.

The catalogues of this sale will be out in a day or two.

QUINN'S OINTMENT.

It has the unqualified endorsement of our leading horsemen and veterinarians.

Mr. C. E. Dinehart, Cashier State Bank, Slayton, Minn., says: "One bottle cured a very bad case of blood spavin on a mare for which I have since been offered $800. I would not be without it if it cost $5.00 a bottle."

We have hundreds of such testimonials.

TURF AND TRACK.

THE SULKY.

Orrin Hickok will not go East with his horses next season.

Nancy Ragland, 2:23, is a new performer to the credit of St. Just, son of Electioneer.

Gipsey Maid by Hambletonian Wilkes is the dam of the four-year-old mare Stella 2:09¼.

When a sensible trainer secures a really good horse for his stable, he works the horse and not the owner.

Since July 4th Star Pointer has traveled over 8,000 miles, has paced twenty-six heats below 2:05 and nine in 2:02½ or better.

Baby Ruth is a pacer by Eros (son of Electioneer), that earned a record of 2:23½ at the Marietta (Ohio) race meeting.

Frank Green, by Fallis Jr. (son of Fallis, 2:23), won a pacing race at Independence, Kansas, September 15th, in 2:23, 2:27 and 2:30.

Bessie Bonehill 2:05¾, one of the two champion pacing mares, was bred before being trained, and has a foal now two years old by a son of Alcyone.

Old Black Rose by Tom Teemer, and grandam of Princeps, has more than 500 descendants in the 2:30 list, a number of them having records of 2:10 and better.

Waldstein won the first prize at the Ferndale (Humboldt county) fair. The Waldsteins are very well thought of in Humboldt county as well as everywhere else.

Rilma's winnings the past season foot up $14,262.50 and a mark of 2:10, not to mention those sums which came out of the pool box at Detroit, Readville, Lexington, and elsewhere.

Bow Bells has but one new standard performer this year—but that one was the world's champion two-year-old filly, Janie T., 2:14—and that should be glory enough for one year.

Sprite, by Belmont, now has to her credit four standard performers—three of them also being great sires. She is the dam of Sphinx, 2:20½; Electrite, 2:20¼; Egotist, 2:22½, and Spry, 2:28¾.

Our 2:30 list which is published in this issue has been carefully compiled and is the largest list to the credit of our California-bred horses that has ever appeared. We believe it is free of errors.

H. S. Hogoboom was reinstated at the Los Angeles meeting. He was ruled off for "talking back" to the judges. When Mr. Hogoboom has any rights, and he knows it, he is not afraid to say so.

Old Esther, thoroughbred mare, by Express, dam of the splendid campaigning three-year-old Expressive, 2:12½, has another representative in the 2:30 list, her son Kelly having recently taken a mark of 2:27.

Cresceus has to his credit the fastest eighth heat ever trotted, the previous best record for the eighth being 2:14¼. The time, 2:11¼ equaled the three-year-olds best mark made in the seventh heat of the same race.

We commend the probity of the following mild but timely suggestion: "Would it not be well for some two-year old to beat Arion's mark at all before doing so much talking about dethroning the great colt with a high-wheel sulky?"

Jasper Ayres sold for $1,750 at Cleveland. Someone sent a report East he was a "skipping jack" trotter. This information, no doubt, injured the sale. Jasper might make two or three breaks in the first mile or two of a race but that was all.

Only eight four-year-old trotters have ever beaten 2:10. In order of record they are: Directum, 2:05¼, Fantasy, 2:06, Beuzetta, 2:06¾, Arion, 2:07¾, Onoqua, 2:08¼, The Monk, 2:08¼, Pat L, 2:09¼, and Dare Devil, 2:09¾—four stallions, three mares and one gelding.

The Merchant, 2:29¾, is the first yearling that has entered the 2:30 list in the past two years. This youngster is by the fast trotting sire, The Conqueror, 2:12½,—Bright Light, dam of Image, 2:19, and Mite, 2:27¼, by Autocrat, Jr.; second dam by Lakeland Abdallah.

The fine bay mare, Pera, 2:26½, by Stamboul, 2:07¼, dam Georgiana, by Jim Gore, and the four-year-old mare Elba, by Sable Wilkes, dam by Alcantara, have been sold and shipped to Europe by John Frobisher of this city. Golden Belle was also sold recently to Mr. Tappan of Vienna.

At the Manchester, Eng., October trotting meeting 5,000 spectators were present to see Tom Smallwood drive three trotters forty miles in two hours. He used Benny C, Phillis Wilkes and Kitty Collins in turn in stages of about four miles each, and in the time covered forty-two miles and 1,503 feet.

Will Leyburn, 2:12, by Wilton, 2:19¼; Lady Moyra, 2:16¼, by Saccharine; Camelia Belle, 2:17¼, by Onward, 2:25¼; Mazette, 2:17¼, by Tennessee Wilkes, 2:27; Gus Waible, 2:17¾; by Argot Wilkes, 2:18; and Klatawa, 2:18½, by Steinway, 2:25¼, are the two-year-old pacers that have taken records better than 2:20 in 1897.

Speaking of sires, Monroe Salisbury said: "Give me the old horse (Director) to sire trotters, and Direct to get pacers. Directum, in my opinion, is the greatest horse in the world today and will make one of the best sires. I would sooner have him than any other sire of his age in America, and if I had the money would own him tomorrow."

Peter C. Kellogg, the well-known American trotting horse auctioneer, is in London and will conclude arrangements for establishing a mart for the disposal of American trotters in Europe. There is an increasing demand for them and no doubt buyers from France, Germany, Austria and Russia, will be glad to attend sales in England

Monroe Salisbury arrived in this city on Monday last He says he never felt better in his life. In regard to the trotters and pacers which he took East, he said they were very unfortunate in getting lame and being outclassed. "Javelin 2:08½," he said, "has shown me miles in 2:06 and 2:06½ repeatedly, but meeting with an accident I was forced to retire her."

The greatest race ever trotted in Europe was decided at Vienna, Sunday, September 26, it being the Fall purse of $2,000. Azmon (2:13½) won the first heat in 2:16, and Col. Kuser (2:11¼) the next two in 2:14 1-10 and 2:14 3-10, breaking the European record of 2:15 7-10, held by Maggie Sherman. Bravado was third in each heat and Bellewood fourth. Honeywood, Robbie P, Grace Hayes and McVera finished unplaced.

It is to be hoped that the forthcoming volume of the Year Book will not be characterized by so many performances, which are not accepted as records as has been the case with the last two volumes. Secretaries of racing associations should see to it that their reports of races are made out properly and forwarded to the proper authorities as soon as possible after the racing is over. It is very annoying to a man who has honestly raced and given the produce of his sires or mares creditable records, to open the Year Book and find that he has failed to receive the credit due on account of someone else's carelessness or shiftlessness.

The unfinished trotting race at the Gilroy Driving Park last Saturday was won by J. S. C. The $75 set of harness presented by J. A. McKerron was won by Helman's Ned Thorne. May B. took second prize, $50. Mabel W. was third. A heavy rain made the track muddy and prevented fast time. Iron Packer won the three-eighths mile dash. Sunday, Harry Wise was at the track and drove his own horse. Messrs. Van Bokklen and Helman refused to race on Sunday, so it looked as if Wise had everything his own way with Nancy W. She was the favorite and won the first heat but rather disappointed the plungers when Beach's Naylox won the last three heats. This was the only event of the day. The track was in fine shape.

Many a heat or race is lost by keeping the horse in a close stall between the heats, says Columbus. After going a considerable distance at the top of his speed, no sane man shuts himself up in a close room. Men and horses need an abundance of God's free air after putting forth every effort to win. The writer can call to mind instances where horses had nearly "blown out" before reaching their stall at the conclusion of a fast heat, who began panting soon after the stable door was closed. A friend of the writer's, and a successful campaigner, never allows one of his horses inside a stall during a race, unless the day is very unfavorable. We know of several hard races that this gentleman has won through just such management; his horse being the only one in the race that had "blown out" properly.

The time records at Lexington were quite numerous. To beat 2:30½, Elory, a bay mare by Simmons, out of Berkshire Bell, by Alcyone, trotted in 2:23¾; to beat 2:30½, trotting Mary Nelson, the bay mare by Nelson, trotted in 2:25½; to beat 2:25¼, Amby, the brown two-year-old colt by Ambassador, trotted in 2:16¾; to beat 2:24, Annie McGregor, the bay mare by Robert McGregor, trotted in 2:21; to beat 2:30½; Ladykin, a grey mare by Velocidad, out of Lady Russell, by Harold, trotted in 2:30; to beat 2:25½, King Crystal, a brown horse by King Nutwood, paced in 2:24½; to beat 2:30½, Russett a chestnut mare by Russig, paced in 2:25; to beat 2:12½, Faustino, the brown horse by Sidney, trotted in 2:12½; to beat 2:20½, Will Stokes, the brown horse by Wilton, out of Jane L, trotted in 2:22¾. (This horse was afterward sold to go to Japan.) To beat 2:25¼, Pearl, the chestnut mare by Budd Crooke, paced in 2:23½.

During a recent call the veteran trainer Foster S. Palmer remarked that he has discovered a new way of shoeing horses to prevent forging which has proved very effective. He reverses the front shoe, which is made plain and without calks, so that what was intended for the toe of the shoe covers the heel. This leaves a space at the toe of the front foot which is not covered with iron. He has tried this method in a number of cases, and it has never failed to remedy the disagreeable habit. In the last case that he tried he had a neat bar shoe made to fit the foot, then cut out the iron at the toe, so as to leave an open space as large as the space in the heel of an ordinary shoe. If we remember correctly, Mr. Palmer invented what is termed the cord boot to protect the back cords of the forelegs of trotters. At any rate, he devised and used such an application before he had ever seen any one else do so.—Horse Breeder.

Color in horses is always an interesting study. The tenacity with which the roan color sticks to the descendants of Jay Bird has long been known and commented upon. Of the performers tracing to Jay Bird fully one-half seem to have taken the roan color of that famous son of George Wilkes, and it has become natural for a breeder who mates a mare to that horse to expect a road foal. Just where one would think the roan color should have been shown, however, it is absent. This is in the trotter Eagle Flannigan, 2:12¼, by the roan horse Eagle Bird, son of Jay Bird. Eagle Flannigan's dam was sired by the roan horse Wood's Hambletonian, a larger part of whose descendants are also roan, but it is a queer circumstance that Eagle Flanigan is a bay. Just why he should have failed to inherit the roan color so prominent on both sides of his ancestry is another proof that in some cases in particular points will breed away back.

Secretary John H. Steiner has made a most valuable move in advising that the breeders of America should make a united effort for a big show of trotters, roadsters and carriage horses at the Paris Exhibition of 1900. He says: "There is no question in my mind but that it would be an excellent thing for the breeders of American horses to have a first class exhibition at the Paris Exhibition in 1900, and I will be pleased to do anything in my power to further the project, but the show business is entirely out of my line, and I am not competent to advise how it should or can be done. It, however, strikes me that every animal exhibited should be inspected on this side and pronounced typical of its class before being permitted to exhibit. The large breeding establishments of the different classes of horses might be induced to enter, and if they would do so on the co-operative plan as to expenses, it would make such an exhibition less burdensome than it would otherwise be.

Ben Kenny says the two year-old colt Freeliver, by Prodigal—Fantasia, by Ranchero, went a mile for him at the pace in 1896 in 2:18. The youngster knew nothing but pace then, but this year in his three-year-old form he took to trotting and declined to pace a step a speed for Dick Benson, who had him in charge. No change was made in shoes or harness; he judged his way of going, and let it go at that. He may be brought East as a four-year-old in 1898.

One of the best young trotters of 1897 on the Pacific Slope was Claudius, a four-year old gelding, by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16¼. He has won several notably fine races, and reduced his three-year-old record of 2:28 to 2:13½. The Year Book for 1897 gave him as "said to be by Nutwood Wilkes." There is no doubt as to his breeding, which is elegant on both sides, his sire being a son of Guy Wilkes 2:15½ and Lida W. 2:18¾, while his dam is by Menlo 2:21½, son of Nutwood; and his grandam by Anteeo 2:16½. He thus represents the three most popular families of to-day—those of George Wilkes, Electioneer and Nutwood.

Mr. John R. Gentry, after whom the famous pacer was named, was the manager of the recent successful St. Louis Horse Show. Mr. Gentry is a quiet, unassuming gentleman of sterling, honest ways, and a great favorite with all who know him. He is as popular as his namesake, about which by the way, Secretary Ashbrook tells a little unwritten history. It seems that when Mr. Gentry purchased the Ashland Wilkes colt he let it remain in the breeder's possession till weaned. In the meanwhile he lost no opportunity to tell the boys what a wonderful colt he had purchased When at last it was shipped to him, it was so poor, long-haired, scrawny and altogether pitiful that his owner tried to slip it out to the farm without its being seen, but he had done too much boasting, and when some of the Sedalia horsemen stole a march on Gentry and went in a body to see the great colt, they named it John R. Gentry as a huge joke. None of them ever thought the joke would turn out the other way.

To use language more expressive than elegant, they seem to have had "a monkey and parrot time" at the Chicago Horse Show, which wound up in stormy fashion and a deficit of $20,000. The whole career of the Chicago Horse Show from its inception has been one long and scandalous series of squabbling. Right after the launching of the enterprise, and the engagement of John A. Logan Jr. as manager, the fun began. Mr. Logan promptly got into a row with the authorities of Hyde Park over the question of selling liquor at the show. Then Mr. Logan got into difficulties with the directors, and they undertook to suppress him, even going to the length of nailing up the door of his office. Finally, Mr. Logan threatened, it seems, to bring the show to a sudden end, whereupon the directors apologized, and the show ran out its discredited and discreditable course. The society horse people of Chicago seem to need a reform in their Horse Show organization, or rather disorganization.—Trotter and Pacer.

Will S. Barnes, one of the largest stockmen in Navajo county, Arizona, recently told a St. Louis Globe correspondent, that there are 20,000 head of wild horses, in Northern Arizona. "They are they worst nuisance that can be imagined," said he. "It has reached the point when we cannot safely turn out a riding horse to graze. We have to keep our saddle animals and round-up horses stabled all winter or bring them down to Phœnix for pasturage. The wild stock not only eat the food that ought to go to the cattle, but they run cattle off the range. They have chased off all the cattle from the west end of the Hash Knife range, one of the best grass districts in northeastern Arizona. It is useless to put out salt for the stock, for the wild horses chase away the cattle that come near it. At this season of the year they are fat and have shining hides. They sweep over the country in great bands, gathering up any stray animals they may come across. A horse is as good as lost that joins them."

Manager Logan had any number of queer propositions to face preceding and during the Chicago horse show, but one was the receipt of an entry blank from a well-known club man who was never known to have owned a horse. It read thus: Summer Girl, chestnut filly, flaxen mane, two years old, by Inclination, out of City, dam Lively; Summer Beau, brown colt, two years old, by Bucking Tiger, out of Funds, dam Broke; Cocktail, bay horse, seven years old, by Smith, out of Shiver, dam Exhilerating; Chaperon, gray mare mule, fifty-seven years old, by Gossip, out of Flirtation, dam Nuisance; Debutante, bay filly, two years old, by Toleration, out of School, dam Fresh; Brass Band, mustang colt, three years old, by Amateur, out of Tune, dam Racket; Mint Julep, bay horse, six years old, by Dog Days, out of Saloon, dam Good; Old Maid, iron gray mare, age unknown, by Touch Me Not, out of Fashion, dam Sour; Widow, chestnut mare, four years old, by Funeral, out of Sight, dam Fascinating; City Milk, clay-bank, suckling, by Adulteration, out of Economy, dam Weak.

Among the horses Ben Kinney had in his stable in 1896 was a two-year-old pacer by Prodigal, out of Fantasie, the old mare that attracted so much attention on the Montana circuit this year by going a number of game races and making a record of 2:27½ in her sixteen-year-old form. This colt was called Freeliver, and Mr. Tipton says of him that he could brush about as fast as pacers ever go, and that he went one mile in 2:18. There is nothing specially remarkable in that performance, but his subsequent career makes an interesting story, says a Western paper. This year Dick Benson had him and entered him in all the slow pacing stakes in Montana, but the colt either overheard too many stories about Searchlight or else he got hold of one of Marcus Daly's catalogues and discovered that he was not bred to pace, for all of a sudden he discarded the pacing habit and took to trotting without asking for a change in his shoes or rigging. His trainer remonstrated with him and showed him the receipts for his entrance money in many pacing races, but all to no purpose, as he refused point blank to do any more pacing. Then they tried to force him, and applied the hobbles, but he positively refused to give in, and finally won his point and was allowed to trot. At his own request his name was changed to John Nolan, and he has ever since tried to make up for his past conduct and has learned to trot about as fast as he could pace, and if he is as good as reported he will probably be seen in the East next season. He worked an easy mile in 2:20, last quarter in 31 seconds, at the trot.

THE SADDLE.

Gala Day, recently sold by John J. McCafferty, beat Martha II and other good two-year-olds at the Washington meeting on Saturday.

Mandolina, by El Rio Rey, won a mile and a sixteenth race at Lakeside, Ind., Nov. 12, Paul Pry (by Sir Modred) second, La Moor third.

La Princessa, bay filly by Prince Royal—La Paloma, won a five-furlong race at Lakeside, Ind., November 9th, beating a field of eighteen.

The fast Canadian six-year-old gelding Van Dorn will be sold next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange. He is a cracking good one.

Out of the ten St. Carlo two-year-olds that have started this season, eight have proven winners. They all have great speed, and are more than useful.

Decapod, by imp. Sir Modred—Christine, by imp. Australia, won the steeplechase (about two and one-half miles) at the Washington meeting on Saturday.

Salvado and Presbyterian, by the Rancho del Paso horses, Salvator and imp. Prestonpans, won Lakeside race November 8th at a mile and at six furlongs respectively.

St. Cuthbert was pretty badly cut down in his last race, and it accounts for his poor showing. He is dead game and would have been heard of but for the accident.

Brazil, a steeplechase rider new to San Franciscans, made his debut on Viking Saturday, and created a very good impression. He came from Victoria, B. C., recently.

M. D Miller's string got in from Chicago Wednesday, and the horses are stabled at Oakland. The lot consists of Harry Gwynn, Senator Morrill, Darechota, Metaire and Barnato.

Willie Spence, the excellent steeplechase jockey, was on hand Monday. He was trained down from 148 to 120 pounds. He has been with Baldwin's trainer, Frank Taylor, all summer.

George Breemer's two-year-old bay filly Nelly B., ridden by Tod Sloan, won the Apethorpe selling Nursery Handicap at the Leicester November meeting, England, Tuesday. There were eleven starters.

Carrie M., by Hyder Ali, to be sold by auction November 22d at the Occidental Horse Exchange, is in foal to St. Carlo. The last service was April 5, 1897. This is a grand individual, sound as a dollar, a winner and a sister to Censor, winner of forty-eight races.

Carroll Reid has bought from the estate of Clifford Porter the speedy three-year-old filly, Sister Stella, by Sir Dixon—Mercedes, and therefore a sister to the famous filly The Butterflies, winner of the great Futurity in '95. The price was reported to be $800.

That well-known race horse and champion timber-topper, J. O. C., will be sold by auction next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange. He is all right and a winner of over $6,000. Here will be a chance for some one to rake in a fortune on this great horse this winter. He must be sold.

A carload of horses from Roby, Ind., arrived at the Oakland track late on Monday night. W. Muir had on board Mandolina, Paul Pry, Fleming, Strathrol and the jumper Southworth. A. R. Smith brought Tenrica, Sky Blue and Red Top. Kittleman, a brother of the crack sprinter, had Midlight and Myth.

Sunlit, by Monday, cost J. O. Reis $2,000 at the Thornton sale, and now that she has a Morello weanling at her side and is in foal to the great Musket horse, she should bring $3,000. Sunlit is the dam of three good racers—El Rayo, Sunrise and Don Carillo, while a fourth, Morinel, threatens to win shortly.

The St. Louis Republic is authority for the statement that Timmons took a whole lot of money from the St. Louis poolrooms the day Marquise captured the Golden West Stake. Timmons is a wealthy Kansas City stockman. Bob Marks, who trains Marquise, claimed her out of a race at New Orleans for a trifling sum.

Mainstay's entry will be refused hereafter at Oakland. The judges did not like the way he appeared in his last race but one. They told Trainer Brown that on that occasion he came out cold while Wednesday he was a hot horse. Brown said the race previous was run much later in the day and the weather was colder then.

James Grant, manager of Theodore Winters' Rancho del Sierras, arrived at Oakland from the ranch Tuesday morning with Padre Jose (the brother to Scarborough), P. A. Finegan (brother to Caliente), Katy Blake (sister to Una Colorado) and Diablita. Rey del Sierras, the four-year-old brother to Yo Tambien, it is expected will arrive in a few days.

In the coming Winters sale of yearlings there is a sister to Scarborough and Padre Jose. The latter was beaten but a head by Los Prietos in the mile stake race at Sacramento this fall, and competent judges declare he would have won off had he not been made so much use of in the first part. The mile was, however, run in 1:42, the track record for two-year-olds.

Spectacles for horses have been patented by an inventor and are being used with considerable success. Their object is not so much to magnify objects as to make the ground in front of the horse appear nearer to his head than it really is. The result is continual high stepping, which, after a while, becomes natural, and gives to a horse an aristocratic gait, which he will retain for many years.

Butte (Mont.), November 16.—Ed A. Tipton, manager of the Butte and Anaconda race tracks, announced to-day dates for next season's races as follows: Butte, thirty-one days from July 2d to August 6th; Anaconda, twenty-seven days, from August 11th to September 20th. Seventeen stakes, aggregating $21,000, have also been announced, and others will be added. Mr. Tipton has decided to abandon harness races and devote the meetings to running entirely.

Pittsburg Phil will most likely go to Europe, where now with Tod Sloan is Ed Gaines, a dashing operator, known many times to put up 8 to 5 against the favorite and take all the money offered, having no other figures on his slate. They say that Pittsburg Phil bet Joe Ullman $20,000 to $200 that he would not be seen West of the Rocky Mountains inside of three years.

Will Applegate, son of Colonel Applegate, arrived here Sunday. Will Applegate is one of the youngest bookmakers in the business. It is related that Applegate once went on the block at Latonia with a bank roll of $136, which he ran into $10,000 before the end of the week. The young man knew that his father would have come to his rescue in the event of his losing more than his bank roll.

Pierre Lorillard is back from England. He will spend the winter, as usual, in Florida. His horses are in England and will race there next year. Of his experience Mr. Lorillard is reported as saying: "I like England. The best horse wins there. They race there for sport. Of course money is involved, but it is mainly for sport." Mr. Lorillard's experience on the English turf, which extends over a good many years, should make him a competent judge of English racing.

The Crescent City Jockey Club has decided to postpone the opening of their race meeting until Dec. 4, This step was made necessary owing to the yellow fever, which, though much reduced in its severity, still continues to rage at New Orleans. This postponement will throw out three of the stakes already closed, the Inaugural Handicap, the Thanksgiving Handicap and the Magnolia Selling Stakes, but the entrance money will be refunded and the same events will be renewed later during the meeting.

Installator Tuesday equalled the Coast record for a mile and a sixteenth (1:46¾), held jointly by Arnette and 'Ostler Joe. Installator, however, had thirteen pounds more in the saddle than Arnette and five pounds more than 'Ostler Joe. A Brutus (Vinctor) holds the Coast mile record (1:39¼), Remus by Brutus, the mile and seventy-yard Coast record (1:44¾), Duchess of Milpitas, by Brutus, the mile and a half record (2:35½), and Lucretia Borgia, by Brutus, the four-mile record of the world, 7:11. Surely it is a great breed of horses.

On Tuesday night a meeting of horsemen was held at the Baldwin Hotel, the idea being the formation of a Horsemen's Protective Association on the lines of the one recently formed in the far East. Charles Boots, Dan Honig and W. Fisher were appointed a committee to interview all the prominent horsemen on the Coost. While it is not the intention of the members of the protective association to antagonize the jockey clubs, they believe that they should have a voice in the management of turf affairs as well as the owners of the courses. They are more heavily interested in racing than anyone, and it certainly does seem that they should have something to say.

B. J. Johnson, who brought Rudolph, Gascon, Jacobin and several others to San Francisco three years ago, afterward purchasing Diggs, arrived at the Emeryville course yesterday with nineteen horses. The trip from Chicago was made in three and a half days and not a horse was sick on the journey. The string includes the following horses: Paul Griggs, David Tenny, Terra Cycha, Sutton, Rudolph, Anna Mayes, Diggs, Louden, Cheneer, Muldred, Florenso, Candle Black, Fonbee, Little Charm and Little Minch Jr. This is the biggest string shipped to California this year. Diggs and Sutton are brothers and California-bred horses. Paul Griggs captured the Detroit Derby this year and is quite a good three-year-old.

Bob Isom, one of the best lightweight jockeys in the country, died Tuesday afternoon of consumption, aged about 19 years. His remains will be shipped to the home of his mother in Lexington, Ky. Isom was brought to California by Col. Jack Chinn, along with his brother Albert, in the fall of 1894. He had already acquired some reputation as a rider, and enhanced it greatly by piloting Lissak, Maj. McLaughlin, Zenobia and other members of the string to victory. Bob was taken sick here in 1895, but went East again and once more took a commanding position among the jockeys at Latonia and Oakley. During his turf career the young jockey put by enough of his earnings to buy this home for his mother and to leave her some money. Last season he was under contract to A. B. Spreckels, who sent him to Honolulu in the expectation of benefiting his health.

Songer, the clever jockey who won so many points at Fort Erie at the fall meeting, was called down good and hard yesterday at Washington. He had the mount on Hairpin in the fourth race, but he palpably fouled several of the horses and he was set away back and Hardly was given the race. Ponte Canet, another old Fort Erie favorite, by the fouling, was given third place. In the next race Sue Kittie, who won so many races across the river, finished absolutely last to a number of inferior horses. At Chicago Jockey Shields, who rode across the river and won several good races for his father on Logan and others, was roundly roasted and called down by the judges for a rank ride on the favorite, Cheswold, in the first race. Besides pulling his horse all over the backstretch, he deliberately sat up fifty feet from the wire and allowed a 15 to 1 shot to beat him out.—Buffalo Enquirer.

It is now said that Handspring is to be first bred to about a dozen of the Keenes imported mares at Castleton, near Lexington. After this he will be taken by Brown Dick to that worthy's home in Woodford county, where they say the peculiar Kentucky clay will greatly assist the growing out of a perfectly new set of feet. "Dick" says so, anyhow, and he generally knows whereof he speaks. After his small season Handspring will be taken up by Brown Dick and put into training, which, if he stands, will probably give the West an opportunity to see this truly great race horse in a few races before being taken back East to Mr. Dwyer. There seems every probability that by spring Handspring will be in possession of an entirely new set of feet, and, in that event, he may well be looked for to beat many more next season than will beat him. Not so long ago it was announced that Handspring would make a full season with his sire at McGrathiana, next spring, but the program seems to have been changed.

St. Carlo will be in great demand next year, as his sons and daughters have done so remarkably well this season. Fourteen outside mares are already booked to him, and Superintendent McDonnell says only five more will be taken. W. M. Murry will breed Miss Walling, Circe, Jessie R., and Miss Pickwick to the son of St. Blaise, and E. D. McSweeny will send Calatine (dam of St. Calatine) and nine other mares.

A report comes from Nashville to the effect that Walter Parmer of that city was in Buffalo a short time since and during his visit closed a deal whereby the Fort Erie, Ont., track becomes a member of the Highland Park syndicate. This syndicate controls the Highland park track at Detroit, the Windsor, Ont., track, the Montreal track, and now completes the circuit by this deal. Two meetings of fifteen days each will be given over all these tracks, with the exception of Montreal, at which place but fifteen days' racing will be offered, making some 120 days' racing in all. The Fort Erie Jockey Club closed the deal on account of its financial difficulties, its outstandieg obligations amounting to many thousands of dollars. The spring meeting of the association was a success and netted some $6,000 in profits, but money was lost at the fall meet, as Buffalo horseman soon tired of the game. If Buffalo ever supports a running meeting it will be a genuine one, like that offered by the Detroit Driving Club, for it is doubtful if the people of the Queen city will support a meeting of the Windsor class and type.

President Tom Williams is on the trail of the prime movers of the Horsemen's Protective Association, says he will brook no interference in the management of the affairs of his club. If the horsemen have any grievance he will listen to it and give the matter due consideration, but when it comes to dictating what the size of the purses shall be, he will not stand that. He furthermore declares that if he finds any man or set of men agitating a scheme which will prove a menance to the turf of California, they are likely to be asked to take their horses away from the C. J. C. track. Among other things Mr. Williams said Wednesday: "This request for bigger purses does not come with good grace in view of the fact that the California Jockey Club has leased several outside tracks in order to give the horsemen a chance to earn some money between seasons. When the time comes that the association is on velvet then no one would be more pleased to give some more big stakes than myself. The horsemen shodld not overlook the fact that more money is now offered in a week than during a whole year six years ago."

The late John A. Morris had great faith in Texas as a stock country and liked to tell his friends the champions of the future would come from a 40,000 acre ranch he owned near Kerrville, where he had a splendid collection of stallions and brood mares. Alfred Hennen and David Hennen Morris, sons of the founder of Morris Park, are not as sanguine as their father was, and it is announced they will give up the breeding business in Texas and sell their horses, mares and yearlings at Lexington during the last week in November. St. Florian, Mars, and other good sires will be offered to the highest bidder. It is not known whether the mares which were to be sent to Hanover will be offered, but Turf, Field and Farm is author for the statement that all of the live stock at the farm is to be sold. The Messrs. Morris have gradually curtailed their racing division year by year since the death of their father, and it would not be surprising to find them absentees entirely after another season. The younger brother takes very little interest in the sport and is seldom seen at race tracks.—New York dispatch, November 12th.

The London Referee, which is considered one of the higher sporting authorities in England, paid a great compliment yesterday to Tod Sloan, the American jockey. It said: At the present moment we do not think we have a more popular personage on the turf than little Sloan. If the American goes on doing as well as he has been doing we shall probably have a school of imitators spring up. His method is superior to the English, but only prolonged experience and a comparison of the two styles can determine which pays better. At both meetings last week Sloan distinguished himself and he has become such a favorite with the racing constituency that he now has a strong following in the market, while his services are much sought after by owners and trainers. Whatever may be the merits of his style, there is no gainsaying that he possesses the art of jumping horses off quickly and also keeping them going straight, which is more than many can do. It is said that he will lay himself out next year and go in for the best returns in winning mounts. If so, he starts with a great pull, as he can ride boys weight and can command a far greater number of mounts than any of the top-sawyers.

E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin arrived in San Francisco Saturday, and his string of racers, in charge of Frank Taylor, came also. The greatest celebrity of the multi-millionaire's stable is the six-year-old Rey El Santa Anita, who won the American Derby, was leased two years ago by "Boss" Dick Croker, taken to England, and there showed little of the speed or stamina that had made him famous. Mr. Baldwin said on Saturday night that he would not run his horses in future outside the State. He, with the ten he brought from the East, has now twenty-two on the tracks here, and he proposes to bring fourteen more from his ranch at Santa Anita early next week to add to the list. The horses from the East are Rey el Santa Anita, Bernardillo, La Frontero, Zaradia, Rey el Salto, La Maroma, La Golita, La Ventura, San Venado and San Antonio. They are at the Oakland track. At the Ingleside track he has Argentina, Los Cerillos, Celoso, Texarkana, Alcalino, Algorto, Rey d'Amour, De los Reyes, San Durango, Abina, Palo Blanco and El Solado. Early next week he will bring sixteen others from the ranch and add them to the string. Soon after their arrival he proposes to sell most of them and only retain those he desires to keep for breeding purposes after their racing days are over. He will race only those he will keep, and they will not be taken out of the State. Along about the 1st of January he will bring twenty-eight coming two-year-olds from the ranch to the track and sell most of them, only keeping those he proposes to keep for the stud at his ranch. Among the latter horses is Rey el Rio, a son of Rey el Santa Anita, and it has been pronounced a wonderful colt by the horsemen who have seen it. Colonel Burns is reported to have offered $5,000 for this fellow.

Close of the Season.

The Horseman in its last issue had the following ament the season just closed:

Great indeed have been the feats performed by the pacers during the season just closed; but the trotters, alas seem to be going from bad to worse. The season of 1894 marked the reaching of the peak by the trotters and ever since then there has been noticeably a steady, gradual decline in speed and brilliancy of contest. In 1891 Sunol reduced Maud S.'s record to 2:08¼, drawing pointed attention to the fact that the world's records might be broken, and then Nancy Hanks took up the work, climbing upward and onward until she bravely set her banner on a summit far above any height ever before reached by a trotter and overstepping even that obtained by a pacer. Then Alix arose and, September 1894, she shaved one quarter of a second from Nancy's best mark, enthroning herself the queen. In her fight for honors she trotted some gallant races, her battle at Terre Haute, with Pixley and others, being one of the most stubbornly contested ever witnessed. Her best race mark is 2:05¼, equalling that of Directum, made in 1893, and from that time to this there has been a steady decline as mentioned above. In 1895 Azote was a great race trotter, but he beat 2:06 in only one of his races; in 1896 Fantasy was easily the best of the free-for-all trotters, and in 1897 William Penn, with a heat in 2:07¼, Grace Hastings with one in 2:08, and Derby Princess with one in 2:08½, and The Monk, 2:08¼, only have beaten 2:09. In 1894, yes, in 1893, that measure of speed, as a maximum, would have won its possessor few dollars. Arranging the best race marks of the various years alluded to, together with the trotters to whom they were credited, we have: 1893, Directum, 2:05¼; 1894, Alix, 2:05¼; 1895, Azote, 2:05½; 1896, Fantasy, 2:06½; 1897, Wm. Penn, 2:07¾. Best records, any way made, trotting: 1893, Directum, 2:05¼; 1894, Alix, 2:03¾; 1895, Azote, 2:04¾; 1896, Fantasy, 2:06½; 1897, Wm. Penn, 2:07¾. In addition we find the class of the free-for-all contests deteriorating in practically the same manner, the races contested by Alix and her competitors in 1894, being immeasurably superior to those recorded for the open division in any subsequent year.

Not so, however, with the pacer; from year to year he has gone steadily forward, the cut of two and one-quarter seconds from Robert J.'s record made in 1894 more than atoning for that record standing unequalled until John R. Gentry reached his best form in 1896. It is only natural, then, that the pacer should have advanced by leaps and bounds in popular favor and, as it has turned out, on him has devolved the onus of attracting the crowds during the past two if not three seasons. The match between Joe Patchen and John R. Gentry at Freeport, in 1895, when the latter, early in July, went down to the six furlong post in one minute and a half with Joe at his throat latch, and jogged home in 2:04½—unheard of time for the season of the year—after Joe had cast a shoe, set the ball a rolling and from that time forward only a battle of the kings would suffice. Slowly but surely the record was pulled down, until the end of 1896 saw the champion mark held by John R. Gentry at 2:00½. It costs little to make predictions and many were made at that time in 1897 the 2:00 goal would be reached if not passed. These predictions were verified, even the most sanguine of them; and, in fact, it may be said that the pacers as a whole have done fully all that was expected of them.

The Kerr Sale of Yearlings Next Monday.

The twenty-one yearlings from Antrim Stock Farm to be sold next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange have arrived, and those that have had the pleasure of looking the bunch over pronounce the consignment a grand one. The stallions represented are:

Apache, by imp. Mortemer–The Banshee (sister to True Blue), by Lexington. Apache sired Olive, Mobalaska, J. O. C., Lorena, Lena, Castake and many other good ones.

Imp. Calvados, by Galopin (winner of the Derby, and sire of the unbeaten St. Simon), dam Turn of the Tide, by Mandrake. Calvados sired Queen Nubia and Cauldron. Only four have started.

Rio Bravo, by imp. Sir Modred (the most wonderful sire of winners in America), dam Mollie Walton (a stake winner and half-sister to Hindoo), by imp. Mortemer.

Orizaba, by imp. Cyrus–imp. Lælia, by Carnelian. A winner in good company and a brother to the fast Pasha.

Nomad, by Wildidle–imp. Amelia, by Lowlander. Nomad won twenty-two races and $31,655. He was beaten a head at a mile as a three-year-old in 1:39¾.

The mares with foals in this sale are:

Amanda, by Jim Brown; Bella Platte (half-sister to Jennie K.) by Munster; Blondinette (a winner), by Joe Hooker; Catherine B. (winner of 50 races), by Bullion; Celia, by imp. Charaxus; Eileena (dam of Viking), Idaho (sister to Orizaba and Pasha), by imp. Cyrus; Irene, (dam of J. O. C.), by Leinster; Juanita, by Joe Daniels; Lena (dam of Castake and Tacoma), by King Alfonso; My Badge (sister to the great Badge and dam of Coupon), by imp. The Ill-Used; Nadavis (sister to Catalpa, Dungarven and Mabel Glenn), by Hindoo; Nellie K., (dam of the good winner Lost Girl) by Tyrant; Play Toy (sister to Tournament, winner of over $109,000), by imp. Sir Modred; Resella, by Hyder Ali; Rillita (sister to Antrim) by Apache; Rosa Bella (of the family of Dr. Hasbrouck, Tournament, Duke of Magenta, &c.), by King Alfonso; Sallie Mac, by Apache—Madam Wheatly; Sweet, by Hanover—Matagorda; and Virginia Dare (sister to Olive), by Apache; Why Not dam of Misty Morn, Patricia and Investigator III., by George Wilkes (son of Asteroid).

On the same night, Carrie M. (a winner), in foal to St. Carlo, will be sold to the highest bidder, also the splendid young Gen. Harding mare, Haroldine (half-sister to Deerslayer) and her colt Posey, by Three Cheers, at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

The Oneonta Stud Farm Yearlings.

"The handsomest and best-bred lot of yearlings ever offered for sale in California," will be the verdict of the horsemen when they see the Oneonta Stud Farm youngsters brought into the Occidental Horse Exchange ring on Monday night, December 6th. The catalogue is out, and the pictures of several of the baby racers will bear out the assertion.

The yearlings are by:

Imp. Duncombe, who ran a mile in 1-37 1-5 over a turf track and sired many grand winners in England and Ireland and several good ones this year in America.

Emperor of Norfolk, ex-champion race horse of this country, winner of $61,445, sire of Lady Bess, Rey del Carreres, Rey El Salto and other cracks.

Verano, a stake-winner by the great Grinstead, sire sire of two winners of the American Derby (Volante and Silver Cloud) and the dam of Rey El Santa Anita.

Imp. Golden Garter, a stake-winner in England by the Derby-winner, Bend Or (sire of Ormonde).

Imp. Kismet, by Melton (winner of the Derby, St. Leger, etc.).

Imp. Watercress, one of the very best race horses in England, conquerer of the famous Orme, etc.

Darriwell, a grand-looking son of imp. Darebin and Venturia, by Virgil, and Tenny, the great race horse that won nearly $92,000 on the turf and sire of David Tenny (mile in 1:40 twice this season), Miss Tenny, etc.

Among the mares with foals in this sale are: Alesia, by imp. Darebin; imp. Brierfoot, by Surefoot; Crisalba, by imp. Sir Modred; Detrix, by imp. Darebin; Electric Light (dam of Midlo and Midlight), by imp. Darebin; imp. Eye Sweet, by Galopin; Everglade, by Iroquois; imp. Fun, by Fiddler; Hymn of Praise (dam Hallelujah), by Hyder Ali; imp. Merrimac, by Goldsbrough; Orange Leaf (dam of Fig Leaf), by imp. Kingston; Miss Pickwick, by imp. Mr. Pickwick; Potrero, by Hyder Ali; Royal Purple (sister to Ludwig), by imp. Darebin; Saline, by imp. Darebin; Scarlet Letter, by imp. Kingston; imp. Spinning Time (dam of Spunwell) by Merry-Go Round; The Truant, by imp. Sir Modred, and imp. Victress (dam of Victress), by Goldsbrough.

Get a catalogue and remember that this is an exceptionally well-bred and good-looking lot, sure to race well.

The Winters and Reis Sales, Nov. 29.

The Winters yearlings, fifteen in number, will start from the ranch November 23d and arrive at the Occidental Horse Exchange about the 25th, four days before the sale. In this consignment is a sister to the grand colts, Scarborough and Padre Jose, a brother to Belle Boyd, a half-sister to the good winners, Lady Helen, Una Colorado and Una Grande, a brother to Zephyr, a sister to Soon Enough, a brother to Adelante, a sister to Malo Diablo, a filly from Rose Hickman (sister to Don Jose and Ed Corrigan), a colt from Nellie Post (sister to Don Jose also), colts from the grand race mares, Louise M. and Miss Courtney. The rest are out of young mares from famous racing families, and, as the animals in this consignment are fully up to the high standard of excellence set by their breeder, they should bring good prices.

In the Reis consignment there are fifteen head. There will be found several celebrities of the turf and stud, besides two and three-year-olds in training, yearlings and weanlings. All are beautifully bred and from families that have achieved fame on the turf. The broodmares have weanlings at their sides from the great Morello and are in foal to celebrated horses. Most of the yearlings are by Morello, one is by Sir Reel, and experts pronounce them the best-looking lot of youngsters seen in many a day in California, which is saying a great deal. Their pictures (to be found in the catalogue) back up this assertion, and when the baby racers appear in the sales ring there is certain to be some lively bidding for them. Then, with the great Charmion, the wonderful producer Sunlit (which Mr. Reis paid $2,000 for), Viola, Stephanotis, Kosciulottie, Hertha, Morinel and Halsey to attract the attention of lovers of thoroughbred horses, this sale is sure to be a notable one. Sunlit is in foal to imp. Artillery, has a Morello foal at her side and should be worth $4,000 to any breeder.

The Nelson Sale.

A number of horsemen gathered at the Alameda race track last Monday to attend the speed sale of J. M. Nelson, accepting the splendid invitation to show how well the horses trotted and paced. The arrangements made by Mr. Nelson to have the stock looking well contributed much toward getting the following prices; Mr. Nelson is to hold another speed sale early in the spring:

Thorn Grove, b g 1890, by Billy Thornhill—by Hambleton Chief; Geo. Reed	$ 105

Palo Alto Sale.

Next Friday night, November 26th, Messrs. Killip & Co., will sell at the Occidental Horse Exchange, all the Palo Alto yearlings foals of 1896. The fame of the thoroughbreds from this farm is world-wide, and those to be offered at the coming sale are pronounced superior to any heretofore offered. They are grandly bred, being by the great sires Flood, imp. Loyalist, Racine and Flambeau, out of mares that are noted through the excellence of their progeny for their racehorse qualities. Everyone has heard of them and we shall see brothers and sisters to Cadmus, Flint, Sweet Rose, Benham, Piquante, Argyle, Grover Cleveland, La Flecha, Conrad, Capt. Skedance, Sinfax, a half sister to Tim Murphy, half brothers to Peel, Rowland and Umma. Then there are others equally as good, which should bring good prices at the sale. The great sire, Cyrus, will also be sold. Remember next Friday night, November 26th.

Apache as a Sire.

It was a sad day when Apache died. He was but ten years of age, but those by the horse were so uniformly good as racers that his name would have been upon everyone's lips in a few short years, had he lived.

Olive won $9,110 and 27 races in less than three seasons; Mobalaska, 19 races and $8,795; Crawford, 16 races and $6,040; J. O. C., 16 races and $5,455; San Emegdio, 13 races (in two seasons) and $4,350, and Semele, 11 races and $3,070. Since these figures were made Lorena II. has won the Capital City Stake at Sacramento and the Railroad Stake at Los Angeles, has proven victorious at Sacramento, J. O. C. in Montana, and Lena has won several times in Montana in Fresno and at Ingleside.

Imp. Mortemer, sire of Apache, won 22 races during his turf career in France and England, among his victories being the Ascot Gold Cup, with 131 pounds up; the Prix de L'Empereur, with 153 pounds in the saddle, and the Prix des Seine, with 151 pounds. At the stud Mortemer was successful in France before being brought to this country, the best of his get in the land of his nativity being Verneuil, St. Christophe (Grand Prix), Suzette, Chamant (winner 2,000 Guineas in 1877, beating Silvio, winner Derby and St. Leger) Clementine, Royaumont and Regain. In America he got Wanda (winner of her two-year-old races and at three victorious in the Lorillard, Oaks, etc.; also Exile (winner of 30 races, including the Brooklyn Handicap, Brooklyn Cup, Woodlawn, Mayflower and Twin City Handicaps); of Mollie Walton (a stake-winner), Chimera, Cyclops, Cambyses, Katrine, Moyne, Elsa Rosalind and many others of note.

The Banshee, dam of Apache and sister to True Blue, was considered the best race mare in America. She won, among other races, the Westchester Cup, 2¼ miles, and the Travers Stakes, 1¾ miles. True Blue, brother to The Banshee, won the Bowie Stakes, four miles, at Baltimore, and many other good races. The second dam of Apache, Balloon, by imp. Yorkshire, was the best racer in this country, a winner at one, two, three and four-mile heats at the Lexington (Ky.) fall meeting of 1857.

From the Family of Apache's Dam Came—Bright Phoebus (winner Realization, etc.), Buff and Blue, Heraldry, Modesty (winner American Derby), Balancer, Charmion, Parachute, Margaret Wood, Maria West, Wagner, Star Davis and Azra (winner Kentucky Derby and Clark Stakes).

No wonder, then, that he got good ones coming from such a family.

There are five yearlings by Apache in the Kerr sale next Monday night, their dams being Juanita, by Joe Daniels, Lena by King Alfonso, My Badge (sister to Badge), by imp. The Ill-Used, Play Toy (sister to Tournament), by imp. Sir Modred and Rosa Bella, by King Alfonso.

THERE will be a rare opportunity to get some good horses, broodmares, colts and fillies at the sale to be held at Pleasanton, November 30th. There will also be sold a lot of track harness, sulkies, carts, etc., and paraphernalia indispensable to every horse owner. Don't forget to attend. Address Killip & Co., for catalogues and further particulars.

The Occidental Horse Exchange.

The following were a few of the opinions expressed regarding the new enterprise and the splendid amphitheatre:

Monroe Salisbury—It is the best place of the kind in the United States.

Henry Pierce, Santa Rosa Stock Farm—It fills a long felt want and is most admirably adapted for the purpose.

Barney Schreiber, St. Louis—This is the place to sell horses. It is far better than at a race track.

Ed. D. Thorne's (St. Louis)—Congratulations on the success of the inaugural sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange are certainly in order and I wish to extend mine most heartily. I have attended many similar events in various parts of the country, but am unable to recall one where everything moved so smoothly and expeditiously, or where the necessaries were so complete and thorough. The occasion will ever be remembered as the greatest of its kind in the history of the Pacific Coast.

A. B. Spreckels, San Francisco.—You should do well here. Everything is arranged in good order and the location is excellent.

M. F. Tarpey, of Oakland.—The horse owners of California should give you their patronage, for you have accomplished much for them in erecting and fitting up this amphitheatre. It was much needed.

John Campbell, Montana.—This place is all right, but your auctioneer Wm. Fitch, has more persuasive eloquence to get me to pay a big price for a horse than any man in America. I wish you every success.

John A. McKerron, the well-known horse boot manufacturer.—This suits the horsemen and when you hold trotting horse sales you can look for a crowd every time you advertise one.

Andy McDowell, Thos. Keating, Lee Shaner, Wm. Donathan, Grove Ayres, C. A. Hug, B. C. Holly and in fact, every one there on the opening night wished the proprietor success.

A GRAND OPENING.—The inaugural day of the California Jockey Club was grand from every point of view. The day all that could be desired, the attendance large, the course in the best possible condition, the starting good, and straightforward, honest racing the crowning glory of the day.

A happy, jovial assemblage and without a shade of boisterousness. Good feeling predominating. Losers took their losses with great good nature, gaily returning to the charge confident that the next race would bring a change of fortune.

Bookmakers busy, apparently wrapped in the folds of active speculation to a degree that left little chance for reflection. Taking money, issuing tickets so rapidly that a magical prestidigitateur could scarcely equal the calerity of their movements.

The bettor of small bodily proportions was at a decided disadvantage. A happy knack of squeezing through the throng when just as he had reason to think that the goal was reached, caught between two heavy weights, forced back like a chip in an eddy, he had to wait for an opportunity to get his money on and then the mortification that the odds on the horse he fancied had been materially reduced.

The racing was of a high class as well as straight, not a finish that was not close excepting in the match race and that was a fine exhibition of speed for five-eighths of a mile. The first quarter in 23½ seconds, the half in 48 seconds, five-eighths in exactly one minute; not at all surprising that St. Calatine grew leg weary, and Napamax galloped the last furlong in fourteen seconds. Two great fillies that can carry 115 pounds and set such a pace.

Never a better start than than that given the ten horses in the Opening Day Handicap. Safe to say that the difference between six of them was not more than a foot, and the race was only won by Satsuma thrusting his nose a few inches in advance of the nostrils of old Libertine. And 1:39½ a grand mark for the opening day. The first race won by a nose, the fourth by a head, the fifth by a nose, those who like a close finish had plenty of it, and the reverberating cheers told the story of supreme satisfaction.

And the fine day, the great contests, the excitement attending the close struggles were not the only sources of pleasure.

The park was at its best in the bright sunshine. Never a more verdant carpet that covered the ground from entrance gate to stands. Never a brighter bloom than adorned the parterres nor a sweeter fragrance than rose from the beds of violets and mignonettes, heliotropes and roses. Altogether a day to mark with a white stone, a happy augury for the success of the meetings.

NAPAMAX.—"Handsome is as handsome does," and any deficiency in beauty the daughter of Maxim an Napa may be charged with is abundantly overcome by her wonderful turn of speed and gameness. When she and St. Calatine were walking in the saddling paddock preparatory to starting in the match, and an old turfman asked "What do you think of them?" The chestnut the handsomest, but I have seen horses with quarters like the brown run so fast that it was hard to beat them, the answer. Add for a smile used an expression a little more appropriate there than in print. Orville Appleby was present and he replied "that is just the way she ran when first put in practice. Shoot away from the others without an effort and open a big gap in a couple of hundred yards."

The race proved that she had not lost the gift and there is little question that had she been pressed she would have reduced the California record by quite a handsome margin. A "big gallop" the last 150 yards, the last furlong fourteen seconds. That a second or more could have been taken from that altogether probable, although she showed some lameness returning to the paddock.

* * *

"RANGER," in The Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News, thus discourses: "If I were asked which is, in my opinion, the handsomest racehorse in training, I should certainly say Kilcock. He is not a big horse, but for make, shape and action, exquisite quality and perfect balance, I do nat think I ever saw his aqual. He is also the speediest horse in training probably, at any rate I would back him at even weights against anything in England over six furlongs." Perfection of form is usually accompanied by speed, though some very pretty horses have neither speed nor stamina. Were beauty an infallible guide, it would be much easier to pick winners.

JOS. CAIRN SIMPSON.

Opportunities for Horsemen.

Fred W. Loeber of St. Helena who is selling off all of his stock with the intention of leaving California for a year or two has among his collection of broodmares and colts, some choice individuals that should be picked up by our leading horsemen and breeders they are likely to prove rare bargains as Mr. Loeber says he must close out before December 12th. Among the number is a weanling filly by the pacing king Diablo, 2:09¼, out of the fast pacing mare Alconeer 15120 (full brother to Alcona Jr., 2:19) the great blue ribbon winner at all our "horse shows" this filly is a natural pacer, she should be a stake winner, as her pedigree combines the blood of the two great families of pacers Steinway and Almont She is entered en the P. C. T. & B. A. Futurity, one of the richest trotting and pacing stakes ever offered on the Pacific Coast, her chances should be equal to the best. Her dam Costella is in foal to Geo. Washington 2:16¼. Another great prospect is the four-year-old mare Princess Whippleton in foal to the great McKinney, 2.11¼; she is sired by Pilot Prince, 2:22¾; the best bred son of Dexter Prince (sire of Joe 2:16¼, Pilot McClelland 2.20¼, etc;) first dam Alice L, (sister Patten, 2:28) by Whippleton 1883, (sire of dam of Rokeby three-year-old 2:13¼ and others), second dam Napa by Nanbuc 504, (sire of dam of Directly two years 2:01¾), third dam Dennison's Jack Hawkins (thoroughbred.) This is a very fast mare, a grand individual and in foal without doubt to McKinney 2:11¼. This foal should be a great one. There are many other good ones. Anyone wishing good material should address Mr. Loeber at St. Helena, or visit the Vineland Farm where they can be seen.

Master Horse Shoers' Union.

The regular meeting of the Union was held at 1159 Mission street Tuesday evening, November, 16th. An enthusiastic attendance of members enabled them to transact quite a deal of important business. After certain routine business, presented by acting Secretary Twomey, had been acted upon and passed, the election of officers engaged the attention of those present. Messrs. Crowley, Grace and O'Dea, who had been respectively nominated for the office of President, declined to accept the nominations, Mr. Crowley, being present, stated his reasons for such action in a few pertinent remarks which were vigorously applauded, and also elicited an expression of endorsement for the chairman, Acting President Friedhofer. This situation was happily met by Mr. Kenealy's motion "that Mr. Piechort be elected to the office by acclamation." Mr. Jos. J. Mooney was elected Vice-President in like manner, and the following selections were made unanimously: Recording Secretary, Mr. Jos. Sullivan; Financial Secretary, Mr. F. J. O'Rourke. Considerable interest and discussion were created by Mr. Thorne, who at the suggestion of Mr. McGee, gave a very elaborate and explicit explanation of the force and effect of the Master Horse Shoers' lien law as it is in force in Oregon. The speaker was frequently applauded during his remarks. Acting Secretary presented and read to the meeting a certain obligation, which was duly adopted upon motion of Mr. Donnely, seconded by Mr. McGee. Upon motion of Mr. Mouisey, the acting president appointed Messrs. F. J. O'Rourke and Thos. McGee as a committee to wait upon and canvass the master horse shoers generally to the purpose that they all should attend an important meeting of the association to be held at 1159 Mission straet on Tuesday evening, Nov. 23d.

IMP. ORDER, Juvenal and other recent purchases will stay at the Swigert place in Kentucky, says Mr. Mackey, and this sets at rest the foolish stories set afloat that the greates breeding establishment in the world was to be broken up ant the horses removed to Kentucky. The farm (Elmendorf) recently purchased would not do for over one-third of the Rancho del Paso horses.

Graves of Great Horses.

Where are America's great horses buried? This is a question often asked. It is hard to answer. Many of America's greatest turf performers and greatest sires sleep in unknown and unmarked graves. The recent death of the young stallion Domino and the mark of respect shown him by his owners, the Messrs. Keene, in putting an appropriate slab over his grave, recalls the fact that but few of the great horses which have died in this country have any tablet to show where the bones lie buried.

One of the first horses to have this mark of respect shown him was the mighty Lexington, which on the turf and in the stud showed himself to be the superior of any horse then living. The story of his triumphs is known to all lovers of the turf, but it is not generally known that the late A. J. Alexander was the first man in this country to erect a memorial stone over the remains of a dead turf King. When Lexington died it was in his stable near the house occupied by his groom, Henry Overton, and at that faithful man's request Lexington was buried not far away. Mr. Alexander had an appropriate marble shaft placed at the head of the grave, on which is recorded brief mention of Lexington's victories. The popular story that the bones of Lexington were articulated and are now on exhibition in the Smithsonian institute at Washington is without foundation in fact, for all that is left of this wonderful horse, which was the admiration of turfmen of two continents, lies beneath the modest stone near Henry Overton's house on the noted Woodbury farm, in Kentucky, says an exchange.

Uncle Frank Harper, who was a neighbor of Mr. Alexander, followed the beautiful example set by the great Scotchman, and when his incomparable turf performers and stallions Ten Broeck and Longfellow died, he gave them decent burials on his pretty Nantura farm, near Midway, and over the grave of each he has erected suitable monuments. These enduring stones tell the observer the breeding and the performances of the horses which lie beneath them. These are the only two Kentucky breeders who have seen fit to place stones over their equine dead, and the action of the wealthy New Yorkers, the Messrs. Keene, in following the example of the founder of Woodburn and the maker of Nantura meets with much favor by sentimental Kentuckians, who love their horses almost as well as they do their children.

The burial places of other noted horses, well known, in many instances remain still unmarked. Imp. Pizzaro, imp. Whistle Jacket, Duke of Montrose and Strathmore are buried at the home of their former owner, Milton Young, of McGrathiana. His splendid English stallion Osory, full brother of Ormonde, died on the ocean while being brought to this country and was buried at sea. He cost the master of McGrathiana $10,000, and there was no insurance. Imp. Australian is buried at Woodburn; Waverly at James Grinstead's old Walnut Hills farm. At Elmendorf, Virgil and imp. Prince Charlie sleep. Imp. Glenelg was buried on Tyree Bates' farm near Gallatin, Tenn. At General W. H. Jackson's Belle Meade farm imp. Bonnie Scotland, Vandal and Enquirer are buried. War Dance and Melbourne Jr., are buried on A. K. Richards' farm in Scott county, Kentucky. General Abe Buford's McWhirter, the horse which broke his legs while running at St. Louis, was buried on the race course where he ran that remarkable race. It was the action of McWhirter in trying to win after both his forelegs had been broken that caused General Buford to believe that horses have souls and that they go to heaven. Imp. Leamington was buried at Aristides Welch's place at Erdenheim, near Philadelphia. Grinstead is buried at Santa Anita farm California; Harry O'Fallon at L. B. Field's place, near Lexington; imp. Billet at Runnymeade; imp. Buckden at Jim Guest's place in Boyle county, Kentucky; Tom Bowling, the "wild horse," at S. C. Lyne's Larchmont farm, Lexington; Alarm at Bashford Manor farm, near Louisville. Boston, the sire of Lexington, is buried at Ned Blackburn's old farm in Woodford county, where Senator Joe Blackburn was born. American Eclipse is also buried there. Gray Eagle, the famous show horse which took premiums over all the Kentucky stallions while he was the property of the late Parker E. Todhunter, is buried in Ohio; Medoc at Billy Buford's place in Scott county, Kentucky.

At Ashland farm, in Kentucky, the only thoroughbred establishment in America conducted by a woman, Mrs. J. M. Clay, are buried imp. Yorkshire and the great brood mare Magnolia, which was sent as a present to Henry Clay by admiring turfmen of Virginia. Mrs. Clay is the daughter-in-law of the great commoner, and she keeps green the little mound over Magnolia's bones. She points it out to visitors with pride. Sir Leslie was buried at The Meadows, near Lexington, which was the birthplace of Alexander's prepotent stallion Lexington. Sidi Hamet is also buried at The Meadows. Imp. Sarpedon, the sire of Alice Carneal, the dam of Lexington, is buried four miles from Lexington on the Georgetown road. Imp. Glencoe, the only horse known to have died while standing up, is buried on Keene Richards, old farm, in Scott county, Kentucky, Bertrand is buried in Bourbon county; Lexington's son, Norfolk, which sired El Rio Rey and other great performers out of Marian, is buried at Theodore Winter's farm in Nevada. Imp. Diomond was buried in Virginia; imp. Phaeto at Hurstbourne stud farm, near Louisville; Sir Archie at Colonel W. R. Johnson's near Richmond; Dalnacardoch at Middlebrook farm, Maryland; imp. Glen Athol at J. V. Shipp's farm in Woodford county, Kentucky; imp. Glengarry at Kennesaw stud farm, Gallatin, Tenn.; imp. The Ill Used at Belmont's nursery stud, near Lexington; King Ernest at Brookdale stud farm, New Jersey; imp. Martenhurst at Pasadena, Cal.; Mortimer at Brookdale stud; imp. Mr. Pickwick at Charles Green's Fairview stud, Tennessee. Ossian died at sea while coming to this country and was buried in the Atlantic; Rossifer at Fairview stud, Tennessee; Strachino at Woodstock, Canada; imp Stylites, destroyed on account of an accident at Meadowthorpe, the home of Colonel James E. Pepper, near Lexington; Zorilla at Elmendorf; Aristides, Price McGrath's "little red horse," at the St. Louis fair grounds; Baded Baden at Rhinebeck, N. Y., Elias Lawrence at J. Walter Payne's Mapleton farm, near Lexington; Littleton at Montgomery Square, Pa.; Pat Malloy at Woodburn; Red Boy in Montana; Vauxhall near Lexington; Whisper at Fleetwood stud farm, near Frankfort; King Ban on the banks of North Elkhorn, at Dixiana farm; Fellowcraft at J. R. Haley's farm, near Donereil, Ky.; Ban Fox and King Fox on Hogan's ranch, Colorado; Herzog, near Cincinnati, at the old Buckeye race course; Skedaddle, by imp. Yorkshire out of Magnolia, is buried at Mrs. John M. Clay's Ashland farm; also Balloon, Star Davis, Margaret Wood and Georgie Wood. Kentucky is buried at August Belmont's farm. He was the first horse in America to sell for $40,000. He was bred by John M. Clay, who parted with him for $4,000. Prince Lief, Byron McClelland's well-known performer, died a few months after his master and was buried near Lexington.

The Champion Two-Year-Olds.

A few years ago, when the Eastern trotting season had closed, and there was no possibility for any more record-breaking, California would have a little record season of its own. Arion made his famous record of 2.10¾ as a two-year old at Stockton, Cal., on Nov. 10, 1891. At the same time a week later Palo Alto made his record of 2:08¾. Sunol made her record of 2:08¼ on Oct. 20, 1891, and many other instances might be named. Of late years the East has captured the majority of new records. California, has, however, at this late date developed a three-year-old pacing champion in Searchlight, who, at Santa Ana, on Saturday, Oct. 30, paced a mile against time in 2:05¾. A week previous he paced a mile in 2:07. Searchlight is by Darknight, dam Nora Mapes, by Furor, and he has a race record of 2:09½. He thus has the time championship, held up to this time by the three-year-old colt Directly, 2:07¼, and is tied for the race championship with Agitato, Judge Hurt, King of Diamonds and Sulphide, who have also records of 2:09¼.

This has been decidedly a pacers' year for record-breaking and an off year for the trotters. The mighty Star Pointer has smashed both the world's pacing and the stallion championships by stepping a mile in 1:59½ at Readville, near Boston, on August 21st. On October 1st he added the race championship to his roll of honor, defeating Joe Patchen in 2:00½. His great antagonist, Joe Patchen, has captured the wagon championship, putting the mark at 2:04¾. The record for pacing mares has again been cut. Last year it was jointly held by Lottie Lorraine and Pearl C., with records of 2:06½ both made in the same race. Strange to say, it was reduced this year by two mares in the same race in a dead heat. On September 30th, at Terre Haute, Lottie Lorraine and Bessie Bonehill cut the record down to 2:05¾. While in the trotting department the mares for many years have led in speed, the reverse has been the case with pacers, as will be seen by the fact that the trotting record, which is held by a mare, is 2:03¾, two seconds faster than than the mares' pacing record, while the fastest stalllion trotting record, 2:05½, in six seconds slower than the pacing record. The pacing team record has also been reduced by a good margin. Miss Rita and Josie B. put it at 2:09½, last year, but on October 8th John R. Gentry and Robert J., at Glen Falls, N. Y., cut it down to 2:08. The black stallion Chehalis, at Salem, Ore., has reduced the two-mile record to 4:19¾. He is by Altamont, dam Tecora, by Cassius M. Clay, Jr. The pacers have made a great showing.

Up to the date of the Lexington meeting, with one exception, it looked as if no trotting record would be broken, and the exception is not yet a defined record. At the regular weekly matinee of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland, the chestnut mare Elloree, in a race on August 28, trotted in 2:10. If this was for a cup or one of a series of races for a cup, it will be a record. On October 15 the bay filly Janie T., at Lexington, Ky., put the filly record down to 2:14. The trotters will have to do better next year, though a careful scrutiny of the leading performers of 1897 fails to disclose a probable coming champion.—Spirit of the Times.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 24, 1895.

J. W. Hughes, Indianapolis, Ind:

Dear Sir—In reply so your favor of recent date, in which you request me to give a statement of my experience with your Speed Sustaining Elixir, I will say that I have for years past been prejudiced against giving stimulants to a horse under my control; consequently, I was somewhat backward in giving your compound a trial. At any rate I kept close watch on its action when used on other horses, and finding in every case when it was used marked benefit, with no bad after-effects, I concluded to order a bottle. I used it on Dandy Jim in his race at Rochester, N. Y., which he won. It is needless for me to say anything about its effect, further than that he trotted the race of his life, and one that under the circumstances was phenomenal. The next trial, the week following, he lowered the world's half mile track record to 2:11¾, which is the best kind of evidence that your compound is perfectly harmless. You can use the summary of his Rochester race in your advertisement.

Yours truly, W. B. Slimm.

Spohn Med. Co. Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 24, 1895.

Gentlemen:—I have used your specific for contageous diseases, to cure distemper, also as a preventative, both with my horses at the track and at the farm, with colts and mares. I never found anything that worked as well as Spohn's Distemper and Cough Cure, in fact it has helped me out of most serious trouble. No stock farm or owner can afford to be without it. Very truly, W. P. Isams.

Mr. I. is president of the American Trotting Association, and partner of Budd Doble, the great driver.

New Britain, Conn., Nov. 15, 1894.

W. F. Young—Dear Sir:—My ankle which I so severely strained while riding my bicycle is entirely well and I think as strong as ever. Your ABSORBINE did its work immediately and permanently. I suffered two weeks, applying every kind of liniment I knew of without results. Your ABSORBINE brought me out in three days. I want another bottle in case of emergency. C. L. Pierce.

A FEW FACTS.

GROOMING BRUSHES on Priest's Power Horse Clipping Machines are a success. If the dirt is there, and it generally is, they will remove it. That's what they are for. If you want to see them in operation in New York City, for instance, we can furnish you a list that is growing every day.

BALL-BEARING CUTTERS have come to stay, they cut keener with less tension, which means less power with long life. Dirt and short hairs do not interfere with their practical working.

GROOMING BRUSHES and BALL BEARING CUTTERS require skill and experience to build, but little, if any, to operate. WE KNOW because WE BUILD THEM, HAVE THEM TO SELL, and stand behind them with 32 YEARS' EXPERIENCE and A REPUTATION for QUALITY of goods.

California's 2:30 List.

Following is a list of all 2:30 performers which trace to sires that were bred or owned in California as well as those that have won heats this year throughout the United States. We would be pleased if any of our readers would forward any additions to it we may have omitted or send us any corrections they may deem fit to make. We would also be pleased to receive the breeding on the dam's side of all those that have entered the list this year. It is corrected to Nov. 18th:

Treatment of Azoturia.

At this time of year cases of azoturis are frequent, horses having been laid off fall and work and high feeding continued while the animals have been in idleness. The following course of treatment is recommended by Dr. John R. Hart, Philadelphia, Pa., who described it in a paper read before the United States Veterinary Medical Association in 1883, and since modified it as circumstances and added experience dictated. He says: Treatment presents to the veterinarian two grand problems for his solution; first to discover its nature, and second, to devise its cure. A knowledge, therefore, of the disease examined as well as those with which it may be confounded, is essential.

Diagnosis lies before us as the basic principle of the practice of medicine. An intelligent conception of a disease is a prerequisite to the application of the medicines necessary to effect its removal and also to prevent confounding it with others whose resemblance to the particular disease makes it difficult to distinguish them. Its complications must be guarded against; its character, which subjects it to various accidental influences must be carefully considered and thoroughly known. The man who is equipped with such knowledge, with the principles applicable and with sound discretion and judgment enjoys immeasurable advantages over him who lacks them, or whose mind is so preoccupied by theory as to make intelligent treatment a difficult if not impossible task. The treatment in one stage may be of no avail in the other. This is plainly demonstrated by the consensus of opinion of the different veterinarians in their modes of treatment. Some bleed with success, while others condemn this practice; some purge in all cases, some in only a few. With a success that varies, some treatment may be in place and some most decidedly out of place. The per cent. of recoveries should demonstrate and guide us as to the proper mode of treatment.

There was a time when veterinarians carried a ball of aloes and calomel with them when called to a case that showed a disposition to constipate, with sluggish gait or stiffness in the limbs, as the owner puts it. The ball was given with most excellent results, often requiring no other treatment. This was the time when one or two balls were given once or twice yearly. While it was an old rut in my mind, it was a good one that would perhaps be well to practice in this day of theory.

White some animals will recover under any and all circumstances in a great many diseases, as they seem to have immunity from death, as they have immunity at times from the effects of the wrong treatment, here is a treatment in azoturia, and the case is reported as having made a good recovery: Aloes, 7 drachms; hyd. chlo. mit., 1 drachm; with tincture opii, to be given as often as necessary. To relax the bowels is the duty of one, while the other is to constipate. While it is known that tincture opii will increase the secretions of the skin, it will dry up all other secretions in the body, and will produce, if continued repeatedly, cerebral convulsions.

In regard to purgative medicines in this disease, I assure you that I have had a larger per cent. of recovery among animals that did not respond to the action of a cathartic. It was my custom to give it to all the animals. This led me to consider well, and finally to discontinue their use, with much better results. As the faecal had done all the harm it could possibly do at the time the animal was taken with the disease our aim should be to get rid of the various poisons that the system is overloaded with.

Now as to treatment. The one point most to be observed in the treatment, not only of azoturia, but in all diseases, is to know the pathological condition of the animal when seen. It is important to know the stage the animal is in, as what would have the desired effect in the acute or inflammatory condition would not only be useless in the second stage, but would aggravate the disease, as perhaps is the case with bleeding. While a cathartic in one stage would be the proper remedy, in the next stage it might induce irritation that would kill the animal. The oil laxatives would be more beneficial. If they did no good they would do no harm, but would have a nutritive effect. The question may be asked why give oil for nutritive effect when it was too much feeding that assisted in the disease? The answer is that the very good living that assisted in causing the disease and in weakening the alimentary canal, that nourishment should be administered which would be quickly absorbed. Experiments show that large amounts of oils given to animals leave no trace after death, while a cathartic too often aggravates the irritation already existing and would remove from the blood water; they would dehydrate the blood and consequently the tissues. In some cases cathartics will answer, but I would consider aloes out of place in any congested condition of the bowels, as it would increase the irritation. The most useful medicine to use for a congested liver or kidney is calomel, as it stimulates the end of the secretory nerves in the cell as well as relieves the overloaded capillaries, and will diminish putrefaction and eliminate urea. It may be used in any inflammation, as it is eliminated by all secretions; or calomel with soda bicarb., and continue the soda bicarb. in tablespoonful doses every two or three hours in the drinking water. We of course know that the blood is alkaline, and that one of the poisons that is circulating in the blood in this disease is acid in excess. Any alteration from its natural constituent would cause a chemical change in the blood. Now to overcome this condition what is the next best thing to do? It is again to alter by a chemical change. We would here use soda bicarb., as it will eliminate from the blood uric acid. I would recommend small doses of the soda bicarb. in conjunction with the other treatment of diuretics, as too much medicine of an alkaline action may cause other chemical reactions, while the smaller doses would neutralize the acid in excess as well as assist digestion and absorption. The alkalies insure the gradual oxidation of the organic constituents of the fluids. They are also eliminated by the kidneys and are antacids.

The diuretics most needed are those that act more on the kidneys through the circulation, as by so doing you remove the uric acid and effete material that is circulating in the blood. Of this class I would recommend buchu, juniper, spirits of nitre; they are the sedative class, as they stimulate the ends of the vaso-constrictor nerves, in the vessel walls. If you have uraemic poisoning, the salts of potass should not be used as a diuretic, as these salts determine intoxication, while the sodiums would be used with safety. Where there is much excitement, I have used in conjunction with diuretics fluid extract hyoscyamus. It is soon eliminated by the urine, and it will also destroy the irritation that arises in the bladder. In these cases hyoseyamus acts as a hypnetic, and will assist in destroying fibrin, and acts very quickly on the nervous system as a sedative. Chloral hydrate is good in over-excitability or with a tendency to convulsions. Do not repeat too often. Chloroform inhaled will have the same effect in controlling the convulsions. Fluid extract colchicum I have used with success in small doses, after the bowels respond, as colchicum is most useful in the overfed or torpid condition of the portal circulation, or where we have constipation and deficient exertion of the liver. Colchicum will relieve by setting an elimination process. It will also eliminate uric acid. Strychnine should not be used in paralysis of this kind. Its use is injurious in acute cases involving any altercation of the spinal cord, as it softens the spinal cord and causes the animal to die in convulsions. If you use it in early rigidity it is without avail. If too late, there is fatty degeneration of the muscles. It is good only when the paralyzed limbs are completely relaxed. Ergot is good in the late stages, where there is a tendency to congestion of the spinal cord or the meninges. I used mustard over the loins in all cases. I have never found slings of any use, as they seem to excite the animal. As it does not seem common sense to hang an animal in this disease to cure him, I do not use them. With a good bed under him, I allow the animal to lie down and turn him from side to side every two or three hours. When the urine does not clear up in two or three days it is not favorable. If the urine does clear and is stringy, there is a possibility of albumen or some complication in the spinal cord.

If we would instruct our clients in a system of feeding their animals, and how to care for them while at rest, we would save ourselves considerable annoyance and trouble, as well as gain a reputation and a full confidence of our clients. They should be instructed in all matters pertaining to the stable, as I do not think there is one in our profession who is guilty of congratulating himself when called to attend an animal on the street suffering with azoturia. I have charge of a few large stables and cases of azoturia in them are rare. The animals are given frequently in their feed Glauber's salt, with a light diet twice weekly. All these animals are in good condition. I think Glauber's salt will prevent effete matter from collecting in the blood.

I think if some of our colleges would take an animal or two and allow them to stand for one or two weeks, as may be required, and feed them to the full complement of food at each meal; then weigh the excretion, test the urine at intervals, then change the food as circumstances may require to find out what composition in food that is retained brings on this poisonous condition, compare the income with the outgo, the ingesta with the excreta, they would learn not only what part of the ingesta is retained in the body, but would detect substances in the excreta not present in the food, and would learn all the changes which the body undergoes under the influence of the food.

It is possible, and would it not be wise to discover what the muscles have lost of their nutritive elements, then increase this loss to the muscles by treatment identical with what is lost to give them tone.

Of Interest to Horsemen.

Do you turn your horses out for the winter? If so we want to call your attention to a very important matter. Horses that have been used steadily, either on the farm or for road work, quite probably have some strains whereby lameness, or enlargements, have been caused, or perhaps new life is needed to be infused into their legs. Gombault's Caustic Balsam applied as per directions, just as you are turning the horse out, will be of great benefit, and this is the time when it can be used very successfully. One great advantage in using this remedy is that after it is applied it needs no care or attention, is absolutely a safe remedy for any one to use, and does its work well, and at a time when the horse is having a rest. Of course, it can be used with equal success while horses are in the stable, but many people in turning their horses out would use Caustic Balsam if reminded of it, and this article is given as a reminder.

Cranmoor Farm, Toms River, N. J.

Dr. H. C. Glover—Dear Sir: I have used your Mange Cure on one of our farm horses that had the scratches very badly, with the best results, the first application, which was thorough, doing away with the soreness and causing the parts to heal. It is a good thing for either horses, cattle or dogo. Yours truly, Chas. G. Sherman, Supt.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:

Alpine—Deer. Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1.
Fresno—Market hunting and shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Los Angeles—Shipping game to markets outside of the county prohibited.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st.
Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).
Riverside—Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
Santa Barbara—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 14. Use of hounds prohibited. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited).
San Mateo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Use of dogs prohibited). Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. (Shooting from boat at high tide prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Sutter—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Doves, July 15 to Jan. 1.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

Indian Art Collection.

The New England Sportsmen's Exhibition to be held in Boston next spring, is attracting a great deal of Eastern attention, the West has not been overlooked and will have exhibit representation of great variety, among these will be found the valuable and unique collection of Antonio Apache, the famous Indian scout and scientist, whose recent tour through the Maine and New Brunswick wilderness resulted in securing so many valuable features for the New England Sportsmen's show, he is now in the wild regions of the far West revisiting many of the scenes of his childhood, notably those in Southern Arizona, where, as an untutored Indian boy, he was captured by troops operating under Gen. Crook and sent to Fort Monroe.

While selecting from among various tribes of North American Indians the finest hunters and trappers of the several races and nations for the great Indiam camp to occupy the entire stage of Mechanics' building, Boston, in March next, he has been enabled to secure an extensive collection of antique and unique specimens of Indian art of rare value, and has already shipped ten cases of Pueblo pottery, and a number of bales of carefully selected Navajo blankets, which, with rugs, robes and curios, will play an important part in the forthcoming exhibition, and will serve as valuable souvenirs for those who are fortunate enough to obtain them.

Tents of birch bark, inhabited by full-blooded braves, squaws and papooses wearing rudely fashioned garments of furs and buckskin, will exemplify the aboriginal conditions of the North American Indians. The visitor will then stroll through an Indian village of the last decade, with its more brilliant and effective adornment, pausing here and there to admire the skillful handiwork of the Indian maidens, and the sturdy manhood of the braves as they fashshion their implements of warfare and deftly make bows, arrows, spears and canoes, and a great variety of traps and devices for the capture of game animals and birds. In point of realism and scenic effectiveness this Indian camp will undoubtedly prove a revelation not only to those whose journeyings have never led them beyond the confines of civilization, but to the great army of sportsmen; while the antique specimens of genuine Pueblo pottery, the brilliant and picturesque Navajo blankets and the rugs, robes and curios will interest amateurs no less than connisseurs in this delightful field of research, especially when shown and demonstrated by the Indians themselves.

A Tough Bear.

Two bearhunters spending the winter at Union creek above Rogue River falls, Or., tell of a very tough bear of the mealy-nose variety that traveled for miles with three good dogs after him, and had to be treed a dozen times, and was finally killed while fighting the dogs on the ground. One of the dogs, a homely old hound that could not draw his breath at a bench show, but which money cannot buy, was bit through the lip and lost three of his front teeth in the fight. At the final stand eight shots were fired, all taking effect in a vital part, still the bear fought furiously. The dogs were excited by their long chase and hard fight and had closed in on the bear. The hunters feared their dogs would be killed, so one of them rushed in, and, placing the muzzle of his rifle against the bear, sent a bullet through his heart. Bear are not numerous in that locality, still these two hunters have killed several. One black bear, with a beautiful coat of fur and as fat as a bear can get, was killed last week. One shot did for him. He had lost three toes from a fore foot, making it difficult for him to climb and he "skinned it" when the dogs treed him.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Chas. Zeiner made a fine bag of teal at the Bridges on Sunday last.

The Price brothers, near the Bridges, got good bags of duck last week.

A fine shot gun is offered for sale in our classified advertisements this week.

A large number of hunters were on the bay shores from San Leandro to Alviso last Sunday.

E. Summerfield tried Ignacio last Sunday and as a result bagged thirty sprig, teal and widgeon.

Cal. McMahon has been having some fine quail shooting in Arizona within a few days past.

W. E. Murdock had a bag of twelve cans and sprig as the result of a Sunday spent on Petaluma creek.

Shooting small game with a 32-20 Marlin is a favorite style of sport in some of the Eastern States.

Frank Dolliver had thirty quail in his bag after he had visited the Point Reyes district last Sunday.

Joe. Salz was shooting at the lower end of Suisun last Sunday. Thirty teal and spooneys was the bag.

G. Good tried shooting ground near Redwood on Sunday and bagged eight quail and sixteen English snipe.

Ben Baum was after quail in the vicinity of McGill's, Sunday last. A dozen and a half birds fell to his gun.

The open season for deer on Long Island this year consists of four days only, each Wednesday in this month.

Fred Butler and C. Rudolph were on the hills near Point Reyes after quail on Sunday and bagged about fifty birds.

Sam Hughes and Chas. Precht were together at Point Reyes, Sunday last, they had a combined bag of about forty quail.

Dave Thom and C. A. Haight were in the vicinity of Livermore, in quest of quail, on Sunday last; a fair bag was the result.

L. Chave, Ed Kerrison and Fred Mallory tried the vicin ity of Alvarado on Sunday and bagged twenty ducks, sprig and spoonbills.

A hot time in town is not a thing desired by insurance men, but a hot time at Point Reyes, is another thing and enjoyed accordingly.

Frank Vernon brought down fifteen widgeon and sprig on Saturday, on the marsh at Point Reyes,and on Sunday added twenty quail to his bag.

Dr. E. N. Ayers, E. C. Johnson and J. Maynard Jr., were at Brannan Island on Sunday last. The combined bag made a count of sixty-three quail.

Quail hunting in the vicinity of Los Angeles has been very good of late and the birds have been plentiful, but as a result of promiscuous and incessant hunting, the birds are becoming shy and wary, and are gradually taking to the foothills for safety and shelter.

A California lion measuring seven feet from tip to tip, was killed by Jeff James, of Lodi, while hunting in the mountains near Railroad Flat two weeks ago.

Just about the time Arthur Rochfort is able to get about again, his man Louis has the bad luck to have his leg broken by a kicking horse, it never rains but it pours.

Ed Foster and brother were on the Petaluma marsh and had a day's good sport last Sunday. Their straps held twenty sprig and cans, when they came back to the city.

E. Schultz and John Walker were at Alvarado on last Sunday, the bag was six sprig and spoonbills. When they get their blinds in proper shape they expect to have some good shooting.

L. R. Larzalere and Jno. Burfriend were at the Spooney Club grounds again last Sunday and had better luck than heretofore. The combined bag was thirty-five sprig, teal and a few spooneys.

Last week at Moss Landing A. C. Hihn and M. Ort of Santa Cruz, made a bag of fifty-six ducks and one goose for a day's shooting. The duck shooting in the vicinity of Moss Landing has been very good this season.

Thirty-one sacks of ducks were shipped in one consignment last week from Amadee, Lassen Co., to a commission dealer in this city, nine hundred canvassbacks were in the lot, the rest being mallard, sprig, widgeon and teal.

John Shellenbarger, of Sanger, Cal., who has quite a local reputation as a hunter, made his best record at duck shooting about two weeks ago, near the double ditches north of town, when he winged nine fat mallards at a single shot.

On the Tamalpais Club grounds, last Sunday, quail shooting was the order of the day with Fred Drinkhouse, M. Osborne, W. C. Brown, John Bergez and Al Pissis. Nice bags of quail fell to these guns, the limit number in several cases.

Fourteen members of the Empire Club were at the club house on Sunday last. The shooting was not very extensive; ordinary bags of ducks and a few snipe were the results. Apparently the birds are very shy of this district, "June-bug" has a death dealing gun.

On the Country Club grounds last week some heavy bags were gathered. John K. Orr had one hundred and forty-six quail and two dozen English snipe as a result of three days' shooting. W. S. Kittle was accredited with a fine bag of quail and Alec Hamilton's gun brought him a nice lot of English snipe.

Geese are frequenting the fields west of Modesto in countless numbers. C. W. Minniear and Ad. Brown bagged about thirty last Wednesday morning from pits located on the W. S. Stone place. Ducks are scarce.

Two American hunters who recently made a trip to the Muskoka district in Canada for the purpose of shooting big game, failed to procure the necessary licenses for such purpose, were duly arrested and fined $67 each, besides having their rifles confiscated.

The Lincoln Gun Club boys who were at Alvarado had a better day's shooting last Sunday than usual, the results and count shows: Carlsen, twelve sprig; Wilson, seventeen sprig and teal; Ostrander, ten sprig and teal; Swan and Le Gal, twelve sprig, teal and spoonbills; Klevesahl and Shaw, twenty-three sprig, spoonbill and teal.

The Black Jacks at the Antioch roll call last Sunday morning were "Diver" Dietz, Dick Brooks, Fred Johnson "Hello" Eaton and "Sherman"; the others had been granted temporary furloughs by President Lemmer on the recommendation of Secretary Markland. The result of their hunting was a combined bag of forty ducks, mixed in variety.

The Point Arena Rod and Gun Club made merry Tuesday evening, Nov. 9th, over a supper given in honor of Mr. Donald Ross. The Point Arena Hotel furnished the good things in solids and liquids, and the guests, some twenty in number being all jolly good fellows made the affair a memorably pleasant one.

E. J. Crandall of Morgan Hill and "Press" Rives of Gilroy captured a wild cat last Monday evening near the San Martin bridge. The animal tried to escape by crawling into a squirrel hole, but got stuck, when a rope was fastened around its leg and made it a captive. He was a savage brute, and did some tall fighting to get away. He was taken to Gilroy.

Chas. Precht had the bad luck and misfortune to shoot and kill his setter Frisco, while quail hunting last Sunday at Point Reyes. The dog jumped right into the line of fire, as Precht discharged his gun at a bird, and received the charge of shot intended for the quail. This was one of those unavoidable hunting accidents that happen every now and then in spite of the greatest caution and care.

Mr. J. Wash Young, of Salt Lake City, went moonlight shooting one night recently. A duck he shot cost him $8.50, the fine and costs imposed for violating a State law against shooting game during the hours between the setting and rising of the sun. Now the Game and Fish Protective Association are after him. He has been summoned to show cause why he should not be expelled from membership in the organization. How some of the night shooters across the bay and elsewhere would regard this state of affairs we can easily guess.

We are indebted to the Solano Republican for the following hunting notes:

Game has been scarce during the past week.

A large number of hunters visited the marshes last Sunday.

W. H. Bryan made a good string of teal, sprig and widgeon Wednesday.

James Lang and Ray Miller, of Fairfield, bagged sixty-two ducks at a point a few miles east of Suisun,Tuesday.

R. Boyer, of Oakland, had a successful day's hunting on the Suisun shooting club's preserve last Sunday.

Quail are plentiful in Wooden Valley. Several hunters from this vicinity have enjoyed good sport there during the past week.

The Seattle Argus recently had the following: It is reported that the greatest flight of ducks ever known is now on the lower sound but that they are so far out from land that it is almost impossible for the sportsmen to get any good shooting. All that is needed now is some heavy weather and then shooting will be good not only on the lower Sound but on the lakes and rivers around Seattle.

Part of that flight are down here now and playing the same game,it may be possible though that there were as many guns after them when they first arrived on the Sound as welcomed them when they reached our bay regions. Over near Alvarado, last Sunday, there was an immense flock of ducks out on the bay, but when they took wing they were careful to fly just out of range along the shore line.

Arthur Foster, of Dixon, tells the following story in respect to some deer-shooting just before the season closed. Jas. Sweeny was driving in a wagon, along the Cache creek road, near Bartlett springs, when suddenly he espied three deer in the brush, off the road a short distance; he immediately turned the reins over to a boy who was riding with him, and picking up his rifle, a 22 short Winchester, slipped down from the off side of the vehicle, for the purpose of stalking and getting a shot at them. The deer did not notice him. they were evidently watching the wagon as it drove along up the road and around a turn. Sweeney got within thirty-five yards distance and opened fire from behind the brush,firing at one and then at the others alternately. The deer were demoralized and before they could stampede he had dropped the big buck and then the two smaller ones. After they were dressed it was seen that each animal was hit six times. Sweeney having fired eighteen shots at them.

The Los Angeles hunters are enjoying some favorable conditions for duck-shooting judging from these notes: The duck hunters found plenty of birds on their trip the early part of the week and some secured good-sized bags.

Down at the Alla's preserves a quartet, consisting of Ed Tufts, Felix Notman, W. H. Holmes and John Schumacher made merry and enjoyed some fine sport. The records were: Tufts, eight ducks; Notman, twenty-three; Schumacher, nine; Holmes, four. Mr. Tufts added variety to his achievement by bagging fifteen jack snipe.

At the Greenhead Club's preserves the finest mallards seen this season were shot by Kenneth Preuss and Robert Ross. The former killed twenty-five and the latter fourteen. Mr. Ross is not in his element, however, when shooting ducks. He is a much better snipe hunter and his success with that variety last year was regarded as phenomenal.

At the Recreation Club the biggest bag of these meetings was made. John Hauerwaas got forty, just a dozen, at least, more than should have been killed; while his partner, Dr. Crawford, shot twenty-eight.

Under the new game laws a resident of Wisconsin is required to pay a license of $1 for the privilege of hunting deer anywhere in what are known as the deer counties. But non-residents of the State are required to pay a license of $30 for the same privilege. The penalty for deception in the procurement of licenses is very severe. The licenses are not transferrable and should a non-resident be caught hunting on a resident's license he is subject to a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1000, and if such license is obtained through falsity in the affidavit he is required to make to secure the license he is liable also to prosecution for perjury. Hunting deer in Wisconsin under false pretenses will be very risky business.

The Merced Herald thus discourses regarding the thrifty and ubiquitous market-hunter: "There is a strong disposition among the sportsmen of the county to petition the Board of Supervisors to prohibit by ordinance the shipping of wild ducks out of the county. This movement is born of the encroachments of professional market-hunters. The best shooting grounds have been leased by these men, who use large bore guns in defiance of law, utilize trained animals to enable them to get pot-shots, and this season are even snaring the ducks by ingenious devices fixed in ponds that have been well baited with grain, etc., and in ponds known to be frequented by the wild fowl when not feeding in the fields. The ordinance, too, should prohibit the use of trained animals—generally oxen—in this connection. Other counties have enacted ordinances prohibiting the shipment of quail and deer, and certainly the conditions in this county demand a like ordinance in relation to wild ducks." If immediate and emphatic action, on the part of the Modesto sportsmen, is born of "the strong disposition" they will quickly find out just how very much they have lost by not getting proper county control of the matter several seasons sooner.

Nov. 23—Regular semi-monthly meeting of the San Francisco Fly Casting Club. Office of State Fish Commission, Flood Building, San Francisco.

NOTICE TO ANGLERS.

Every angler is invited to drop us a line occasionally, telling us of the condition of the streams they have visited and the killing lure, of the number and size of the fish caught, or any other item of interest to anglers.

Troublesome Fish.

Those sea-bass in the "white house" pool at Point Reyes are very much in the way of anglers it seems. Last Sunday one was hooked in the "back" with a spoon, and after a fight he was apparently getting the best of it when the doughty Ben Allicante came rushing to the rescue with his trusty shot-gun; he took aim, fired and severed the line which held the fish; the latter reluctantly accepted his freedom. Shortly afterwards the same fish or another like him was caught again in a similar manner, and this time Ben got in his work, for his aim was true and the sea-bass was killed and brought ashore.

A Little Lake Enterprise.

The great success attained in propagating trout at the hatchery of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway Company, located in the Gibson canyon, near Ukiah, has encouraged the Superintendent, Col. La Motte, to greatly increase his efforts in that direction. During the past season he has been looking over the surrounding country for a suitable place to erect weirs and hurdles with a view to securing more eggs for hatching during the coming season. He has at length secured what he believes to be a good location; this is on Outlet creek near the mouth of Little lake and here the company will proceed at once to erect hurdles, wiers and an "eyeing" house. Col. La Motte,in company there with his assistant, Harry Mohn, will take up his residence during the winter. The lumber for this purpose is already on the ground and on Wednesday, a week ago, the Colonel left for that place to personally superintend the work. As soon as the eggs are "eyed" they will be sent to the hatchery at Gibson canyon for hatching, and the capacity of the hatchery will be doubled for next season's work. The railroad company did a good thing for Mendocino county, as well as for its own line of road, when they instituted the hatchery and did equally as well when it put a man of Colonel La Mott'se experience and untiring energy in charge of the enterprise.

On Monday, Oct. 28th, 25,000 trout were shipped by Col. La Motte to Mill creek and on Tuesday 34,000 were shipped to Blue lakes. A list of trout shipments and streams stocked, including the above shipments up to date, is as follows: Gibson creek 2,000, McClure creek 20,000, Mill creek 10,000 Robertson creek 50,000, Cold creek 50,000. Cove creek 12,000. Lierly's creek 25,000, Walker's creek 25,000 Sulphur creek 50,000, Reeves' Mill creek 70,000, Blue Lakes 134,000, Mechanics' Fair, S. F., 1897, 2,000, Penns Grove 25,000,Old Adobe 15,000, Lagunitas 50,000, Laurel Dell 70,000, Vichy creek 5,000, Funch Colony creek 5,000, Big river 50,000, Reeves' Mill 25,000, total 705,000.

Pelican Bay—Klamath Lake.

An interesting description of a day's fishing, by Gifford Pinchot, Secretary of the National Forestry Commission:

During the brief study of the southern part of the Cascade forest reserve in Oregon, I spent half a day last summer at Pelican bay, an arm of Klamath Lake. One of the members of the forest commission had been delayed, and those of us who had gone ahead were waiting for him. And it was a fortunate thing for me that he was late, for it gave me much the best trout fishing I have ever had.

Klamath lake is a great body of water in process of losing its character. The streams which fall into it are wonderfully clear, yet the fine silt which they carry is gradually changing the lake into a marsh. At its upper end there are already great meadows, miles in extent, built by the water, and enormous stretches of bulrush (tule,in the local phrase) show where the next meadows will appear. Some miles to the north of Klamath lake are the great Klamath marshes,which foreshadow the future of the present lake. This lake is said to have an average depth of but 10 feet, and forms an incomparable breeding ground for trout. These fish are reported to reach a weight of 15 or 20 pounds, and in their shape and color, and the quality of their flesh, they resemble salmon more than any lake trout I have yet seen.

At the head of one of the little arms of Pelican bay is a great spring, sending a strong gush of water three or four feet in diameter straight to the surface through the clear depths which surround it. When I saw it first, strings of huge silver trout were swaying about in the rushing water almost as if alive—a sight to stir any angler to the deepest depths of his enthusiasm. More beautiful fish there can hardly be. About the spring there has arisen a shanty or two, and the chance to fish and dine. Here come the Oregonians with their families to spend a holiday in the open air, camping socially together on a few acres of ground, fishing from daylight to dark, and altogether contented. Nowhere in America, except on the Pacific slope, so far as I know, is it the custom for whole families to move into the woods for weeks or months at a time, in the summer and fall, to rest and grow happy and strong in the open air. Small farmers, storekeepers and mechanics join the clergymen and college professors in these most delightful and least expensive of vacations, and the women and children are not less enthusiastic than the men. I wish so good a habit might spread through all the States.

There were boats near the spring, and after dinner I made sure of one of them. Then, at the rough shop where repairs of every kind were done, I had a dented ferrule of my rod made straight. This rod was a four-ounce lancewood affair which had cost me only $4, and although my confidence in it had been growing through the course of the summer, I confess that I joined in the general attitude of scornful amusement with which the onlookers learned of my proposed attack on the giant trout of the lake. They themselves trolled with codfish lines. A trout had no sooner struck than he was hauled into the boat or hauled loose from the hook by main strength, and the episode was ended. The advantages of this sort of thing over the real cod fishing lie wholly in the surroundings, not in the fishing.

As we follow the little arm down to the bay itself, trout began to appear in marvelously clear water. At first they were few in number and small in size. The sun was shining, and they paid no attention to my fly except to run from it, as was to be expected. Farther down larger fish began to hurry through the depths until in the bay itself great shoals of them swam by, from two to ten pounds in weight, and here and there solitary individuals of what seemed to be even larger size. Nor were they the only matters of interest in the water. On its surface ducks began to appear more and more plentifully as we approached the bay.

An old Indian woman passed us in a dugout, with a fat pappoose contentedly chewing a white tule root in the bow. She came for the fish heads discarded daily by the white man and gathered daily by this Klamath squaw. Live fish are harder to catch. On the bay, surrounded by its endless level shores of tule, were ducks in multitudes, making a deafening clamor in and out of the rushes, and in the distance stately white pelicans fished, or dozed on the glassy water, or, spreading their huge white wings and rising slowly far ahead of the boat, sailed lazily far into the hazy distance. But nowhere could I get a rise, although I whipped the water patiently and in many places, and at last it was plain that it was a choice between trolling and no trout. I chose the latter with alacrity.

I fastened a small spoon from my flybook to the end of my line, and let it float behind the moving boat. For some time nothing happened, but at last there was a strike. After that nothing happened again, for my rod had been too weak to hook the fish. But next time the luck was better. As I struck in answer to the tug, a beautiful silver fish, like a salmon, rose two or three feet from the water, far astern, shaking his head savagely. Again and again he broke and rushed until there was little strength left, and I could draw him within reach of the gaff after not more than ten minutes. The little rod was doing wonderfully well.

Then came strike after strike until a second and then a third trout was hooked. The last one did not break, and I saw but the flash of his tale as he sank after taking the spoon. At first he came straight toward the boat, and I should certainly have lost him if we had not pulled away vigorously to tighten the line. Then followed a few moments of inaction, and then a fierce rush which was repeated over and over again, until it seemed sure that I must lose him. This went on for perhaps three-quarters of an hour, and all this time the fish had resolutely refused to show himself. I began to wonder what it was I had hold of. But there was little time for speculation. We were now near the mouth of the bay, where it was over a mile wide. The wind began to rise, and it was not long before it had raised a sea which we were obliged to face. No sooner was this condition established than the trout began to make runs on one side and the other which bid fair to force us broadside to the swells and fill the boat. My rod was too light to check him, and where he chose to go we had to follow. Soon heavy clouds covered the sunset and the night began to fall. I had not yet seen my fish, but just before black darkness came upon us he rose to the top. At that first sight he looked small, although his behavior seemed to indicate incalculable size.

As the minutes went by gradually I gained line, until I had him within a comparatively short distance of the boat. He was still far beyond the reach of the gaff, but at intervals his silvery bottom flashed as he surged to the top and we could see he was there. The fight was now evidently nearing its end, It was soon so dark that his back was invisible even when close to the boat, and the man with the gaff, as the fish came nearer, could not see to strike. But the wind fell a little and finally, more by good luck than good management, the iron was in him and he lay at the bottom of the boat. Violent hands were speedily laid upon him to keep him there, and then we broke into more or less tuneful and vociferous celebration of the victory. We could not dance, for the boat was not big enough, but the other signs of joy were not wanting. One hour and forty-seven minutes! I dream of it yet.

There is a warmth and satisfaction when such a fight ends as it should, which glows, more and more gently, it is true, as time goes on, but still for months and years. I am deeply thankful to that trout and shall always be, for he has given me the chance to tell this story, not once, but many times, although more often to myself than to any listener.

My three fish, in the order of taking, weighed, on the spring scales of the boatman, eight, three and a half, and nine and a half pounds. I have always thought those scales were wrong.—Ashland Record.

We acknowledge with pleasure a call, last Saturday from E. T. Allen, one of the original promoters and staunch supporters of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club. Mr. Allen says the Club will surely hold a wide open tournament next year and longs for someone to go out there and throw the club record in the shade. He does not believe anyone can do it. That's right, Mr. Allen—by such enthusiasm are clubs made.—American Field.

John Butler this week received from his friend, W. W. Richards, a young New Yorker, a large photograph, showing a fine catch of steelhead, which Mr. Richards and a companion caught in the Rogue River, near Grant's Pass, Or., in a day's fishing. Nineteen fish weighed one hundred and twenty-eight pounds. The hunting and fishing in that region Mr. Richards reports as being remarkably fine.

The members of the Fly-Casting Club are taking advantage of the pleasant weather as often as opportunity will permit. Last Sunday W. D. Mansfield, H. C. Golcher, H. Muller, C. Huyck and James Turner were among those who dropped a line on the placid waters of the lake. Mansfield made some long practice casts, touching the one hundred and ten feet mark, with Golcher a good second.

A fine Leonard salmon rod, once a prized possession of that genial angler, the late Louis Zeigler, who, with its trusty assistance placed many a fine fish in his creel, was presented the other day, to the veteran Jno Benn, by President Lemmer, of the Black Jack Club.

Al. Wilson and W. F. McFarland were after striped bass again last week. They caught a few, using live shrimp for bait. McFarland had a large sized fish fast, but after playing him awhile he dropped the hook and escaped.

Reports from Rogue river, Oregon, state that the trout fishing there is unsurpassed. One catch of fifteen fish weighed seventy-five pounds. The fish are gamey and take both fly and spoon.

John Siebe had his regular fishing trip last Sunday; he whipped the tide water lagoon on the Tamalpais grounds. John caught a nice string of fish, one of them about two pounds in weight.

W. A. L. Miller, tried the tide water at Point Reyes for steel head, but they were a bit coy and his luck was only fair.

Pacific Mastiff Club.

The following circular received last week too late for publication, has been issued by the Pacific Mastiff Club and is of interest to the mastiff fanciers of the Pacific Coast:

Dear Sir:—At the time of the formation of the Pacific Mastiff Club, I had the pleasure of addressing to you an invitation to become a member of that organization. Since then we have been highly successful, inasmuch as we have gathered into our fold a majority of the owners of thoroughbred mastiffs in California, but we feel that as long as there are owners of such animals on this Coast, who are not members of this club, our mission must necessarily be limited to that extent. For this reason, the club again invites you to join its ranks.

Whether you propose to breed or exhibit, or merely keep a mastiff as a companion of which you may be justly proud, the purpose of the Club embraces you in its scope. We are all lovers of the "King of Watchdogs;" and our sole aim is to so improve our faithful friend that he will take the conspicuous place in the eyes of the public to which his unfailing good temper and steadfast vigilance entitle him.

This end we propose to achieve by judicious and scientific breeding, as well as by offering valuable prizes in the different shows for competition by members of the club. Dr. W. F. Skaife, D. V. S, has been retained as the club's surgeon. The secretary and other officers will always be pleased to afford prompt information and assistance in this matter.

The entrance fee is but $2.00, while the subscription is almost nominal, being $1.50 quarterly.

Hoping to welcome you as an accession to the ranks of the Pacific Mastiff Club, I remain, Dear Sir,

Yours very faithfully,

Belmont, Cal., Nov. 10, 1897. J. P. Norman, Secretary.

American Kennel Club.

At a meeting of the executive board of the American Kennel Club held in New York on November 5th, the following action was taken in the matter of:

American Kennel Club vs. Pacific Advisory Board. Re H. T. Payne vs. James Mortimer.

The case, cleared of its outside and irrelevant issues, is simply this: Payne was called upon to supply the evidence to support his public statements. This he has refused to do, filing a demurrer and pleading liberty of the press.

It is first necessary to consider the demurrer which is practically an admission, that Payne made the public statement reflecting upon Mortimer. Payne's demurrer has no standing in the case, and must be ruled out on the ground that Payne is not called upon to defend anything that he has stated, but merely to give the evidence or information upon which he based his statements, in order that, if guilty, Mortimer may be punished in accordance with the rules of the American Kennel Club. No liberty of the press is endangered whatsoever, and none can be until Payne is called upon to defend himself, which is not contemplated in the matter of this investigation, as it is not before the club. The person sought to be reached is Mortimer, if he has been guilty of conduct as accused by Payne; and Payne, by his public statements coupled with his present attitude, is shielding an alleged offender. Payne has thus put himself in the same category as those who have in other instances refused to give information to the club, and have been from time to time suspended until the desired information has been vouchsafed.

There is no reason why an exception should be made in the case of Payne, and therefore the said H. T. Payne is hereby declared suspended until he submits the evidence upon which he made the statements. As there are neither charges against Mortimer nor any evidence upon which to base any charges, the Pacific Advisory Board went beyond the case, on Exhibit C., official proceedings, Pacific Advisory Board meeting of August 24, 1897, to wit: "Resolved, That the Pacific Advisory Board having called upon H. T. Payne to supply any evidence to substantiate the public statements made by him regarding James Mortimer as judge at the late Oakland show, in accordance with the resolution and direction of the American Kennel Club, and the said H. T. Payne having refused to present or supply any evidence to substantiate said public statements, finds as a fact that the said H. T. Payne has failed to supply the evidence which the American Kennel Club have called upon him, through the Pacific Advisory Board, to supply."

Whereas, James Mortimer by the refusal of H. T. Payne to produce any evidence as to the said Mortimer's conduct at the late Oakland dog show, has been deprived of the opportunity of defending his good name, be it therefore

Resolved, That this Executive Board of the American Kennel Club hereby express its confidence in the honesty and integrity of said James Mortimer.—American Field.

Pacific Coast Field Trials.

In addition to the prizes offered by the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club for the coming trials at Bakersfield, two special prizes will be given. Mr. Arthur Bennett, the well known artist and fancier, has offered a silver cup for the English setter showing the best field merits in the Derby. The Verona Kennels offer a silver cup to the winner of the All-aged Stake. Both awards will be made by the trial judges. The cups are of unique and chaste design and are now on exhibition at Shreve's.

Rip Rap K.

We note with extreme regret, which no doubt will be equally shared by sportsmen and fanciers, the death of this promising young pointer. Mr. W. C. Kennedy telegraphed from Fresno to Dr. A. E. Buzard on Tuesday last that the dog was ill and would be shipped to him, at once, for treatment. Wednesday a second dispatch was received stating that the dog had died, having succumbed to an attack of distemper.

Field Trials.

The Eastern Field Trials Club's trials take place today at Newton, North Carolina.

The International Field Trial Club's eighth annual field trials will be held at Chatham, Ont., on Tuesday, Nov. 16th.

The United Ststes Field Trial Club's autumn trials will come on at Newton, N. C, Monday, November 22nd.

Missouri Field Trials Association's inaugural trials commence at Amoret, Mo., on Wednesday, December 8th.

Setters of Royal Strain.

Among the recent notable acquisitions of high class dogs, by the fanciers of this city and vicinity, we are glad to chronicle the purchase during the week of two famous setters. The advent of Luke (Toledo Blade—Cambriana), who has been sold by W. B. Wells, Esq, of Chatham, Ontario, to Mr. Cæsar Young, (the prominent young turfman, who has lately brought a large string of horses to the coast), will be welcomed as a most valuable addition to the ranks of the setter class. This white, black and tan setter, since his first appearance in the International Derby, has never been unplaced, and he has, at times, scored sensational wins, notably so when he gained a decision over Dash Antonio. His sire, Toledo Blade, needs little introduction to the kennel men of the coast, and his dam, Cambriana, has a record of eight wins on the bench in the challenge class.

The purchase of Dash Antonio (Ch. Antonio—Lady Lucifer) by Mr. Emmet V. Sullivan, of this city, deserves more than passing mention, for he comes to California backed by a record that even the most captious critic could not cavil at. As a consistent performer he stands unexcelled by anyone's dog and at the same time combines all the attributes of the high-class English setter. Already he has placed the winning of the International Cup twice to his credit and competes the third time for it this week. We shall be very glad to chronicle his success in our next issue.

A writer in the American Field, notes this dog, as follows: The Candadian dog should be welcomed by English setter breeders on the Pacific Coast; we hope, too, that he will please his new owner by gaining fresh field trial honors when the Bakersfield outing rolls round. Dash won our heart at the International trials of 1894, when he plunged boldly into the icy water of the canal and swam across to get at his birds, of which he had wind. Never mind what he did when he got to them; he was only a puppy then, anyway; besides, he was smart enough to know Joe Spracklin was not going to give any natatorial exhibition, and, being very wet and chilly, the puppy could hardly be expected to stand on point and freeze. A high-mettled, free-going, handsome setter is Dash, as we remember him, and he will win his way to the hearts of the sportsmen of the Coast if he is the same dog he was in '94 and '95.

The setter breeders and fanciers of this vicinity are certainly bestirring themselves and at the coming trials of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club the greatest all-aged stake ever held west of the Rockies may reasonably be expected to take place, for with such entries as the Verona Kennels' Gleam's Ruth, Countess K. and Antonia; Luke, Dash Antonio, Valiente, and other cracks that we understand are likely to become contestants, the lovers of sports afield will be furnished with a rare treat. To such enterprising young gentlemen as Messrs. Young and Sullivan every true sportsman in California should extend the right hand of fellowship.

Glass eyes for Animals.

Ever so many pet dogs have glass eyes nowadays. So do some of the fine horses you see in swell turnouts, and even an occasional cat, dear to its mistress' heart, is thus supplied.

In the East the demand for artificial eyes for dogs is quite brisk. It is largely due to the fashion of making pets of bulldogs and bull terriers, which is now so popular.

At Newport, the other day, Dr. Rush J. Heidekoper put a new eye in Mrs. Frederic Neilson's pet brindle bull terrier. The dog had his eye dislocated in a fight some months ago and as a result he lost the sight of it. The animal seemed to realize what was being done for him when the doctor performed the operation, and never winced.

Artificial eyes for dogs have to be made to order, but any optician will procure them in a week's time. Of course, they must fit the socket with perfect accuracy so as not to cause any irritation, and the dogs for whom they are manufactured are of so many sizes and shapes that each eye is quite different. As all have to be made to order they are expensive, costing from $10 to $15.

A dog's eye is usually much larger than a human being's, but it is not to be compared in point of size with the horse's. A glass eye for a horse is a very big thing indeed. It is as large as a small tea saucer. Many valuable horses are supplied with glass eyes, for of all animals they seem most prone to eye injuries.

A tiger with a glass eye is at present in the menagerie at Stuttgart, and he looks as fierce with his artificial orb as with the real one. A serious affection of the muscles caused the beast to lose the sight of one eye, and as the public did not admire a one-eyed tiger, the beast was put under cocaine and the useless organ removed. It was a ticklish operation, several strong keepers holding the beast down while the eye was taken out, and the orbit measured for a new eye, which had to be made with a special degree of ferocity. For the first week the animal tried hard to rub it out; but he now rests contented, and a few visitors detect the substitution.

All the artificial eyes for animals used in this country are of native manufacture. There is a big factory in New York devoted entirely to the manufacture of artificial eyes, and here most of those used for dogs and horses are made. Usually several eyes are ordered at once, as in the case of a person, because artificial eyes do not last very long, a new one being necessary about once in six months. This seems a bit strange at first glance, but it really is not, for the acid of the secretions affects the enamel and causes a roughening of the edges, which brings on irritation. Thus the demand for eyes is constant.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Two fine black cocker dog puppies ten months old are for sale. Information concerning them can be had at this office.

A. Leonard, of Stockton, has purchased of Warren Lewis, Ypsilanti, Mich., the handsome young cocker spaniel, Buzz Silk, brother of the noted winner, Black Silk.

The R. C. St. Bernard bitch pup, Babette (King Frisco—Queen Bess W.) owned by J. W. Worthington, this city, is a perfectly marked pup, five months old, weighing seventy-five pounds and shows strong bone development.

The R. C. St. Bernard dog Rex (King Frisco—Grand Duchess) owned by Miss Nellie Fuller, this city, is now eleven months old, one hundred and fifty-seven pounds in weight, has fine deep orange markings, is well boned, shows good head and has a full and beautiful white frill.

Two young bloodhounds bred by Sheriff Johnson of Sacramento were recently given by him to Warden Aull of the Folsom State Prison. They are now being trained with the special purpose in view of trailing escaped convicts. A few days since they were put on a scent and followed the trail for four miles.

R. M. Dodge proposes to have the dogs he handles, in the pink of condition when the trials are held. He is already at Bakersfield with a string of dogs, namely: The Verona Kennel's Gleam's Ruth, Countess K., Antonia, Daisy Craft, (dam of the famous Pin-Money); Will S. Tevis' Cuba and other notable setters, eleven in all.

The dog-poisoner is still at his nefarious work. This time the deviltry occurs at San Rafael; within two days no less than twenty-three cases were reported. If the loss had been confined to mongrels and curs, their taking off would not be missed in any great degree, but at the same time the method would be none the less brutal and contemptible; but in the cases above noted it seems that the miscreant responsible for the dastardly effects of this villainy has singled out dogs that were of value and well-bred. The authorities have taken cognizance of the criminal action and offer a reward of $250 for the arrest of the party or parties offending. It is sincerely to be hoped that the responsibility may be located and that drastic punishment be meted out to whomsoever may be deserving of the penalty.

SUBSCRIPTION

EL RIO REY,

By Norfolk, dam Marion by Malcolm. The property of Theodore Winters, Rancho del Sierras, Washoe, Nevada.

THE WINTERS AND REIS SALES.

Grand Thoroughbreds To Be Sold Next Monday Night at the Occidental Horse Exchange in This City.

The auction sales next Monday night of baby gallopers, famous brood mares, two and three year olds will be notable ones. Most of the yearlings are by El Rio Rey, though several are by the great Morello. These were the greatest race horses of their generation. El Rio Rey never met defeat and the year he was upon the turf, there were more good youngsters out than at most any season within our memory He made such clinkers as Protection, Ruperta, Sinaloa II., Santiago, St. Carlo, Gregory, Banquet and Padishah look like selling-platers. Most persons declare that the big son of unbeaten Norfolk and wonderful Marion is the best race horse that ever saw the light in California, and that is saying considerable. El Rio Rey won the White Plains Handicap with 126 pounds up in 1:11, distance full six furlongs; the St. Louis Brewers' Stallion Stakes; a purse race of $600, five and one-half furlongs in 1:08, 123 pounds up, Washingington Park, Chicago, won after falling to his knees; Kenwood Stakes, five furlongs in 1:01, 120 pounds up; Hyde Park Stakes, six furlongs in 1:14¾, 118 pounds up; Great Eclipse Stakes (value to winner, $23,780), six furlongs in 1:14, 118 pounds up, and Dummow Stakes at Morris Park, six furlongs in 1:12½, 112 pounds up. The winnings of this, the acknowledged champion racer of America, footed up $46,835.

Norfolk, the sire of El Rio Rey, was likewise never defeated during his turf career, winning among other races, the Jersey Derby at Paterson, mile heats at St. Louis, two-mile heats at San Francisco (defeating Lodi), two-mile heats at Sacramento in 3:37½, 2:38½, and three-mile heats at the same place in 5:27½, 5:29½, the best of the kind ever run to this day. At the stud Norfolk was exceedingly successful, among his sons and daughters being Emperor of Norfolk, El Rio Rey (unbeaten), The Czar (unbeaten), Conner, Ballot Box, Flood, Prince, King, Duke and Duchess of Norfolk, Rey del Reyes and Alta.

Marion, dam of El Rio Rey, is by most persons considered the greatest stud matron ever known in America, she being the dam of ten winners (two undefeated), eight of stake class. The following table tells concisely of her worth as a brood mare:

Name and year foaled	No. Start.	Times 1st.	Times 2d.	Times 3d.	Times Unpl.	Amt. Won.
Duke of Norfolk (1878)	5	3	2	0	0	$ 1,240
Duchess of Norfolk (1879)	20	11	0	4	5	5,707
Prince of Norfolk (1881)	8	4	2	1	1	2,425
King of Norfolk (1883)	68	8	9	8	43	10,450
Queen of Norfolk, Vera (1884)	10	0	2	3	5	700
Emperor of Norfolk (1885)	29	21	2	4	2	61,445
The Czar (1886)	4	4	0	0	0	6,295
El Rio Rey (1887)	7	7	0	0	0	46,835
Rey del Reyes (1888)	24	5	3	6	10	33,323
Yo Tambien (1889)	73	44	11	10	8	90,450
Yo El Rey (1891)	15	1	1	2	12	420
Total	263	108	32	38	85	$262,170

El Rio Rey, as a sire, is a worthy son of the great Norfolk (who cost Mr. Winters the sum of $15,001 in 1864). His first lot of youngsters, three in number, appeared on the turf in 1894, and two of them (Mandolina and Eureka) proved winners, the remaining one (Zephyr) running third—an encouraging showing, truly. In 1895 his get won thirty races and $8,220, Belle Boyd (ten races and $2,680) being the chief contributor, though Mandolina won five races and $1,245, Caliente three races and $1,095 and Uncle Giles five races and $1,080. In 1896 the El Rio Reys won $11,975, Caliente, Belle Boyd, Mandolina and Uncle Giles still have winning ways, while Scarborough and Weenatchie were also good winners. This year, to July 1st, the sons and daughters of El Rio Rey had won $6,270, Scarborough capturing the California Derby and a purse race, and Caliente going over the $1,000 mark. The last named pair have been running well since that time, while Mandolina (now here) was considered one of the fastest mares in the Middle West, a winner at all distances up to a mile and a furlong. Padre Jose, a two-year-old brother to Scarborough, ran Los Prietos to a head for the Autumn Handicap at the last State Fair meeting, the mile being run in 1:42. The El Rio Reys not only race well, but the great race horse stamps his beautiful image upon his progeny in a most remarkable way—a sure sign of merit in a sire.

This lot is pronounced the best ever brought down by Mr. Winters. There will be found in this sale a sister to the grand colts, Scarborough and Padre Jose, a brother to Belle Boyd, a half-sister to the good winners, Lady Helen, Una Colorado and Uno Grande, a brother to Zephyr (an extra good one), a sister to Soon Enough, a brother to Adelante, a sister to Malo Diabol, a Rose Hickman filly (sister to Don Jose and Ed Corrigan), a colt from Nellie Post (sister to Don Jose also), colts from the grand race mares, Louise M. and Miss Courtney, and the rest are of young mares from famous racing families, and, as the animals in this consignment are fully up to the high standard of excellence set by their breeder, they should bring good prices.

Theodore Winters is the oldest breeder of race horses on a large scale on the Pacific Coast, and can claim (with justice) the credit of having bred more great racers than any man in the world. One of his mares, Marion, threw ten winners, and her produce won over $262,000 on the turf of this country. Joe Hooker's sons and daughters put over $462,000 to the credit of their owners, and Norfolk's progeny won quite a bit over $500,000. Thus the horses bred by this gentleman have put considerably over $1,000,000 to the credit of their owners. Among the celebrities that first saw the light on the stock farms of Mr. Winters was Emperor of Norfolk, Yo Tambien, The Czar and El Rio Rey (two undefeated racers), Rey del Rey, C. H. Todd (winner American Derby), Sorrento, Don Jose, Ed Corrigan, Surinam, Alta, Tormentor, Jim Renwick, Duchess of Norfolk, Bonanza, Conner, Almont, King of Norfolk and Scarborough (winner of the California Derby of 1897).

THE REIS CONSIGNMENT.

The horses in this sale are consigned by J. O. Reis, of Alamo, Contra Costa county, and a majority of them were bred and reared on this rancho. In the list will be found a number of celebrities of the turf and stud, besides two and three-year-olds in training, yearlings and weanlings. All are beautifully bred and from families that have achieved fame on the turf

The broodmares have weanlings at their sides by Morello and are in foal to celebrated horses.

Most of the yearlings are by Morello, one is by Sir Reel, and experts pronounce them the best-looking lot of youngsters seen in many a day in California and which is saying a great deal. Their pictures in this issue of the Breeder and Sportsman back up this assertion, and when the baby racers appear in the sales ring there is certain to be some lively bidding for them. Then with the Tyrant mare Charmion (winner of $18,405), the wonderful producer Sunlit (dam of the three great winners, El Rayo, Sunrise and Don Carillo), the Himyar mare, Viola, Stephanotis, Kosciulottie, Hertha, Morinel and Halsey to attract the attention of lovers of thoroughbred horses, this sale is sure to be an attractive one.

The Monday mare, Sunlit, cost Mr. Reis $2,000, and since that time she has foaled a fine bay colt by Morello (which is to be sold with her), and is now in foal to imp. Artillery (a stake winner of great note, by Musket, sire of Carbine, Trenton, Martini Henry and a host of other celebrities). If Sunlit was worth $2 000 over a year ago, when Mr. Reis purchased her, she is worth $4,000 now with a Morello colt at her side and surely in foal to the great New Zealander, Artillery. This mare not only throws winners, but great ones at that, and our great breeders should be on hand and bid lively on this one, for a better producer does not live in California than this Sunlit.

Charmion, the beautiful Tyrant mare that won $18,405 and captured stakes East and West, is in this consignment. She was not only a great racer, but is from the family that gave us a Modesty, a Bright Phoebus, a True Blue, a Balloon and a Wagner.

The filly by Sir Reel from Nova Zembla (sister to Greenland and half-sister to Luke Blackburn) is a beauty, and if she does not prove a great galloper there is nothing in a racy conformation.

MORELLO—ORINDA COLT.

MORELLO—VIOLA COLT.

SIR REEL—NOVA ZEMBLA FILLY.

TO BE SOLD NEXT MONDAY NIGHT AT THE OCCIDENTAL HORSE EXCHANGE.

The bay Morello—Orinda colt is a Morello all over and a half-brother to the splendid dead game filly, May R., who won a mile race in 1:42 at Oakland, defeating such a good one as Alvarado, San Marco and several others.

The Morello—Viola colt is the image of his wonderful sire. Viola, the dam, is by Himyar (sire of Domino, winner of $202,000) and from Vitality (dam of Birthday, winner of 42 races) by Victory, a half-brother to the great Kentucky, Daniel Boone and Gilroy, latter sire of our grand Grinstead, who got Volante and Silver Cloud, American Derby winners.

Morinel, the good two-year-old filly by Morello—Sunlit, will elicit some lively bidding, and it may be in order to tell of the achievements of the mighty Morello on the turf and at the stud.

In two seasons on the turf Morello won thirty-two races and over $81,000, his victories including the Futurity (with top weight up), the Chicago Derby and Dearborn Handicap. In the latter, as a three-year-old, he picked up 117 pounds and ran a mile and a quarter in 2:05 flat, beating a great field. He also ran a mile and a furlong in 1:53½ with 128 pounds up. Eolus, son of Morello, got Knight of Ellerslie (Henry of Navarre's sire), Eole, St. Saviour, Eolian, Russell, Diablo (winner Brooklyn Handicap), Eolo, Thomasia, Eleve, Elkwood and Eurus, last-named two being winners of the Suburban Handicap. Cerise, dam of Morello, was by imp. Maccasin son of the Derby-winner, Macaroni, who got Lily Agnes, dam of Ormonde. The dam of Moccasin was by King Tom. Besides Morello, Cerise threw Orton and Wild Cherry, winners. Lizzie Lucas, grandam of Morello, was not only the winner of the Mammoth Oaks, Hunter and Ocean Stakes, etc., and considered a great race mare, but she produced Chimera, Lytton, Cyclops and Cambyses, all high class. Morello comes from the same family as did Dewdrop, Requital, Falsetto, Ferida, Aella, George Kinney and Parole.

The first of the Morellos to race were out this season and no horse in the country made a better showing. The following proved winners: Recreation (best two-year-old in the West), Elsmore, Cherrybounce, Richard J., Morana, Mores, Morellito, Sadie Schwartz, Murillo, Borden and El Moro. They are not only winners, but most of them of high class.

Therefore, if you want race horses of stake class, attend this sale next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

THE YEARLINGS FROM NEVADA.—"Great expectations,' high hopes for the future of the yearlings which will be offered for sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange next Monday evening by Wm. G. Layng & Co. Quite natural that I should be impressed with the belief that many of them will prove great race horses, at least to those who are acquainted with my favoritism for horses that I have been so intimately connected with, it will not be at all surprising to them that rose-colored prophecies are freely offered.

But I can also state that there is a better basis for predictions than favoritism on account of having been instrumental in the production of some of them, and should they fail to fulfill these high expectations heredity is an empty sound. In another part of this paper there are descriptions of the near kin of the colts to be sold and no one can truthfully say that my coadjutors in this work have given a single line of praise that is not deserved.

El Rio Rey, his sire Norfolk, his brothers and sisters occupy a position on the American turf that is cordially conceded to be unique and justifies all the encomiums bestowed.

Near kinship to horses of the highest celebrity is the best of all guarantees of excellence and close relationship to animals so distinguished as those that are briefly summarized in the articles mentioned the most reliable basis for estimates. When form and size correspond to the breeding the risk of purchasing untried animals—that is, yearlings yet to be put in training—is reduced to a minimum.

But it is not only the near kin of Mr. Winter's consignment that have secured positions on the turf and when near and remote relations are of the same sterling stamp, as stated before, it will be strange, indeed, should there be a lack of high qualifications.

The horses alluded to in the article are well known to racing folk. Almost supererogatory to add a word about them, but there are others of the family not so well known to this generation.

Norfolk was not only the great race horse of his day, but combined what was emphatically the winning strains of his time. Captain T. G. Moore never missed an opportunity of descanting on Lexington and Glencoe, Lexington and Yorkshire, Lexington and Albion. The blood of Boston united with the foremost of English strains was nearly invincible. Norfolk, Asteroid, Lecompte, Lexington, Umpire, Idlewild, Harry Bassett, Preakness, such a large majority of the big winners of thirty and forty years ago carrying the blood as to have almost a monopoly of the main events of the turf. Joe Hooker as well as Norfolk was richly endowed with the victorious strains. Lexington and Topaz by imp. Glencoe, sire and dam of Colton, grandsire of Joe Hooker, and then his sire Monday, from Mollie Jackson by Vandal, and his dam, Mayflower, by imp. Eclipse, and his second dam Hennie Farrow, not at all surprising that sons and daughters of the "lusty chestnut" are credited with $462,000 in their career on the turf. To continue the genealogical table of the Rancho del Sierras horses, the sire of Marion, Malcolm, was not only a fine racehorse but also a member of a great family of racehorses. He won more fast heats than any horse of his day, made the fastest mile for a three-year-old, was own brother to Ontario, Regent, Liverpool, etc. Ontario was of the highest celebrity as a racehorse and the dam of McWhirter. Malcolm was also the sire of Roxaline (sister to Marion), and she was the dam of Princess, Fred B., Brait, Rocquefort, all good winners. Princess when a four-year-old ran thirty-nine races and won twenty of them, winning thirty-six races in all.

The dam of Marion, Maggie Mitchell, was injured in training and never raced. Her grandam, Charmer, by imp. Glencoe, made full amends for the break in the family records. She started in forty-three races and won twenty-eight, no other son or daughter of Glencoe winning nearly so many. She won eight races, heats of four miles, one of them of four heats. She was entered in seventeen races, eleven of them heats of three miles, the others dashes of three miles, paid forfeit in one, won all the others. She ran from April, 1846, to January, 1853, winning $18,300, a large sum in those days. Her dam, Betsy Malone, ran twenty-two races, fell down in one, won all the others.

The only horse that beat Charmer, that she did not "beat back," was Doubloon, and her sister, Jenny Lind, beat him.

Were the near kin inferior all the excellence displayed by them in the third and fourth remove would not signify. There cannot be any too strong backing, however, and when every link in the chain is of the best steel, tempered and fashioned to insure perfection, it will be singular, indeed, if the purpose it was made for is not well filled.

There is still another important point connected with racehorse breeding that being the proper care of sires, dams and foals. Long experience, nearly half a century, and all the qualities necessary to make a grand success of the business, or more properly stated, has shown his capacity by a continuous succession of great horses, and though it may appear paradoxical to claim that there has been constant progression, after such an array of horses as he has bred at Winters, El Rio and Rancho del Sierras, I have not the least hesitation in stating that there has been manifest improvement. It could not well be otherwise when such close attention was paid to all the details. No matter how insignificant it might appear if there was a chance for betterment the order was issued to make the improvement.

The place has been fitted up regardless of expense. The buildings which are suitable for a California breeding are not adapted for Nevada and not a point was omitted to make them complete. Then from spring to the beginning of winter there is green feed and the purest water flowing fresh and sparkling from the Sierras.

THE J. O. REIS SALE.
MORELLO AND HIS GRANDSIRE } Within a few months of thirty years ago I accompanied Mr. Cameron—since then knighted by good Queen Victoria, therefore Sir Roderick Cameron now—Mr. Weatherby, compiler of the English Street Book, and Mr. Ben G. Bruce, of Lexington, Kentucky, to Mr. Cameron's farm on Staten Island. Greatly pleased with Leamington, so much so that in a brief account of the visit was published: "We are bound to have a Leamington colt at some day, and as we must also "raise" it we will have to bring a mare from the better climate of Iowa, where the sun shines a part of the time, and after due delay shall expect a race horse, certain.

A good deal after the stamp of Foul Shot, and the resemblance of the son of Musket to the premier of Clifton Stud Farm intensified my liking for the Australian. Hampton Court was also there and Warminster, but, notwithstanding my admiration for the sire of the last named, Newminster, and still more for the dam of Newsminster, Beeswing, there was a wide margin in favor of the grandsire of Morello. That favoritism has followed many member of the family; Longfellow, Enquirer, Eolus and others. The big son of Nantura was a revelation to some of my friends from the far East. The congress of the N. T. A. met in Cincinnati in 1872, a majority of the delegates going to Lexington, Woodburn, and other famous places in the blue grass country. Uncle John Harper sent Longfellow and Lyttleton to Woodburn for the inspection of the trotting-folk, and their idea of wasp-waisted, fragile, delicate thoroughbreds had to give way to "ocular demonstration." Nothing like so heartily opposed to "near infusions" after their Kentucky pilgrimage. Eolus did me a good turn too. I lost a few hundred dollars on a pacing race at Sacramento, and having business on Leidesdorf street in the speculating days of that lane, the board showed that Eolian was at good odds, he won, and repeating the venture on Diablo both these sons of Eolus recouped for me the money lost on the pacers, and something more.

I was at Gravesend and saw Morello not very long before he won the Futurity.

He had quite a severe attack of distemper, and winning, before he possibly could have recovered from that debilitating disease, stamped him as a very high-class racehorse fully as great a performance under the circumstances as his race at Chicago when as a three-year-old with 117 pounds up he ran one and a quarter miles in 2:05.

Hence I was prepared to see the Morellos render a good account of themselves, a capital return surely when starters and winners are compared. Fifteen to "sport silk" a baker's dozen of them winners. The Morellos in the sale catalogues should be of a good sort. The weanling bay filly from Kosciulottie brings in some rare strains, English and American, and the double cross of Bonnie Scotland in the Rubina filly should have a potent effect when coupled with Monarch and Tranby.

The weanling bay colt from Sunlit is bred to go the route and that at a rate that means winning in the best company. Another strain of Leamington, and that reinforced by two of Lexington, with several other crosses of noted horses.

Sunlit ranks among the great broodmares. El Rayo and Don Carillo won thirty races, Sunrise is bracketed, and her two-year-old filly Morinel won over a good field of fillies last Wednesday, and the way she finished indicated racehorse qualities of a high order. As Orinda is an "own" sister to Sunlit, her yearling by Morello, in accordance with the laws of heridity, ought to be of the same stamp.

The union of Morello and Viola can hardly fail to give satisfactory results. By Himyar, one of the fastest sons of the "speed-getting" Alarm, her dam closely inbred to Lexington, carrying three parts in eight of the blood that has nicked so well with nearly all other strains, it is well within the bounds of reason to predict excellence in the offspring

After all that has been said, printed and poetized over the "glorious uncertainties" connected with racing and the breeding of racehorses, with the right blood and proper form in the parents, the colts reared in the best manner, the risks are reduced to the smallest proportion.

THE "RACING SEAT."—English or American, which? Again there has been a revival of the argument over the momentous question of American and English jockeyship. When Mr. Ten Broeck took Lecompte, Umpire, Starke, Pryor and Princess to England forty years ago, accompanying them on the trip were Gil Patrick and John Ford, two of our crack jockeys. Gil. Patrick made a poor showing, and though Ford won on Starke, Mr. Ten Broeck came to the conclusion that the English riders were superior, and during his long stay in the "native country of thoroughbreds" they were employed. In fact it was generally conceded that in this line the English were far in the lead, and that the English seat was the best adapted for successful work in the saddle. I shared in the estimate, fully agreed that in placing the saddle, and in "sitting down in the saddle" when the utmost effort of the animal was to be secured, it was the better form. Tod Sloan has not only renewed the argument but has done a great deal towards proving that former conclusions were wrong and that the apparently awkward seat and his manner of finishing is the right method after all that has been said and printed to win races. That being assured there must be some good reasons for success following his particular system, that is when there is so great a divergence between him and his English competitors.

And I am now inclined to give up all my former beliefs and opinions and am about ready to coincide with those who favor the American seat for the following reasons. The number of races won in so short a time by the American jockey, and also figuring prominently when not a winner, proves that his seat, as well as his head and hands, cannot be inferior to that of his competitors. Leaning so far forward throws the weight in advance of a straighter carriage of his body, and whereas if the placing of the weight were obtained by bringing the saddle on the withers then the motion of the scapula would be restricted. Heretofore I have believed that the weight should be carried as nearly as possible over the center of gravity, and that would be about on a line with the girth, or back of it, and in that case sitting down in the saddle and the body erect would be the proper position. One argument advanced in favor of changing the position is that as a man can find relief from changing weight carried from one hand to the other, the horse is favored by transferring a portion of the weight to where, comparatively, the muscles have been untaxed.

In the fast run, after the airflight, one hind foot strikes the ground, then the other hind foot touches, then a fore foot followed by the other fore foot, which gives the last impulse to hurl the body through the air.

A perpendicular line from the toe of the forefoot, just as it leaves the ground, bisects the body of the horse behind the cantle of the saddle. Therefore the whole weight of the rider is in front of the center of gravity, and this must be a fearful strain on the foreleg if even it does not impede the speed. But accepting the evidence presented by the riding of Tod Sloan in England as proof that the forward leaning seat is favorable to speed, then the reason must be that in place of being detrimental it is an advantage from the weight being easier to handle in that position. A troublesome question truly, and one that can be studied beneficially.

THE CRACK PACING YOUNGSTERS—The Eastern papers are somewhat muddled over the performances of Searchlight and Betonica at Santa Ana, and it is not very surprising that such should be the case. Press telegrams were sent East that the three-year-old pacing record had been lowered, and records beaten is always evidence of excitement, and therefore, when those render apparently well grounded reasons for the charge of "irregularity" condemnatory articles should appear.

The following is from the Western Horseman:

In California there seems from reports to be two plain cases of "can but don't want to," and that in connection with a world's record—a thing that most people want above all else. The controllers of the great young pacer, Searchlight, felt that the colt could beat the world's record for three-year-olds, so they sent him over the route in an "irregular" way, not for the world's record, but just to show the public that he could do the trick. The "official" "unofficial" time was 2:07. Next the controllers of Betonica, another California wonder, believed that their colt could beat 2:07, and to show the world in an "official" "unofficial" way that he could doit, he was sent an "irregular" mile in 2:06¾. These "irregular" performances are "regular" public nuisances, and should be abolished. They are misleading and tend very greatly to give the public the "tangle-foot" on the subject of world's records. Immediately after the occurrences of one of these fake performances the time is flashed all over the country as a record, and as is well known it takes months and sometimes years to nail a falsehood and stamp it out. Through an application of the principles and intent of the rules bearing on "irregular performances," the time made in such exhibitions referred to above would stand as "bars," thus destroying the incentive for such performances, and we are inclined to the belief that this is the best way to abate the nuisance. If an owner craves the honer and distinction of beating a world's record or any other record, he should be willing to give the record in exchange for the honor and distinction. Later advices say that Searchlight has "lowered the record to 2:05¾," but it is likely that this is also a "muzzled" record and made simply for "advertising purpeses"

There was no attempt, however, to mislead. In the case of Searchlight to give an exhibition of speed, without the risk of record or bar, and in order to accomplish that, rule 5 N. T. A. was invoked. No attempt to mislead, so far as I have ascertained, simply this, the people in attendance anxious to see the colt at his best speed, the association and driver willing to gratify the desire, all parties satisfied and without trenching on the rights of others.

As to Betonica the object of sending him a mile in 2:06¾ was to prepare him for a big exhibition of speed a few days thereafter. This explains why the "rating" was 1:05 to the half, the last part 1:01¾, and according to the spectators the last two hundred yards was made at a marvelous rate. But for the accident to his driver there is scarcely a question that the next "work-out" would have been phenomenally fast, as seldom, indeed, has there been such rapid improvements.

At Sacramento 2:13¼. At San Jose in his exercise, 2:12; A fifth heat in a race at Los Angeles in 2:10½, and then the Santa Ana display.

The senders of the telegraphic accounts were the irregular parties, and in stating that records were beaten erred, probably not intentionally, and thus raised quite a tempest in a tea-kettle.

But the "song of the kettle on the hod" and the music of the steam hissing in the urn, has been duly praised, and it is safe to say that the "irregularity" has increased the notoriety of these celebrated young pacers.

ANNUAL MEETING, Pacific Coast Trotting-Horse Breeeders Association, Article III Section 1 of the constitution of the above association is: "The association shall meet annually on or before the first Monday in December, at such time and place as the Board of Directors or its presiding officer may designate."

As there has not been a meeting of the Board of Directors for some two months, it was the duty of the presiding officer to name the place and the hour when the meeting shall be opened.

At this time of writing, Friday forenoon, no official notice of the meeting has been issued. Had the secretary notified stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well-known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bell Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches, it has no equal.

THE SULKY.

Norval is the sire of ten new performers.

Nutwood has put five in the list this season. He now has 153 to his credit.

For six decades the pacer has led the trotter in making championship marks.

The Oregon pacer Altas, 2:15¾, by Altamont, is tipped as good for a mile right at 2:10.

Electioneer and his sons are the sires of exactly 100 new performers in the 2:30 list for 1897.

Sidney, 2:19¾, had ten additions to the 2:30 list. This makes seventy-nine to the credit of this horse.

Shieldbearer, who won at Nashville, November 15th, is now owned by Fred Gerhardy, the ex-jockey.

Guy Wilkes now weighs 1,120 pounds. He weighed but 970 when bought by W. J. White for the Two Minute farm.

Jack Dawson, 2:17¼, by Director, is the sire of Lutie Dawson, that took a record of 2:30 at Raleigh, N. C., recently.

Recent reports are to the effect that the "horseless carriage" and the "motorcycle" are already playing out in England.

Moorzouk, 2:20¼, by Sidney, that is described as a very handsome road horse, won three prizes at the recent Saratoga Horse Show.

Elsie, the chestnut horse by Expedition, that recently took a record of 2:29¼, is out of Elite, the daughter of Green Mountain Maid.

Chehalis, 2:07¼, is not broken down, as many papers have printed. The report rose from the fact that he pulled up lame in his last performance.

Judge Sidener, of the St. Louis courts, has given the Missouri pool rooms a new lease of life by deciding the so-called "Breeders' Law" unconstitutional.

James A. Murphy will match Guinnette against any pacer in the world, bar two, for $10,000, and Murphy is not generally around looking for unnecessary trouble, either.

Robert Steel, who formerly lived in Philadelphia, is now pleasantly located on a fine stock farm near Doylestown, Pa., where he is breeding a few good trotters and pacers.

The cheerful idiot who imagines there was any crookedness in the exhibition miles of Searchlight and Betonica ought to call in a modern Pied Piper of Hamelin to coax the rats out of his garret.

Twilemo, two-year-old, by Guy Corbett (son of Guy Wilkes) dam by Alladin (son of Jay Gould) made a time record of 2:26½, trotting, at Galesburg, Ill., October, 12. He is owned by T. S. Dodge, of Springfield, Ill.

Simmons, Wildbrino and Dexter Prince, it appears, as far as the records have been made up for the season of 1897, are the only sires to be credited with more than one two-year-old trotter that entered the standard list.

A splendid consignment of trotting stock will be shipped from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm to the great New York sale at Madison Square Garden December 14th and 15th. There are some very fine individuals among them.

J. H. Thayer of Lexington, Ky., has sold the black mare Timorah (4) by Princeton (2:19¾); dam by Nutwood; second dam, Lottie Thorn, by Mambrino Patchen; price, $2500. Timorah has been a mile in 2:13½ for Mr. Thayer.

The brown gelding that started at Westfield, Mass., Fall River, Mass., and Waterbury, Conn. this season under the name of Robert Boy has been identified as Doc Sperry 2:09. This horse won a heat in 2:16½ at Waterbury, Conn., July 5.

William Disston, the wealthy Philadelphia lover of trotters, recently wrote to C. J. Hamlin asking if he had a pair of trotters that could trot a mile to pole in 2:15. He was informed that such a pair could be had at Village Farm for $20,000.

John W. Ford, Superintendent of the Sonoma Stock Farm writes in regard to the good colt Monogram, 2:24¼. This horse was sired by Fairmont (son of Piedmont and Queen by Garibaldi), out of Miss Swift by Gray McClellan, second dam by Gen. Dana and third dam by Imported Lawyer.

A Sturgis, N. D., dispatch of Nov. 10 says: In a few days Jack Hale and Bert Lamberton will start for the Klondike country with a herd of 500 horses, to be sold to the pilgrims to that country in the early spring. The animals are bronchos, and it is expected that they will sell at a good price. They will be driven through Montana and the British possessions to the point of delivery.

Electrite has three more performers to his credit as a result of the racing at Dallas, Texas, on the 10th inst. Astolfo, a bay gelding, out of Modesty, by Talmage, won the 2:30 trot in 2:29¼, 2:36. Rose Electrite, a bay two-year-old filly, out of Roseberry, 2:15¾, won the 2:30 pace in 2:24½, 2:26¾. Elrod, a brown gelding, out of Laura Dumas, won the mixed 2:25 class in 2:24¼, 2:25.

Oaknut, the great son of Dawn, was sold last Saturday by Wm. Overholser, of Petaluma, to J. B. Nightingale, of Cordelia. Oaknut was by Dawn, his dam being Miss Brown. Oaknut was a familiar figure on the race tracks in Northern California, having a record of 2:24¼, but had trotted a trial heat in 2:17. As a sire Oaknut will be greatly missed in this section as all his progeny were very stylish and fast, making fine roadsters. The price received for him is said to be $400. Mr. Nightingale has a fine piece of horse flesh in Oaknut as well as an excellent sire.—Petaluma Argus.

"Veritas" has this sensible thing to say about punishing a horse in a race: "A touch of the whip now and then may serve to remind a horse to let out a link of speed, but welt-raising flagellations will make quitters, sulkers, bad actors and wrecks of naturally good race horses."

The Iceland pony stands from ten to 12 hands high, and is frequently sold as a Shetlander, but is by no means its equal either in conformation or disposition. They are strongly built ponies, their heads being decidedly larger. Many are natural pacers, and quite a few of them are possessed of a rather stubborn disposition. Iceland ponies are much more numerous and much less valuable than Shetlands. They are all colors, including many skewbalds, or bay and white.

Boodle, 2:12½, is back in his old stall at the San Jose track in the hands of that popular, prudent and progressive trainer C. F. Bunch, after having made an Eastern campaign in the Salisbury-Griffith string. He is in good condition and as sound as the proverbial dollar. But few horses of his age, (considering that less than ten of his colts have ever been handled for speed), can make such a showing as he. With a record of 2:12½ himself, a record of 2:10 for his first foal, a record of 2:15 for his second foal, a record of 2:30 for a two-year-old and two others in the thirty list, Boodle's services should be in demand.

Sweepstakes, the dam of Star Pointer, 1:59¼, and Hal Pointer, 2:04½, will be twenty-eight years old in a few months. She is a mare of wonderful vitality and would pass for a much younger mare anywhere. A few weeks ago she concluded she wanted to go into a corn field adjoining her paddock. Without asking anybody's consent she jumped a rail fence and helped herself. The next day the fence was strengthened and made fully five or more feet high, but she cleared it as easily as before. It now takes the same fence around her paddock to turn her as it takes to turn a mule. It is no uncommon thing to see her playing around like a colt. She is in foal to Brown Hal.

The steamer Persia, of the Hamburg-American Line, carried a valuable consignment of horses from this port when she left New York on the 6th instant. W. Schlesinger & Co., of Vienna, had picked them up in different parts of the country. Among the lot were: Combine, 2:22½, by Combination; Alzel, 4, by Wilton; Bay Bird, 2:30; Lady O'Fallon, 2:30¾, by Silver Chimes; Coral Queen, 2:20¾, by Coralloid; Elsie G., by Red Wilkes, in foal to Clay; Louise Mapes, by Louis Napoleon, in foal to Gambetta Wilkes; Emma J., by Gov. Sprague; Mistake, 2:29½, by Marshall Kieber; Nellie H., 2:24¼; Countess Eve, 2:09¼, by Norval; King Nutwood; Happy Bird, 2:22½; Sonnet (dam of four in the list), by Stranger; Sonnet Stranger, by Stranger, out of Sonnet; Wanita, 2:20½, by Aberdeen, in foal to Stranger.

Sphinx put eleven new ones in the list in 1897. This gives him fifty-four in all, which makes him the leading son of Electioneer. He put four in the 2:20 list in '97, has three new producing sons and one new producing daughter; quite a showing when his oldest colt is but nine years old. The new performers are: Princeton R (p), br s, 2:15½; Faultless, ch s, 2:19½; Don Sphinx, br s, (p), 2:19½; Waukem, b m, 2:24¼; Erith, b m, 2:24½; Jennie Wells, gr m, 2:28; Muriel, b m, 2:28¾; Labor Day, b s, 2:29¾; Jeanette, b m, 2:29½; Cassadina, b s, 2:29½; Lady Merrill, b m, 2:30. Reduced records: Abscota, 2:30 to 2.29½; Economy, 2:25 to 2:22½; Belle of Abscota, 2:30 to 2:20. Sons that produced: Surplus, sire of Peter Swift, 2:24½; Pera, 2:22½; sire of Peruna, 2:26¾; Onsphinx, sire of Athinx, 2:20. Producing daughter: Belle Davis, dam of John Hussey (3) 2:29½.

At a meeting of the Chicago Commercial Association, on the 10th inst. it was practically decided to build a big down-town exposition building, in which an annual horse show, as well as conventions, flower shows, etc. may be held. The project is to erect a building to cost $250,000 on the lake front, and a Ways and Means Committee was appointed of prominent and wealthy citizens, among them being Melville E Stone, Joseph Leiter, H. H. Kohlsaat, Fred W. Peck, Mayor Harrison, H. G. Selfridge and M. W. Jamieson. A committee was also appointed to organize a stock company for the purpose of giving a Horse Show annually. This committee includes A. J. Caton, George H. Wheeler, Joseph Leiter, John Dupee, Marshall Field, Melville E. Stone, R. H. McCormick and others prominent in financial and horse circles. The people of Chicago have shown that they will royally support a Horse Show, and only intelligent management is necessary to success.

Horsemen, as a rule, are fully satisfied with the season's events, and the feeling is general that all that is needed to put back the old-time prices for high-class road and race horses is that all other business shall become reasonably prosperous. There is no substantial hope that cheap horses will reach the prices of a decade ago, owing to the decreased demand, on account of the general utilization of electricity for city and suburban traffic, but as the supply of cheap horses has been largely decreased since the western ranches have been cut up into farms and settled with advancing populations, there is no reason why there will not be a substantial advance in horses of the lower grades. The theory of a few poorly-grounded prophet pretenders that the bicycle had come to supplant the road horse for recreation and pleasure has gone—not gone glimmering, but gone without a glimmer. It is settled that the horse is king of the road and boulevard, and no human machine, however subtle or swift, can ever take his place.

So many requests having been made for the treatment of that common habit with horses whose condition is below par—"tail rubbing"— that we submit the following mixture, twice a day in ground oats: Saltpetre, six ounces; Epsom Salts, eight ounces; Sulphur, eight ounces. In addition, wash the tail thoroughly with hot water and castile soap, two or three times a week. It is also advisable to annoint under side of tail with Carbolized Cosmoline, each evening. Should the treatment prescribed fail, inject two quarts of strong Quassia Tea into the bowels; repeat in three days. The writer has made use of a tallow candle with good results in obstinate cases; inserting a candle in the rectum each evening for a week. For ordinary cases of "rubbing the tail," frequent bathing of the affected parts, and the daily use of Carbolized Cosmoline, will relieve ninety nine times in a hundred. To prepare the enema referred to, soak one quart of Quassia Chips in two gallons of rain-water, forty-eight hours. By using hot water, the enema will be ready for use in ten or twelve hours.

Anaconda, 2:08, is by Knight, 2:22½, son of Woodford Wilkes. Mr. C. X. Larrabee, of Montana, has a full brother to Knight in L. L. D., 2:08¼, and two full sisters in Jennie Wilkes, 2:12½, and Oenone, 2:11¼. L. L. D. and Oenone make a perfect driving pole team, and have stepped a mile better than 2:10. It is the intention of Mr. Larrabee to ship these horses to R. W. Goodrich, Poultney, Vt., and, if not sold, they will be campaigned by him next season on the Eastern tracks.

A nine day's sale of trotters is in progress at Madison Square Gardens, New York city. Over 700 horses are to be sold. On Monday the following were the best prices realized: Greenlander Girl, blk m, seven-year-old, record 2:14¼, Greenland—Aurelia, J. S. Murray of Chester, N. Y., $850. Captain Jack, blk g, seven-year-old, 2:10¼, blk Wilkes—Mattie C., J. Stewart Flynn of Southington, Conn., $935. Bright Light, b m, 1892, Dark Night—Maid of the Mist, 2:08¼, pacer, B. R. Demarest of Boston, $1000; Ambulato, pacer, b h, 1892, 2:18, Ambassador—Regalo, L. Whitehead, New York, $1,300; Hornella Wilkes, trotter ch f, 1894, 2:16¼, Hornell Wilkes Asabella, Albert Moser of Vienna, Austria, $3,600; Alice Leyburn, b m, 1891, Baron Wilkes—Mamie, and Georgie M., b m, 1891, Wilton—Daughter of, were sold as a team to Schellsinger of Vienna for $7,209; Pastoral, b m, record 2:13½, 1888, Acolyte—Cathedral, to Albert Moser, Vienna, Austria, $1,700; Cephas, b g, 1887, Cyril—Molly Matchless, to H. Darlington, Pittsburgh, $2,000; Royal Victor, b h, record 2:08¾, 1891, Roy Wilkes—Highland Mary, to S. P. Clark, New Haven, Conn, $3,600.

John Pitcher came over from Lobitos Monday and put his horses up at Murphy's livery stable near the depot at Redwood City. He brought his own feed with him consisting of oats and hay, which he gave the horses that evening. On reaching home next day three of the horses died. Mr. Pitcher returned Tuesday evening with another team, which he also stabled at Murphy's. On his way home Wednesday two more of the animals died in the harness. The same day a valuable horse belonging to Mr. Murphy passed on to the animal kingdom above; and to complete the death list Will Lovie's handsome mare, which he has kept for some time at Mr. Murphy's stable, also died on Wednesday. The proprietor is puzzled to account for the sudden death of the animals, as none of them were fed by him. Even the owners of the horses cannot offer any solution of the strange affair. It is hinted that some unknown person having a grudge against either Murphy or Pitcher, mixed poison in the feed. Mr. Pitcher has sent the stomach of one of the horses to San Francisco to be analyzed, and until the result is known no charges will be made.—Redwood City Times Gazette.

Mr. Murphy, owner of Star Pointer, gives the following account of how the champion is fitted for his races: "We always work him three heats before each race or fast trial against time and take two hours or more getting him 'warmed up' for a fast mile. In his weekly work I venture to say that McClary, my trainer, rarely beats 2:20 with him, but he always gives him staying-up repeats. First we give him a walk, then slow, slacking jog and a mile in three minutes or so. This takes forty minutes as a rule. Then he is walked a little, and next time out the walking is omitted and he is sent 2:40 or so and a mile in 2:30 is the schedule. He is now bandaged and scraped and in twenty minutes then taken out again and given a little sharp scoring and a mile anywhere as it happens, but around 2:20, so when he is called for his first warming up mile which the public sees, he has been there, you see. This season he has loafed going miles around 2:10, disliking to go alone, so we've used the pony pacemaker at such times as we wished to stir him up at all lively. I am pleased with his campaign, and guess no horse ever kept at an edge as well as he, and twice I know reasonably well he could have been driven out in two minutes or below it.".

A radical change—and one that could never have occurred in Senator Leland Stanford's time—is announced in the management of Palo Alto. Hereafter, it is said, any youngsters there that show an inclination to pace will be allowed to do so. Commenting upon this an exchange has remarked the fact that Electioneer had no pacers to his credit was wholly due to pacers never being trained there. This is not a sound conclusion, nor in accordance with the facts. We have good reason to believe that Electioneer never sired a natural pacer with the exception of Peruvian Bitters. Scores of his get were sold into strange hands, and trained by persons who had no prejudice against the pacing gait. Very many of these got records, but not one at the pacing gait, with the single exception named. He had transmitted the pacing gait, unless all his get were kept and trained at Palo Alto, which was far from being the case, pacers would have cropped out. But if Electioneer transmitted the trot with practically absolute and unerring uniformity; it long ago became apparent that plenty of pacing speed came from his sons and daughters, and we congratulate manager Covey on his decision to train those that are naturally pacers at their proper gait.—Horse World.

G. W. Ford, of Santa Ana, writes: "Neernut's record of 2:12½, made without boots of any description, common keg shoes, an amateur driver, and with but little training, was a remarkable performance in every respect, and when we take into consideration that the track was slow, being harrowed up for gallopers, and on the back side was forced to pull out to obtain good footing, makes the performance all the more meritorious from a time standpoint. There will be more harness horses training on this track next year than ever before; there are a number of horses and colts being jogged along, preparatory to being sent along early in spring. I am now having yearling and two-year-old "Neernuts" jogged along, and they are moving along in a very nice clean, level manner. I expect to campaign several of the colts with the horse next year. We have made an assessment on the stock of our Fair grounds, and hope to keep up the interest till we can get a Governor in Sacramento who is not antagonistic to the interests of our National sport of harness horses. The running races failed entirely to draw either enthusiasm or patronage at Los Angeles, but every day there was a good harness contest the crowd increased manifestly, and if it had not been for the harness contest the Association would have found themselves sadly in arrears, which clearly demonstrates the fact, that instead of harness racing being in a dying condition, it is in a very healthy, flourishing condition in Southern California, showing the national love for harness horses America boasts of. Hoping in our next elections we can elect a governor who will encourage and not persecute our national pastime.

THE SADDLE.

EL MORO made the twelfth Morello two-year-old to win this season.

GREEN B. MORRIS has telegraphed that he will be here with a stable this winter.

WARRENTON, a recent Washington winner, is by Florist (sire of Flora Louise), dam Addie Warren (dam of Hy Dy).

WM. FITCH is the best horse auctioneer that ever sold horses in California. Come and hear him next Monday night.

W. R. GRIFFIN arrived Monday with Miss Ross, Mordecai and Oscuro, all good winners in the Middle West this summer.

CHARLEY THORPE, the crack jockey, is expected here in time for the Ingleside opening. He is under contract to Colonel D. Burns.

THE great broodmare Sunlit will be sold next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange. She's the dam of three great winners.

BILLY MUIR has in his stable a full brother to the great long-distance horse, Ben Holliday. The colt has been sick for a year, but is rounding to.

AT Nashville, Tenn., Monday Ponte Canet and Senator McCarren ran a dead heat in the fourth race and their owners decided to divide the purse.

RILEY GRANNAN sailed for Europe on Saturday. He cleaned up $52,000 on sugar before sailing. Grannan will take a whack at the game in England.

C. C. O'FALLON, another arrival from St. Louis will help to make the game livelier this winter. He brought along with him Donator and Queen Safiie, two very useful platers.

EDDIE CASSIN, an ex-jockey, having vacated the saddle, has determined to try his luck here this winter, and for that purpose brought the plater Tom Anderson. We hope to see him get some more.

JOHN CAMPBELL, the trainer of Bland, sent such good ones to the post as Castaway II., winner of the Brooklyn Handicap, Cassius, second to Salvator in the Suburban, and many other celebrities.

THE Morello—Miss Pickwick colt that W. M. Murray took East with him, we are told was exchanged for a Hanover filly, a real good looker, one that ought to prove a good feed-winner this winter.

H. M. MASON, who trained the well-known Sir Modred mare, Gloaming, for most of her races, arrived Monday with Salvado, a three-year-old son of Salvator, who has won several fair races in the East this summer.

MORELLO was the greatest racer of his day, and the best mares he was bred to were at J. O'Rei's' place near Alamo. Come to the sale next Monday, where you can sit in comfort and enjoy watching the grand-looking Morellos that will be sold.

W. J. SPIERS, one of the best-known race horse owners in the country, was at the Oakland track Monday. Mr. Spiers will race Lizzetta, O'Connell and Elano here this winter, and should be quite a factor in the racing game, as O'Connell is the crack sprinter in the West.

GET a catalogue for the Oneonta stock farm sale on December 6th. The majority of these youngsters are by the imported horse Duncombe, brought to this country by the late Simon G. Reed, though there are youngsters by Emperor of Norfolk, Tenny, imp. Watercress, Gold Garter, &c.

LITTLE MEANY, who piloted Colonel Dan to victory, is a "find" of Clarence Waterhouse's. The little fellow is a nephew of Pat Meany, the ex-steeplechase rider. Meany is apprenticed to Burns & Waterhouse for five years. Jim McCormick thinks he has a coming jockey in Meany.

TOMMY GRIFFIN, the irrepressible booster of selling platers, will be here before Oakland opens up again. Griffin says: "I don't know what I will bring, as some one may claim or buy part of my stable before racing closes in the East, but I will bring the balance and take care of them myself."

RUFUS NARVAEZ, who will ride for B. J. Johnson and Donald Cameron, latter owner of May W. Plumeria and others, has arrived. Narvaez rode May W. when the Montana contingent took $30,000 out of the ring at Harlem not long ago. He is a brother of Joe Narvaez and is considered a very high-class horse pilot.

ANDY MCDOWELL and nearly all the other turfites who who saw Senator Bland race in Montana were down heavily on the son of imp. Iverness. He justified the confidence of his followers by laying second to Buck Massie until within three furlongs of home, when he came away and won galloping in the splendid time (track considered) of 1:41¼.

THE once great sprinter, O'Connell, who is now munching California hay and will doubtless sport silk early next month, is one of the joint holders of the three-quarter mile record. At Oakley, July 18, 1895, O'Connell, with 121 pounds up, ran the distance in 1:12¼. At the present time there are eight horses in California with world's records to their credit.

TRAINER CHARLEY MURRAY and Jockey McDonald were suspended by the Oakland judges on Saturday pending investigation, on account of the poor showing of Lady Hurst in the mile and a furlong race. Murray says the mare was fit to run for a kingdom, and lays the blame at the door of the rider. The Lady was well up for a mile, but dropped back until she finished seventh in a field of eight.

THERE was a large addition to the racing colony Tuesday after the arrival of the overland. Frank Eckert, Charles Quinn, Robert Smith, F. S. Hyatt, Cash Sloan, Fremont Sloan and W. Clancy were on the train. Robert Smith hails from New York and is the owner of a string of horses now at Ingleside. Fremont Sloan is a brother of the only Todd, and comes out here with Lillian M. and Irma K.

THAT sterling performer Industry by (Musket) proved herself a successful stud matron. At Rosehill (N. S. Wales) in October, two of her sons by imp. Gozo won on the same afternoon. Gaulus (Melbourne Cup winner) won the Rosehill Handicap, one mile, three furlongs, in 2:23½ (fourth race), and The Grafter won the sixth race, one mile, in 1:45¼ with 145 pounds up, and both races were won easing up.

WALTER B. JENNINGS, who is training fourteen Rancho del Paso horses, is much pleased with the California racing. It is his first trip to the Golden State, though he had promised himself the journey long, long ago. The horses in his charge will be raced under the name of "W. B. Jennings & Co." He has Trolley, Tripping, Maxello, Maxio, Ping and Attainment in the bunch he will ship to Ingleside.

ORVILLE ALPLEBY deserves to be given a place in the front part of the dry wits' gallery, along with Marty Bergen and "Pop" Weaver. He was saluted yesterday by a scribe: "How are they coming, Orville?" "Oh, three-one—one race in three years." "I didn't see you at the sale the other night, Orville." "No," said the San Jose turfman, "I would have been over to buy three or four if I could have raised ferry fare."

AT NASHVILLE, Tenn., they had a little gun work lately on account of a run up in a selling race. Serf, belonging to the Short Bros., won a mile selling race, when he was boosted $100 by C. C. McCafferty. After the racing was over, McCafferty and one of the Short Brothers got into an argument over the run up. McCafferty then drew his gun and shot at him. There was plenty of excitement, but a bad aim and consequently no damage to anyone.

NEW YORK, November 22.—At the American Horae Show to day a lot of horses belonging to John S. Bratton of St. Louis were sold at auction. Some of the horses were prize-winners. The best prices realized were: Cadet and Rufus, five-year-olds, George Watson, England, $10,000; Governor Brown, br. g., six-year-old, George Watson, England, $1,500; Pride and Caprice, ch. m., five and six-year-old, R. Martin, New York, $1,500.

IN a review of racing for 1897 the New York Sun places Hamburg as the greatest two-year-old colt of the year. Of the filly division of that age Cleophus comes first, and the Deer Lodge filly, Trolley, by imp. Martenhurst, recently sold by Mr. S. E. Larabie to J. B. Haggin, is well up in the front rank. Ornament is given the palm for the three-year-olds, with The Friar second, Voter and Rensselaer next in order. The best four-year-old is not named, but this was undoubtedly Ben Holliday.

CHARLEY MURRAY, who so successfully campaigned the race mare, Lady Hurst, through the Montana circuit this season, was ruled off the turf Tuesday by the judges for that mare's poor display in last Saturday's race. The jockey, McDonald, was exonerated. We are sorry to hear of Murry being thus disciplined, for he is a young man that was fast making a name for himself as a trainer. We trust no snap judgment has been taken, as it is a serious thing to rule a person off for life.

THE great race horse Gilead was sold in the Occidental Horse Exchange last night. This horse beat Rey El Santa Anita and other cracks at a mile in 1:40½ and won the Thornton Stakes, four miles, in 7:32½, track muddy. This was the greatest run on record, considering the track was nearly if not quite four seconds slow to the mile. Outside of Gilead's race horse qualifications, he is a glorious individual, and from a wonderful racing family, being by the mighty St. Saviour from Mistake by Wildidle; second dam the turf queen Katy Pease, by Planet.

ST. LOUIS, November 19.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon a raid was made on the poolrooms of the city by the police. The employes of all but one poolroom, the Brooklyn, were taken to the police station and imprisoned. The Brooklyn telegraphs bets out of the city, and for that reason was exempt. The others were raided as common gambling houses. The prisoners will be held in the "hold-over" for twenty-four hours and released, and the city officials say this manner of raiding and imprisonment for a day will be continued until the poolrooms close. It is not the intention to prosecute the poolrooms, but simply to force them to quit the city.

THIRTY-FIVE horsemen met in secret session at the Baldwin Hotel last night. The object of the meeting was the formation of a horsemen's protective association. A temporary organization was effected by the election of Charles Boots as president and John Atkin as secretary. Three hundred horses were represented at the meeting. The policy of the California Horsemen's Association will be made public after the meeting which is to be held to-night. Judging by the stand taken by President Tom Williams, it looks as if there will be some trouble in the near future in local turf circles. It is understood the turfmen want no guaranteed stakes, but to know just how much money is added to stakes.

DR. HAYGARD, who is the veterinary surgeon on Marcus Daly's Montana stock farms, was a notable visitor to Oakland races Tuesday. He brought down from Montana to Rancho del Paso the following: Imp. Butte, imp. Gwendoline (by St. Simon), Glorian, the Woodford filly, Briar Sweet and Bendoran. Imp. Butte will be mated with some of the choicest mares at Rancho del Paso and Gwendoline will be bred to one of the crack stallions at the same ranch. Glorian (by Sir Modred—Glorianne) is a two-year-old, Briar Sweet (by Sir Modred—Sweet Briar), a two-year-old sister to Dr. Hasbrouck. Bendoran (by Sir Modred—imp. Oran) is two years old and the Woodford filly (by Salvator—Miss Woodford) is an own sister to Sallie Woodford.

TURNEY BROS., owners of Dr. Catlett and other horses, have been banished by the Washington Jockey Club. The firm is a clean one in Western turf action and has asked for a thorough investigation. When Dr. Catlett was beaten, a bogus telegram, signed C. Fieischman, was received by bookmaker Sol Lichtenstein, asking him to bet $1,000 on the horse. The order was executed and did much to cause the trouble. Of course the fraud of telegraphy should be run down. The owners of Dr. Catlett declare that they know nothing about it. It is almost certain they do not. But outside the mere fraud about the order and general turf morality the Washington Jockey Club, a member of the Jockey Club, has no cognizance of the betting side to the race.—Daily Racing Form.

LONDON, November 19.—The race for the Derby Cup was won by Mr. Fairie's three-year-old colt Eager at the Derby meeting to-day. This race is of 2000 sovereigns. Seventeen horses ran the straight mile, including Theobald's four-year old bay colt Phoebus, ridden by Tod Sloan. The Friary Nursery stake was won by Captain Beswicke's Ocean Rover, with Sloan up. This race is a handicap of 200 sovereigns. Nineteen horses ran, five furlongs straight. The Lorillard-Beresford stable's three-year-old Draco, ridden by Sloan, won the Quarndon plate of 160 sovereigns for three-year-olds and up. Six horses ran over the straight mile.

WILLIAM SPARLING writes: "In reading over 'Hidalgo's letter lately where he says the Melbourne Cup winner, Gaulus (Gozo—Industry) is the first from a Musket mare to win a large stake, I would wish to remind him that Amberite, a recent winner at Kempton Park (England) is by Ayrshire out of Cartridge by Musket, who was bred in New Zealand and imported to England. 'Hidalgo' also makes a mistake in writing that Hova never won a race of greater value than $2,500 of our money, for if our memory serves us right Hova won the Australian Cup, two and one-quart r miles, $7,500 added money to a sweepstakes. Projectile, who he also lost track of, has won a number of high-class races, including the A. J. C. Metropolitan Stakes, one and one-half miles, $5,000 added money to a sweepstake, so instead of Gaulus being the first produce of a Musket mare to win a stake race there are many, and we could find many more if time would permit."

WE noticed out at Ingleside last Sunday several of last year's campaigners who have returned to renew their struggles for equine supremacy, notable among them being Thornhill, who looks remarkably well after a long rest and slight stud duties at Sacramento. He has been fired and blistered on the leg that failed him in the four-mile race last year, and if he will stand a preparation "The Duke" will astonish some of the owners of long-distance nags with him. Another good one over the route is Rey Del Bandidos, who also looks well after a long rest at Sacramento. He also has been fired and blistered, and we would like to see him strip fit and well again, as he would push in front of many good ones at the end of a severe run race. Another old warrior, Red Glenn, who has been rusticating in the green alfalfa pasture all summer, has also made his appearance at Ingleside, looks hale and hearty, and may prove a snag in some well planned coup this winter.

EUGENE LEIGH and Tom Welch, the clever Jerseyman who is to train for Mr. Chas. Fleischmann of Cincinnatti, are in town. Mr. Welch is best known through Climax and Dolando. His work will be in the East next season, where the Fleischmann stable will race. A lot of horses will be added to the ssable before the season of 1898 opens. Tod Sloan is under contract to ride the Fleischmann horses next season. A lot of new material is likely to be gathered at the coming sales at Lexington. Leigh, as usual, is frank of speech. "La Belle and its stock goes without reserve," said he. "Everything is to be sold. I'll race a stable next season. It will be made up of the best horses I can gather. I should like to keep Bramble, but am going to get out of breeding. The old horse will not bring what he is worth. So far I have formed no partnership with Mr. Gillock of Nashville, as is reported. My high opinion of Bramble is natural. No one estimates him as highly as I do. I know him best." Both Leigh and Welch are keenly in favor of added money stakes as against the guaranteed plan.—Daily Racing Form.

IT was not till the last great two-year-old race of the season—the Dewhurst plate, decided a week ago last Friday—that Hawfinch, now conceded to be the best of his year in England of that age, made his debut. He is a grandly bred colt, being by Goldfinch—a son of Ormonde and Thistle, the dam of the great Common—his dam an inbred of Newminster mare by Edward the Confessor. He was bred by Mr. James Terry, a Hampshire miller, who also bred Woodlands, well known as a sire in this country. By his breeder he was leased for his racing career to John Porter of Kingsclere, the Duke of Westminster's trainer, who had charge during their racing career of both Ormonde and Goldfinch. The Dewhurst plate was his first appearance in public, and, not being considered ready for a race, he was allowed to start at the long price of 20 to 1. He won so impressively, however, from Prince Soltykoff's Ninus, and the Duke of Devonshire's pretty mare, Dieudonne, who were supposed to be the best two-year-olds in training, that he was at once installed favorite for the Derby, and it seems quite probable that he will follow in the footsteps of his near relative, Galtee More. Though since his arrival in this country Ormonde has never sired anything of the slightest account, yet Orme and Goldfinch, whom he begat in his first stud season, are two of the most successful young sires in the world. This shows what a lottery breeding is.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

SEVERAL days ago a San Francisco paper made the announcement that J. B. Haggin, the millionaire whose interests are represented in nearly every State in the Union, contemplated an early return to the turf, and that henceforth the Rancho del Paso, the greatest breeding farm in the world, would again compete for turf honors. The announcement on its face seemed to bear some evidence of truth, in the absence of contradiction, and the lovers of the sport of kings were elated at the prospect of Sacramento County's great breeding farm being represented in future turf events. The announcement was not based upon fact, however, for John Mackey, Superintendent of Racho del Paso, said that Mr. Haggin's colors would not be seen on any of the Bay tracks, or elsewhere. He said, further, that Mr. Haggin would adhere to his announced intention, made several years ago, that he would not engage actively in turf events in the future, but devote his time, so far as racing interests were to be considered, to the breeding of thoroughbred stock. The published statement that W. B. Jennings, who has been quoted as having said that he will manage and conduct a stable for Ranch del Paso, is without foundation in fact, says Mr. Mackey. Mr. Mackey will race Tripping and Trolley under Jennings' name, but Rancho del Paso's interests will not be represented by them, as these flyers are recent purchases by Mr. Mackey for himself. It is evident that Mr. Haggin does not propose to race any of his horses, and while it may be regretted in some quarters that his mind is firmly made up to adhere to his decision to conduct a breeding farm exclusively, there can be no doubt that the smaller owners will receive this announcement with delight.—Sacramento Record-Union.

Baby Racers From Royal Racing Families

The sale of the Oneonta Stud Farm yearlings at the Occidental Horse Exchange on the night of December 6th will be a notable one, beyond a doubt. No sale of baby racers has ever excited as much attention in California as this one, judging by the demand for catalogues, and, by the way, the ones for this sale are pronounced the handsomest ever issued in this part of the world.

There are twenty yearlings in this consignment, bred on the farm of the late Simeon G. Reed. The stallions represented are:

Imp. Duncombe, the great race horse that ran a mile in 1:37 1-5 over an English turf course. Four of Duncombe's get had won about $5,700 in "the tight little isle" this season, while in this country Spunwell and Brier Hill, by their good wins, added to his reputation as a sire of race horses.

Tenny, the great race horse that won nearly $92,000 during his turf career and who is now the sire of David Tenny, Empress Josephine, Miss Tenny, and other good ones. David Tenny ran a mile twice in 1:40 this season within two weeks' time.

Darriwell, a young and very handsome son of imp. Darebin and Ventura (sister to Kentucky Derby winner Ben Ali.)

Verano, a grand race horse by Grinstead from Jenny D., by imp. Gleneig.

Emperor of Norfolk, best two and three-year-old in America, a brother to El Rio Rey and half brother to Y bien, and sire of Rey del Carreres, Lady Bess, Rey del Salto, etc.

Imp. Kismet (son of Melton and Kisberina, by Kisber). Melton won the Derby and St. Leger, etc., and Kisber won the Derby. The second dam of Kismet, Palace, was by Macaroni, winner of the Derby.

Nomad, the great Wildidle horse that won 22 races in three seasons and $31,655.

Imp. Golden Garter (half-brother to the great Derby-winner Sanfoin, one of the best racehorses of his day in England), by Bend Or (winner of the Derby), out of Sanda, by Wenlock (winner of the St. Leger); second dam Stockwell(2,000 Guineas and St. Leger); third dam the Oaks winner, Lady Evelyn, by St. Leger-winner Don John; fourth dam, Industry (winner Oaks) by Priam (winner Derby), he by Emilius (Derby-winner).

Imp. Watercress (winner Prince of Wales Stakes, Amphion Plate, Hardwicke Stakes, Drayton High Handicap, etc.), by Springfield (best racehorse of his day) from Wharfdale, by Hermit, winner of the Derby and sire of St. Blaise.

The grandest looking youngster ever led into a sales ring is the bay colt by imp. Duncombe from Hymn of Praise (dam of Hallelujah), by Hyder Ali (sire of Spokane). He is a poem in horseflesh, and no one has yet been found to pick a single flaw in him.

The half-brother to El Moro (by imp. Golden Garter —Miss Pickwick) is a grand-looking chestnut colt, little behind the Hymn of Praise youngster.

The black colt by imp. Watercress—Everglade, by roquois, is a beautiful youngster and will race well to a certainty. He comes from the family of Pontiac, Pontico, Agenoria, Agility and Apology.

Another taking, resolute-looking youngster is the bay colt by imp. Duncombe—Crisalba, by imp. Sir Modred; second dam Columbine (sister to Inspector B., Getaway and Bella B.), by Enquirer.

Then there is a chestnut colt by Nomad out of Royal Purple, sister to the great Ludwig. It is seldom such a well-developed youngster is seen, and if he is not a race horse he belies his looks.

The black colt by imp. Duncombe from imp. Victress, by Goldsbrough, is a strong-looking fellow and will bring a good price. He is a half-brother to Victress, the good Jim Brown mare.

Others that will cause lively bidding are the bay filly by imp. Duncombe—Electric Light; br f by Fitz James —Alesia, by Darebin; b f by imp. Kismet—imp. Brierfoot; br f by Duncombe—imp. Eye Sweet and b c by Tenny—imp. Fun.

The California Breeders' and Owners' Protective Association.

The threatened war between the horsemen and the California Jockey Club has been averted, and it was effected through the turfmen keeping cool. Mr. Boots moved his horses from Oakland to Ingleside track on Tuesday last. This shows there was nothing in the rumor that the P. C. J. C. folks would not give him stalls for his horses. That course would have been unjust and undoubtedly have caused serious trouble, for Mr. Boots had no trouble of any description with the P. C. J. C. officials. We hoped the young turfman would smooth matters over and go on racing again at Oakland, but presume he feels that he has done no wrong, and therefore will not apologize. He has a grand string of racers, some forty-one in all, and in the lot are many high-class ones, hence it is to be deplored that his colors will not again be seen at Oakland. Whether the Elmwood horses will fill their C. J. C. stake engagements or not is not known at present.

The objects of the association, as we understand it, are principally the keeping of selling platers in their proper class, doing away with guaranteed stakes and seeing that members of the organization get a square deal from track officials when called up to explain unsatisfactory running of horses. Certainly no fault can be found, except possibly with the guaranteed stake part, and no trouble is anticipated, for the President and Vice-President of the C. J. C. have expressed themselves as being in full accord with any movement looking to the elevation of the turf and certainly desire to see that fairness is assured in all matters coming before them.

The Kerr Sale.

The inclement weather, the uncertain feeling in turf circles and the fact that most of the youngsters to be offered were by untried sires, doubtless kept many away from the Occidental Horse Exchange that would otherwise have been present. Everything considered, the sale was not at all bad, the average for eighteen head being about $170. The largest price was $500, paid by W. Murray, for Toluca, a chestnut filly by Nomad from Sweet, by Hanover. Rainier, a bay colt by Orizaba from Nadavis, by Hindoo, a Gilead on a small scale, was a cheap colt at $305. Amos White got him. Frank Farrar got the racy-looking bay filly by Apache—My Badge for $275, and she was a prize. The bargain of the sale was the brown Apache—Play Toy filly secured by James McManus for $300. The dam of this one is an own sister to Tournament. At $100 R. Stanley got a wonderful bargain in the chestnut colt by Rio Bravo—Irene. Gaston M. Ashe and Dan Honig were the principal buyers. A Chicago gentleman named P. Ryan bought Apache—Lina colt for $310. J. O. C. was purchased by Frank Farrar for $325, and he ought be worth several times this figure.

Auctioneer Fitch was in fine voice and worked exceedingly hard, but the money was not there, that was all.

Following are the details of the sale:

Bay filly, 1896, by imp. Calvados—Amanda; Gaston Ashe	$ 130
Oralbee, 1896, by Orizaba—Blondinette; Dan Honig	60

PROPERTY OF OTHER OWNERS.

J. O. C., ch g, by Apache; Sam Stein	$ 325
John Dare, two-year-old from Spreckels' Sale; Mr. O'Brien	2[illegible]

On Wednesday January 12th, it is the intention t hold a combination auction sale of trotters and pacers the Occidental Horse Exchange, to which consignment are solicited. Wm. Fitch, one of the best auctioneers i America, will wield the baton and with the facilities, i. e sales pavilion, thirty-two box stalls and over 150 singl stalls, a circular track to show horses either in sulk or by the side of a saddle horse, two newspapers (th daily and weekly Breeder and Sportsman) to devo column after column to the merits of the horses in thi sale, a printing office and competent writers to com pile and elaborate the pedigrees of the horses consigne there is no reason why this sale should not attract th attention of every lover of a good horse and every seek after a better class of horses in California. A numb of leading breeders have already consented to sen horses to this sale and in the next issue hope to have a extended list that will no doubt attract an immense a tendance. We believe in advertising and following th Eastern methods of getting people to sales. So far o efforts have been successful. At the Spreckels sale ov 1800 people were in attendance, and at the Kerr sal while the rain was falling, over 1200 were there. C Monday night, at the Winters-Reis sale, it is expecte 2000 people will be there if the weather is favorable. this crowd from the city attends a running horse sal what must we expect from a widely advertised sale trotting stock?

The success which has attended the sales of the Oc dental Horse Exchange is most encouraging. It sho that when horsemen and their friends have a suitab place to attends sales, a place where they can be as co fortable as in a theatre, they will buy. These sales a so popular that the vast audiences seem reluctant leave. The innovations introduced for the benefit those having catalogues and to help them jot down t prices of the horses sold without having to leave the seats to annoy their neighbors are highly recommende and with as good and entertaining an auctioneer as M Fitch everything goes along smoothly and witho friction. Last evening the pavilion and stalls were charge of Messrs. Killip & Co., who sold the Palo Al yearlings there. It is too late to get the results of th sale in this issue, but from the appearance and breedi of these youngsters we trust large prices were obtain

There are some grand youngsters in the A. Spreckels lot of twenty-one to be sold Decem ber 14 and the sires represented are imp. Watercress, Purye D., imp. Crighton, imp. Midlothian, (sire of Walter, &c.), and imp. Idalium. The yearlings a out of a grand lot of young mares, such racers as Bord Lassie, Patricia, Glitter, imp. Atossa, imp. Yarranab Folly, Annie Race and Dollie McCone having foals in th sale, which takes place at the Occidental Horse E change. The Watercresses will be eagerly sought aft for if substance, quality and racehorse ability counts, ought to make one of the grandest sires in America. T Puryear D. youngster is reported to be a fine look the Crightons a superior lot, you all know of the gr ability of the Midlothians, while the Idaliums are only good-lookers, but pretty sure to race.

In the death of Mr. John McCord the community l lost a most valued member. He has always been a ively engaged in business in this city and made frie wherever he went. He lived at Napa a few years the farm which he afterwards sold to Mr. A. Spreckels, and while there took a very deep interest the Napa Agricultural Society. He had a number good trotters and pacers and never shirked any dut that were assigned him in making the Napa fair a s cess. He was one of the best of neighbors, a true frie an ideal citizen, a loving husband and kind pare His home life was full of sunshine and his sudden pa ing away has thrown a dark shadow there that the sh of time will never pierce. To his brother, widow a children we extend our sympathy.

We regret to announce the death of John Rodge who for many years was first assistant under the l John A. Goldsmith for many years; and latterly he superintendent of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm. Rodgers was a painstaking horse trainer and driver had hosts of friends in this State. His death was cau by consumption. He left a widow and five children mourn his loss.

The annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Trot Horse Breeders' Association will take place in this the first Monday in December. A large attendanc expected.

KENDAL headed the list of winning English stallions up to October 23d, with £25,842 to his credit, most of the sum being earned by Galtee More. St. Simon stands second, with £22,002, then follows Ayrshire, £16,318; Donovan, £12,556; the dead Galopin, £12,556. The Sailor Prince, who has been in America for several years, stands fourteenth, with four winners of £6,936. Goldfinch, one of the Rancho del Paso stallions, stands twenty-second, with two winners of £4,750, a very comfortable sum for such a small number of representatives to win. Imp. Laureate got six winners of £2,714. Imp. Duncombe (now at Oneonta Stud Farm, Pasadena) got four winners of eight races and £1,151. The first twenty-two horses on the list trace to Eclipse in the male line and the get of the first six horses all won over £10,000.

THE breeders of California should attend the Reis sale next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange, also the turfmen. On that date the great mare Sunlit will be sold and her Morello foal, Morinel, who won such a game race last Wednesday, at Oakland. Mr. Reis gave $2,000 for Sunlit, and since that time she has foaled a Morello colt (which is to be sold with the mare) and is safely in foal to the great Musket horse, Artillery. Then there is the famous Tyrant mare, Charmion, winner of $18,405 on the turf, three Morello yearlings and one by Sir Reel, besides several grand broodmares of note and two and three-year-olds bred in the purple. In another portion of the paper will be found excellent pictures of three of the yearlings. The Morellos are more than useful.

THE Macdonough catalogue is out, and horsemen are sure to bid lively for the baby racers in this lot to be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange on Monday night, December 20th. All the yearlings (eleven) are by St. Carlo and from some of the grandest-bred mares on earth. Then there are eight brood mares to be offered, all bred in the purple and nearly all mothers of winners. On the list we noted Eliza (dam of the $12,500 colt, Monowai), Mercedes (dam of Therese), imp. Mirandola and a two-year-old filly from her by St. Carlo, also Bud by Glenmore and Princess Idle (sister to Prince's First), by Prince of Norfolk from Lizzie Idle, by Wildidle. The yearlings in the Macdonough consignment are of superb appearance as well as being own brothers or sisters to good winners.

IT is to the interest of every farmer in California to purchase a good thoroughbred broodmare. It is only a question of a few years until there will be a great demand for California-bred thoroughbreds from Japan, China, Canada, Mexico and Central America, besides it costs little to rear them. A number of royally bred matrons in foal to famous sires will be sold from this time on in San Francisco and they will go cheap. These opportunities should not be overlooked by our stock-breeders.

THERE is talk of repairing Market street from the ferries to Valencia street. The property owners along this badly paved thoroughfare are among the richest in San Francisco, but they do not seem anxious to spend one dollar for making this street as handsome as any to be seen in Oakland, San Jose, Stockton or Los Angeles. All heavy freighting could be relegated to Mission street and Market street be made one of the best and cleanest streets in this city.

THERE will be a splendid opportunity for seekers after first-class trotting stock to get some excellent youngsters at the big closing out sale at the Pleasanton Stock Farm next Tuesday. Messrs. Killip and Co. will conduct the sale. Besides the horses there will be a number of fine sulkies, jogging carts, harnesses, robes, etc., sold. Remember the sale takes place next Tuesday, November 30th.

THE recent sales of trotting horses in the East prove that the bottom of the trotting horse industry is being rapidly restored to its former usefulness. In fact it is mended, and all horse values therein are rising.

ALLEN FARM, Pittsburg, Mass, has sold to W. E. Nash, of Westfield, Mass., an exceptionally well bred and fast pacing colt in Aryan, 28886, chestnut colt, one year, by Lancelot, 2:23; dam Lindora Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; second dam Rosetta, by the Moor, 870; third dam, Cecil Clark, by Clark Chief, 89; fourth dam thoroughbred mare, by Captain Beard, etc. Lenora Wilkes is the dam of Mephisto, 2:17¾, and Gotha, 2:22; and in the two-year-old Kakichi, by Kremlin, 2:07¾, and this yearling, Aryan, she has two more very fast ones.

the members by letter or circular I should have received one and as other members of the association are in the same situation there is little chance of such notices having been sent.

As the date of the opening of the meeting is absolutely fixed by the constitution, were the hour and place known the announcement could be made. A telephone request from this office that President Heald should fix the place and hour of meeting did not elicit further response than the answer that Mr. Heald was not in, but if he was in the city the request would be make known to him.

The inteiligence may be received before the paper goes to press and then, of course, it will appear in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of to day, Saturday.

LODI-NORFOLK RACES.—The account of the Norfolk Lodi race in the BBEEDER AND SPORTSMAN of last Saturday, copied from Wilkes Spirit of the Times, was taken from the San Francisco Bulletin, the last sentence being an appended note by "Ed. Wilkes Spirit," and the telegram that led to it in error if my information be correct.

Norfolk was not out of condition, the cause of Mr. Winters paying forfeit being quite different from lack of "order" in his horse.

The scene of contest was changed, September 18, 1865. Norfolk beat Lodi, heats of two miles, 3:37 2-5, 3:38½ at Sacramento, and on September 23d, of the same year and same course again beat Lodi, heats of three miles in 5:27½, 5:29½.

"A PERFECT START."—If ever a start was entitled to be thus classed it was that for the Opening Day Handicap at Emeryville. Ten horses to get off, and that from the stand, where, as a rule, that is the most troublesome of all the points to commence a race, owing to the increased excitement from the near presence of the crowd. Even on as wide a racecourse as that of the California Jockey Club there is not much spare room when a half score of eager jockeys and anxious horses are all striving for the best of the send off, the proximity of the turn intensifying the desire to secure the advantage. Nine of the horses so nearly "level" that it was troublesome to say which nose was in front, and the other within a neck or so on an equality when the barrier flew up.

Some claim that absolute perfection is unattainable on this lower world, and under a strict construction of the term it may be that with ten horses to handle it is an impossibility to get them off exactly together. Granting that tecnically the claim is correct, when one who has seen horses started in all kind of races for half a century, by starters who rank at the very top of the profession, never saw that number of horses get so even a start before, it is fairly demonstrated that it was a perfect start. And manifestly fair to claim that without the "gate" it would be so nearly impossible to send so big a field away as closely together as in that race that the chances are more than a million to one against the accomplishment. From the time I first saw Mr. Ferguson handle the flag on the Bay District course I rated him a No. 1, and have seen no reason to change the estimate. "Bad starts," too, in those many years he has held the trying position, but the good so far predominoting that he is still fully entitled to the "pride of place."

In the long and somewhat hot controversy, over recall or no recall, when the gate is used, there have been times when it seemed as though the gate and the recall would not assimilate, especially when jockeys were permitted to take a running start, but have now come to a firm conclusion that it is far preferable to have gate and recall than go back to the old practices. And yet have an abidlng faith implied confidence that the recall is not necessary.

Australiasian Notes.

At the V. A. T. C. Caulfield meeting in Australia last month, the produce of those three celebrated antagonists in racing contests—Carbine, Abercorn and Trenton—divided winning honors, scoring twice each. On the first day, Coil, four years, 133 pounds, by Abercorn—Copra, won the weight for age stakes, one and one-eighth miles, $1,000 added, beating a field of fourteen horses. The same day another brother to the above, (Cocos), by Abercorn—Copra, two years, won the Debutant Stakes, one-half mile, $5,000 added, beating a field of nineteen horses. On the second day Carbinier, three years, by Carbine—Barley, won the maiden stakes, one mile, $575 added money, beating a field of nine horses. The same day Amberite, three years (winner of the A. J. C. Derby), by Carbine—Duenna, won the Caulfield Cup, one and one-half miles, of $12,500 added money, beating a field of twenty-five horses. The winner carried 119 pounds and won easily in 2:37. On the first day, Aurum, three years, by Trenton—Aura, won the Caulfield Guineas, one mile, $2,500 added money, beating a field of five horses. On the second day Symmetry, by Trenton—Buttercup, won the Nursery Handicap $1,000, from a field of twenty-four horses.

Tony, a twelve-hand high pony in India, has won 140 races in nine years—quite a record.

Raven's Plume, by Carbine, won the Warwick Farm (N. S. W.) handicap on October 2d, and Spring Handicap at Wallsend (N. S. W.), September 25th.

Matt Harris, the rider of Amberite in the Caulfield Cup, was laid $5,000 to win by the stable

The hurdle race at Caulfield, of $1,000, was won by Murdock, six years, 143 pounds, two miles over 3 feet 6 inches high hurdles. Time, 3:40.

Gaulus, by Gozo—Industry; won the Rosehill (N. S. W.), October, handicap, one mile and three furlongs, in 2:23½, winning easily by six lengths. Gaulus won the Melbourne Cup soon after this.

From our Australian exchanges we notice Foulshot's get are showing up well. At the Wanganui (N. Z.) spring meeting, Pokomoke won a hurdle handicap, one and one-half miles, with 151 pounds up. At North Otago (N. Z.) Aldershot, by Foulshot, won a five-eighths mile race with 126 pounds up. The same day Cannon Shot, by Artillery, won a flying handicap, six furlongs, with 118 pounds up. On the next day Aldershot, by Foulshot, won the seventh race, one-half mile, and then saddled up in the eighth race and ran second.

Quiver, the great Trenton mare that ran a dead heat with Wallace in the V. R. C. Champion Stakes, three miles, establishing a world's record of 5:23½, recently dropped dead in India while at exercise.

"Ranger" in the Sporting and Dramatic News writes:—I have often wondered why it is always thought necessary in this country to run horses in plates. I am quite sure that every horse would run faster without them, and equally certain that it would do their feet no harm. In Australia they always run barefooted, except when the ground is slippery; in many other countries they do the same, and I am quite sure that, with the ground like it is now, most horses would run better, and jar their feet and legs less, if they ran without anything on their feet. The only difficulty would be, of course, in taking them about the country and along roads, but this might be overcome somehow. (The difficulty could be overcome by having them shod as at present, the plates being removed as in the colonies just before a race.) I remember that almost the only occasion on which Marden consented to win a race, after his juvenile days, was when he ran without his plates. This subject has been brought to my mind by the fact that when Merman won the Lewes Handicap the other day, he ran as he had been used to in Australia, without anything on his feet. He had such a slight weight to carry that he would probably have won just the same, however he had been shod, but still the fact remains that he was relieved of his plates and this may have been a hint to him that he was expected to win this time. In fact it is quite possible that he never thinks real business is meant unless his feet are bare.

As far as I can glean, writes "Ribbleden" in the Australasian, the figure system as applied to the breeding of thoroughbreds does not seem to meet with much favour in New South Wales. A few worship it as a fetish, but practical breeders and racing men 'll none of it. Mr. Harry Dawson said: "Except as a reference, the system is not worth tuppence," and then he told me the story of how Light Artillery was produced. When the manager of the Hobartville stud proposed to mate Bengal Light with Trenton, Mr. Bruce Lowe, the author of the system exclaimed, "What! Why, you will get a horse that can neither gallop nor stay!" but the result of the union was Light Artillery, who could both stay and go fast. If you put a draught horse to a No. 3 mare the produce is still a No. 3, and, as Mr. Dawson says, "What is the good of that!" The system has been used at the Tocal stud for many years, but the stud has not met with more success than an ordinary stud. To put Nos. so and so together is all very well, and it is the desire of all breeders to produce a racehorse; but figures or no figures, nature will not be coerced, and is liable to play, and does play, sad pranks with breeders' theories.

J. Cameron, the ex-New Zealand jockey now riding in Victoria, has a peculiar record. Apart from having been mixed up in a large number of accidents, he has ridden no fewer than nine horses that have been killed in jumping races.

Pulling a racehorse is, in the eyes of the Moonee Valley stewards (says The Leader), a greater crime than an act which they consider endangers the life and limbs of jockeys. For stopping Confusion his rider and trainer got twelve months, while Underwood only received half that term for bringing down four horses, killing one (Blitz), and rendering two jockeys (Cameron and Glennon) hors de combat. There is neither rhyme, reason, nor logic in the two decisions.

The capture of the Cesarewitch by Merman marks the most important victory yet achieved by a colonial-bred horse in England; while success over the long and tiring course will serve to emphasize what has been asserted in many quarters viz, that the colonial horses have the stamina which to a great extent is lacking in the present generation of thoroughbreds at home. When Merman won the Lewes Handicap in August last he was very favorably regarded, and as he was admittedly not then nearly at his best, further and more important successes were predicted for him. Yet if no great surprise would be occasioned at the win of the son of Grand Flaneur, it is distinctly a feather in his cap to have carried off the chiefest of the back end handicaps. Merman ran in last year's Caulfield Cup, and though he lost considerable ground at the start finished close up fourth, his performance being a very meritious one. On Melbourne Cup Day he won the Yan Yean Stakes, and his last race in Australia was in the Williamstown Cup, one mile and three furlongs, which he won under 9st 4lb, Bloodshot with 8st 12 lb being the favourite. Merman's dam Seaweed, got in England was foaled in New South Wales, her sire being Coltness, and her dam Surf by Lifeboat. The Rush, the runner-up in the Cesarewitch, has been a good performer, and gained the reputation of a stayer by winning the Chester Cup last season. Carlton Grange, the third, was second to Merman when he won his first race in England, and St. Bris, the fourth, was the hero of the Cesarewitch last year.

At Johannesburg, South Africa, lately there passed through the Totalisator in one day's racing, the sum of $291,580; no such a bad day's taking for a South African mining town.

At the Egmont Hunt Club races, New Zealand, Senvier, br g, by Barney Schreiber's Foulshot, dam Jess, won Ladies' Bracelet, two miles with 173 pounds up. After running second in the Hunt Club Handicap, earlier in the same afternoon, carrying 168 pounds over two miles and one half.

The recent successes of Lochiel's progeny in Australia recalled to my mind a controversy that went on in England, and which I may say very much interested me, about the time I first commenced writing regularly on sporting matters. The merits of Prince Charlie, the prince of the T. Y. C. so repeatedly referred to as the greatest miler England had ever seen, was the subject to which some of the leading sporting writers of the time devoted no end of space. The majority appeared to think the son of the "mighty Blair," as Blair Athol, "the best horse in the world," was called, was only a miler, and so expressed themselves, but one writer in particular, "Blinkhoolie," author of the sporting novel "Blair Athol," fought many a pen battle with the detractors of Lochiel's sire, and in answer to "Inquirer," a scribe who had proclaimed Prince Charlie wanting in staying power he said of the writer: "Seriously he is laboring under a great delusion is he considers Prince Charlie's only merit consists in having an immense turn of speed. No doubt he has an immense turn of speed, but his chief merit consists of having immense stamina, which in a measure is cancelled by his wind. By his great stamina alone he succeeded in compassing courses longer by far than ninety-nine roarers out of one hundred could go * * * It was immossible to place him injudiciously, for I don't believe any one ever knew how good he was." "Blinkhoolie" then concluded with what he was pleased to call some "lame and halt" lines, of which the following may be quoted:

"No tainted blood courses in Charlie's veins,
His failing is his own, and his remains
That fault, that accident, in evil day
To him it came, with him alone 'twill stay.
Give but one son—the image of his sire—
Without a fault, and will then 'enquire'?"

These lines were penned at that time Prince Charlie retired to the stud in answer to a letter which appeared in the Sporting Gazette setting forth that it would be a mistake to breed from such a horse on account of his roaring propensity. How many roarers have there been from this horse? If any it would be interesting to know. None of the Lochiels have been troubled in the same way.

Timely Suggestions to Trotting-Horse Men.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—The fact that the trotting races, as conducted at the present time, fail to satisfy the public, is proven by the small attendance that has marked the "meetings" during the past two or three years. Those meetings which in former years were patronized by thousands, are now attended by hundreds. Where thousands of dollars passed through the "pool box," hundreds are wagered to-day.

Such is the present condition of affairs and I think it behooves those financially interested in the trotter to see what is the trouble, and after locating it, try to remedy the matter in such a way that the general public will once more turn out to see the trotter and pacer contest for the money.

What has brought about the present condition of affairs? In reply to this question I would say, the trotting horse men alone are responsible. In place of watching the demands of the public, they have continued in the beaten path made twenty-five or thirty years ago, and the consequence is simply this, the trotter has been "lost in the shuffle."

In almost every line of sport, rules have been altered to meet the ever-changing demands of the public. In other words, those at the head of the other branches of amusement have tried to keep abreast of the times, and they are awarded with the patronage of the public.

In horse racing, the same as in every thing else, the people want a quick, short and decisive "run for the money." In proof of this look at the immense success of the "runners" on this coast. No one will contend that the runner furnishes any better contest, from a spectator's standpoint. Why is it then the runners have "the call" with the public who will not attend a trotting race. Simply because the one who desires "to play his money" can do so and know the result of his wager in a few minutes; the races are not long drawn out affairs and as they are over in a short time; the public does not have much time to think of a "job" having been "put up."

Something must be done for the trotter and done at once.

To bring the public back to patronize the sport, I would suggest:

First:—Make the races best "two in three."

Second:—Have the different associations employ competent judges and starter.

Third:—Give mile dashes for the fast classes, occasionally.

Fourth:—Close the entries a week before the races are to take place in the different cities.

If these suggestions are followed, races will be decided quicker, the evil of "laying up heats" will be lessened, faster time will be made, horses will be able to start in two races a week (thereby increasing their earning capacity), and the horses competing will be compelled to trot in the races where they belong, thereby doing away with one-sided contests. Very truly yours,

"San Jose."

That Wild Ride of Mathewson's.

Many indeed are the stories told of narrow escapes from death along the old western stage routes in the early pioneer days; and considering the condition of the roads or rather the practical non-existence of roads, the wonder is that more people were not killed. The following account of a "wild ride" is told by E. K. Rountree in a recent number of the Overland Monthly, is vouched for as true, and as such it shows some, at least, of the perils of these bygone times and modes of traveling.

In May, 1857, John Mathewson, a pioneer in hydraulic mining, to whom belongs the credit of building the first water derrick in California, had both legs broken while erecting a derrick at Washington, on the north fork of the Yuba river, twenty-five miles north of Nevada City. He was taken out from the ruins of the derrick and word sent to Nevada City for an ambulance. O. S. Olin was the driver of the daily stage between Washington and Nevada City, and he at once placed a bed in the Concord coach and drove over from Nevada City. Next morning the injured man was tenderly placed in the coach and made as comfortable as possible. At the Cold Spring House, six miles from town, Olin pulled up to water his horses, winding the ribbons around the brake before leaving the box. A dog ran a drove of hogs under the horses' feet, and in a flash the spirited animals were tearing down the ridge.

Some one at Nevada City happened to be scanning the road through a field glass and suddenly shouted, "The stage is coming lickety switch an' Olin ain't on the box!" The news spread through the town like wild-fire and in an incredibly short time the whole town turned out and all who had field glasses were anxiously watching the swaying stage in its mad career along the ridge towards the steep grade leading into town. It was still some four miles distant. What would happen at the grade? Men blanched at the thought of the certain death to the passengers within the coach. The excitement was intense. Everyone knew that Mathewson, helpless and weak, lay inside at the mercy of the four blooded animals. The wheelers especially were a splendid pair of mettlesome stallions, and the leaders carefully selected. No power on earth could have stopped them on that ridge. Down the grade they plunged. The speed was terrific. Strong men turned away in horror, expecting from moment to moment that the stage would go crashing into the canon below. Half the distance towards town had been accomplished in safety when a hoarse cry broke from the watching multitude, "The stump! the bowlder!" Two miles from town the stage road led between a stump on the lower side and a bowlder on the upper side of the grade.

With long plunging strides the animals approached this danger point. The crowd was too horrified to shout. Only a stifled groan, more eloquent than words, could have been heard. "A few rods more and God help poor Mathewson," reverently murmured a grizzled miner, as the tears flowed down his wrinkled face. Many a hard looking but tender hearted man near him murmured, "Amen." Gaining increased momentum at every bound, the stage ran into a cloud of dust just before reaching the stump and boulder. Awed, pallid upturned faces gazed with fascinated intentness at that little cloud of dust. "They've done it," whispered a man in front, with eyes still glued to his glass. With only fourteen inches to spare on either side of the stage it had passed through in safety. But the danger was not yet over. The steepest and roughest part of the road was yet to come. As the stage reached town the people gave way on either side, none dreaming of trying to stop the foam covered stallions in their wild run. Along Coyote street they whirled, then making a flat-iron turn entered Main; still on they dashed, wheeling into Commercial, then up into Pine and still at full speed to Broad, for the destination of the stage in front of the National or Pierson's Hotel in the middle of the block.

Arthur Hagadorn, the owner of the stage line, was standing, pale with excitement, close to where the stage usually reined in. None can ever know how it came about, but at the sight of the familiar figure the four intelligent animals slowed up and came to a stop within a foot of where they would have been driven had Olin been on the box. Stepping up to the leading horse Hagadorn stroked his wet neck and said, "Noble fellow, you've done your last day's work." Matthewson was unhurt, and feebly thanked friends and acquaintances who crowded around the stage to congratulate him on his miraculous escape from death. Such is the record of one of the wildest stage rides ever taken by man.

Who Has Capped Hock?

C. C. Smith, Treasurer of Lake County, Ind. writes, "I have cured a capped hock with one bottle of Quinn's Ointment. It is the best thing I have ever used." A. C. Dixon of Kilbourn, Wis., also writes, "Please send one bottle Quinn's Ointment; this is the third bottle. It gives good satisfaction in removing Curbs and thoroughpin."

Horsemen who desire a reliable remedy for removing Curbs, Splints, Spavins, Windpuffs, and all bunches should try Quinn's Ointment. Price $1.50 per package. If you cannot obtain from druggist or dealer, address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y. For sale in San Francisco by Messrs. J. A. McKerron and J. O'Kane.

The Montana Stakes.

Manager Ed A. Tipton of the Butte and Anaconda race tracks was in Butte yesterday and announced the dates and stakes for next year's meetings in the two cities. There will be 58 days of racing at the two places, 31 days in Butte and 27 in Anaconda. The dates for Butte will be from Saturday, July 2, to Saturday, Aug. 6; and Anaconda from Thursday, Aug. 11, to Saturday, Sept. 10.

It will be observed that the races next year will start off in Butte, Mr. Tipton believing that that arrangement will give more general satisfaction. He also makes the important and positive announcement that there will be no harness races. The people of Butte and Anaconda want running races exclusively, and Mr. Tipton will yield to the popular demand. Besides, in view of the experience of last season and former years, harness races are far less satisfactory than runs. A total of 17 stakes for the two meetings have been announced, aggregating $21,000. Others will also be added. The stakes are as follows:

The Montana Derby, $2,500—For three-year-olds (foals of 1895). Entrance $15, $100 additional to start. Guaranteed value $2,500, of which $350 to second and $150 to third. Colts to carry 122 pounds; geldings (at time of starting), 119 pounds; fillies,117 pounds. Those that have not won a three-year-old race worth $1,000 allowed five pounds; maidens, ten pounds. To be run at Butte, Saturday, July 2. One mile and a quarter.

The Daly Stakes, $2,000—For two-year-olds (foals of 1895) Entrance $10, $75 additional to start. Guaranteed value, $2,000, of which $300 to second and $200 to third. Colts to carry 122 pounds; geldings (at time of starting), 119 pounds; fillies, 117 pounds, the winner of the Montana Derby to carry 5 pounds extra. Those who have not won a three-year-old race worth $1,000 allowed 7 pounds; maidens, 10 pounds; maidens beaten three times at Butte, 12 pounds. To be run on first day of meeting at Anaconda. One mile and an eighth.

The Silver City Handicap, $1,500—A handicap for 3-year olds and upwards. Entrance $10, $50 additional for horses not declared by 3 P. M., Saturday, July 2. Guaranteed value, $1,500 of which $250 to second and $150 to third. Weights to be announced Thursday, June 30. Winners after weights are announced to carry 5 pounds' penalty. To be run at Butte, Monday, July 4. One mile and a quarter.

The Copper City Handicap, $1,500—A handicap for 3-year-olds and upwards. Entrance $15, $50 additional for horses not declared by 5 P. M. of the day before the race. Guaranteed value $1,500 of which $250 to second and $150 to third. Weights to be announced three days before the race. Winners after weights are announced to carry 5 pounds' penalty. To be run at Anaconda. One mile and a quarter.

The Butte Selling Stakes, $1,000—For all ages. Entrance $10, $30 additional to start. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. The winner to be sold at auction for $2,000. If for less, 1 pound allowed for each $250 to $1,500; then 1 pound for each $100 to $500. Starters, with selling price, to be made through entry box at the hour for closing on day preceding the races To be run at Butte. Seven furlongs.

The Ravalli Selling Stakes, $1,000—For three-year-olds. Entrance $10, $50 additional to start. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Winners to be sold at auction for $2,000. If entered to be sold for $1 500 to carry 115 pounds; if for $1,000, 108 pounds; if for $500, 100 pounds. Sex allowances. Winners after the closing of this stake of three races of any value or of one worth $1 000 to carry five pounds extra; of five or any value or one worth $2,000, seven pounds extra. Starters, with selling price, to be named through entry box at the hour for closing on day before the race. One mile.

The Bitter Root Stakes, $1,000—For two-year-olds. Entrance $10, $30 additional to start. Guaranteed value $1,000 of which $200 to second and $100 to third. To be run at Butte, Monday, July 4th. Four furlongs.

The Silver Bow Stakes, 1,000—For two-year-olds. Entrance $10, $30 additional to start. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Winners of a stake race of the value of $1,000 to carry three pounds extra; two of any value, or one of $2,000, seven pounds extra. Maidens allowed three pounds; beaten maidens, five pounds. Those that have started twice and have not been placed, seven pounds. To be run at Butte. Four and one-half furlongs.

The Northwestern Handicap, $1,000—A handicap for two-year-olds. Entrance $10, $30 additional for horses not declared by 5 P. M. of day before the race. Guaranteed value $5,00, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Weights to be announced two days before race. Winners after weights are announced to carry five pounds penalty. Starters after weights are announced, that fail to run one-two-three, allowed five pounds. To be run at Butte. Five and one-half furlongs.

The Deer Lodge Stakes, $1,000—For two-year-olds. Entrance $10, $30 additional to start. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Winners of a stake race of the value of $1,000 to carry three pounds extra; two of any value, five pounds; those that have started and not been placed allowed seven pounds; those that have started twice at the Anaconda and Butte meetings and not been placed allowed ten pounds. To be run at Anaconda. Five furlongs.

The Ogden Stakes, $1,000—For two-year-olds. Entrance $10, $30 additional for starters. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third horse. Winners of a stake, or winners of two races of any value, three pounds extra; of three races, five pounds extra. Maidens allowed five pounds; beaten maidens, eight pounds; maidens that have started at the Butte and Anaconda meetings and have not been placed, ten pounds. To be run at Anaconda. Five and one-half furlongs.

The Yellowstone Handicap, $1,000—A handicap for two-year-olds and three-year-olds (foals of 1896 and 1895). Entrance $10, $30 additional for horses not declared by 5 P. M. the day before the race. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Weights to be announced two days before the race. Winners after weights are announced to carry five pounds penalty. To be run at Butte. Six furlongs.

The West Side Handicap, $1,000—A handicap for all ages. Entrance $10, $30 additional for horses not declared by 5 P. M. of the day before the race. Winners after weights are announced to carry five pounds penalty. To be run at Butte. One and one-eighth miles.

The Anaconda Handicap, $1,000—A handicap for all ages. Entrance $10, $30 additional for horses not declared by 5 A. M. of the day before the race. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Weights to be announced two days before the race. Winners after weights have been announced to carry five pounds penalty. To be run at Anaconda. One mile.

The Smeltermen's Handicap, $1,000—A handicap for all ages. Entrance $10, $30 additional for horses not declared by 5 P. M. of the day before race. Guaranteed value $1000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Weights to be announced two days before race. Winners after weights are announced to carry five pounds penalty. To be run at Anaconda. Five and one-half furlongs.

The Hot Times Stakes, $1,000—For all ages. Entrance $10, $30 additional to start. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Two-year-olds to carry 90 pounds; three-year-olds, 110 pounds; four-year-olds and upwards, 120 pounds; sex allowances. Winners of a race, except for two-year-olds exclusively, worth $1,000 after the closing of this stake to carry five pounds extra; of two such races, or one of $2,000, or five of any value, eight pounds extra. To be run at Butte. Four and one-half furlongs.

The Inter-Mountain Stakes, $1,000—For three-year-olds and upwards. Entrance $10, $30 additional to start. Guaranteed value $1,000, of which $200 to second and $100 to third; five pounds below the scale. Winners of a race worth $500 after the closing of this stake to carry five pounds extra; of two such eight pounds extra. Others that have not won two races since the closing of this stake allowed six pounds, and if beaten non-winners of the year 1898, 10 pounds. Beaten maidens that have not been placed, one-two-three, 15 pounds. To be run at Butte.

Mr. Tipton left last night for his home in Kentucky, where he will spend Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, and will return to Montana some time before the latter part of January.

The California Sale at Cleveland.

The main object of Palo Alto Stock Farm holding a sale at Cleveland was that weather permitting the horses could be shown on the Glenville track in harness. Unfortunately an unusual storm prevailed shortly before the horses arrived and continued up to the sale, making the track unfit to show speed on, and the sale had to be held in Fasig's Horse Exchange opposite the race track. The Exchange is a nicely fitted up place and where horses are to be shown leading it is first-class. The majority of the Palo Alto horses had never been led so they had to be shown to harness, and the short turns and stretches made it impossible to show speed to harness.

The day of the sale was ushered in with high winds and very cold weather, and yet with all the disadvantages the sale was a good one when it is also considered that opportunities to show speed to harness was very limited. The absence of breeders was particularly noted, otherwise those horses that were eminently fitted for breeding purpose, such as Governor Pacheco, full brother to Palo Alto, 2:08¾, Alla, 2:21½, by Palo Alto, and Vesper Bells, by Advertiser, dam Beautiful Bells, would have brought more money.

Mr. Fasig, active and energetic as ever in conducting his sales, was ably assisted by Mr. Geo. Bain of Lexington, who did the auctioneering part. He is certainly one of the best auctioneers in America in the horse line. He is not only magnetic and quick in his methods, but is one of the best experts on breeding and performances of both the trotter and thoroughbred it has ever been my pleasure to meet.

The attendance at the sale was not large but those that did brave the weather came there to buy.

In the Palo Alto consignment there were twenty-four head that brought $8,020, all youngsters one, two and three and four year olds except two.

A while back it became the custom to show in reports of sales those bringing $100 and over so I will show them all.

The get of Dexter Prince, eleven in number sold as follows:

Conlan, b g (2), dam Coral 2:18½, by Electioneer	$ 800
Prince Idle, ch g, (2), dam Idlemay, by Electioneer	725

Cleveland is the home of many lovers of the harness horse and all were very much interested in the Horse Show that was in progress during my stay in the city by the lake. Col. Edwards, Wm. B. Fasig, May Johnston, C. Kinney, and many other noted horsemen pronounced Cleveland's Horse Show a grand success. I had the pleasure of seeing two old acquaintances in Cleveland, the good race mare, Derby Princess, 2:08½, and the stallion, Palo Chief. At the Horse Show I saw the great race mare, Elloree. She is a well made, strong mare and just as liable to beat 2:08¼ to high wheel sulky next year as any horse I now know of.

RIO ALTO.

Horses for Japan.

Decidedly the most interesting consignment conveyed by the Steamer Coptic, which sailed for China and Japan last Friday, is a group of seven magnificent stallions of the finest pedigree and the most perfect form physically that could be found among the trotters in all the blue grass region.

The stallions were purchased in Lexington, Ky., by Y. Matsumato, the representative of Japan and exporting manager of the great Japanese Trading Company, which has branches all over that country, besides the one in New York. The animals are all dark bay and none are less than 15½ hands in height. Their average weight is 1,000 pounds, and their cost when delivered in Yokohama will be above $4,500 each.

The seven are named: Thennis Day, Fernland King, Cupid, Welton King, Will Stoke, which has a record of 2:23; Boddeker, raised by Major McDowell, and Forrest Beau. The most valuable of the horses is Cupid, which cost nearly $5,000. The lowest price of any of the lot is $3,000. The stallions will be crossed with mares from the union of Hungarian with the native breed of horses, with a view of producing a progeny uniting the best qualities of the finest American and European stock. For this purpose the Kentucky horses most celebrated for docility were selected.

Cupid, Welton King and Will Stoke were purchased for the imperial stables, and the other four for the Agricultural Department of the empire, ultimately to furnish cavalry stock.

Mr. Matsumato said that upon the issue of this experiment depends a large future demand for American stock. Heretofore Japan has bought in Hungary, where decendants of the Arabian breeds are to be found and where prices are much lower than for similar American breeds, but the result has not been altogether what was hoped for, and a commission was appointed to purchase specimens of the best breeds to be found in the United States, and the present shipment is the result. Another year, Mr. Matsumato said, a large number would be bought, and if satisfactory stock could be found in California this State would get their trade, as was manifestly the interest of the Japan Government to buy at the nearest market.

Weaning Foals.

Foals that are about to be weaned in the fall of the year should, preparatory to the time of isolating them from their dams, be taught to eat freely of grain, pulse and other highly nutritive food. The loss of the dam's milk is a severe check to their constitution and growth, which even an abundant supply of hay and grass will not wholly compensate. A variety of food is not only permissable but to be advocated, although grass or good hay and grain should form their stable diet. Too many different sorts of food can hardly be tried, says a high authority on the matter, "but of course they must be given judiciously, at various times and in small quantities." Should the bowels act too freely by the use of succulent foods or from any other cause, recourse must be had to small feeds of barley or old split beans—care being taken the latter are perfectly sound—and hay should be substituted entirely to the exclusion of grass. The contrary condition of the bowels should, of course, lead to diet of succulent food and bran mashes. The condition of the foal's bowels should be carefully watched for some time after weaning. The sudden change from relying principally upon his dam to entire dependence on other sources of food supply infrequently leads to a derangement of the digestive organs, which, with care and judicious feeding, is usually not difficult to correct.—Live Stock Journal.

From the Now Secretary of the National Trotting Association.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24, 1895.

Mr. J. W. Hughes, Secretary Speed Sustaining Elixer Company, Indianapolis, Ind.:

Dear Sir—Please express, all charges prepaid, one-half dozen bottles of your Speed Sustaining Elixir to Frank Caton, 84 Nikolalefskaia, St. Petersburg, Russia, Europe. Please be very careful to have address spelled correctly and plainly. Send bill for same to the American Sportsman. I will be able to sell considerable for you in Russia. Yours very truly, W. H. GOCHER.

A. K. WARE, formerly of Elmwood, Ill., has located at Fredericksburg, Va., where he has Alfaro, 2:29½, by Allerton, dam the great broodmare Galita, and Wilkesoneer, 2:30, by Norval, 2:14¾, dam by Onward. Mr. Ware has recently purchased Allie Medium, 2:17½, by Country Medium; Roselawn, 2:29½, by Acmon, son of Nutwood; Emo, a fast green pacer, by Idolator, and Miss Pratt, by Oneida, sire of Personnette, 2:11¾.

PATTERSON, N. J.

I find ABSORBINE very useful in swellings and bruises in the family as well as on the horse. Yours truly,

WELLINGTON SMITH.

To Trotting-Horse Owners.

On or about the 12th of January we will hold a big combination sale of fine trotting stock. Full particulars in our next issue. WM. G. LAYNG & Co.

MAY AYERS, the mare owned by Angus McDonald of Shasta, is one of the best blooded mares in Shasta county. She is from a line of good ones. According to the Visalia Delta of the 18th, Jasper Ayers, a full brother, and owned by H. P. Perkins of Visalia, was sold in Cleveland, Ohio, the other day, for $1750. Jasper has a record of 2:11¼.

DIRECTOR'S services for the season of 1898 will be $300.

ANOTHER illustration of the value of Musket blood was exemplified in Australia lately. Gaulus and The Grafter, full brothers, by imp. Gozo—Industry by Musket, after winning a race each in one afternoon at Rosehill (N. S. W.) travelled to Melbourne, where they finished first and second in the Melbourne Cup, the richest stake race in the Australian Colonies. For one man, W. Forester (Red Bill) to own and have trained at his own farm two full brothers who finished first and second in such a race is all the more remarkable, but we presume they are trained by that veteran, "Daddy" Baines. Now, why isn't this a good "nick" for our breeders to try, viz., the Musket and Wild Oats cross which we have in California? Imp. Artillery, who is by Musket, should be exactly the cross to nick with Mariner mares. Imp. Gozo was by Wild Oats, thus providing the same judicious and successful cross which enabled two full brothers to finish first and second in the Melbourne Cup.

THE prospects of a resumption of racing in New Jersey are dead, seemingly, for the next year at least, unless a man of the social standing and financial strength of August Belmont can be found to take hold of affairs in the Legislature at Trenton next winter. Had it not been for Mr. Belmont's sincerity of purpose, his purity of motive, his pugnacity and his indomitable energy we would have no racing in this State. It will be hard, indeed, to find his equal, but until the New Jersey people find someone that approaches him in merit the outlook for racing in our sister State is blue, indeed. The Clifton track is a bicycle track. Guttenberg is a place Jersey men drive to on Sundays to exercise their road horses. The Monmouth course is for sale. The Elizabeth track can be purchased by real estate operators. The Dundee track has been mapped out for building lots and is soon to be put on the market by a syndicate.

YOU want race horses that you know will make stake-winners? Then attend the big sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange next Monday night and buy some of those grandly bred Nevada raised sons of unbeaten El Rio Rey. Everyone knows what they are capable of doing. They have the best of constitutions, feet and legs and are dead game. They will be two years old next month and with eight months of racing next year, many a good purse they will secure for their owners. See what Belle Boyd, Mandolina, Uncle Giles, Scarborough, Caliente, Eureka and Weenatchie have done as two-year-olds. Whoever gets an El Rio Rey will own a bona fide race horse. All of Mr. Winter's horses will be at the salesyard Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Remember there are some Joe Hookers among them, and nearly all the youngsters offered are out of race producing mares,

AMONG the splendid trotters to be shipped from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm to P. C. Kellogg's great sale January 14th is a four-year-old mare called Princess Rascan (sister to Jessie, 2:22, Fitzsimmons, 2:20¼, trial 2:15, Princess McCarthy, trial 2:15) by Dexter Prince and of Lady Fracture by Electioneer. She is a grand innividual, sweet gaited trotter, has a wonderful turn of speed, and although only handled a short time showed her ability to become a very fast mare. Her breeding is first-class, and as she is a member of a speed producing tribe, she should be invaluable in the harem. The Dexter Prince yearlings at the recent sale in Cleveland sold for $440 average. Princess Rascan should bring $1500. We shall have further comments on this string of horses in our next issue.

WHEN Geo. Wilkes was at the Fashion Track, Long Island, in 1870. Samuel Gamble and W. H. Wilson was there looking around for horses. Mr. Gamble advised Mr. Wilson to get this horse and bring him to Kentucky which he did.

IT IS stated, on good authority, that fifteen horses a day are slaughtered for chicken feed in the bay counties. Droves of broken down race horses are shipped to Marin, Sonoma San Mateo, Alameda and Contra Costa counties for this purpose.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:

Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

O. Fischer was at McGill's Sunday last. He made a fair bag of English snipe.

"Edwards" looped fifteen ducks in his strap at the Empire Club grounds last Sunday.

Jules Berges made a bag of one dozen ducks, cans and teal; at the Schellville Club grounds last Sunday.

Col. Eddy, of the Cordelia Club, is credited with a total bag of six huddred ducks since the opening of the season.

C. Cate collected a feathered tribute from the Mowry grounds, last Sunday, to the extent af sixteen teal and sprig.

W. Street had seventeen fine sprig hanging in his strap when he was through with a day's shooting at Suisun, last Sunday.

W. G. Murdock shot on the Reclamation district last Sunday. A bag containing fifteen teal and sprig was his count for the day.

Geo. Manchester, of Stockton, had a fine bag last Sunday. Eighteen mallard would make any hunter satisfied with a day's shooting.

Augustine Juarez killed a 37-pound lynx back of the Asylum at Napa, Thursday. His dogs "treed" the animal and he shot it.

The Sear's Point grounds were looked after by J. Karney, Jules Burns and C. Kropp last Sunday, fifteen sprig and teal is the bag reported.

On the Petaluma marsh, Sunday last, among other hunters, we note that Ed Foster and J. Douglass made a bag of twenty-six sprig and teal.

Mike McDonald hunted at Mt. Eden on last Sunday. Ducks were not in plenty near his stand, and a moderate bag only, was his reward.

A wrinkle worth knowing, is that kerosene will soften boots and shoes that have been hardened by water, and render them as soft and pliable as new.

President Jack Lemmer and Pete McCrea were at the Black Jacks grounds on Thanksgiving Day and made a combined bag of sixty-three ducks—widgeon, mallard, blackjacks and sprig.

The Empire Club grounds have afforded lots of shooting for the members lately, the ducks have been very plentiful. Judging from the reticence of individual members some fine bags have been made.

JOHN CONWAY made a bag of twenty-seven English snipe on the Baden Club grounds last Sunday. These birds are a little early in that vicinity, though later on after the rains there should be plenty of them.

A large number of sportsmen left the city Wednesday evening, headed for the duck and quail shooting grounds. The Tule Belle, Cordelia and Teal Clubs in the Suisun marshes had a strong representation.

The San Bruno, Milbrae, San Mateo and Islais Creek marshes were well patronized by hunters last Sunday. There was a plenty of ducks, but they flew high. Some of the shooters made very nice bags notwithstanding.

The Lincoln Gun Club hunters are credited with a fine day's shooting in the vicinity of their ark at Alvarado last Sunday. The roll call and results were: Franzen, thirty-five ducks; Le Gal, thirty; Wilson, twenty; Shaw and Klevesahl, forty.

Ben Baum and Ben Harris tried the quail ground on the Hills' ranch, Marin county, Sunday last. Birds were fairly numerous, but the ground was too dry for the best results. They made a reasonable bag of quail and also brought down eight English snipe.

Something like fifteen hundred licenses for hunting deer have up to this date, been issued in Wisconsin this year, and the woods have been so full of hunters that a man is in danger of being shot if he ventures a hundred yards from camp, as everything that moves is shot at.

At Ignacio, last Sunday, the hunters made good bags, and had an enjoyable variety of game. G. G. Bellington and E. Summerfield bagged thirty-five sprig, teal and widgeon. Dave Walton and a friend, twelve sprig and teal. Tom Casey, and "Doc" Stanton, sixteen quail.

Game Warden Helms on Thursday, November 19th, surprised a party of four market hunters up on the "overflow" who were using guns of illegal size, being larger than ten-gauge. He arrested one of the party, named C. Tryon, and may yet get the others.—Sacramento Record-Union.

The Alameda Club grounds are in fine condition and will afford the opportunity of making a number of big bags tomorrow. There has been little or no shooting for a few weeks, water has been let in through the levees and plenty of bait laid out, and it is reported that the birds are swarming there now.

The biggest killing of geese so far this season was made by D. C. Wood, Henry Garrison, C. E. Rice and D. O. Briggs at the Garrison ranch Nov. 14th. Between 6 A. M. and noon the party killed sixty-nine geese. They had one hundred tin decoys and three tame ducks which brought the geese down to them.

The water has been let through the flood gates this week in the Los Banos district adjacent to the Greenwing Gun Club's grounds and the clubmen are correspondingly happy over the prospects of good shooting, as the submerged section is now thickly populated with finely conditioned sprig, teal and widgeon, and their sisters, cousins and aunts.

Over at the San Pablo marsh last Sunday, A. Roos made a count of seven ducks, H. B. Hosmer, twelve; and W. Murdock left his companions behind in the score, with a bag of twenty-two. The birds were principally sprig and teal.

The Alameda Gun Club have leased a tract of land, containing about sixteen hundred acres, situated in Sonoma county and belonging to the Pacific Reclamation Company. The tract covers the district of leveed land bordering on the First and Second Napa and Sonoma creeks, between the drawbridge and Tubbs' Island on the one side and the Ringstrom ponds on the other.

Duck hunting by moonlight seems to be the fad these nice, bright nights. Thursday night Fred Horner succeeded in bringing down no less than twenty-two of the feathered beauties.—Irvington Press. When the ducks are shot or driven out of your hunting grounds, your local sportsmen will find that fads are one thing and legitimate sport is another, a better, and more lasting proposition.

The Spooney Club were represented by P. B. Bekeart, L. R. Larzalere, Harry Miller and John Miles last Sunday. The combined bag for the four guns was a fair one made up principally of sprig and teal with a few spoonbills. Two bitterns were also shot, and to prove the palatable reputation of the bird, they were put through the cuisine; the general verdict in regard to them was one of gastronomic satisfaction.

The second match of the series, for the Market Street Individual Championship, took place at Ingleside, Thanksgiving Day, on the Olympic Club grounds. At twenty-five live birds the scores were: H. Wagner, nineteen; H. Wicker, seventeen; F. H. Bushnell, fifteen; H. B. Hosmer, fifteen; and A. Ross, fourteen. Mr. Roos was the good thing and was congratulated accordingly, which enthusiasm Mr. Roos responded to in his usual genial and happy style.

Complaints of depredations by California lions in the vicinity of Corral Deterra have been received. David Wallace, a rancher, has been visited by animals that destroyed one hundred and fifty hogs and sheep and fifteen horses. Other ranchers report similar losses, and state that the entire region between Salinas and Monterey is overrun with lions. The reason they come so far down the Santa Lucia mountain range is because of the scarcity of prey in the higher regions. Rewards have been offered for every lion killed. W. L. Prather's pack of hounds could do some effective work in that district.

George Lemon, a hunter who has been after ducks in the tule lands of Merced county, has brought back a report which is causing codsiderable objection on the part of sportsmen. He says that three or four men are trapping ducks in the tules for the San Francisco market. The trap is made of wire netting placed in a shallow lake with decoys and food inside in such a manner that a screen trap-door could be pulled over the ducks when once inside. He says that two men with the traps sent 1,500 ducks to San Francisco last week, while the hunters with a gun could get hardly a shot in the whole neighborhood.

There are many men and boys who have been accustomed for many years past to shoot robins in the winter time when they come down from the mountains, and who are probably not aware that the last Legislature inserted a provision in the game law prohibiting the shooting of robins at any time. However, ignorance of the law is no excuse, and anyone shooting or having robins in his possession is liable to arrest and fine, and the safest way is to comply with the law.

One of the hunting contingent who was on the other side of the bay last Sunday, was so remarkably careful to have everything ready for his shoot, that he got up before daylight, prepared his boat, worked her over the mud at low tide and then rowed several miles against the wind and tide, and finally when he was up to his stand and ready for ducks, he found that he had left his gun (!) behind. It was a long and weary pull back to the club house, but his day's sport was knocked. He says it was "so dark when he started that he didn't know he had forgotten his gun."—Aetna water is the best Saturday night beverage when you come to think of it.

The Petaluma Courier notes the case of Thomas Irving charged with poaching on the ground of the Marin County Country Club at Olema, which came up Nov. 17th, at San Rafael. Irving was found on the Country Club's possessions with the carcass of a deer on his shoulder and he made a plea before the jury that he killed the deer on the club's ground because he needed meat for his family, and the jury disagreed, standing eight to four in favor of acquittal. Irving pleaded guilty Wednesday and was fined $10, which he paid. If a city hunter is caught by a country official infringing any of the county laws in reference to fish or game the case is entirely different. They just proceed to "soak him."

At St. Louis last Wednesday during the second day of the tournament of the St. Louis Trapshooters' League, the feature was the contest between Jack Fanning of San Francisco and Dr. J. Smith of St. Louis, at one hundred birds each. The San Francisco trap-shooter won, by a score of ninety-nine to ninety-five, thereby establishing a record for St. Louis Rolla O. Heikes, the Ohio champion, holds the lead. Wednesday he made three straight runs of twenty and closed with twenty-five straight. On the general average for the two days Heikes leads with 94½ per cent; Frank Faurote, the amateur of Dallas, Texas, comes second with 91 per cent and J. A. R Elliott of Kansas City third, his average being 90½ per cent. The tournament was concluded Thursday.

W. L. Prather, Jr. and Chas. Clay had a sharp, snappy run after a big wild-cat last Sunday, it took them two hours and a half to make the kill. The dogs, six of them, took the scent and started the cat on the ridge above the Olinda Kennels, they ran through Redwood Canyon to Moraga Valley and back to the head of Redwood canyon, where the cat was brought to bay on the ground and killed after a lively fight with the dogs. The cat weighed thirty-five pounds and did not have an ounce of superfluous flesh on him. During the chase, most of the time, a blanket would have covered the pack. The dead wild cat was taken down to Olinda Kennels and from there trailed over the hills and back, and then hung in a tree. Prather put a promising pack of seven young puppies on the scent and judging from the way they naturally took to the work, following the trail from start to finish, they will make hunting history for the Kennels.

An old fashioned turkey shoot was held at the San Bruno House last Sunday. The range was 50 and 200 yards. There was a large attendance and the marksmen got away with forty turks. Mine host was geniality personified, and the boys present enjoyed a huge time. Great preparations are being made for a shoot on Christmas and New Year's days.

The Black Jacks were represented at Sherman Island last Sunday by a notable assemblage of ardent sportsmen, among them were: "Billy" Swain, J. Maynard Jr., Fred Johnson, "Diver" Dietz, "Hello" Eaton, "Sherman" and "Meiklejay" Geary, the latter being well-known among the angling fraternity, though at times he joins the ranks of the choke-bore brigade. Various aquatic mishaps and adventures of the redoubtable "Meiklejay" during the day proved that he was perfectly at home in the water, in fact a boat was a somewhat superfluous incumbrance. As a retriever of decoys he is a pronounced success. At the end of the shoot his bag held just "two" ducks, although he fired at everything that came along and always claimed a hit, one shot in particular he had at a "can" which went down the line, showed at least presence of mind if not good shooting, when he fired. "Meiklejay" went over one side of the punt and his gun the other, as he emerged, he called to Johnson, "Did you mark that duck? I know I knocked him, but I could not see where he fell. I was under the water at the time." President Lemmer is authority for the statement that he used two hundred shells. Secretary Markland says he is an expert in making "figure eights" when he uses a two-bladed paddle to propel a tule-splitter. The combined bag for the day was seventy-five ducks, about half of them being blackjacks. The hunters would have got more ducks, if Meiklejay's incessant bombardment and trips to the bottom of the slough had not caused so much commotion on the shooting ground.

A writer in the Shooting Times and British Sportsman gives the following description of the Tring water fowl preserve, which belongs to Lord Rothschild. It consists of some large artificial reservoirs, formed to supply the Grand Junction Canal with water. The three pools are beautifully situated at the foot of the Chilterns, and are two miles in circumference, bounded on two sides by high artificial banks, and on the other by marshy meadows through which flow numerous streams. Reeds extend for many yards into the water, some being as high as eight feet, while in addition there are several acres of flag-covered flats. Most of the shooting is done from behind screens, erected at intervals across the center of the lake. The screens are seven feet high, and constructed with reeds, behind which are the stands, they being formed of strong wood planks laid on piles and surrounded by a projecting rail. Long lanes are cut in the reeds to facilitate the work of the beaters, and punts are used for the same purpose and also to pick up the dead birds, for most of the game falls into the water. A day's bag aggregated a total of six hundred head of waterfowl, and in five days three thousand birds have been bagged, made up of mallards, pochards, grebe, widgeon, coots, teal, water-hens and snipe. Besides a large variety of the duck tribe, there are several specimens of larger water-fowl—swans, geese, herons and others. Pelican were once introduced in this preserve and did well for a time, but as they took to gobbling up the young ducks, they were got rid of in short order.

A Stockton Joke.

The reason why so many Stocktonians shouldered their guns and traveled islandwards last Saturday and Sunday in quest of game has leaked out and it seems that in part it was a put up job by one or two practical jokers. Last Thursday afternoon or Friday morning nearly every sportsman in Stockton received a telephone message from one who announced himself as Johnny Moore's man on Union island. He reported the information that the ducks and geese had come in large quantities and voiced Johnny's invitation to the sportsman to bring his friends down for a day as soon as possible. Many of them went but were surprised that "Johnny" didn't know a word about the invitation.

There was, however, another side of the joke, and that was, that the jokers, who themselves stayed at home and got nothing while they laughed at the supposed "wild goose chase" on which they sent their friends, were somewhat chagrined to see those same friends returning home with geese for themselves and some to give to their friends. The shooting was better than the jokers thought.

Lost in Mountain Wilds.

A dispatch from Portland, Or., dated November 24th, gives the following details in regard to two hunters who are supposed to have become lost, and perished, while hunting deer:

John Berger and William Lousignaut, well-known residents of Washington County, while hunting deer in the Nehalem Mountains, wandered away from their companions and have probably perished.

Lousignaut and Berger left the former's home on the upper Nehalem River, fifteen miles from the village of Buxton, on November 1st, with a party of friends in quest of deer. The two men stationed their friends on runways at the river and then took the dogs up into the hills to chase out the game. The men at the stations waited until night, but Lousignaut and Berger did not return. Their cabins were visited but they were not there. All that night and the next day was spent in the search, but no trace of the missing men could be found.

The next day a terrible storm set in, in which it is believed they perished. On Saturday Lousignaut's dog returned with a suspender tied about its neck. It is believed that a note had been attached to it, but was torn off by the thick brush through which the animal had evidently made its way.

A large party is now searching for the missing men, but with slight hopes of success.

A Wonderful Hunting Dog.

The dog that Johnny Burfiend recently had an exasperating experience with on the Alvarado marsh, when he endeavored to have him retrieve a fine sprig, is making history up in Humboldt county. At Burfiend's urgent request the owner of the dog got rid of him by sending him north. Eureka Standard thus sounds the trump of his fame: "Senator Gillett and Dr. Cook's celebrated hunting dog Asphyxia has come to life again. Last month, it will be remembered, he was reported to have died from inhaling his own breath but it now appears that he was only in a trance out of which he was brought by homeopathic treatment which consisted in giving him frequent baths in the bay at the foot of C street when the tide was out. On the Sporting Club's preserves since his recovery, Asphyxia has been very much in evidence, likewise his breath, which, it has been discovered, has the peculiar property of causing forgetfulness in all living things that come within its baneful influence. The first evidence of this, although not remarked at the time, was the Doctor's experience when the animal's breath caused him to forgot to take his gun when he went hunting with the dog for the first time. Since then the Senator has had a similar experience and it was only the other day that, taking Asphyxia with him, he drove all the way to the game preserves without discovering that he had left his gun in Attorney Puter's office, while the attorney, who accompanied him, forgot to put on his new hunting uniform. Even the ducks that had been shot by the doughty hunters forgot to stay dead and would rise up and fly away, when the dog swimming in the water approached them with his wonderful breath. This peculiarity of his breath would in a measure account for his own return to life in this, that his breath had caused him to forget to stay dead after that breath had killed him." The bad breath is an indication of distemper, and we would suggest the use of Spratts' or Dr. Glover's remedies, temporarily at least, though the natural cussedness of the dog would undoubtedly break out in a new spot.

Wild-Fowl Piracy.

We quote the following article from the San Jose News of November 15th. The space filler's detail covers some valuable (?) sporting information and is given to the San Jose readers in good faith apparently, as a really up-to-date piece of live news, something for the average citizen to cogitate over, as it were; it is entitled "Trained Steers" and has sub scare heads ad lib. As a matter of fact and information in regard to an illigitimate and reprehensible method of slaughtering wild fowl the statement is entitled to credence—but given as sporting news and without comment as against the parties guilty, directly and indirectly, in that particular style of piracy, the publication is sadly lacking in public spirit and enterprise, to draw the distinction mildly. Furthermore, the utter incompetence and insincerity of the writer of the article is shown in the concluding paragraph by an asinine attempt at wit that entitles Mr. scribe to full liberty at all times to bray when he is his own audience:

"This is the time of the year when the man with a dog and a gun can't resist the temptation to go in search of game, big or little, in wood or marsh. But to date truthful nimrods who have returned have not had glowing accounts as to phenomenal runs of luck and big bags.

'Over to San Joaquin' is where the amateur sportsman turns his longing eyes, but according to those who have returned from the privileged land, it is best for the hunter to go with much precaution and small hopes.

A. Q. Smith has just returned from a hunting trip up the San Joaquin and to a News representative gave an account of things as they are in that back district.

"The principal part of my time," said Mr. Smith, "has been spent on the 900-acre ranch of Henry Miller, the cattle king. It is a short distance above Stockton, and, as is well known, forms one of the ranges for some of Mr. Miller's many herds of cattle. In order to improve the pasturage every fall Mr. Miller has water from the San Joaquin river turned upon the land, and in the pools and marshes thus formed thousands of ducks and geese find a resting place.

"But the ducks are not so easily obtained as their numbers would warrant. For one thing Mr. Miller allows no shooting with a rifle on the range as some of the cattle might possibly be killed, and that compels one to use a shotgun. [Do you prefer the brass mounted Belgian or the Enfield model of 1853, Mr. Smith?—Ed.]

"For that reason, if you want to bag any birds, you have to get very near to them and they are not in the least inclined to encourage any such familiarity.

"The only people who are killing any amount of birds are several professional hunters who cater to the San Francisco market and they are making it pay, though it's hard work and not sport for them. They use trained steers, and I tell you those steers are clever animals. The hunters drive the steers along the road until they come to a place that looks promising, when they enter the field.

"Then is when the steers begin to show their training. They advance slowly toward the ducks, stopping every once in a while to crop a mouthful of grass and they generally manage to get near the birds without rousing any unusual suspicion. At a given signal the steers jumps aside and the hunters who have been walking concealed beside them, get several sudden shots with good, heavy loads. They generally manage to bag a lot and get about four chances a day in this manner. One day with ten shots they brought down 160 ducks, and by night they usually have a good wagon load.

"You cannot, however, use a horse in the same manner, as there are no horses on the range, and the ducks instantly become wary, and the geese can't be trapped in the same manner for they are suspicious even of the steers.

"Not having any trained assistants I thought myself lucky to secure two geese which I brought home with me, but it was great sport even if the results were not better."

Several members of the Garden City Gun Club have gone up for a week's hunt, but they have taken the precaution to take a cow's skin with them for a mascot and incidentally to deceive the ducks. Their friends are anxiously awaiting returns from that precinct for there will be some big game dinners when they get back—maybe.

Fresno Notes.

Dr. J. L. Maupin, Arthur Machen, D. H. Blaisdell and Charles Babcock returned Friday morning last week from a very successful hunt on the sloughs near Jameson. They were gone two days and returned home with twenty geese, as well as a large number of ducks. The geese were large and fat, unusually so.

The hunters report an abundance of game on the West Side. The ducks are particularly plentiful, and the Fresnans killed many more than they could take home with them. Twenty geese is also a pretty good record. Blaisdell shot seven, Matchen five, Babcock six and Dr. Maupin two.

Of course the quartette had an enjoyable outing and it was enlivened by many funny incidents. A rancher had an old cow behind which he was trying to get within range of a flock of geese. Dr. Maupin saw how successful the scheme worked and he thought he would attempt it with an old horse the party had. But the horse was not as docile as the cow, and the doctor had a very interesting time in inducing the animal to walk in the direction desired.

And then when the Doc shot! It was new business to the horse, and he made a tremendous jump. All the doctor had to say to his friends, who witnessed the equestrian episode, was a request that they tell no one about it.

One night the four hunters slept in the open in a straw-stack, the hospitality of which the owner had kindly offered to the belated nimrods. During the night a flock of tame geese came around. The Doc mistook them for game, and fired into the bunch, killing two of them,

The next morning the doctor had to settle a bill with the owner.

Game Warden Andy Ferguson is after violators of the county game ordinance in regard to killing and shipping game from the county. November 12th, Guy Lovelace, a young hunter was arrested at Dinuba, charged with violating the law by shipping quail from Coalinga to San Francisco. Lovelace is the son of the well known Democratic politician of Dinuba. He is an expert shot and has taken part in several state shooting contests.

Lovelace, it is understood, will fight the charges against him in a vigorous manner, as he has influential and well-to-do relatives. It is also claimed that the San Francisco commission men will back Lovelace in his trial and make it a test case. The commission merchants do not fancy the stringent restrictions embodied in the county law and have been planning a test case for some time. Sportsmen generally favor the law and will watch the progress of the case with interest. [8 to 4.]

A Mexican was also arrested this week for shipping quail from Coalinga to San Francisco. Thursday he pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined by the justice of the peace at Huron. [4 to 8]

During the past few weeks the young man has been utilizing his expertness with the gun in killing quail for the San Francisco markets. He has shipped from Coalinga during the season nearly 2000 quail and received good returns for the time, powder and shot spent by him. The quail in the foothills near Coalinga may be found in great numbers and are especially prized for table use.

Defective Cartridges.

Considerable complaint in regard to faulty cartridges is heard from time to time, and the powder manufacturers and fixed ammunition dealers come in for a large share of criticism and some little abuse by disappointed hunters. An article which lately appeared in an English periodical, The Country Gentleman, and which was taken up and favorably commented on by the Shooting Times, may be of more than passing interest to our readers, by a perusal of the following, it is possible that some of the ills hunters suffer from may be, in a measure accounted for.

"The cap of the cartridge case is a very small matter, but it is now becoming recognized that with nitro-powders it is a matter of the highest importance in a cartridge. It has not received the attention it deserves, owing to its small pecuniary value. Caps are made by the million no doubt, but each cap is filled with fulminate by a young girl. She receives a certain quantity of fulminate with which she is bound to fill a hundred caps, that being the only check upon her work and waste of material. Paid by what she does, she is quick at her work, for it pays her to be so, but that very quickness accounts for mistakes, particularly where mistakes in putting in too much fulminate have to be remedied in the remaining caps of each hundred by putting in too little, the fulminate having to be eked out so as to fill the hundred caps. It is here that the cause will be found of much of the abuse that has recently showered upon the heads of the powder manufacturers by the random correspondents of a weekly contemporary of some importance. The powder manufacturer, the gunmaker, and the gunmaker's careful and experienced loader; are all at the mercy of the little girl in the cap-maker's factory! Furthermore, the gunner himself, however careful, however skilful, has his sport dependent on that little bundle of femininity, working her soul out for some ten or fifteen shillings a week in the slums! That is really the true position of the ammunition question now being agitated by our contemporary to the disadvantage of every manufacturer of nitro powder. Realizing it, one can also realize the ignorance of many of the anonymous correspondents who are now throwing stones so recklessly at the makers of the explosives, and can also estimate the folly of encouraging ignorant assailants to air their complaints in print, to the detriment of people who are in nowise to blame. The powders are all right, every one of them; it is in loading them into cases with faulty caps that mistakes are made. The unfortunate part of the matter is that after a cartridge is fired, there is no evidence left as to what its cap contained. There may be, perhaps, five faulty caps in the hundred cartridges, and there are usually three or four of them discharged ineffectively before the shooter thinks of putting the remainder aside for investigation. Probably examination finds nothing wrong with the powder or with the remaining caps or cases. They are usually found right to all appearances,even though the fulminate in one or two may be under the proper quantity. We have a great deal yet to learn in cap-making. Its great importance will have to be recognized. The manufacture will have to be organized in a more careful manner than now obtains, even with the best firms of ammunition manufacturers. Until that occurs, we presume we will have to suffer the infliction of the views of uninformed writers of erroneous attacks on the wrong people in the columns of our weekly contemporary—unless, indeed, it sees cause, at the eleventh hour, to change its mistaken tactics.' NOTICE TO ANGLERS.

Every angler is invited to drop us a line occasionally, telling us of the condition of the streams they have visited and the killing lure, of the number and size of the fish caught, or any other item of interest to anglers.

Trout Fishing in New Zealand.

The "Angler's Guide" for 1897,which has just been issued by Mr. W. S. Tisdale, Lambton-Quay, Wellington, N Z., contains much valuable and interesting information regarding fishing in the North Island, and some of the statistics published give an idea of the extent to which the disciples of the gentle art are catered for. For instance, last year in the Masterion ponds, in the Province of Wellington, no fewer than two million ova were put down to hatch, the different variety of fish represented being brown trout, rainbow trout, Loch Leven, fontinalis, and Scotch brown trout.

Much interesting information is given by Mr. Tisdall regarding the systematic attempt, aided by the Government, to stock the great Taupo and Waigare lakes in the centre of the North Island, and on other matters of general interest. Lake Rotorua and Rotoiti, it is stated, are already fairly well stocked. Owing, however, to the high falls on the outlets of these North Island lakes the trout will be unable to migrate to and from the sea as they do in the southern lakes. The development of these trout will, consequently, be those of purely fresh water varieties, and be interesting as such. Hitherto the attempts made to acclimatise the American brook char (Salvelinus Fontinalis) have proved very disappointing, but they are now firmly established (unmixed with any other breed) in the Tahunaatara, a fine stream about sixteen miles from Rotorua on the Taupo road. Regarding the rainbow trout,the "Guide" says: it fights like a salmon, and is a demon for smashing tackle in heavy water. The best sport in the colony with these fish can be had from Okoroire or Tirau, in the Waihou and Waimakariri Streams, running down the valley of the Upper Thames. Large grilse flies are the best lure. These fish are such bold risers that it seems a pity to use a minnow with them, though undoubtedly the spinning baits take a larger run of fish. It is hard, however, to beat the sport a three-pound rainbow trout will give on the fly. Rainbow trout are being introduced into many rivers, and can be caught in the Makuri stream in the Forty Mile Bush, which is now a grand fishing district. The streams rising in Mount Egmont, in the Taranaki district, and the Patea river are affording splendid sport, and can be readily reached from Stratford, and the Ngatorous streams from Inglewood. The Patea and Waingongoro rivers are both very full of fine trout higher up. On the Hawk's Bay side almost all the suitable streams inland, more especially the tributaries of the Upper Manawatu, afford good baskets, and on the Napier-Taupo road good fishing can be had in the Waipanga stream at Tarawera and the Taharua stream near Rangitaiki. At Kuri-Paponga, on the Inland Patea road, there is good fishing. Fine trout are turning up in considerable numbers in the Waikaretaheke river in Northern Nairos, and at Waipawa and Waipukurau fairly good minnow fishing can be had. Coming nearer home, trout are becoming fairly numerous in most of the streams in the Horowhenua county, and last season excellent sport was obtained in the Waikanae river, and of course the Wairarapa rivers are splendidly stocked. Another feature worth mention is the marked increase in the number of fine migratory trout, very much akin to a species of salmon in their looks, that frequent our coasts and run to a large size. As time goes on the annual migration of these powerful fish up our rivers give fine sport. On the whole the prospects for the coming season are rosy for anglers, more especially those who can afford the time for a trip to the backwoods.

Following such general information as the foregoing, comes detailed information regarding the various North Island rivers, memoranda about fishing, and an article on red deer. There is an illustration of a magnificent head of a red deer shot by Mr. T. E. Donne on the Maungaraki ranges. It is interesting to note that in the Wairarapa district, especially those parts which the deer frequent, the land is generally of limestone formation, and to that fact is attributed in a great measure the rapid and large growth of horn which occurs. The head in the illustration has eighteen points and the antlers are two feet seven and one-half inches in length.

A Manual of Fish Culture.

A recent publication prepared under the direction of John J. Brice, of the United States Commission of Fish and Fisheries, is a compendium of great value and gives a comprehensive description of fish culture at the present time in the United States. Many extracts from the U. S. Commission report for 1897 are contained in the Manual, which is based on the report of the U. S. Commission of Fish and Fisheries, with a Chapter on the Cultivation of Oysters and Frogs. The contents are as follows:

The salmon of the Pacific Coast; the Atlantic and Landlocked salmon; The Rainbow Trout; The Whitefish; The Shad; The Black Basses, Crappies and Rock Bass; Miscellaneous Fresh water Fishes, Minor Trouts and the Grayling, Lake Herring and Other Whitefish, Muscalonge, Yellow Perch, Striped Bass and White Perch, Alewives, or River Herring, Smelt, Golden Ide, Sturgeons, The Cod, The Common Mackerel, The Flatfish, or Winter Flounder; Miscellaneous Salt Water Fishes, Tautog, Spanish Mackerel, Haddock, Pollock and other Gadidae; Cunner. Scup, Sea Bass, Squeeteagues, Sheepshead, Sea Herring, Sand-dab and Four-spotted Flounder, The American Lobster, The Transportation of Fish and Fish-eggs, Spawning Seasons of Fishes Propagated, Character of Fish Eggs, Period of Incubation, etc., Notes on the Edible Frogs of the United States and Their Artificial Propagation, Oysters and Methods of Oyster Culture, Notes on Clam Culture.

The work contains one hundred and sixteen illustrations.

Johnny Crapaud Anglettes.

Parisians were greatly interested in a fishing competition within the boundaries of that city recently. This is only the second time that such a thing has been seen here, and it was inaugurated by Frenchmen who have visited England. The enthusiastic piscators, to the number of about 300, assembled in the Place de la Concord, and after receiving their numbers proceeded to the Seine,between the tower Eiffel and the Trocadero, where at a bugle signal lines were dropped into the water, the banks were thronged by crowds of interested citizens, and loud cheers were raised when Mr. Gugnev won the first prize for the first fish caught. It was only about one ounce in weight. M. Merry won a prize for the greatest number caught, with a total of twenty-four, and M. Hurel a prize for weight, with 750 grammes. The police had to intervene at one moment because one fisherman violently assaulted another. It appears that the latter's straw hat blew on the former's float at the moment when he had a a bite.

The Fly-Casters.

The regular meeting of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club was held last Tuesday evening at the rooms of the Board of Fish Commissioners, Flood Building. There was a fairly large attendance of members. After some preliminary routine business had been disposed of, and the election of Mr. A. J. Cartwright as an active member of the Club, the members present were treated to an instructive and most pleasant evening's entertainment by Mr. Theodore S. Solomons, who delivered a lecture, the subject being "The Source of the Tuolumne River." The stereopticon views, about one hundred of them, shown in illustration of the speaker's theme, were a magnificent series of pictures and added a keen zest to the thorough enjoyment afforded by the subject introduced so graphically and pertinently by Mr. Solomons. A more general attendance on the part of members was deserved, for this, the first of the series of winter evening entertainments on the program.

Otto Braunsdorf was at Point Reyes on Sunday last trying to get a few of the steelhead in the "big rock" pool, his success was fairly good until he ran out of bait, one of those untoward accidents of sport that, at times, the utmost care cannot avert. "Sugar House" was in a temporary predicament, but trying to avail himself of a privilege that all true sportsmen will give or take, he requested a fellow fisherman (?), who was plentifully supplied, to help him out with a little bait, but the "fishing hog" gave him the glassy eye. May his rod be made of glass from this time on.

Jas. A. Pariser, that genial and well-known master spirit of the composing room, is equally at home on the stream with a light Leonard rod and cast of killing flies, or on any of the bay fishing grounds. He spent last Sunday, with a friend, fishing for flounders in the Oakland estuary. The catch was a large one; the fish over in that water being in most excellent condition at present.

At the "break" on the lower end of Sherman Island, just below the Black Jack's grounds, some fine striped bass are being caught. "Hard mouths" are the bait in this water. There is a plenty of good sized fish at this place and anglers can get a strike full and frequent.

Ellis Robinson caught three fish with a spoon in the Eel river, the combined weight reaching ninety-five pounds. Old man Pollard caught eleven big salmon in one day in the same waters.

Grilse are being caught in fairly large numbers at present from the Powell and Lomard street wharves and also from the Fillmore street sea-wall. They are not of very large size.

The "big rock,' pool at Point Reys has afforded some little sport with steelhead during the past week. The fish are plentiful and are from ten to sixteen inches in length.

Some large catches of very fine sea trout and capazoni were made respectively at Point Cavallo, Devil's Point and Point Bonita last Sunday.

Wednesday, December 1st, the trout season will close. Rods, reels and creels will go into winter quarters.

H. Battu caught thirteen fine trout last Sunday in Sonom creek just above the Schellville Club House.

The fishing on Eel river is reported to be first class in the vicinity of Fortuna.

Yorkshire Terriers.

Mr. E. Attridge of 2005 Leavenworth street, had a brisk demand and quick sale for several litters of Yorkshire terriers whelped within the last six months. The first litter (Jerry-Nellie) whelped May 20th, went as follows: September 3rd, Miss G. Arnold, San Francisco, one bitch puppy; September 21st Mr. J. Feeney. one bitch puppy; October 15th Mr. Chas. Murray, one bitch puppy; October 22d. Mr. J. Thompson of Solano, one dog pup. To Mr. T. J. Gilbert one male pup, whelped May 30th (Shamrock–Puss.) Four bitch pups whelped June 19, ch Joker-Chippie, were sold August 15 and September 15.

Dogs Poisoned.

The dog poisoner is seemingly at work in a systematic and persistent manner in this city. The locality at present under the particular ban of this useless member of a long suffering community is on Post between Jones and Leavenworth streets. Several animals have been poisoned in that vicinity recently, two have died and the others have recovered from the effects of poison administered, owing to immediate and effective medical treatment adopted by the owners. So methodical and regular has this particular miscreant been in the contemptible practice that interested parties have constituted themselves a ways and means committee for detection, exposure and prosecution and it is morally certain that we may have the supreme pleasure in our next issue of noting the arrest and conviction of the guilty misdemeanant.

Curran and the Mastiff.

Barrington, in his "Sketches," tells an anecdote of the famous Irish orator Curran regarding,an adventure between him and a mastiff, when he was a boy. He had heard somebody say that any person throwing the skirt of his coat over his head, stooping low, holding out his arms and creeping along backwards, might frighten the fiercest dog, and put him to flight. He accordingly made an attempt on a miller's dog in the neighborhood, who would never let the boys rob the orchard, but found to his sorrow that he had a dog to deal with which did not care which end of the boy went foremost, so that he could get a bite of it. "I pursued the instructions," says Curran, "and as I had no eyes save those in front, fancied the mastiff in full retreat; but I was confoundedly mistaken, for at the very moment I thought myself victorious, the enemy attacked my rear, and having got a reasonable mouthful of it, was fully prepared to take another before I was rescued."

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Advisory Board will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 7th, at the Occidental Hotel.

George Watson has been presented,by Simmons and Donahoe, with the fawn and white greyhound bitch, Mountain Lassie.

O. W. Turney presented to Capt. J. B. Brown of the Point Bonita Light House the St. Bernard dog recently purchased by him from Chas. Dresser.

While Albert Spear, of Christiana Hundred, Delagoa, with a wallet containing $200 in his pocket, was on his way home recently, says the "Philadelphia Record," he passed a number of tramps in the West Yard, who became threatening. He was accompanied by his dog, an intelligent collie. Quickly taking the wallet from his pocket, Spear placed it in the canine's mouth and said: "Take that home quick." The dog started down the road at a rapid rate, and a tramp who saw the wallet in its mouth started in pursuit. The collie rapidly outstripped its pursuer and Mr. Spear also escaped. When he reached his residence he found the dog lying in the woodshed, with the wallet tightly held between his forepaws.

Mr. H. A. Wegener has a very promising black cocker spaniel dog pup (Woodland Duke—Peg Woffington). Several flattering offers have already been made for him, but Wegener is inclined to think he is good enough to keep.

CHARLESTON, S. C.

DEAR SIR—For some time past I have used Glover's Dog Remedies, and can cheerfully state that they have proved all they are recommended to be. I have used the Distemper Cure, Mange Cure, Eye Lotion and Vermifuge, and know of no other better medicines for the treatment of dog diseases.

A license was issued Wedesday to Rufus Narvaez to marry Mamie Murphy. Rufus is a clever jockey and a brother of Joe Narvaez.

The great race mare Charmion, perfect in every, way is to be sold at the Reis sale next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

Dr. Evans of Modesto purchased the handsome mare Dictesse by Dictatus, 2:21, (trial 2:12) out of Orphan Girl by Del Sen; second dam by Hock Hocking.

The Arkansas Jockey Club has been reorganized. Joseph E. Martin of St. Louis has been elected secretary and manager. "Umbrella" McGuigan is no longer a director of the association.

Morinel, the sweetest two-year-old in California who won Wednesday, is to be sold next Monday evening at the Occidental Horse Exchange; so will his dam Sunlit, one of the best broodmares in America, a perfect gold mine to own.

Johnny O'Neill, the well-known bookmaker, partner of Frank Eckert, is said to have lost $20,000 in his pool-rooms venture in Chicago within the past ten days, and will likely shut up shop and come to San Francisco at an early date.

An English writer states that the cost of maintaining English racecourses and training and breeding establishments, is not less than $4,000,000,000 per year. This is exclusive of over $1,500,000 a year, which is paid in added money by the clubs in stakes for winning horses.

A match at half a mile has been made between Tea Rose II and Leora, the gray Oregon whirlwind. Tea Rose is to carry 95 pounds, Leora 105 or 110, at the owner's option. The race is to come off this afternoon if the track is fast. The association hangs up $400 for the race, which should be a wonderfully good and fast one.

Morinel made the thirteenth Morello two-year-old to win this season. She is the fourth of Sunlit's foals to prove victorious on the turf. Both Morinel and Sunlit will be disposed of by auction next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange. Sunlit has a Morello colt at her side and is safe in foal to the great Musket horse, Artillery.

The New York Spirit of the Times acknowledges the importance of California as a winter racing point by giving Henry Forssland, their San Francisco correspondent, six columns of space in the last issue. The matter was exceeding interesting even to those on the ground, and would prove especially attractive to one that had never visited the Golden State and consequently knew naught of the scale of magnificence on which racing is carried on in the land by the sunset sea.

SUBSCRIPTION

NEXT MONDAY NIGHT'S SALE.

Yearlings by Imp. Duncombe, Imp. Golden Garter, Imp. Watercress, Darriwell, Nomad, Verano, Emperor of Norfolk, Fitz James and Tenny to Pass Under the Hammer at the Occidental Horse Exchange, This City.

There have been some good-looking young thoroughbreds sold here this winter, but the best-looking and best-bred yearlings ever offered in California will be sold to the highest bidders next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange. This is saying a good deal, isn't it? But when you see the baby racers and look over their pedigrees you will declare: "Well, the assertion was absolutely correct."

The yearlings were bred at the Oneonta Stud Farm, established by the late Simeon G. Reed, near Pasadena, Cal. Mr. Reed was a multi-millionaire who loved a good horse. He was one of the best judges of equine conformation in America and made a study of the breeding problem. The results of that study have been shown to great advantage, for every colt or filly from Oneonta Farm that has ever aced the barrier has won. Four Duncombes started in America, and every one has been returned a winner. In England this season four by this great horse won $5,700. His winners in America (all two year-olds) were: Brier Hill (who beat Cogmoosey and other cracks at a mile in 1:41¾), Spunwell (a winner here and at the East), Toto and Al Koran (both winners on the same day at Oakland last week).

Imp. Duncombe, who sired the largest number of yearlings in the Oneonta Stud Farm's consignment, was one of the fastest horses that ever stepped upon a race track. He beat the best horses in England and ran a mile over a turf course in 1:37 1-5. Only two horses in turf history ever ran as fast in a race—the renowned Bendigo and Brag—and as Duncombe is from the same male line as the unbeaten St. Simon, St. Cerf, and Galopin in England and the great Billet (sire of Miss Woodford, Barnes, Elias Lawrence and Volturno) in America, it is not to be wondered at that he is such a wonderful sire of gallopers. The third dam of Duncombe, Songstress, by Irish Birdcatcher, won the Oaks of 1852, while her dam, Cyprian by Partisan won the Oaks in 1836. The pictures of several of Duncombe's sons and daughters appear in this issue, and they look like Derby-winners.

The Duncombe—Hymn of Praise colt is a gem, and if a fault is to be found with him we know not where to locate it. Others are with us in our fancy and pronounce him the best looking colt ever offered at auction in this country.

Some like the black colt by imp. Watercress—Everglade beter than the Hymn of Praise colt, and certainly he is a beautifully-built, racy-appearing fellow, with steely-looking legs that should carry him to the front in many a grand race.

The brown filly by imp. Duncombe from Eye Sweet, by Galopin, is pronounced a superb individual, and she is, to our minds, about the best bred filly in America. Her granddam is by the famous Springfield, sire of imp. Watercress, Johnny Morgan, Carrick, &c., and the dam of the great triple crown winner, Galtee More. From this filly's dam's family came Alice Hawthorne (winner of Goodwood and Doncaster cups), Hauteur (winner 1,000 guineas), Thorman by (winner of the Derby, &c), Oulston and May Bloom.

The Tenny colt out of imp. Fun (dam of Big Strive and Playful) will elicit some lively bidding. This fellow comes from the same family as did Pero Gomez (winner of St. Leger) and Saunterer, (winner of several great cup races of England), and Tenny is already a successful sire. One of his colts (David Tenny) twice ran a mile in 1:40 this season within two weeks.

The imp. Golden Garter—Miss Pickwick chestnut colt, half-brother to the good El Moro, is a race horse sure, if looks count for anything. His sire has more classic stake-winners in his pedigree than any horse in the world, was a grand race horse himself and a half-brother to Sainfoin, winner of the Derby. The dam, Miss Pickwick, was by imp. Mr. Pickwick, a son of Derby-winner Hermit and Tomato, winner of the 1,000 Guineas and Ascot stakes. Someone will have to bid high to get this fellow.

The bay colt numbered 13 on the catalogue is an own brother to Toto (a winner last week at Oakland), and a half-brother to Fig Leaf, winner of seven races and $2,280 last season. This colt's dam comes from the same family as Bramble, Preakness, Niagara and the great Bay Flower.

The Nomad colt out of Royal Purple, a sister to the great Ludwig, is a young giant, and has not only a sturdy make-up, but looks every inch a turf monarch. He will bring good money.

The bay or brown filly by imp. Golden Garter from Saline, by imp. Darebin, is bred to suit us, her sire coming from the leading English sire line, her dam from the famous Dance family that had for members Domino, Glidelia, Los Angeles, Lucky Dog, Reel and Lecompte.

Then there is a brown colt by Duncombe from Scarlet Letter, of the famous Levity family, from which came Salvator, Luke, Blackburn, The Bard, Longstreet, Volturno, Leonatus and more turf kings and queens than any in America.

Then there are others—a bay filly by Emperor of Norfolk from The Truant, by imp. Sir Modred, and from the family of Harry of the West, Fanny Cheatham, Miss Cody and Memento—and a grand-looking black colt by imp. Duncombe—imp. Victress (dam of Victress) by Goldsbrough; second dam by Victorious, who sired the dam of the great American horse, Kingston.

Had Mr. Reed lived these youngsters would never have been offered at auction, for it was that gentleman's ambition to win the Derby, England's blue ribbon event, and they would have been shipped to England with that object in view. Certainly, with such great stallions and mares, Mr. Reed might well expect to have a Derby-winner come from his beautiful Oneonta Farm, and we shall look to see the sale of next Monday night the blue ribbon one of the season.

REZOT.

IMP. DUNCOMBE
(Who ran a mile in 1:37 1-5 over a turf track.)
Sire of several yearlings to be sold next Monday night.

Kentucky Derby, Clark Stake and Oaks Entries.

Secretary Price has completed his compilation of the entries to the Kentucky Derby, Clark Stakes and Kentucky Oaks for 1899. These are the famous annual fixed events of Churchill Downs, the nominations to which closed last month. The showing made is a splendid one, there being a total of 390 entries. The Derby has 151, the Clark Stakes 136, and the Oaks 109. This is a phenomenal list when it is considered that nearly all of the yearling sales this season were held in the East and at Chicago, and is a flattering tribute not only to the popularity of the Louisville Jockey Club, but to the excellent condition of these stakes. Before Secretary Price took charge and remodeled these stakes, several years ago, the entry list to all three of these stakes only numbered 160. The Derby alone for next year has more than that while that for 1899 has nearly as many.

John E. Madden, the owner of the famous Hamburg, is the largest nominator, having entered fifteen in the Derby, fifteen in the Clark, and two in the Oaks. John W. Schorr comes next with a total of twenty-seven in the three stakes. Following is a list of the heaviest nominators:

	Derby.	Clark.	Oaks.	T.
J. E. Madden	15	15	2	32
John W. Schorr	12	13	3	28
Bauer & Co	6	6	7	19
W. F Schulte	4	4	6	14
Geo. J. Long	5	6	3	14
W. S. Barnes	4	1	5	10
E. F. Simms	3	3	4	10
W. E. Applegate & Co	5	4	2	10
Scoggan Bros	3	3	3	9
E. Corrigan	3	3	3	9
Caesar Young	3	3	3	9
Stanton & Tucker	3	3	2	8

Other prominent nominators are Fleischmann & Son, Baker & Gentry, Green B. Morris, T. W. Coulter, J. E. Cushing, G. C. Bennett, Ed Brown (Brown Dick), H. R. Durham, E. S. Gardner & Son, T. C. McDowell, L. P. Tarlton, Clay & Woodford, W. H. Laudeman, Woodford & Buck-

An Object Lesson to Consignors and Buyers at Public Sales.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 30, 1897,

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Last spring I collected a consignment of trotting-bred animals for Wm. B. Fasig & Co.'s Blue Ribbon May sale. I had consigned twenty-six head and completed arrangements with the railroad people to ship, but at the eleventh hour, when about to load, to my amazement I discovered that I had but thirteen head, as some of my consignors had withdrawn their stock. At this I shouted to my men, 'its all off,' I must defer this loading and shipping for another day, but I must load another animal for I could write a column of that Jonah (thirteen) ten feet long." At this a gentleman took compassion upon me and told some of the by-standers he would get another animal for me to blot out that Jonah (number thirteen). I had sent to the farm of Wm. Meese for a three-year-old chestnut filly of mine to make up a lucky number to start on that long and tedious journey, but as this filly arrived at the depot, I saw that she was unbroken. Very thin in flesh with long hair and covered with all kinds of insects. I washed her with a prepared drug wash and walked her about in the warm sun until she dried off and then brushed her off. There were millions of dead insects to be seen on the ground where she stood. Then she was loaded for the trip as it was my intention to locate at Cleveland and join my good friend, Mr. Fasig, in business in that city. I thought I would keep this filly for my own driving. Just before time for the train to leave the depot the gentleman returned with a black pig in a box and said: he would see that there was no Jonah in that consignment of stock. The pig afterwards was widely known as Micky-the-Pig, and attracted a great deal of attention all along the route and at the sale, on my arrival at Cleveland. After I had been in that city about two weeks I satisfied myself there were no inducements for the Gamble family to locate there, so I started in to break this filly and shape her for that coming sale, and I never saw in my long experience in the horse business any animal do so well, all around, as she did. I knew that it was hardly expected to get one sixteenth part of her value at the sale, as I could not show the public the value I could see in her future. Just before the sale I made a statement to Mr. Fasig and another gentleman that this filly was the best animal in the six days' sale and as I did not intend to remain in that city I must sacrifice her by not getting the freight and expenses back for what she would bring. I cannot now recall such a grand-looking, all-around young mare ever taken out of this glorious, horse-producing State as this filly, Edna Rose, looked, as she was led into the ring at Cleveland. She was knocked down, after a hard struggle, by Mr. Fasig and Auctioneer Bain at $125. About an hour later a horse tout came to me and said that the person who bought Edna Rose would not take her and that he could induce him to take her providing that I pay him ten dollars as his capping commission. "Not one cent," was my reply to this noted tout. So the result was, this filly was resold the next day, and like all cases of this kind when resold, a person cannot expect, as a rule, one-half of the price she previously brought. So this filly was sold for eighty paper dollars, and my expense on her, up to the time she was sold, was $129, at this it cost me $49 for the privilege of getting rid of this grand young mare. About four weeks ago I received a letter from the gentleman who bought her saying that he had given her but little track work, yet she had shown him a quarter in 34 seconds, a half in 1:11, and that for him to be induced to part with her would require a long price. I have since learned that she worked lately a quarter in 32½ seconds and a half in 1:08. Such a showing, if true, is marvelous, considering that her breaking commenced May 1st last, and at that time she was in a very weak condition. It shows also that a man takes great chances in placing any young animal at a sale without showing its merit and also that sometimes the great long-shot the buyer is getting when he buys at a public sale.

Yours,
SAMUEL GAMBLE.

Breed to the Best.

If roadsters are what a breeder decides to raise he should patronize the best roadster stallion that he can find, one, if young and untried, whose ancesters on both sides were noted roadsters, says the "Horse Breeder." If fast trotters are desired breed to the best representative of that family which produced fast trotters with the greatest uniformity. All things being equal, it is always safest and best to select animals of the most perfect conformation, that have sufficient size, are of a desirable color and are sound. Some animals, however, are so much superior to others as trotting sires that the breeder can afford to overlook certain defects and infirmities.

Pilot Medium is an excellent illustration of this. A horseman one stated in the presence of the writer that he went to examine the horse at one time with a view to breeding to to him. If we remember correctly he found that the horse had a spavin, and rejected him. He is probably sorry now that he did not overlook that defect, for he is by far the most successful sire of race winners that Happy Medium ever got.

A gentleman whose opportunities of knowing the facts were sufficient to entitle his statement to implicit belief lately informed us that Ethan Allen (2:25¼) once suffered from ringbone, and was operated upon by the late Dr. Wood, father of Dr. R. C. Wood of Lowell, yet Ethan Allen was by far the best son of Vermont Black Hawk, and Ethan's son, Daniel Lambert, one of the best stock horses in the north in his day.

Large, sound, handsome, unblemished mares are, as a rule, the most desirable for brood purposes. Still the dam of Rysdyk's Hambletonian was a cripple, made so undoubtedly by hard usage upon the road. There were doubtless many good, sound mares mated with Abdallah, yet his produce from this cripple, the Charles Kent Mare, proved of greater value to the world than the produce from all the other mares with which he was ever mated.

Clara, a crippled daughter of Seely's American Star, a small animal with one hip down and a spavin besides, was mated with Rysdyk's Hambletonian, the famous son of the crippled Charles Kent Mare, and the result was Dexter (2 17¼), the world's champion trotter in his day. The proprietors of the breeding farms of the present day would not accept as a gift two such mares as the Charles Kent Mare and Clara were when they were put to breeding. That wonderfully speedy pacer Pocahontas (2:17½) was so crippled with curbs when young, that when lying down she could no; get up alone. This did not prevent her in after years from becoming the fastest pacer on earth, and the progenitor of many very fast and valuable trotters and pacers.

Beulah, the cam of Beuzetta (2:06¾), Early Bird (2:10), etc., is blind, is now sixteen years old, and her dam was by a thoroughbred, yet she was recently sold for $2,000, and will undoubtedly prove a good investment to the purchaser.

The animals named above, though imperfect, possessed the essential qualities necessary for extreme speed and successful racing in so high a degree that they were much more valuable than most of the perfect ones that can be found. Had the advice so freely given by most writers to breed only to sound, perfect animals been followed. Ethan Allen (2:25¼) Pilot Medium and the mares above mentioned excepting Beulah would never have been tested. There would have been no Rysdyk's Hambletonian, no Dexter (2:17¼), no Dictator, no Axtell (2:12) and the Pilot Boy (2:09½).

It requires judgment, natural horse sense to select them, but there are many mares which most breeders of fashionable trotting stock would not have on their farms, and would look upon with derision, that at some future time will be known as the dams of faster performers than those for which these same breeders are anxious to secure for ewice as many thousands of dollars as the other class will bring hundreds.

It does not follow that because animals name proved so successful, unsound or blemished mares are more likely to produce valuable offspring than sound, unblemished ones. It was the valuable qualities which those mares and stallions inherited and possessed that made their offspring great, in spite of the infirmities of their ancestors. The animals in which these valuable qualities are found in the highest degree are the ones most likely to transmit them with uniformity. If the animals in which they are found are sound and smooth, so much the better, but if the qualities exist in unsound or blemished animals it may not be wise to discard them.

THE necessity for every member of the P. C. T. H. B. Association attending the meeting next Monday is apparent to everyone who has any interest in the success of the light harness horse of California. Important matters will be considered at that meeting.

TRAINER JAMES MCCORMICK is fearful that Mt. McGregor will never again face the barrier. He has a badly bowed tendon. Caspar is also in a bad way with his ankles. These were two of the fastest horses owned by Burns & Waterhouse.

ANNUAL MEETING P. C. T. H. B. A. } Next Monday, December 6th at 1 P. M.

22½ Geary street, office of the Secretary, will be held the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Notices were sent to the members that the meeting would be held at 8 P. M., of that day, but it was decided by the directors, Wednesday last, that it would be better to have the meeting in the afternoon.

It is of the greatest importance that there should be a full attendance as it is beyond question that the coming season will be a momentous year in Pacific Coast harness racing.

There is a prevailing feeling that the experiences of 1897 have a tendency to show that trotting and pacing contests have lost their hold on the people of this Coast.

There was some ground for the belief inasmuch as at most of the meetings where harness racing was not supplemented by other attractions there were losses. The four meetings, under the supervision of "The Breeders," were certainly an indication that pecuniary losses were inevitable. The two meetings held on the California Jockey Club track appear to endorse the opinion that a harness-racing meeting cannot be held in San Francisco, and at which purses that will attract good horses are given, without a big discrepancy between the debit and credit side of the account. Were there nothing to show save the figures that are set opposite profit and loss, no other explanation than the numerals that typify the receipts and expenditures, there would be no other course than to acquiesce in the charge that "harness racing has played out." But even the figures that express outgoes in excess of incomes will present cues, which, if duly considered and acted upon, will be beneficial. A careful study of the secretary's accounts—and these are so well kept that a neophyte in figures can understand them—will prove that some expenses can be reduced without detriment, others, perhaps, increased with advantage.

The problem presented, however, is: How shall the receipts be augmented? What can be done to secure a favorable balance?

Not from the owners, the burden already imposed on them is a heavy one, as the figures will show. Some two-thirds of the amounts paid in purses contributed by those who furnish the entertainment. At the four meetings held by the Breeders $28,300 paid in purses, $18,687 received in entrance money.

"Dollars at the Gate," said C. J. Hamlin, when asked from what source he expected to secure the ten and twenty-thousand dollar purses he hung up, and that reply covers the ground. The value of the "privileges" depends on the attendance, and every dollar taken for admission tickets means something additional from the visitor At least from a majority of the spectators. There is one unfailing attraction viz. the stars of the equine stage, but there are also drawbacks connected with the "show" and it has been proved by several of the Eastern meetings, that success can be secured without them. The greatest harness racing meeting of the year, in fact of any year, was that of the Kentucky Trotting-Horse Breeders' Association, and the big guns of the tracks were not present. The Cleveland Association has always refused to countenance these exhibitions and has been uniformly successful.

To bring in the dollars at the gate a reasonable expectation of a good contest, and there must be more than reasonable faith in the judges enforcing the law, especially the statutes enacted to ensure "square racing."

It will not do to ignore public opinion by attempting to deny what is beyond question the truth, or endeavor to gloss over what ninety per cent of the racegoers are well aware should serve for stricter enforcement of the laws thereafter.

A lack of confidence in the integrity of those connected with the sport is the main cause of the small attendance at harness racing meetings held in the vicinity of San Francisco.

When it is fully assured that, so far as lays in the power of those in charge, would-be violators of the law will be checked, and attempted rascality punished with inexorable firmness, there will be a wonderful augmentation of the gate receipts.

Before introducing an illustration I emphatically declare that I have the utmost confidence in the judges who officiated at the Summer and Fall meetings of the Association. Further than that expression of confidence I can sincerely state that, in my opinion, the gentleman who presided at these meetings will make one of the best and most efficient judges in this or any other country, now that he has had more experience in the movements of drivers who are adepts in the art of "making believe," but in order to present the case in such a light as will demand attention the past must be drawn, and that in lines that will form a true picture.

The gate receipts at the Fall Meeting fell short rather more than forty per cent of those at the Summer meeting, notwithstanding the meagreness of the returns at the first meeting, the purses at the Summer Meeting agregated $6,927 50, at the Fall Meeting $10,158 50. There were additions to the fast brigade at the Fall Meeting but there were also causes that decreased the interest though is is unquestionable that want of confidence was the main reason for the falling off.

The most conspicuous example that was shown was a horse that trotted in a field of six starters 6-6-3 at Emeryville in 2:12½, 2:13¼, 2:14 and at the next meeting, Marysville, won in straight heats 2:11¼, 2:12, 2:12.

That and other reversals of form might be accounted for, perhaps, on another hypothesis than guilty intent, but the owner of the horse alluded to when taken to task by the reporter of a daily paper for the in and-out work, acknowledged that his horse was laid up, claiming, however, that the judges granted him such a permission. The assertion, notoriously false on its face, when coupled with other appearances of wrong doing, and these intensified by later events, made speculators wary and cast a shadow that could not be dispelled.

And now the question is appropriate and pertinent: What action can the members of the P. C. T. H. B. A. take to overcome this lack of confidence?

By passing a resolution that rule 28 be enforced and its mandate obeyed. That is the foundation of honest racing, and when it is made compulsory upon drivers to follow its provisions; never a heat laid up, never a race thrown. Embodied in such a resolution, or separately proposed, a request that the other associations join with the Breeders in securing the services of an official to preside at all the meetings in the circuit to be paid a good salary, a sum sufficient to secure the right man to accept the position.

The starter has an important position, one that requires peculiar qualities to fill the place as it should be, and I am far from underrating the office by stating that more depends on the presiding judges than the starter; that a weak administration of the law is infinitely a greater prejudice to the interests depending than getting the horses off satisfactorily. It has been suggested that a man from a distance should be secured, the argument being that there would be less danger of a display of favoritism. I prefer a home official, and if he will accept the position I have the utmost confidence that the gentleman heretofore alluded to will fill the position admirably.

Thorough knowledge of the rules, urbane and yet determined, a practical horseman, a good deal of experience, and it is safe to say that the experience of the last season has added so much to his knowledge of what is necessary for the good of harness-racing that it may be truthfully said he has graduated at the head of his class.

There is such uniformity in the choice for the next president of the association that there is scarcely an opposing voice.

Not a single dissentent, in fact, for though the names of others have been discussed, all of them capital men for the place, when thorough consideration was awarded, Hon. D. F. Knight meets the heartiest approval from all who are connected with harness horses, and equally as hearty from those who are merely spectators at the races.

So well known that it is unnecesary to do more than to mention his name, as a presentation of all his good qualities would require columns of closely printed matter. One of these requirements I cannot omit mentioning, holding it paramount, the chief above all others, that being a rigid determination that harness-racing shall be conducted in a way that will remove—as far as it is possible to accomplish the object, everything that will bring it in disrepute.

In order to correct the impression that his residence Marysville, being so far away from the centre as to interfere with the duties connected with the office, it is only necessary to state, that rarely—not more than once ar twice, in the six years of his directorship was he absent from meetings of the Board.

A PRETTY STORY !!! The following story, legend, tale or whatever title may be given is copied from the Eastern Department of the Western Horseman. En passant, it may be well to state that the Western Horseman is one of the staunchest supporters of the rule againat laying up heats, and the hero of the tale can depend that his admission will not meet the approval of the editor.

And then, too, it may have originated in the fertile brain of a "hoss-reporter," and that when Captain Boyce sees it in print he will at once "purge" himself for a violation of two laws. "Throwing a race" rendering him subject to one penalty, and when the danger of that had passed, then he was liable to the penalty of telling that he threw it.

But there is such a craving to get up something spicy for columns, horsey, in the papers, that I would be loath to take the longest kinds of odds that the story was even "founded on facts."

Another paper received this week contained a paragraph that I am fully convinced was a misconception.

According to that in mentioning a noted California filly it is stated: "Her mark was not desired, but was obtained in a heat which she could not help winning, and no effort was made to give her a record near where she could go."

The implication is certainly unwarranted, as it is beyond question that she never started in a heat with any other intention than winning if she could. The meaning of the person who gave the information was, without any doubt, that she could have trotted faster than she had to win.

Not long ago a letter appeared in a Western paper that could a race have been won without obtaining a mark which would destroy the horses eligibility for the 2:20 class he would have won it, that he won one heat in 2:19½, could pace in 2:15 on a half-mile track and 2:10 on a mile track. The owner's name was signed to the communication and is another proof of the low grade of ethics that prevail in some connected with horse sports.

Not so surprising after all when papers and prominent writers uphold practices akin to that which forms the basis of the appended tid-bit.

One of the men who can appreciate a good joke and who enjoys telling it is Capt. W. H. Boyce, driver of the pacing mare, Bright Light, 2:08¾. During the meeting at Fort Erie last summer Capt. Boyce, while chatting with some fellow drivers in the hotel one evening, told how he tried to fool the public, but was found out by his eight-year-old son. Somewhere out west Capt Boyce started Bright Light, just intending to give her an easy race as she had not been keyed up for a hard contest. The younger Boyce, although only eight years old, is a genuine horse lover and Bright Light was the idol of his heart. He had jogged her and in company with his father had driven her at speed. He was always present when she was worked out and he really had obtained a pretty good line on the mare's ability. Capt. Boyce did not think it necessary to tell the boy anything about his plans for the race, and the younger consequently expected Bright Light to win hands down. The boy occupied a seat in the grandstand with his mother. Boyce went away in good shape and kept well up to the leaders until well into the stretch, when finding the clip was pretty fast he began taking her back. The sharp eyes of the younger Boyce were on his father, and no sooner did the mare begin to fall back than he bawled out to his mother in heart-broken tones, which could be heard all over the stand: "Mama! Mama! Papa is pulling Bright Light! Papa is pulling Bright Light!" The occupants of the grandstand took in the situation and before night nearly every horseman on the ground had informed Boyce that he had better leave that boy at home the next time he desired to pull Bright Light.

AL HANKINS.—The following, cut from some paper unknown to me, does not do justice to the man if even it is in the main eulogistic, and fairly correct. While Al might be termed an all-round sport he was also a true sportsman, and the title, which in this country is held to be derogatory, fairly applied, perhaps, was so much overbalanced by sterling qualities that it could be thrown aside in favor of the better term. A good deal after the pattern of the old-time sportsman, not a sport that Mr. Hankins did not delight in and handy at all. Indoors or out he was equally at home, and whether whist or poker, faro or cribbage, or any other games in which cards figured, an expert. Eminently fair, however, a trickster met prompt punishment who attempted any crookedness where Al had control. As stated in the cutting he was fond of field sports and had few superiors in the field if even he could not class with Kleinman or Bogardus at the traps.

Some truth and a good deal of guesswork in the account of his connection with horses. Not at all likely that he was offered Ten Broeck for $600, as a son of Fanny Holton and imp. Phaeton would not have been allowed to pass at a far larger figure. When Fanny Holton was a two-year-old I offered John Harper $3,000 without success and had to take an Endorser filly in her place.

It was nearly twenty years after Marion was foaled when he became the owner of Malcolm. I sold him to Mr.——— a German in 1872, and when some fifteen years after he heard that he was not well cared for he bought him in order that he should have good treatment the rest of his days. Marion ran third in a stake for two-year olds at Chicago and a few days after won a match for me of $1,000. against the crack Vic—Mamona filly. I brought her and five other thoroughbreds to California in 1874, and when preparing her for a three-mile race on the Bay District in 1876 she went hopelessly wrong I sold her to Mr. Winters for many times $175, though confident that she was the making of one of the greatest broodmares, and worth many times what I got for her. A singular injury. She went very lame after her work on the Oakland track. The injury could not be located, though there were good reasons to think that a wing of the coffin bone was broken off.

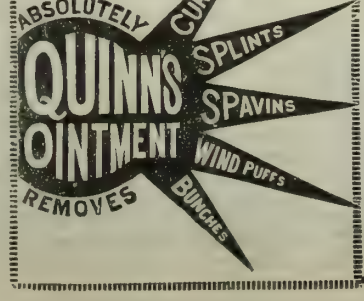
She was laid up for a long time, but was working so well that I had the highest expectations of her winning the race. Her grandam Charmer has sixteen consecutive victories at three miles, or heats of three miles, so that with her good work there was a solid foundation for the belief. Again she went without warning, never a swollen leg or feverish symptoms, and, in all probability, there was another break of the pedal bone.

Al bought quite a number of gamecocks that were bred on Rancho del Paso by George Poorman. The California birds won him many matches, and seldom lost a battle.

That "Al," as he was universally called, enjoyed the friendship of many of the foremost men in Chicago, was due to his straightforward course in pursuits, and on occasions, when that quality is oftentimes thrown aside. A warm friend, companionable, entertaining, thousands will regret his untimely end.

Al Hankins was an all around sport. The ambition of his life had been to have a farm of his own, and when years ago he bought and stocked his place down in Indiana he practically retired from gambling, although recently in this he became again engaged.

At his farm everything was of the best—horses, cattle, dogs, chickens being of the up-to-date breeds.



In his early youth he was a sprinter, and when in Montana won many a footrace against the Indians. Returned to Chicago, he could hold his own with a shotgun with such men as the Kleinmans and Lon Haskell, at that time the crack pigeon shots of Michigan. Cockfighting was a hobby of his, and to-day at the farm can be seen as good a breed of gamecocks as the State can produce, although Al fought shy of breeding the Japanese variety of fowl.

He somewhat fancied pugilism in the way of backing local men, and was behind Billy Myers at North Judson in the draw with Jack McAuliffe for the lightweight championship.

Billiards he cared little for, but was a backer of pool players.

It was as a horseman that Al Hankins was best known. Away back in the '70's he went to Kentucky and there bought a gray horse named Crockford, a son of Lightning, and who, a credit to his sire, could go like a flash. His second trip to the Blue Grass region resulted in the purchase of Aramis for $1,500 of John Harper. The colts were running in the pasture and the old breeder tried to saddle off on Hankins an uncouth specimen at $600. But Al thought he knew a thing or two about horses and bought Aramis. The colt he refused was Tenbroeck, the first horse to beat 2:40 for a mile, and still the holder of the two-mile record, 3,27½.

Athanio 2:10 sold for $2800 last week at auction in New York

The Fasig sale in New York was concluded last Wednesday and was a grand success.

The Putnam Nails are the choice of all horsemen in California. Every horse shoer uses them.

Woodburn will breed no more thoroughbreds. It will confine its attention in future to the trotters alone.

Marcus Daly's colts won $15,575 all told the past season. China Silk and Limerick were "the stable."

The horses to be shipped East from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm are good ones, and should bring high prices.

Mary Nelson, by Nelson, 2:09, dam by Electricity, 2:17¾, is a new one for the Northern King with a mark of 2:23¾.

Stamboul, 2:07¾, received the much coveted ribbon as the champion harness horse at the New York Horse Show.

Prince Lavallard, 2:16¼, the grey son of Lavallard, was one of the most "useful" trotters campaigned on Eastern tracks the past season.

Emily 2:11 a chestnut mare by Prince Regent sold for $4,200 to J. A. Murphy of Chicago at the New York sale. Mr. Murphy owns Star Pointer 1:59¼.

A section of the New York speedway a little over a mile long has been opened to the public, and it is declared to be as perfect as a new road can possibly be.

Oregon has bred two world's champions in the light harness horse, Chehalis (p), two miles, 4:19¼, and Blondie, trotting, two miles stallion race record, 4:48.

The filly Alla, 2:21½, by Advertiser, recently purchased by W. J. White, owner of the Two-Minute Farm, may be trained next season as she is said to be able to beat 2:15.

Ed. Tipton says that $123,000 was the total sum that went through the pool box on the Transylvania. Of this amount Andy Welch had up $29,000 and N. W. Hubinger $20,000.

To get to the Occidental Horse Exchange take Market street car, transfer to Third street cars going south. The Ellis street cars go to Fourth and Howard. The Howard street cars from the ferries pass the door.

Daisy Dean, the dam of Ella T., 2:08¼, and grandam of Klickitat Maid, 2:19, died at Vancouver, Washington, last Sunday. The little grey mare was given a respectable burial in the center field of the race track.

Messrs. Tuttle Bros., of Rocklin have purchased the handsome bay mare Belle Medium, 2:20 (dam of Stam B., 2:11¼), by Happy Medium from T. M. Day of the Belmont Stock Farm. Belle Medium is heavy with foal to Dictatus, 2:21.

Lola Montez (2:30 in America), by Warlock, recently won a ten-mile (less 100 yards) race, at Vienna, Austria, over a heavy track, in 28:37. The American ten-mile record is Con roller's, 27:23¼, which makes Lolo's performance a rare good one.

In the past three months the National Trotting Association has recovered over $3 500, unlawful winnings, from the owners of ringers. A portion of it has been redristributed, the balance being held subject to the action of the Board of Review at its meeting in New York, December 7th.

One of the best trained horses in the world is Cupid, the saddle stallion recently shipped to Japan for the Mikado. He is a handsome five-year-old bay, and was raised in Kentucky. At the horse show in Lexington last spring [the best judges pronounced Cupid the highest type of saddle stallion.

Dividing the new 2:10 performers into family groups it appears that twenty-seven of the sixty-nine belonging to the list trace to George Wilkes in the male line. The next highest family groups are Electioneer with eight, Mambrino Patchen with four, Woodford Mambrino with three. These are the only families having over two.

Islandena, the yearling filly (full sister to Martica, 2:24½) by Island Wilkes, 2:13¾, and out of Lillian Stanford, by Whips, won first prize in a field of ten at the National Horse Show last week, beating some of the best youngsters ever shown. She is owned by Messrs. Edward Willetts & Son, of Roslyn, L. I., who also own her sire and dam.

The bay mare Lea Hickson, 2:24½, which made such a successful campaign in Connecticut in 1896, has been identified as Gean Bruce, 2:26, by Col. Bruce, that took a mark of 2:26 at Red Oak, Iowa, in 1893. All of her unlawful winnings have been recovered by the National Trotting Association, and will be redistributed as soon as the case has been submitted to the Board of Review.

It is said that no stallion ever exhibited with his get at a horse show in the United States made such a magnificent showing as Chimes did last Thursday at Madison Square garden, New York, when he was declared champion trotting stallion. The Monk, 2:08¼, the world's champion trotting gelding; The Abbot, 2:11¼, Emily Chimes and Empress Chimes were the members of his family shown with Chimes, and no stallion ever made such a strong bid for the judges' favor before.

Eureka, Nov. 27.—There was a harness race today at South Park, in which the starters were four horses with State reputations. Laventhal Ottmer's pacer, Jack W., 2:12¾: Noble's Iora, 2:14; Sweasey's Eureka, 2:15¼; P. Quinn's Arthur W., 2:15½, and Hurlbutt's Fitz Aymon. Jack W. was the favorite in the opening pools, selling at $5 to $4 on Iora with others in the field at $4 to $4 50. The track was a trifle heavy. Arthur W. won the first, second and fourth heats in 2:19, 2:21, 2:21. Iora won the third heat in 2:21.

Malheur county, Or., is probably entitled to the credit, or rather the discredit, of being the home of the most brutal horseman on record. A race meeting was held at Jordan Valley, a beautiful little town at the foot of the Owyhee mountains, a few days ago, and one of the starters in a running race was an honest old horse named McGinty, owned by a man named A. McMahon. McGinty was left at the post, and because the judges would not have the race run over, McMahon deliberately drew his revolver and put a bullet in the brain of the poor dumb animal.

Almonarch, the Almont stallion who had for his dam the thoroughbred mare Hi, by Asteroid, is becoming famous through the doings of his daughters in the stud. Fantasy, 2:06, Joe Mooney, 2:15½, Dare Devil, 2:09¾, Mandolin, 2:16, Casselton, 2:16½, Success, 2:17¼, Inez, 2:17½, Queen Lil, 2:19¼, Cora, 2:26, and Wisdom, 2:27, are all out of Almonarch mares. These performers represent Chimes, of the Electioneer blood; Golden Gateway and Sherman, of the Wilkes blood; Mambrino King and Heir-at-Law, of the Mambrino Patchen blood; Pilot Medium, of the Happy Medium strain, and Almont Jr., of their own house.

It is reported that the brown gelding, Robert Boy, 2:16¼ has been identified as Doc Sperry, 2:09, started under another name on the Northern New York tracks and also in Quebec during August and September. This horse is a brown gelding without white. He has a slim, long tail, very prominent eye, a bunch on the inside of right hind ankle, wears hobbles high up, and if he has not blinds or a sheepskin roll under his eyes, will jump over shadows. The National Trotting Association, Hartford, Conn., will be pleased to correspond with anyone who saw a horse filling this description at fall meetings in section named.

When a three-year-old trotting filly sells in the auction ring for $3,600, a pair of trotting mares for $6,200, a trotting gelding with a record of 2:11¼ for $2,000, and a trotting mare with a record of 2:13¼ for $1,700, as was the case during the opening day of the Fasig sale in New York, this week, what reason is there in the demand for trotting-bred horses. The highest-priced of the horses mentioned were bought by foreign buyers, in spite of the assertion of the Secretary of Agriculture that Americans are not breeding the kind of horses the Europeans want. The prices these fast trotters sold for are good prices, but during the past few weeks trotting-bred harness-horses have been sold for as good prices for carriage use only, without regard to speed, as a racing qualification. Surely the breeders of trotting-bred horses have reason to be satisfied with the aspect of the market for their productions.—Horse World.

Ed. A. Tipton: "I believe that the large associations all over the country make a serious mistake in making their three-year-old events for colts eligible for a certain class, thereby barring the colts that took fast records as two-year-olds, with the exception that such a course will bring them more entries. The history of the turf proves that the best three-year-olds of their respective years nearly always come from among the green ones or those with slow two-year-old records. Fantasy had no two-year-old record, yet as a three-year-old she could make everything else of her age look cheap, and the same is true of Directum in his three year-old form. Beuzetta was not considered much of a colt down around Lexington in her two-year-old form, and yet as a three-year-old she beat all the good ones. Next year they will make classes that will bar out Janie T. and Nowaday and others of that sort, and then Peter the Great and Dutchman or some other green one will prove to be the best of the year. Taking this into consideration, why wouldn't it be a good plan to make all the large three-year-old stakes and purses free for-alls- and thus insure better contests and minimize the possibility of walkovers and tame racing.

Since the improved sulky has appeared horses trot faster than they did to the old sulky, for some reason they can repeat their heats more frequently without a falling off in time than was possible with the old rig. Now we frequently see races of several heats in which the time of the latter heats are about as fast as the earlier ones. The difference must be attributed to the sulkies. While, at the average, our present horses are higher bred and consequently gamer than the average of years past, yet there was a class of high-bred ones years ago, of which Goldsmith Maid was evidently a representative, that was just as game as any of to-day. Not only did she recuperate between heats, but her ability after a desperate race to meet her opponents in even higher form a week later was something to be wondered at. When, in 1876, Smuggler beat her at Cleveland in the Grand Circuit meeting in the greatest race that has ever been trotted, the amazement and excitement all over the country were intense. A week later at Buffalo a mass of people passed through the gates to see them come together again. Goldsmith Maid had only been hardened into even higher form by the Cleveland race, while Smuggler, iron horse though he was, had retrograded under the strain, and she beat him without distress.

The long famous Wilkes-Mambrino cross will have a rival in the near future in the Wilkes-Electioneer cross. During the past season the latter cross was represented on the turf by such good performers as Refina, 2:08½; Quadriga 2:09; Bouncer, 2:10; American Belle, 2:12¼; Norvin G. 2:15¾, and the fast two-year old Cornellia Belle, 2:17½. It is noticeable, too, that Electioneer blood nicks well with Mambrino blood, as is shown by The Monk, 2:08¼; Dare Devil, 2:09¾; The Abbot, 2:11¼; Tommy Britton, 2:11¼, and Elsinora, 2:12½. Had Electioneer been mated with as many daughters of Mambrino Patchen as George Wilkes was, it is quite likely that he could have sired just as much speed from them, and had George Wilkes stood at Palo Alto under the direction of Senator Stanford, he would probably have become a famous sire without the assistance of Mambrino blood. Mambrino Patchen mares are generally credited with producing George Wilkes' greatest sons, but it remains to be seen whether one of his sons out of a mare not by Mambrino Patchen will not eventually prove the greatest of them. Hambletonian's "nick," so-called, was with daughters of American Star, but his four greatest sons were out of mares not of Star blood. Daughters of Gen. Benton were for a time regarded as the proper "nick" for Electioneer, but it can be safely predicted that the greatest sons of that horse will not have Benton mares for dams. In nearly all cases where some horse is found to have "nicked" well with daughters of some one sire it will be found that he was bred to a great many more of those mares than to those of other breeding, and that is all there is to what is called a "nick,"

Eureka, November 27.—More than usual interest was taken in the trotting race at South Park this afternoon, and there was a large attendance of horsemen and others from all parts of the county. It was a harness race, three in five, for a purse of $300. Five horses started, Lowenthal & Ottmer's pacer, Jack W., 2:12¾ Noble's Iora, 2:14; Sweasy's Eureka, 2:15¼; P. Quinn's Arthur W., 2:15½, and Hurlbutt's Fitz Aymon. Jack W was favorite in the opening pools, selling at $5 to $4 on Iora, with the others in the field at $4 to $4.50. Arthur W. won the first, second and fourth heats. Time, 2:19, 2:21, 2:21. Iora won the third heat in 2:21. Jack W. came in a close second in the first and second heats.

After Regalo had sold for $1.850, Valance for $2,025, Athanio for $2,800 and Emily for $4,200 at Madison Square Garden on Tuesday, Mr. Robert Steel, of Philadelphia, remarked to Mr. Albert C. Hall, of Woodburn Grange: "The tide seems to have turned. We are getting back to a sound basis. Why not, when so few people are now engaged in breeding the light harness horse?" Mr. Steel has been in business a long time, has often seen the tide rise and fall, and his opinion on this is that of and expert. Europe is making heavy demands on our light harness stock, and insists upon the best. The revival of road riding is making other demands, and the supply of horses that possess speed, conformation and good heads is continually growing shorter. The result of the sales demonstrates that breeding is getting on its feet again.—Turf, Field and Farm.

There is no doubt that old Sam Purdy enriched a great many Virginia farmers and horse breeders during his stud career in that State, for he not only got game race horses with speed and stamina, but hundreds of good, reliable roadsters that sold for paying prices and did well in their work. Recently a writer in an Eastern journal happened to meet Sam Purdy's old groom, who related some things about that remarkably prepotent sire worth repeating. He said Purdy was an unusually sluggish horse and needed sharp applications of the persuader to induce him to do his level best. Until the celebrated Charley C., 2:13½, trotting, began to go fast, breeders around about Harrisonburg, Va., where Purdy stood, were not impressed with his merits as a sire. Purdy was a gift to his owner, Dangerfield, from his brother-in-law, the well-known wheat and stock speculator, "Jim" Keene, of New York. Keene was always inclined to be generous with his friends when he had turned a big trick on 'change, and it was while in one of these moods that he proposed to make Dangerfield a present of a few thousand dollars. The latter urged that if he was inclined to present him with anything that he present him with Sam Purdy. This Keene did, and Purdy not only enriched Dangerfield, but, to a more or less extent, every farming community in Virginia in which he did service. Charley C.'s growing fame put a premium on all Purdys that were old enough to wear harness, no matter how their dams were bred. Whether the mares were good, bad or indifferent, all of the old horse's get seemed to possessed more or less speed. Miss Woodford, 2:09¾, pacing, was the fastest of his get, but Purdy had not a few in the 2:20 list, trotting, besides Charley C. All Philadelphia track patrons will remember John Mariner's Prince Purdy, 2:15, who was in size a mere pony, and who in the summer of 1895 was quite a sensation on the Eastern tracks. Prince Purdy was a son of Princeps, his dam being a single-footing mare by Purdy. Prince Purdy was bred by a farmer near Frederick, Md., who used him as a saddle pony. He was purchased by a Washington man for $125 in the summer of 1892 and was knocked about the streets for a long time, but no one wanted the little runt. He could go every gait known, but neither gait any distance. Finally he passed into the hands of a Georgetown man for a small sum, when he began to trot a little. Before snow flew he could trot a mile in 2-25. He suddenly became the wonder of the town. Mariner, of Norfolk, heard of him and paid several hundred dollars to possess him. He was a money maker for Mariner, and before the little fellow died the following spring it is said he showed a mile in 2:12.

The Washington Star recently had the following: "If the the late Jerry Rusk had been secretary of agriculture two or three months longer than he was he would have issued a book on 'The Trotting Horse,' which would have been in as much demand as his other book, 'Diseases of the Horse,' the circulation of which has been phenomenally large," said a prominent horse raiser to a Star reporter. "He had prepared nearly all the matter for the book and had the work divided up among experts, in the same way as he had 'Diseases of the Horse' written, each chapter being prepared by a person specially competent to write it. The work was to be handsomely and generously illustrated by photogravures. The late Senators Stockbridge, Stanford, and others who were interested in horse raising, and especially raising the speed horse, had secured for the work photographs of all the best families of trotting horses bred in this country, and besides, had furnished a great deal of information on the subject. The article on Ambassador, the famous Michigan sire had been prepared by Senator Stockbridge himself, while that on Electioneer, the king of trotting sires, would have been the work of Senator Stanford. The theory of these gentlemen was, and in this Secretary Rusk concurred heartily, that it is no more expense to raise a fine bred horse than it is a common horse. In one case hardly $75 could be expected to be realized from the horse, and seldom that amount, while in the other, the carefully bred horse, there did not appear to be any limit to the price. Senator Stockbridge gave many instances where he sold horses for $100, but after he gave some attention to the breeding his prices rose into the thousands, the average price of Ambassador colts being over $700. Senator Stanford in his article instanced the case of the famous mare Beautiful Bells, owned by him. In twelve years she had nine colts, which ranged in price from $5,000 up, and the prices for other colts bred on the farm had raised to $125,000, the latter being the price secured for Arion, now owned by J. Malcolm Forbes, of Boston. The total received for the colts of Beautiful Bells has been over $200,000, or as much as could be secured by raising 2,000 common bred horses. Secretary Rusk had no trouble in seeing that the big money in horse raising was in horses of fashionable breeding, or those which, in turf parlance, bred on, that is, became faster and faster in each generation. As I say, the book was almost ready to go to press when Secretary Rusk got enthusiastically interested in President Harrison's campaign for re-election. He temporarily laid aside the book until the campaign was over, and the result being the opposite of what was expected he gave it up for his successor to finish, and that seems to have been the end of the matter.

THE SADDLE.

THE Manxman, a Rancho del Paso-bred colt, by Tyrant—Bianca, by Wildidle, won a five-furlong race at Baltimore Tuesday.

G. BERTOLACCI has purchased from W. M. Murry a yearling by Hanover that he brought from the East; consideration private.

THE reinstatement of Charley Boots by the C. J. C. is a piece of news that will be hailed with pleasure by the turf' well-wishers all over the Coast.

THE Rancho del Paso stallions, imported Order and imported Candlemas, have arrived safely at their new home at the Elmendorf stud in Kentucky.

KLONDIKE, by Sir Modred--Linotte, won at the Iron Hill (Md.) track November 23d, and the California-bred colt was ridden by the California jockey, Narvaez.

AL KORAN and Toto, both by imp. Duncombe, were victorious Nov. 26th. Every two-year-old by this horse started thus far has won—a great showing, truly.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELER and Mt. Washington, the property of W. Jennings, won races at Pimlico (Baltimore) November 22d. These were the only ones entered by this turfman.

VERMILLION, S. D., November 29.—Leslie Washburn died to-day of consumption. He was a jockey of national reputation and also known in Venezuela, where he rode last year.

THE judges have reinstated Mainstay, which is a complete exoneration of Hugh Jones. They also ordered paid his feed bill of the horse, while he was out of the possession of the owner.

AT Nashville, November 22d, fillies by imp. Order and imp. Cavalier (the two high-priced stallions now quartered at Rancho del Paso) were victorious. Their names were Oral and Can I See 'Em.

THE great Marion is in foal to Lordlike (the good son of Vassal),and has not looked nearly as well in ten years as she does at present, Manager James Grant informs us. Her produce have won over $262,000—the American record.

BARNEY SCHRIEBER is confident he will make a success with the Hawthorne track, and most people are with him in his belief, because he is sure to have things run right and has the confidence of the race-going public in his honesty and integrity.

CHARLEY THORPE, one of the most popular jockeys that ever came to California, arrived last Monday night from his Iowa home. He will ride for Burns & Waterhouse, and that his mounts will be played by the betting public goes without saying.

CONLEY, the charcoal-colored boy, is about the strongest finisher seen here in many a day. He fairly kicked Daylight in a winner Tuesday, beating Palomacita, a better animal, by a head through the great ride he gave Holly's white-faced colt.

JOCKEY CLAWSON, the plucky little California rider who met with such phenomenal success in the East during the past season, has purchased a home for his parents on Pacific avenue, Alameda. It is one of the new Bamman cottages on the south side of the avenue, a short distance west of Walnut street. The price paid for it was $2,300.

THE good horse, Frank James, purchased at the recent Spreckels sale by R. Hughes, became cast in his stall near Ingleside track the other day and broke his hip. He is now in slings, but Mr. Hughes is afraid he will never be the racer he was at Sacramento again. James is an own brother to The Sculptor. He was started but once, and won. It was at Sacramento, last September.

ED PURSER,the tall and popular horse owner and plunger, arrived on the overland Tuesday night. Purser was financially crippled at the end of last season's racing in California, but his many friends will be pleased to learn that he has had a most successful season in the East and almost recouped his California losses. He has a big string ready to start out here, and will help to make things lively in the betting ring.

THE trouble between Charles Boots and the C. J. C. is over, the young turfman having expressed himself to the chief officers of the club as being sorry for the hasty words he spoke, the officers reinstating him in their good graces, granting him stall-room for his splendid string of gallopers, and thus everything goes along as merrily as a marriage procession. There is, in consequence,joy in the turfmen's ranks. May it be long be continued.

IT would not surprise us to hear that the popular young mining man, Jack Graves, of Trinity county, purchased a few race horses and gave them into the hands of a first-class trainer. He would be a valuable addition to the corps of turfmen, being the possessor of a goodly fortune, with fabulous riches in sight. We understand that in a space no larger than a good-sized bedroom $360,000 has been taken out, with no signs of the gold "petering out."

THE American custom of describing horses whose sires are imported by the "imp." before the horses' names, as, for instance, imp. St. Blaise, has led to an amusing mistake in England. Mr. Belmont has two very useful two-year-olds over there in Bridegroom II and Souveraine, both of whom are by Rayon d'Or, their dams St. Bridget and Sultana. Evidently Mr. Belmont registered them himself, and in the American way, which the English writers do not understand, as whenever they allude to them they describe them as being by the Imp. or Rayon d'Or.

A DISPATCH from New York, dated November 29th says: The fight for maintenance of horse racing during the next five years in New Jersey was officially declared dead to day by John C. Carr, one of the Guttenberg track "big four." Mr. Carr gave out a statement as follows: "A call for the Guttenberg Race Association will be issued and then the track will be sold. There are eighty lots in the inclosure, on which fully $100,000 have been spent from time to time in improvements. It will nearly all be a dead loss. The stockholders will be lucky if they get 30 per cent of their investment."

AT the coming Spreckels sale in the Occidental Horse Exchange (December 14th) the three two-year-olds that were not brought down for the first sale will be disposed of. They are: Makawao, ch f, by Almont—Folly, by Wildidle; Maxlone, br g, by imp. Maxim—Abilone, by King Alfonso, and Salvail, b g, by Salvator--Ailee. All are very fast, and Maxlone is declared to be a stake horse sure—in fact, the most promising two-year-old on the big ranch.

TOKIO, the thoroughbred stallion recently bought by the Austrian government for $35,000, is a grandson of the famous mare Kincsem, who won every one of the races in which she started. Her victories included the Goodwood Cup in England when she was practically led from the car in which she had just arrived to the paddock to be saddled for the race. Some accident on the railway delayed the train in which her car was made up some ten hours, and the supply of the only water she would drink ran short. Nevertheless, she won easily. Tokio has been four seasons on the Austrian turf, has won twenty-one races out of twenty-seven starts, and his winnings amount to approximately $97,000.

IT is highly probable that Tod Sloane will remain in England next year. His remarkable success in the saddle and his charming manners have made him quite a lion in turf circles in England, and he has received several offers of contracts to ride for leading stables on the British turf. It is difficult, indeed, to get a man who can ride at ninety pounds, and Tod can almost dictate his own terms. His employer this year, "Pittsburg Phil," the name by which George E. Smith is known, will go to Europe after the 1st of January, and he, too, may find it worth while to remain there for the early spring meetings. At this time, after the success of the Lorillard, Keene and other American horses abroad,it is becoming quite a fad for American racing men to send horses across the Atlantic, and when the stakes for next year close we will find an unusually large representation of domestic stock on the entry lists.

LEXINGTON (Ky.), November 30.—The sale of thoroughbreds by Woodward & Shanklin continues, good horses bringing good prices. Hon. W. C. Whitney bought four of the highest-priced animals. The following were among the notable sales: Lou Bramble, b f 3, by Bramble, dam Lou Dudley, W. C. Whitney, New York, $9,000; Sir Vassar, b h, 4, by Sir Dixon, dam Vassar, W. C. Whitney, $1,650; King Bermuda, b c. 2, by Bermuda, dam Queen Isabella, W. C. Whitney, $500; Lillian Bell, b f, 2, by Bermuda, dam Satillia, J. F. Winn, Winchester, $2,600; Flora Louise, b f, 2, by imp. Florist, dam Mary Louise, Rome Respess, $3,000; Ruskin, b c, 2, by Buchanan, dam Bonnie Girl, W. C. Whitney, $900; Whyota, ch m, 5, by Hanover, dam Victorine, J. B. Riley; $1,275; Tremin, b c 2, by Julien, dam Mattie Irwin, R. Tucker, $1,675; imp. Florist, b s, 13, by Petrarch, dam Pomomax, W. F. Shults, Louisville, $2,800 The one-time great racehorse, Terra Cotta, 13 years old, was knocked down to M. Young at $30.

MR. D. SEYMOUR, for whom Tod Sloan has been riding so successfully in England, having landed for him no less than three stakes of the second class, is a new accession to the turf, whose horses are in charge of Sherrard, a public trainer at Newmarket. According to the latest English papers, another new turfite, Mr. Wolf Joel, is anxious to secure the little American's services for another season. Wolf Joel's history is as curious as his name. He is a nephew of the late Barney Barnato, and previous to his death was living in obscurity. Inheriting over $5,000,000 of his uncle's enormous fortune, he is now blossoming out as a turf magnate, and accumulating a powerful stable, which is under the charge of Charles Archer, a younger brother of the famous rider, and at one time himself well to the fore among the leading jockeys.

A REMARKABLE accident occurred in a race at Worcester, England, a couple of weeks ago. The track is situated on what are called the Pitchfork Meadows, on the banks of the River Severn,near the town. The full course is a little over two miles and lies in the shape of a figure 8. The accident occurred in the last race of the day, a mile welter handicap, for which four runners came to the post. Just as the flag fell the fog from the river settled down so thickly that the riders could not see a yard before them, so lost their way in the intricaies of the course. Eventually two of the competitors, after a delay of twenty minutes, succeeded in passing the winning post, and were placed first and second by the judge. The other two were dismounted and never finished. The owner of one of these, who was favorite, objected to the race as no race, but the stewards, to whom such matters are left, decided otherwise, and ordered all bets to stand. This seems a case that would have puzzled even our esteemed local judges.

THE comments of our English cousins on Sloan's riding are full of interest to Americans, but the following, which deals with broader subjects, strikes us as a most impressive and truthful exposition of some of the most permanent features of the English racing season of 1897: We in this country have always prided ourselves on our horses and their riders. Still, over in America they can breed horses from our cast-off stock, and they can supply the riders. An Iroquois won our Derby and St. Leger. A Foxhall carried off a Cesarewitch and a Cambridgeshire. True it is they did not come to England at a time when we were over-flush with good horses, but came and conquered. We were wont to sneer at the American trainer Pincus, because he used to time his horses in their home trials watch in hand, but, after all, the laugh was on his side, and he is here among us, and so, too, is Huggins and an American jockey by the name of Sloan, who, despite his little experience of Newmarket Heath, and what we in this country call his inartistic style of riding, yet manage to win races against our crack horsemen. If Sloan was disappointed in his experience in the Cambridgeshire with St. Cloud II, he had his fair share of revenge yesterday, when he won the Free Handicap on Meta II, beating Jeddah and Nun Nicer among others, and the old Cambridgeshire on Sandia. The Criterion Hill is a difficult one for a horse and jockey to surmount, as Bendigo and Luke once found it; but Sloan and Sandia managed to get there all the same. Both Meta II and Sandia are American bred, and the last named is by our expatriated sire, Sailor Prince, who won the Cambridgeshire that Fred Archer thought should have been St. Mirin's. The general opinion on Sloan's horsemanship was that, although he had a comportable ride on Sandia,he won on Meta II in brilliant style.

THE entries for the Ingleside stake at four miles are as follows: Don Clarencio, Rey El Santa Anita, Lucrezia Borgia, Burmal, Candelaria, Palomacita, Sweet Faverdale, Song and Dance, Adolph Spreckels, G. B. Morris, The Bachelor, Sam Tate, Del Norte, Presidio, Personne, Senator Bland, Humbug, Wheel of Fortune, Lincoln II, Judge Denny, Grannan, Endurance, Mandolina, Buckwa, Yankee Doodle, Rey del Bandidos, Sir Dilke, Schiller, Dr. Marks, Billy McCloskey, Marcel, Foremost, Marquise, Sharon Lass and Wawona. This is a much better class in the aggregate than has heretofore been named in such a long race.

ALTHOUGH the fact is not generally known, it was the life ambition of the late Simeon G. Reed to breed a Derby winner, taking the colt personally to England for that purpose. He confided his ambition to the late C. Bruce Lowe and other gentlemen visiting him to inspect the great sire, Duncombe, Mr. Reed had imported from Ireland. On Monday, December 6, twenty yearlings, the get of Duncombe and others, will be offered for sale at auction by Messrs. Layng & Co., at their Occidental Horse Exchange. Had Mr. Reed lived there is no doubt but that a number of this lot to be sold would now be in England, preparing for the classic race of the universe. This is authentic; the lot being unexceptionally promising specimens of the highest type of the young thoroughbred. Buyers should not lose sight of these significant facts. There are in this lot thoroughbreds worthy to compete for highest honors. There should be some Eastern commissions at this sale. A splendidly prepared catalogue, with "speaking" half-tone likenesses of some of the very best, may be secured at the offices of the company, 313 Bush street.—California Turf.

THE Boots string has been ordered from the Ingelside track. This order was given yesterday by the P. C. J. C. officers after a meeting between themselves and the C. J. C. officials. Charles Boots has had no words or trouble of any sort with the P. C. J. C., but the clubs reciprocate to a much greater extent than anyone imagined, hence this action. It looks as if it was a case of forcing Charles Boots to apologize or quit the business. The young turfman will engage attorneys and contest for his rights in court. He is very wealthy and can make a strong fight, and his reputation is of the best. The progress of this case will be watched with great interest by horsemen all over the country, as the parties at issue are so prominent and wealthy. Looking at this matter from any point of view it is a most unfortunate thing for the racing interests of California, as it will be the means of presenting sweet morsels to chew for all the cranks who are bitterly opposed to sports of all kinds and especially the "Sport of Kings." Rumors of adverse legislative proceedings are rife and a wedge like this in the hands of the enemy will be sent home and may split asunder the great tree that was apparently so flourishing a few weeks ago.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—The grand jury of the St. Louis Criminal court has, under the new law passed by the last Legislature, entitled "Frauds in Horse Races," found indictments against C. S. Merbert, Fred Hagerfield, M. G. Winans and O. A. Arthur, charged with being implicated in the Little-I-Am case of ringing at the St. Louis fair grounds last July. It is said that bench warrants have already been issued, and that St. Louis deputy sheriffs have gone to Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., where the accused reside, to try and serve them. The horse was entered in Hagerfield's name. When the fair grounds officials took charge of the horse Arthur replevined it and then took the animal away. Hagerfield is a man of considerable prominence at Cincinnati. He is said to have been a part owner of the Oakley track, and when the "ringing" was tried here he had a string of eight horses stabled at the Oakley track. The statute provides that any person or persons found guilty of violating act shall be imprisoned in the State prison for not less than two years nor more than three years, or imprisoned in the county jail for any definite period not less than six months, or shall be fined in any sum not less than $100 nor more than $1,000.

W. M. MURRY is getting quite a collection of juvenile equines together besides what he has bred himself at Sacramento. In the latest collection is b or br filly Physalis, by Tournament, dam imp. Royal Nun, a stake-winner in England; brown colt Casdale, by Faverdale dam Castalia, dam of Cassette and half-sister to Druidess; Toluca, ch f, by Nomad, dam Sweet. Amongst those he has bred himself are the following named and registered in New York: Yearlings—Laudotorio,b g,by Three Cheers dam Jessie C.(dam of Michael III., a stake winner, by imp. Islington); Allegrive, ch f, by Three Cheers, dam Miss Pickwick dam of Sadie Schwartz, a winner by Morello; Rubio, br f, by Red Iron dam Wilda, by imp. Brutus; Ovacion, ch f, by Red Iron dam by Three Cheers; Osculation, b f, by Oscar, dam Miss Walling. Weanlings—Yorkshire, ch c, by imp. True Briton, dam Miss Pickwick; Reginald Hughes, ch c, by Three Cheers, dam Wilda; Maid of the Hills, blk f, by imp. True Briton dam Miss Walling; Mildred Hughes, b f, by imp. True Briton,dam Circe (that one ought to prove very speedy.) Also a yearling he brought from the East, The Yellow Kid, by imp. Juvenal, dam imp. Cyclone dam of Pampero, Easter Sunday, Cynosure, King Eric, Organese, Catspaw Seven, Tyrone and Minstrel.

THE stewards of the Jockey Club held a meeting yesterday afternoon to take action on the case of Turney Brothers, whose entries were ordered to be refused at Washington on account of what was considered the suspicious running of their colt, Dr. Catlett. The stewards present were August Belmont, James R. Keene, J. H. Bradford, T. R. Hitchcock and J. R. Galway. The following resolution was passed: "Resolved, That the evidence in the Turney Brothers' case does not disclose any fraud and while the stewards of the Jockey Club believe the stewards of the Washington Jockey Club meeting were justified in their action under the circumstances, do not think it necessary to continue the disqualification." That, in effect, clears the Turney Brothers, and all horsemen will be glad to learn that they have been relieved of the ban. Their stable has been in hard luck in the East almost from the beginning of the time that they left the West. During their sojourn here they earned the respect of all horsemen. The stewards discussed the situation so far as the Horsemen's Protective Association is concerned, but Assistant Secretary Hanlon had nothing to offer for publication. It is fair to presume, however, that by Friday we will have an authorative statement concerning the relations of the governing body of racegoers and the horsemen.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

Looking Ahead.

This is the time of the year known as "between seasons" in turf parlance. All the light harness horse races have been finished, the defeated and undefeated trotters are taking a rest, likewise the trainers and attendants. Everybody is quietly waiting for the ending of the holidays and the different track associations to make their announcements for the coming year. Throughout the Eastern States the various journals are devoting much of their space in reviewing the events of the past year and praising the performances of the horses, the skill of their drivers and the promptness with which associations paid their purses. The future, judging by the past, is exceedingly bright for the trotter and pacer. The many dispersal sales of trotting stock from the large breeding farms during the past three years have had a tendency to restrict the breeding of fine horses, for many of the best mares fell into the hands of men who did not care to breed them, while the work of the ecraseur was hastened by the reports that there was an over-supply of stallions. In paddocks and fields, where hundreds of finely-bred trotting horses and mares and their produce were wont to pasture, very few horses are seen to day. Many of the barns have been razed and the race tracks plowed up to furnish land upon which crops of cereals were harvested this fall.

The farmer was led to believe this was the horseless age, for steam and electric motors and the bicycle were the bug-a-boos which frightened these hard-working and level-headed tillers of the soil. They read they newspaper stories of the wonderful progress science was making, and at once came to the conclusion that ere many years elapse, the only place where horses could be made useful was in dime museums or as food to can for the German army. There was no need for them to subscribe for "horse papers"—they had lost their usefulness—and as for trotting horse races,why all the charm was gone for them,for did not some "smart Aleck" actually introduce bicycle wheels on their sulkies and knock out all the romance which was to their minds associated with noise at the races. There were no more ratliing sulkies, no more shouting, no more dangerous driving. The old-fashioned trotter and pacer they used to love to see hopping, skipping and jumping down the home-stretch, were not seen any more going at a 2:40 clip. Instead, they saw races between sleek-looking, beautiful horses driven by neatly-dressed men who did not ply their whips except in a close finish, and never yelled like Comanche Indians to scare their rivals' horses. The sport had changed in every respect, and these farmers became frightened at the change. They stopped breeding their mares, sent their colts and fillies to the nearest salesyard, and at once became members of that society known as "kickers." All the farmers and breeders, however, did not agree to this; there were exceptions. The farmers gifted with foresight looked at the situation as it was, and if they disposed of any horses, they were the poorest on the farm, and in their stead bought better ones from their neighbors, or at the large auction sales. They bred to the best, and figured what it cost to raise a good, serviceable horse, one that the demands of the public needed, and were satisfied they were making no mistake in trying to meet that demand and be satisfied with a reasonable profit for their outlay. What is the result? There is a scarcity of good material and prices are advancing. Revival of good times, which always makes the prosperous merchant feel that he can enjoy life better if he can leave his office and have a spin behind a good trotter; new roads which offer a great temptation to all lovers of good horses; the dying out of the bicycle craze and the return to that far more pleasant way of enjoying the fresh air without becoming tired, (handling a good fast trotter or pacer on the road);the natural shrinkage in the ranks of good horses caused by deaths and transportation, and an almost total cessation of breeding of trotters and pacers has created a market which will, henceforth, be a good one for the ideal horse of the world: "The trotting horse of America."

The attendance at the race meetings throughout the East and West surpassed that of any in the history of the trotting horse; greater interest was taken in the results, less jobbing was noticed, more money was wagered and the associations were placed on a better financial footing in 1897 than they ever were; consequently, they are going to advertise more extensively in 1898, knowing that every horse which has a record will be heard of in Europe and will find a ready buyer there.

Here, in California, we will have the hardest year to hold races we have ever had, but we must succeed. We may not have so many meetings, but we must keep the interest alive. All the meetings held in California outside of those under the auspices of the P. C. T. H. B. Association were successful. This association was unfortunate in its choice of locations and lack of properly advertising its meetings. This fault, we hope, will be remedied hereafter.

In 1898, candidates for Governor will crop up like a field of wheat and it is essential for the welfare of stock breeders, farmers, merchants, and, in fact, everyone in our rural districts, that each and every candidate state his views regarding appropriations for district fairs. These aspirants should take warning from Jimmy de Budd and see how the very largest and best portion of our population have shown their "regard" for him. He will never be heard of after the election in November, and he never ought to be. The various industries dependent upon the success of every reputable farmer, stock owner, mechanic and business man in the interior of this state must not be sacrificed to suit a gang of thieving ward politicians and heelers in San Francisco who are known as non-producers that have not, and never will have, a favorable opinion of the farmers who pay their taxes or who are looking for a week's enjoyment at the various state and district fairs in California.

We must remember this and do our best to hold race meetings and fairs in 1898, endeavor to keep alive the interest in our fine stock, and cast aside the political leeches who have done their best to draw the life blood from our industries. California leads the world for fine horses, cattle, fruit, wheat and wines, and we want to have commissioners from Europe come to our shores and purchase. We have the best material, but unless we have an opportunity to show that it is valuable it is worthless. We must have fairs and all the newspaper in the interior should take up this battle and fight for the rights which belong to their subscribers and advertisers. We know of only one paper that defended Jim Budd's action and that was that highly respectable (?) sheet,the Illustrated World, which is published in San Francisco; so if any aspirant for gubernatorial honors hopes to secure the support of the majority of the voters of California the very first thing he must do is to state his position honestly on this question of district fair appropriations. We will demand this, and see that he lives up to it, for it concerns those who have done more to bring California's resources to the front than all others combined. There is every reason to believe we shall have a return of prosperity for those most deeply interested, but we must pave the way by all uniting to help the district fairs and make them successful this year.

Next Saturday, before the races begin at Ingleside track, Killip & Co. will sell the yearling thoroughbreds belonging to J. B. Chase and raised at his Sonoma farm. There are five by the great Morello and one of imp. Mariner. The Morellos are mostly from mares by the wonderful racing family founded by the turf queen, Katy Pease by Planet, and as Gilead, Kildare, Glen Ellen, Monterey, Centella, Judge McKinstry, Lurline, Morren, Horatio and the great De Bracey are a few of her descendants,it will be seen that they are a superior lot. The Mariner youngster is from Bessie Barnes, an own sister to Dare and Sam Leake. Remember the date is next Saturday, the place Ingleside track, the time before the races begin.

Review of the Racing Here.

The weather god has been in a happy mood ever since the racing began (on the 1st of November), with the exception of two or three days. The result has been good racing and a "running to form" in most instances, the majority of the bookmakers in consequence being losers.

Clawson heads the list of "winning jockeys," with Joe Piggott a close second. Improvement has been shown by several of the boys, notably by McDonald and G. Wilson. The riding of H. Martin, Q. Morse and Conley has been much admired. Eddie Jones has ridden some good races, while little Meaney is the latest new star to arise from the top of a saddle. Gray and J. Woods have attracted some attention by their horsemanship, while Thorpe made his reappearance here last Wednesday and was warmly welcomed.

The best horse of the older division thus far shown is Senator Bland, who shows ability to go any distance well and to run over any kind of track. Satsuma is next best. Miss Lynch is a phenomenal sprinter, also Tea Rose III and Leora. Amongst the two-year-olds Napamax is the best that has appeared on either Ingleside or Emeryville track, St. Calatine second, with Plan and Count of Flanders next. Among the mud horses Lucky Dog, Montgomery and Fonsovannah show out prominently, while Barney Shreiber's trio, Sweet William, Aquinas and Schiller, are quite fair in slow going.

The most improved horses at the meetings, to our minds, are Judge Denny, Horatio, McLight, Daylight, Lady Hurst and George Lee. Don Luis, Our Climate, Lode Star are also improved over their form of last spring.

There have been no extremely long-priced horses to win, Newsgatherer, Last Chance, Easel, Prompto, Miss Lynah and Chic being the Ingleside surprises, Mamie Scott, Horatio, Morinel, Thelma and Personne those at Emeryville.

The new star (to us) in the trainers' ranks is Walter B. Jennings, who up to last Thursday had started four horses (Chic, Miss Lynah, imp. Tripping and Ping), the three first-named winning their races and Ping showing considerable speed. Jimmy Coffey's charges have shown remarkably well, Satsuma winning some grand races and finishing second in clinking good ones. Sam Hildreth has trained by far the largest number of winners so far, the successes of Lucky Dog, Fonsovannah and George Lee showing his ability not only to get, horses into shape, but to keep them there. "Daggie" Smith's horses have shown well, also "Butch" Fisher's, B. C. Holly's, Tully Coulter's and Dan Honig's. Frank Van Ness, John S. Campbell, E. D. McSweeney, James McCormick and James Coffey have handled winners of stakes.

Among the sires whose sons and daughters have shown to great advantage at the meeting might be mentioned, St. Carlo, imp. Inverness, Morello, imp. Midlothian, imp. Duncombe, Macduff and imp. Maxim.

There are not so many plungers here as in former years, but the ranks of lively speculators had several additions within a week, the most notable being Ed. Purser, the popular plunger from the City of Churches. The game can now be said to be in full swing, and the best season of sport we ever had,is assured.

The Spreckels Youngsters to Be Sold Dec. 14

The A. B. Spreckels consignment of thoroughbreds to be offered by auction on Tuesday night, December 14th consists of twenty-one yearlings and three two-year-olds. The two-year-olds are those that were ailing at the time of the previous sale and were consequently not brought down. Maxlone, one of them, was expected to bring the top price of the sale, for he is reported to be a stake horse beyond the shadow of a doubt. Salvail, too, is a most promising fellow and from a great racing family.

The yearlings to be offered are by imp. Watercress imp. Midlothian, imp. Golden Garter, imp. Crighton, Puryear D. and imp. Idalium from beautifully-bred mares, many of them racers of high degree, such as Dolly McCone (winner of over 20 races), Border Lassie (one of the fastest mares ever raced in California), imp. Atossa,imp. Yarranabee, Folly, Headflower and Straight Tip. Then there are others out of such great mares as Sweet Peggy (dam of Bernardo), Tragic (half-sister to Prize), Glee (sister to the great Guenn), Guselda, by Bishop, Faiza by Flood, imp. Zara (dam of Chartreuse), Nellie Bell (dam of Little T. G.), Bellguard, by Elias Lawrence, Dolly Varden (dam of Sir Reginald and Emma D.) and Cattle Kate, by imp. Kingston. By great race horses bred in the purple and from such su perb mares, these youngsters should prove grand turf performers and make the reputation of A. B. Spreckels as a breeder of high-class racers. Catalogues are now and will be sent upon application to our address.

The Coming Macdonough Sale.

On the evening of Monday, December 20, 1897, at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city, there will be some friends of the poor man sold—some sons and daughters of the phenomenally successful St. Carlo. They do not need any flowery eulogy, for their turf deeds tell of their worth better than any words of tongue or pen. In short, St. Carlo is the best young stallion in America, the sire of a Ruinart, a Zamar, Joan, Count of Flanders and St. Calatine, besides a host of useful ones.

In this sale is a sister to Socialist, a filly from Bud by Glenmore, a black gelding by St. Carlo—Franchise by Hindoo, a bay gelding by imp. Watercress—Geneva by Fonso, a chestnut gelding by St. Carlo—Glenlivet, a chestnut gelding by St. Carlo—Italia, a half-sister to Orestes (by St. Carlo—imp. Kissing Crust), chestnut filly by St. Carlo—Miss Annie by Virgil, chestnut gelding by St. Carlo—Princess Idle by Prince of Norfolk, a sister to St. Cuthbert (St. Carlo—Santa Cruz) and a chestnut filly by St. Carlo—Sloe by Hanover.

There are eight brood mares to be disposed of, including Eliza (dam of $12,500 Monowai), Flora, by Joe Hooker (sister to Raveloe and dam of William O'B.), Mercedes (dam of Therese) by imp. Young Prince, imp. Mirandola and a two-year-old filly from her by St. Carlo Prince of Norfolk—Lizzie Idle.

Catalogues are out and will be mailed upon application. Remember the date—Monday night, November 20, 1897.

All who are desirous of disposing of their trotting stock will have an opportunity of doing so by applying to the editor of this paper. He will hold a big combination sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange, Wednesday, January 10, 1898. Beautiful catalogues will be issued. The Breeder and Sportsman and all the other leading newspapers will advertise it and every effort will be make to make this sale a success. We have in Wm. Fitch the best auctioneer that ever came to this coast, our amphitheatre and miniature track cannot be surpassed; the location is excellent, and judging by the satisfaction expressed by all who have sent thoroughbreds there to be sold, owners of trotters have no reason to fear there will not be plenty of buyers for their horses. We have one of the finest places in California to show stock to advantage. A number of horsemen have already consigned their horses and all who wish to take advantage of this offer should communicate at once with us regarding terms of sale, etc.

Every member of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeeders' Association should attend the annual meeting next Monday afternoon, at one o'clock. Elec- of the board of directors will take place and many important matters will be considered. The future of the industry depends upon every member attending.

Messrs. Killip & Co., will hold a sale of hackneys, double teams and trotters during the latter part of this month at their salesyard. Due notice will appear hereafter.

Everybody is invited to attend the sale of the late Simeon G. Reed's grand thoroughbred yearlings at the Occidental Horse Exchange next Monday night. See advertisement.

The name of Archer, once so famous on the English turf through the prowess of Fred Archer, the champion jockey of the century, and his scarcely less famous brother, Charles, may once more become a household word among racing men. Fred Archer married the daughter of Mathew Dawson, who, as a trainer, stood as far above his compeers as did his son-in-law above his rivals of the saddle, and had but one child, a daughter. But Charles Archer has a rich son, who, though only 14 years old, bids fair to sustain the jockey family reputation as riders, for on his first mount in public a short time ago he finished third in a field of eleven, and on the same afternoon succeeded in getting second in a field of eight, each time on two-year-olds owned by Mr. Wolf Joel, now his father's principal employer.

The Friar, property of Messrs. A. H. and D. H. Morris, who will be placed in the stud and permenently retired from the turf, was one of the best three-year-olds of the season, especially over a distance. In the Realization stakes, one mile and five furlongs, run in 2:48 2-5, and the Brighton cup, two miles and a quarter in 3:56½, he showed himself a great colt. He is a delicate horse and the Messrs. Morris consider him too valuable for stud purposes to take any chances with him in races.

Master Horse Shoers' Association.

This association held its regular weekly meeting on the evening of November 30th at the hall, No. 1159 Mission street. There was not only a large attendance of those who identified themselves with this effort to better the condition of the craft in every stage of the game, but additional names to the number of twenty or more, were placed on the roll. A letter from Mr. A. C. Lohmire, the Pacific Coast organizer of the National Association of Master Horse Shoers, was read and placed on file. The letter was full of encouragement to the local organization, assuring it of the growth and strength of the national body and of the beneficial results that have come to the craft in every city where there is a Master's Association.

It is expected that a charter for the local union will be applied for in the near future, and a permanent hall rented in a convenient part of the city, where semi-monthly meetings will be held. President Sullivan seems to be "onto his job." He expedites business with an alacrity that would suggest the probability of his having served an apprenticeship under Tom Reed. The next meeting, at which a full attendance is requested, will be held on Tuesday evening, December 7th at the same hall.

HOOF-BEATS.

Messrs. Orpen & Smiley of Toronto, Ont., have purchased of P. Dunne the bay colt Good Times, by imp. Rossington, dam Fannie, on private terms.

R. W. Walden & Son have sold to P. S. P. Randolph the 2-year-old bay colt Filament, by imp. Galore, dam Fillette, by Kingfisher. Price said to be $300.

J. J. McCafferty has purchased of W. P. Burch the bay gelding Halton,6, by Himyar, dam Maud L., by Bertram, for $1,000, and he with Requital and one or two others will go to New Orleans to race.

The sale of the stock at the Pleasanton stock farm was not very successful; buyers were few and prices ruled low. Had these horses been brought to San Francisco it is believed they would have brought better prices.

The condition of Jockey Joe Hill, who was so badly hurt in a fall at the Latonia fall meeting, is not much improved mentally. He has partially regained his physical strength, but there is a possibility that his mental faculties are permanently impaired.

W. B. Jennings, who has met with such wonderful success here, is an old hand at the game of conditioning race horses. He has been racing in the far East for twenty years or more, and if memory serves us right he makes his home at Washington, D. C.

Next Monday night, after the Reed sale, the good race mare Venus, the consistent Red Pike and a three-year-old brother to the stake-winner, Mary Black, will be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange. All are right, the first two having had a good rest.

London, Dec. 2—Lord William Beresford, who bought August Belmont's five-year-old chestnut horse Keenan for $4,000 a few days ago, has sold the horse for $10,000. It is understood that Keenan will be sent to Calcutta to compete in the race for the Viceroy's cup.

Sol Sharp, of Cincinnati, a well-known bookmaker and principal owner of the Newport (Ky.) track, died November 22d of pneumonia and his remains were interred in the Frankfort (Ky.) cemetery. Several well-known turfmen went to Frankfort to attend the funeral. Mr. Sharp was 43 years of age.

The stewards of the California Jockey Club held a meeting on Wednesday evening, when the cases of James Long and Dow Williams, ruled off the turf for fraud, were reviewed. Long was ruled off in connection with the running of the horse Ricardo some three years ago. Williams came under the ban for his connection with the Little Pete frauds. The old ruling was reaffirmed.

Directum 2:05¼ the "king of trotting stallions" will make the season of 1898, at the Amador Stock Farm, near Dublin, Alameda county. He has completed a three years' stay in the East and was bred to a number of great mares there, consequently his progeny will be heard from, and whoever breeds a mare to this horse next year will have reason to believe that the produce will be most valuable.

B. C. Holly has parted with his good plater Montallade. While talking Thursday with Ed Corrigan about owners entering their horses in selling races much below their real value, the master of Hawthorne intimated that Montallade was entered in the second race rather light. Holly remarked that any one who wished to pay him the $500 for which he was entered and the value of first money, $275, could take the colt. The offer was accepted, and Montallade will hereafter run in the Corrigan colors.

Gus Straus, acting for C. T. Patterson, bought from Owen Bradley on Wednesdry the yearling filly by Patron, dam Lily Hemps ead, by Longfellow, paying for her $3,000 in cash. Between races this afternoon the filly, with about 110 pounds up, worked three furlongs in 0:35¾, and immediately after the work John E. Madden offered $2,500 for her. That offer was refused, as was a subsequent one of $2,700. The filly is not only highly bred, but she is also a grand individual, being as large as the average two-year-old. This filly was bred bred by H. H. Owlsley in the Patmos Stud, Midway, Ky., and was sold last spring for $7,500.—Thoroughbred Record.

Hastings, Margrave and seven young things have arrived at the Nursery Stud, says the Thoroughbred Record. The son of Spendthrift and Cinderella will go into the stud next spring, although it is possible that he may be trained later on. In the same car were Royal Rose and others of Mr. Keene's young mares that have been racing. Mr. Frank Beard sent Lazzarone in the same car consigned to Hartland, where he made a short season last spring, covering a few of Mr. Beard's mares. With the arrival of these two great young horses, Spendthrift and his best sons, namely Kingston, Lamplighter and the above named two will all be in Kentucky.

Special Department.

Yet as Aramis did everything asked of him until he broke down Al always consoled himself by saying: "Both of these sons of imp. Phaeton were great, and maybe Aramis was a better horse than Tenbroeck."

Aramis in the stud got Avalon, a horse owned by Mike Danater, and who one day, ridden by James McLaughlin, beat all the Eastern cracks and put Mike Dwyer, who backed the horse heavily at 15 to 1, again on his feet after a losing season which threatened to swamp him altogether. And McLaughlin has often said that Avalon was the best horse he ever rode.

The story goes that Al owned Bonnie Scotland when this horse got Marion, the greatest of American broodmares, dam of Emperor of Norfolk and El Rio Rey, sired by Norfolk and Yo Tambien, sired by Joe Hooker. Marion was taken to California by a newspaper man, Joseph Cairn Simpson, and by him sold to Theo. Winters for $175.

At Price McGrath's sale (Milton Young now owns McGrathiana, Hankins bought for $4,000 the "red horse of Kentucky," Aristides an animal that beat Tenbroeck every time he met him. Some time after Al sold this horse for $10,000 and brought Grenada, sire of Gilt Edge, Golightly, and Golden Rod.

"No man hereabouts has been the owner and breeder of such high-class thoroughbreds."

The Horse of America / John H. Wallace } A few days ago I received from the author a copy of this work. Too busily engaged at the present to give it attention, and well aware that when once the reading was commenced it would compel careful perusal it was laid aside, until relieved from the press of affairs that cannot be ignored.

A handsome volume, a capital likeness of the author for a frontispiece, and another thing I did note, that an engraving from the original painting of the Godolphin Arabian is placed in juxtaposition with that of Stubbs. That of Stubbs was evidently distorted, and in the endeavor to improve in the opinion of the artist, he succeeded in giving an eroneous impression of the great horse.

The picture that Mr. Wallace gives is evidently a true representation and accounts for the wonderful success of the Barb as the progenitor of race horses, whereas that which is so familiar to old-timers, having been published in the Turf Register and the first volume of the American Stud Book has always been a puzzle.

Jos. Cairn Simpson.

The famous Guttenburg (N. J.) race track is now a thing of the past. It is to be divided up into building lots and sold next spring. The fencing around the track will be torn down immediately and an engineer has been instructed to map out the track into building lots. J. N. Crusius, who is one of the owners of the track, when seen said that he and the other owners had decided on this course, as there seems to be little likelihood of there being any horse racing in New Jersey for many years to come.

OLD-TIME CALIFORNIA HORSES.

"Hidalgo" Answers Several Questions That Interest Many of the Breeders of This State.

Los Angeles, November 17.—About two weeks ago or more I noticed an article from your pen about the early campaign horses. Believing it to be my duty to assist registration as far as possible, I send you just what I know. Whatever was a matter of rumor forty years ago I shall give as such today.

Edward St. Louis' Tom Moore was the sire of Ellen Moore, George Moore and Jim Moore, owned by Abraham Musick, of Sacramento, and of Sallie Moore, owned by Henry Wilson, of Tehama. Sallie Moore produced, 1861, blk f Golaid, by Belmont, and, 1862, br f Liberty, by Rifleman. The latter was the dam of Bois d'Arc, by Norfolk, a very good mile-heat horse.

Idaho was by Volscian (brought out in 1860 by Mr. A. F. Grigsby of Yountville, Napa Co.) out of Eudora, own sister to Bloomsbury, by Independence (son of Boston and Armida by Hedgeford), her dam a mare brought out here by W. Britton, who lived near the Sutter Buttes. I never could find out his breeding authentically, but have no doubt she was over three-fourths thoroughbred, Bloomsbury was the best two-mile horse in the State in his day, and his full brother, Orphan Boy, beat Langford a heat of two miles at Santa Rosa in October, 1 60.

"The Rose filly" by Muley (brother to Black Swan) was sold by Fred Werner (Chris Green's partner in the old Empire Market) to Julius K. Rose, a well-known barrister. She was bred to imp. Lawyer in 1859, to my knowledge, but I got no subsequent trace of her.

The Susie Moore exhibited by W. Montgomery of Yolo in 1859, I did not see. I do not believe there was ever but one daughter of Blacknose brought to this State, and that was Ellen Jordan, owned by L. P. Marshall, of Rio Vista and leased to Col Gift, to be bred to Winnebago.

Frank Wallace, exhibited in 1859, was nothing but a quarter horse, with possibly 40 per cent of thoroughbred blood. Ned Murray's dam, Roanna, exhibited at the same time, was not to be confounded with "Jenny, are you there?" Isola was brought out in 1864 by John Hall and won a three-mile dash at the great Calistoga meeting (the only one held there) in 1865. She died without produce, as W. Hall informed me when I met him in Oregon in 1878.

Fashion, by Belmont, could never be authenticated on the dam's side. Rifleman stood at Joe Ward's place (now occupied by the Fredericksburg brewery) in 1861, and Fashion was bred to him, producing a horse called Al Bascom, trained by R. T. O'Hanlon, who is still living. Fashion was bred by W. B. Tomburg, who owned the Laurelwood farm, where P. J. Donahue now resides.

Carrie Miller I saw run. She was by Veto (a horse that had a hind leg like a Bactrian camel) out of Fanny Howard, dam of Compromise and Contraband. Fanny Howard was by Illinois Modoc and died the property of Theodore Winters.

Fanny Fraser was owned by Donald Fraser of San Francisco, and I have seen her often at John Cummings' place, the old 12-mile farm just north of Charlie Lux's. I was a member of three committees on thoroughbreds (chairman of two of them), and there was no evidence to show that Fanny Fraser was by any horse of public record.

Lady Franklin II. was bred by George W. Hoag, who also bred Ben Franklin, winner of several three-in-five mile races. Her dam was Lady Franklin and she was by imp. Lawyer out of Jenny Walker (Alegar) by Boston. You will find Alegar in Vol. 1 Bruce's Stud Book. In the spring of 1859 I went to buy her for E. S. Lathrop. Mr. Barclay, who owned her, had just weaned Lady Franklin. Before leaving Martinez I had tried to persuade Mr. Lathrop to let me buy Fanny Harper instead, as she was a large and roomy mare, while Jenny Walker was both small and narrow, besides. Fanny was out of the dam of Wake Up Jake, then campaigning at ten years old. Lathrop finally said: "Well, if Barclay won't sell, you may go up and see what you can do with Andy." So I got a "facer" in the shape of $ 1500 from Mr. Barclay, and as I had been forbidden to fill Lathrop's check out for more than $1200, I mounted my horse again and went up to Stevenson's. Fanny Harper was in foal to Cosmo and Andy wanted $2,000 for her. So I rode back in disgust, and, on stopping for lunch at Barclay's, was told that Jenny Walker had been dead two days from a snake bite. They only killed four of them under the manger in the stall. She was a great little race mare in her day.

Firetail was a chestnut, first trained by Michael Piggott and afterwards by George Buchanan. Compromise, Tyree, Gladiator and General Beale were all thoroughbred. Compromise won a three-mile race in faster time than was ever made by either Ashland, Owen Dale, or Langford, who were the veritable cracks of the State till Lodi and Norfolk came along.

Susie Shepherd I never heard of. I was living in Oregon at the time. Nor Dolly Varden. Mark Moore was not thoroughbred if Musick raised him. Jennette was bred by John Hall and Lady Norfolk—I think, but am not positive by Perry Durbin, of Solano county.

Jerry Sparkle I never heard of till now. Mary Watson could not have been thoroughbred unless she was out of a sister to Bloomsbury and Orphan Boy. Neither was Minnie Ball or Didapper. The Lady Norfolk out of Black Maggie, by Tom Clay, I never heard of until now.

Scamperdown was bred by Theodore Winters and runs into the family of Rey del Bandidos. He was owned for a long time by Hon. James C. Tolman, Surveyor General of Oregon during the Garfield administration. Marshal McMahon was a thoroughbred to the best of my belief, his second dam being the old Britton mare.

Of Alpha, she was good enough to beat Joe Daniels, Nell Flaherty and Osceola at the State Fair of 1874 and I won a big pot on a mutual ticket sold me by Jonathan Peel before the first heat. The doubt that attaches to her also attaches to Sunol, 2:08¼. If Waxy was really by Lexington, then Alpha must stand unchallenged.

Carrie Simons, Santa Clara, Ida May, Bay Bob, Porocco and all that lot were out of an old quarter-mare owned by S. B. Emerson, of Mountain View, who never had a strictly thoroughbred horse in his life.

Osceola was bred by Joseph Gluckauff, of Butte, and had just two authenticated crosses on his dam's side. Kirby Smith, who could "come along all day" at mile heats, was a full brother to Rochester, both being by Gladiator (an alleged brother to Langford), out of Kate Dixie, a bay quarter nag owned by James W. Mitchell, of Fort Jones, Siskiyou county.

Sappho, by Shiloh, dam by Owen Dale, I saw run half-mile heats at the half-mile track and finish second to Tom Chandler, a horse bred by Judge Creanor, of Stockton. He was by Nena Sahib, a horse brought from Ireland by John Butterly in 1862. The stable boys could not pronounce his name and used to call him "No Shabee." Kitty, the second dam of Rosedale and Top Gallant, I never saw nor heard of till the latter came on the tracks in 1891, when I was assistant to Mr. Milroy at the old Bay District.

Veto (Tyree's) was not out of Fannie Howard to my certain knowledge, for he was the same age as Contraband, whose breeding was never called in question. I kept the Stockton track in 1863 and both horses were in a three-year-old stake won by Mr. Blum's big Pandolphin, by Jack Hawkins.

Budd Doble, who won a race in 1874 at Sacramento, was by Norfolk.

Romulus was a full brother to Tom Chandler.

Joseph Gluckauff bred three mares in 1861 to Belmont. That year I lived with Henry Williamson from April to October. Perhaps Pastora was a foal of one of those three.

My own belief about Veto's dam was that she also produced a big horse called Kyrat, by Owen Dale, who could gallop seven furlongs faster than any horse of that day, but there were no races less than a mile at that period. Had the present system of short distances been in vogue Kyrat would have averaged about four races in a week.

Lady Dale was by Owen Dale out of Mary Blane, by Jim Crow, a mare brought across the plains in 1853. She had two colts by Belmont, bred after she became the property of Andrew Wolf of Stockton. Correct was the oldest and won several good races under the handling of Ab. Ellis, whom I saw here three weeks ago. His full brother was a chestnut called General Grant, much the better formed colt of the two, being very lengthy, while Correct was short-bodied and leggy. I do not know if Grant ever raced. Mary Blane may not have been thoroughbred, but I always felt inclined to give her the benefit of the doubt, as all the progeny raced well and did not swerve under punishment.

Nothing from Susie Blair was thoroughbred. She ran into the ground at the second cross.

Kate was not Jessamine Porter, the latter being by Vandal. John P. Welsh bought over all three mares and J. C. Tyler bought them all when he bought Rifleman in March, 1866. Kate produced Reube and Chinaman by Rifleman. Another fast horse was bred by Mr. Tyler about that time. He was by Rifleman out of "the Thompson filly," that ran second to Abu Becker, on the opening day of the track at Paterson, N. J., when Lodi beat Aldebaran at two-mile heats in 1863. I cannot recall this colt's name. Chinaman beat Katie Pease.

Nothing thoroughbred about Alamode or Minnie Rifle. Their dam was brought to Lane County, Oregon, by S. W. Thompson, whose son was State Senator from Wasco county in 1878. This gray mare which "Bud" Thompson used to ride in all her races was the dam of Jim Glenn, who got the dam of Al Farrow.

Rattling Jack was a gelding bred by Dr. Rodgers on the Honcut and taken to Siskiyou county by Stephen S. Ford in 1870. He won several races.

Twenty-one was out of a quarter mare owned by George P. Kirk. He won a mile heat race at the State Fair of 1875 and was taken to Oregon by Christopher Buckley. He was beaten at two-mile heats by Foster at Salem that same year.

Harkaway was by Billy Cheatham out of Lola Montez, winner of the first three-mile race ever run on the Coast. Lolo was brought to this State by Mr. James Moore of Yolo county, father of Mrs. Susie B. Wolfskill, of this city.

Biddy and Nettie Brown were sisters, if I am not mistaken. Mr. Tyler, if he is still alive, can tell you more about it than I can.

The only Breckinridge I know anything about was by Owen Dale out of Andy Work's old quarter mare, the dam of Bob Bush. Breckinridge raced in the colors of Theodore Winters and won a race of seven heats at Carson in in 1865. I also saw him run a two-mile dash against Mr. N. Coombs' ch h Stridenus, and it was anybody's race for nine furlongs, but the good Glencoe blood of Emma Taylor told in her son's behalf and he "won by a block." The first mile was run in 1:47 and the nine furlongs in 1:59.

I am one that always believed Gladiator was by American Boy, Jr., instead of Belmont. Judge Williamson went East that year to bring out his wife and David Burnett had charge of the horses. He said he let the old horse be mated with Liz Givens because Belmont would not serve her. Nor did I ever believe that Monday was the sire of Mollie McCarthy. American Boy, Jr., got the grandam of that magnificent trotting stallion, James Madison. Gladiator could not run a fourth heat within a distance of his first heat, while Langford, Pele, Error and Bonnie Belle could run all day—yes, and stay like a mother-in-law. They were all from the same mare and one of her daughters produced Billy Newell, who was good enough to beat Lady Amanda, the best mare up to 1876, if I am any judge of racing.

My belief always has been that the Williamsons made a great blunder in not breeding Bonnie Belle and Miami to Jack Hawkins. He was a good deal the best-boned horse in this State till Lodi came out in 1863, being good under the knee, just where both Belmont and Largeford were defective.

Imp. Hercules was a great favorite of mine. I went all the way from Red Bluff to Mountain View to get a look at him. Imp. Kyrle Daly always put me in mind of him, with his splendid way of carrying his head. Mr. Boots has all the Hercules blood that is left in the State, and I advise him to hold on to it.

Thos. B. Merry.

Jack Curry, the Driver of Joe Patchen, 2:01 1-2 Says:

J. W. Hughes, Indianapolis, Ind.:

Dear Sir—I have seen your Speed Elixir used in several cases where horses were distressed in their races, and the result was more than satisfactory. I am now using it and I think it is a wonderful help to any horse. Yours etc.,

Jack Curry.

THE LEXINGTON SALE.

Thoroughbreds from the Dixiana Stud of Major B. G. Thomas Disposed of at Auction.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 23.—The Fall series of thoroughbred sales was opened here to-day by William Easton, the New York auctioneer. Among the important consignments disposed of was the entire string from the famous Dixiana stud, the property of Major B. G. Thomas of this city, the oldest thoroughbred breeder in America. His premier stallion, Himyar, the sire of Domino and Correction, brought only $2,500, because of his advanced age. The second stallion, imp. Masetto, brought $5,000.

The sale will continue until Saturday, and in all 500 animals will be disposed of. Among the best of the animals sold today were the following:

James R. Keene will ship to England next week seven young horses which will be entered in next season's races there. Mr. Keene's stud farm is in Castleton, Ky.; he trains his horses at Sheepshead Bay. He has already raced one horse of note in England, St. Cloud II, which ran second in the Cambridgeshire races this fall. His Voter was also entered for the Cambridgeshire and Cesarewitch Stakes, but did not run.—N. Y. Advertiser.

THE WINTERS-REIS SALE.

The Yearlings Fetch Good Prices, But Brood Mares Bring Virtually Nothing—A Large Crowd at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

The Occidental Horse Exchange was well-filled last night with lovers of the thoroughbred horse, the attraction being the auction sale of yearlings bred by Theodore Winters and weanlings, yearlings, two-year-olds and brood mares, the property of John O. Reis. The Winters yearlings averaged $301 94, and the veteran breeder of Nevada and California expressed himself as being well-pleased. However, many bargains were undoubtedly secured. A much larger sum was expected for the sister to Scarborough, the brother to Bell Boyd and the brother to Zephyr, which brought respectively $450, $340 and $475. Messrs. Archibald and Stemler got a grand-looking colt by El Rio Rey—Louise M. for $625. The brother to Mandolina went at $460. Tommy Griffin, the game little horseman from Texas, was a prominent buyer at the Winters sale, also R. Hughes, (the popular hotel man), Hugh Jones and D. Ryan. W. ("Butch") Fisher, Tom Hazlett, R. Latta, Mr. Gregor and J. McCormick also secured youngsters.

The sale of the Reis consignment demonstrated pretty conclusively that at present there is no market for brood mares in California. If there was Kosciulottie and her weanling Morello filly would not have gone for $125, the famous Charmion for $175, Olivia for $75, Stephanotis for $25, such a grandly-bred mare as Viola for $50 (her Morello yearling brought $1,525), and Sunlit (dam of four good winners) for a paltry $600. She cost Mr. Reis $2,000 a year ago, since which time she has foaled a Morello colt (sold with her) and is in foal to imp. Artillery, son of Musket. Matt Storn got the good-looking Sir Reel-Nova Zembla filly for $250, Dr. Mizner the Morello pretty, petite Morello—Orinda colt for $250 and Thomas McGowan, a young San Francisco attorney, secured the Morello—Viola colt for $1,525 after a lively tilt with Trainer James McCormick and others. He's a race horse sure, and good judges declare him well worth the sum paid. Hertha at $155 and Morinel at $325 were wonderfully cheap, the former running a good second last time out, while Morinel defeated Tiger Lily and others and has been "in the money" five times in seven starts. Matt Storn got the Morello filly and considerable applause for his bidding. Mr. Storn clearly believes in playing fair, as his raise from $125 to $250 proved.

Following are the details of the sales:

Pimlico Track Outlawed.

NEW YORK, December 1.—A special to the Herald from Cincinnati says: Secretary Hopper of the Turf Congress said to-day: "Every horse, owner, jockey and officer of Pimlico race track who took part in the races to-day have outlawed themselves. I do not say this was the action of the Turf Congress, but according to the constitution and by-laws they have become outlaws on the track operated by the Turf Congress. Our constitution is very plain. It says there shall be no racing during January, February and December. We have outlawed those running at St. Asaph, Alexander, Singerly and Iron Hill, and I can see no difference in the case at Pimlico. Those who have been outlawed at Iron Hill and Singerly were never reinstated by the Congress, although a great many have been reinstated by the Jockey Club. They may race on the Jockey Club's tracks, but cannot race on the congress courses.

"From now on we will receive a report daily from our man at Pimlico giving us the names of all horses, owners, jockeys and officers of the track who race. These names will be forwarded daily to members of the Turf Congress, which means that Pimlico people will be outlawed on all tracks which are members of the congress and those racing under the protection of the congress."

Trotters at Paris in 1890.

What, if anything, has already been done concerning the making of an exhibit of trotters at the Paris Exposition in 1900? Nothing has so far been heard of by the public, but some steps have been taken for all that. In any case it is certainly high time we were hearing about them, for the time is now short and an exhibit of horses cannot be prepared like on exhibit of woolen goods, taken down from the shelves, packed and shipped. When the World's Fair was held in Chicago in 1893, the Russian and German governments sent over representative exhibits of horses for the delectation and instruction of the American people and both were examined with great interest. The Russian exhibit was especially fine and attracted much attention from press and public throughout the land. It is not at all likely that the American government will attempt to make any exhibit of the national breed for the reason that the horses it owns are not of that breed, Think of it, by the way. Here, we have what we call the greatest nation on earth, and its government does not possess a single representative animal of the strictly national breed, the light harness horse. Surely this is a sad commentary on the manner in which the U. S. has cared for its stockbreeding industry. There is no question that it would be very greatly to the breeders benefit if an exhibit of American trotters, pacers and perhaps thoroughbreds should be made at Paris, in 1890, and that we may admit, at once, as true. The breeders as a whole would profit, the individuals to whom the animals actually belong not being likely to obtain any appreciably greater share of the accruing benefit that those that do not contribute to the exhibit. To get a good exhibit of these horses ready for exportation to France, to ship them to the seaboard and transport them across the ocean, pay French freightage after that from, say, Havre to Paris and then pay their expenses while at the exposition, will entail the expenditure of no small sum of money and hence no one breeder or owner, nor yet any small combination of breeders and owners, should be called on to stand the expense. Who then should stand it? Certainly our government, if it should not pay all costs and charges it should at least pay a very large percentage of them. There should be no trouble about getting an appropriation for this purpose through Congress, if the representatives from the horse-breeding districts will only do their duty, though, of course, there will be much opposition to the scheme, as there always has been when any plan to ameliorate the condition of the farmer or stock breeder has been under consideration. There is nothing to be gained by a denial of this statement, the very fact that our government has never until the past few months done anything at all for its horsebreeders, save paying them very small prices for a few cavalry remounts annually, is the best possible proof of its truth. The making of a representative exhibit of trotters would entail the exportation of several typical stallions and mares—all able to trot fast—a few young things—yearlings, two-year-old and three-year-olds—a sufficiency of sulkies, road-wagons, harness, boots, etc., and a number of competent drivers and grooms all under the care and supervision of some able horsemen, capable of organizing and managing the exhibit to the very best advantage. No trotter or pacer—the pacing exhibit should be substantially the same as the trotting—with a record slower than 2:30 should be taken abroad and the most of the animals taken should have marks of 2:20 or better. At least one holder of a very fast record should be in the collection and the youngsters selected should be well grown, thoroughly broken and possessed of a high degree of speed. Our national horse has long needed just such an advertisement as this and now is the time, and the Paris exposition the greatest of all opportunities, at which it should be presented. People of all nations, civilized and semi-civilized, will be present at the French capital in 1900 and the fame of the American horse may, in this way, be spread over the entire globe in a manner never before equalled. Trotting high steppers, of the most select individuality and action, should form part of the exhibit, not less than four to six pairs, of different heights and weights and styles, being necessary. It must be borne in mind that the trotting bred high stepper is a reality, and the breeders must not dash from them the golden opportunity that is now before them. There is no doubt that the refining influence of the race track, operative for so many generations, has given the trotting bred high stepper a measure of quality that is very desirable in a coach, carriage or park horse and it is a foregone conclusion that Europeans would look with amazement on the beauty and aristocratic appearance of an exhibit of horses like Challenger and Chancellor, Brilliance and Botanic, Coxey or many others that might be named. This would not be at all the least paying part of the exhibit, and if it is included—which it certainly should be—the ownership of the animals exported would be distributed over a larger territory and a larger number of men. The exhibit of American thoroughbreds would not differ materially from the exhibit made by the French and English owners, for the reason that the thoroughbred horse is practically the same wherever you find him. However, owing to the successes of American horses in England the past fall, the very high rating which is given Albion to Diakka, Sandia and one or two others now racing there and the probability that the Americans will be even better in 1898 and 1899, makes the Paris exposition a peculiarly fortunate occasion for the exhibition of American thoroughbreds. Hunters got by American sires might also be exhibited, just to show that we can breed horses of that sort, but as we have very few, if any, of that sort to sell, there would be no particular object in showing them. Nor, we fear, would it avail much, from a pecuniary point of view to make a showing of Kentucky gaited saddlers, though to be sure if we are ever to export any of these beautiful horses a beginning must be made in advertising their many excellences to the people of Europe. No horse in the world is more graceful nor yet more useful than the combined horse of Kentucky. Able to road along at a stiff three minute gait and then with the saddle substituted for the harness to carry his owner through the parks at the different gaits, he certainly surpasses in point of utility the saddler or the roadster, for he does the work of both. Any horse that possesses such beauty of outline, quality, intelligence and ability to give pleasure, as the combined horse of Kentucky is sure to make friends in the French capital. We have not quite gaited horses enough in this country—there being only about ten thousand of them, all told, that under any circumstances are fit for export—to begin yet to sell any great number to foreigners, but there is little question that some day the American saddler will be as popular abroad as the American trotter. The Paris exposition will furnish the breeders or saddlers an excellent opportunity to begin advertising their wares and if an exhibit of American horses is made the saddler should assuredly form a part of it. The government should bear the bulk of the expense necessarily incurred, but in the event of its declining to make any appropriation to this end, which is also to be feared, it is to be hoped that among the wealthy owners enough money may be subscribed to insure the making of a proper and adequate exhibit of our national horses. Or, if it turns out that the government will lend no aid, a popular subscription might be raised to defray in part the expense incurred in making it. In any case let the show be made.—Horseman.

Andy Welch's Opinion.

Andy Welch, the well-known Grand Circuit bookmaker, who had the betting privileges at the Buffalo Driving Park the first year after the present anti-betting law went into effect, endorses the plan of ending races with three heats, playing a horse for what he does in each heat. He says it is the best plan yet devised for all concerned. This is his opinion, deliberately expressed in the course of a recent talk on the subject of harness racing, and he gives his reasons for holding to this opinion. He says that under such a plan there would be less laying up of heats, and that a horse when he gets a record would be paid for his mark, whereas, now, it not infrequently happens that a heat winner gets no part of the money, and again, it would be much more satisfactory to spectators who could be assured that when they go to the track they can get back home at a respectable hour, and have the satisfaction of having seen the afternoon's programme completed. Furthermore, he says that a horse would be able to go more races in a season and win more money for his owner, as prolonged races mean a great waste of the vital energies of a horse.

It may be said that none of these arguments is new, but it is equally true that any one of them is as forceful now as when first advanced, and as applicable to all conditions. This plan must have merit when it appeals to the intelligence of so experienced a follower of the harness horse as is Andy Welch. Welch is no dullard. He can see two inches before his nose, and he sees the writing on the wall as plainly as any man.

If track managers do not wake up to the necessity of the time and cater more to the public, their grand stands will be deserted and the tracks overrun with grass. We do not mean to be understood as saying that it is necessary to adopt the three-heat plan to avert disaster, but we do mean to say that the track managers who ignore the requirements of those who like to see good, clean sport, well conducted and entertainly served up, will get sadly left. Every season furnishes object lessons by the score to justify this assertion. The reader can call to mind undoubtedly, on reflection, instances of the failure of track managers who through want of sense or lack of energy have run a slip shod meeting and failed, while under conditions not so favorable to him another manager has conducted an up-to-date meeting and made it successful.—Buffalo Enquirer.

Spohn Mecical Co. SAGINAW, Mich., June 20, 1896.

Gentlemen—The invoice Spohn's Distemper and Cough Cure I ordered the 16th inst. came all O.K. and not any too soon, as most all the horses in our training were taken down with distemper. Since using the medicine they are all doing well. The remedy sustains its reputation well and I take much pleasure in recommending it as a sure and safe cure for all forms of distemper and other throat troubles.

Yours respectfully, D. G. SUTHERLAND.

IT was learned Wednesday that the California Jockey Club will shortly announce the richest two-year-old stake ever offered by a club west of New York. The matter has been under discussion for some time, but the details are not yet complete. It will, however, be modeled after the Futurity and enough money will be added to make the race worth $20 000, It is expected that such a event will attract entries from all over the United States. California alone should be safe for 400 nominations. Whether the event will be run in the spring or fall is yet to be decided. Colonel Dan Burns thinks that six furlongs would be the right distance, if he run in the spring.

LEXINGTON, Ky., December 1.—At the sales of thoroughbreds to day, Bramble, the famous sire of Clifford, Ben Brush and others, was sold to Clay & Woodford of Paris, Ky., for $3,700. He is twenty-two years old. Pat Dunne of Chicago bought a weanling by Bramble dam Lady Wayward, for $5,100. Charles Fleischmann of Cincinnati paid $2.800 for a weanling by Kingston, dam Libby L, also $2.100 for a weanling by Bramble, dam North Anna. John Madden, of Lexington, Ky., paid $2,700 for a weanling by Bramble, dam Charity.

A CABLEGRAM says that Tod Sloan, the famous lightweight jockey, has been engaged by the Prince of Wales. This is almost certainly a mistake, for Sloan is under contract to ride for the Fleischmanns of Cincinnatti next season and would be ruled off the turf were he to break his contract, even for the Prince of Wales' sake. Tod is too smart to attempt anything of the sort, and while he of course likes the patronage of royalty, would not think of taking a step that would make him an outlaw.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:

Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

Sport in Michigan.

Our readers may find some little degree of interest in the persual of the following letter of the Grand Rapids correspondent of the Detroit Free Press. It would be unfair to make comparisons or draw conclusions, as the writer is earnest and enthusiastic in his theme and illustrates full well that the Michigan sportsman thoroughly enjoys the opportunities afforded in the field. We cannot refrain, however, from offering just the least suggestion and that is, try the gun and rod in California some time. "Much has been written about the resources of the forests and streams of Michigan for the sportsmen, but the general public has no appreciation whatever of the great advantages possessed by the state over nearly every other state in the union, and there is not one man in a thousand who realizes that Michigan is practically the best state in the union for all kinds of game, and for all around field sport.

And it was never realized nor appreciated to such an extent by the old hunters as it seems to be this year. Never in the history of the state have there been so many new guns sold, so much powder burned, so many shells sold, and so many days put in following the dogs. And it has all happened, too, in that quiet manner of the genuine sportsman, which never gets to the ears of the public But to the hunters themselves, this year is one all to itself, and one long to be remembered.

The good shooting of the state can be said to commence very near to this city. There is game in the southern part of the state, and there are ducks to be found upon the St. Clair flats and up the river, but the all around sport begins with the Kalamazoo river and runs northward, increasing in variety as it goes, and this city is practically the starting point for it all. There never was such an abundance of game as there is this year, either. The mild winters of the last few years have brought an abundance of quail, and such strings as have been brought in this fall were never seen before. And they have been accessible on foot from this city, too. Every week since the season opened, hundreds of hunters have been seen going in all directions on wheels, in buggies and on foot. And patridge! There never were so many of them seen before as have been brought in this year. The swamps and brush even no further east than Reed's Lake have been alive with them, and in the pine slashings a few miles north, the possibilities for sport have been practically unlimited. And rabbits, squirrels and other small game have been in the same proportion.

The north woods never gave such sport for heavier game as they are affording this year. The deer season is now nearing the end and carcasses are commencing to come down, and all reports show an abundance of the antlered animals. The enforcement of the game laws providing for a closed season, the forbidding of hounds and lights, as well as the shooting in the water, have all helped the deer materially, and they have propagated nicely. It is said by the boatmen at the straits of Mackinaw that there are at present over five thousand hunters in the upper peninsula, and they have every reason to know, because the bulk of them go across the straits from the lower peninsula. The railroads have been doing an immense business with hunters all the fall, and the putting on of two extra baggage cars for each train this early indicates the demand. The markets in this city are already selling venison like beefsteak, and the big run at the close of the season is yet to come.

And the duck season has not yet opened. The weather has been so warm that they have not commenced to leave the north, and hunters who have gone to old resorts already have returned practically empty handed. The ducks will not commence to fly southward until the signs of cold weather appear in earnest, and none of these signs have yet been seen. But when winter does start the fun will be all the more furious, although it may not last as long.

Nearly every little lake in the state will have its migratory visitors for at least one night, and the big lakes will have them in swarms.

After the ducks come the rabbits, and the first snowfall will inaugurate another form of sport which must be enjoyed in person to be appreciated.

Something of an idea of the sporting fever which has taken possession of the western part of the State, and in fact the whole State, can be had from the number of hunters now estimated to be in the upper peninsula, and aside from this there are some interesting figures. The manager of one the big local sporting goods establishments, estimates that there are at present over ten thousand guns owned by private individuals in this city alone, and to supply the demand already this fall, this one firm has bought over five carloads of powder, shells and cartridges. And the list of men who own trained dogs, setters and pointers, in this city alone is a large one.

To the busy people in the cities, who know nothing of the regular routine of the year but the humdrum of business life, all of this will not be appreciated. The man who has never felt the emotions of raising a gun over the back of a dog, who has never seen the birds flutter and fall, who has never tramped all day among the sweet fragrance of the pines, who has never sat by the side of the wild little brook to eat his lunch, has never had a breath of God's own fresh air. He never tramped the wilderness or the green meadows with the soft blue canopy of heaven overhead, and the earth all aglow with an un-kissed radiance, and he don't know what real living is. But there are those who realize that life is lengthened and sweetened by these moments of communion with nature, and their numbers are increasing every year. And just so long as the game laws are enforced, just so long will these resources increase until Michigan grows from one of the best to be recognized as the very best hunting state in the union.

ST. LOUIS TRAP SHOOT.

Jack Fanning Ties for First Money.

Under the auspices of the St. Louis Trap Shooters' League the biggest shooting tournament that has taken place for some years in the metropolis of the Missiissppi Valley, was inaugurated Tuesday, November 23d at Du Pont Park. Experts from many sections were attracted, among them being Fred Gilbert, of Spirit Lake, Iowa; Charles M. Grimm of Clear Lake, Ia.; Charles W. Budd of Des Moines, Ia.; Jack Fanning of San Francisco; Harvey McMurchee of Fulton, New York, Rolla O. Heikes of Dayton, Ohio, Capt. B. A. Bartlett of Buffalo, New York, F. W. Faurotte of Dallas, Texas and J. A. R. Elliot, Chris Gottleib, L. Ehrhardt of Kansas City, Mo.

All the target shooting was at known traps, unknown angles. Regular events were shot over the Sergeant system. Maugatraps were used for all extra events. All the ties were divided, unless otherwise agreed. Money divided 40, 30, 20 and 10 per cent

The handicapping imposed, materially affected the work of the experts, as the scores will show. On the first day, Rollo O Heikes, the Ohio champion, led in the general average, with 88 per cent. Charley Grimm of Clear Lake, Ia., was second with 87. Frank Gilbert, the Iowa champion, and J A R Elliott, the noted Kansas City expert, both shot in poor form. They were tied for third place in the general average with 86½ per cent. Frank Faurote of Dallas and Charlie Budd, the third member of the Iowa triumvirate, tied for fourth place with 86 per cent. W R Nold led the St. Louis shooters with an average of 84½. Dr. Smith shot indifferently. Over 7,000 targets were thrown.

During the second day, the feature was the contest between Jack Fanning and Dr. J. Smith of St. Louis, at one hundred birds each. The San Francisco trap-shooter won, by a score of ninety-nine to ninety-five, thereby establishing a record for St. Louis.

Thursday November 25th, was to have been the last day of the shooting, but as the twenty-five bird shoot had not been concluded by night, the contest was continued. The twenty-five-bird match was the principal event of the day. W G Sergeant of Joplin, Missouri, was the only one to make a clean score, killing twenty-five straight, J L Winston and W Hinman of Kansas City; R O Heikes, Captain Bartlett, J A R Elliot, Charles Grimm and Dr. Winbingler of Alexis, Illinois tied on twenty-three birds.

Preceding the shoot there was a fifteen-bird sweepstakes. Heikes, Gilbert, Sergeant, Winbingler, Sumpter and Elliott divided first money in this event.

On the last day of the shoot Jack Fanning, Charles Budd, and W S Sergeant tied for first money, each scoring twenty-five straight. The big end of the purse was divided among the first three. In the shoot-off for the diamond trophy, Fanning won, scoring fourteen out of fifteen. Sergeant fell down on his seventh bird, while Budd dropped out on his twelfth. Twenty-three experts shot in the event, Fred Gilbert and Harvey McMurchie divided second money in the twenty-five-live bird event, each scoring twenty-four.

In these matches Fanning and McMurchie both used Smith guns.

Chicago vs. Kansas City Trap Shoot.

Details for the big meeting at Chicago between the trap shooters of that city and Kansas City, to be held next week have been arranged, and judging from the plans announced there will be such a gathering of the cracks as have not been seen for months past.

The shoot will be held at Watson Park, Burnside, Ills. There will be individual matches, team matches, and sweepstakes galore, with a ten-man team match between respresentative trap shots of the two cities. The programme is as follows:

On Monday, December 6th, R. O. Heikes and Charles Grimm will shoot at 100 live birds, 30 yards rise for $100 a side, and the Cast Iron Medal, now held by the latter.

On Tuesday, December 7th, A. R. Elliott and Fred Gilbert will shoot at 100 birds for $100 a side and the possession of the Kansas City Star Cup, now held by Gilbert.

On Wednesday all comers will shoot sweeps stakes at live birds.

On Thursday, December 9th, J. A. R. Elliott will try and regain the Du Pont trophy from Fred Gilbert, and each man will shoot at 100 live birds at $100 a side.

Friday and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11, will be given over to the big team match between Chicago and Kansas City.

On Saturday evening the Kansas City gentlemen will be banqueted at the Chicago Athletic Club.

The three individual matches will be shot strictly on their merits and without doubt all will be closely contested.

The trophies represent the live bird championship of America, and these races will be the most interesting ones of the year—a veritable battle of the giants of the trap shooting world.

Olympic Gun Club.

The Olympic Gun Club added fresh laurels to their reputation as congenial entertainers last evening. There was a large attendance of the members and their friends. The regular entertainment programme consisted of a series of beautiful stereoptican views, explained in a graphic and very interesting manner by M. C. Allen. The informal social session following, was enlivened by music, mirth and song. The evening will long be remembered in the history of the Club by those present as one of the many pleasant times in an unbroken series of happy occasions under the auspices of this organization.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Los Angeles duck hunters have had good sport recently.

Wild pigeons are plentiful in the hills of northern Sonoma county.

Ed Daiss bagged a dozen and a half English snipe near Novato last Sunday.

We are advised that the Santa Barbara Gun Club is now thoroughly organized.

Harry Baum and Jack Sauter made a good bag of ducks at Novato on Sunday last.

L. R. Larzalere made a bag of seven teal at the Spooney Club grounds on Sunday last.

Dr. Payne, in the vicinity of Point Reyes, last Sunday made a nice bag of ducks and quail.

W. J. Golcher was up at Suisun on Sunday last. He and Tom Robinson made a fine bag of teal.

George Jackson shot at Point Reyes on Sunday last. The bag was eight ducks and twelve quail.

H. H. White, on the Olympic Club grounds, last Sunday, made a bag of twelve teal and sprigtails.

G. Cook tried the Milbrae district on Sunday last and bagged six quail and some English snipe.

L. Thiebaut and O. Fingler made a fair bag of spoonbills and sprigtail at Mt. Eden on Sunday last.

The Spokane Rod and Gun Club, true to sporting traditions, held a turkey-shoot on Thanksgiving Day.

Ed Nolan's hunt at Mt. Eden, Sunday last, gave him only a reminiscence of luckier days on the same grounds.

Frank Hoffang and George Smalley made a bag of thirty-four ducks at Mt. Eden on Saturday and Sunday last.

McGills was visited on Sunday last by Ben Baum, his collection comprised five quail and an equal number of English snipe.

Frank Dolliver and Chas. Precht had their usual quail shoot at Point Reyes on Sunday last. They made a combined bag of forty birds.

The Empire Gun Club was fairly well represented at the club grounds on Petaluma Creek last Sunday. Some of the hunters made fair bags of ducks.

Mike McDonald put a rare prize in his bag last Sunday at Mount Eden, the same being a white swan. A half dozen spooneys were his count of ducks.

A large flock of white swans flying over Forestville Sonoma county recently, caused some little stir among the residents of a sporting turn of mind.

W. Murdock was on Petaluma Creek, in the Reclamation district on Sunday. Twelve sprig and teal paid their respects to the persuasion of his gun.

John K. Orr, had the satisfaction of bagging a string of three dozen fine English snipe last Sunday. The Country Club's grounds afforded this opportunity.

"June Bug" and "Edwards" devoted their attention to the Empire grounds, last Sunday, with a result of six sprig and teal and twelve sprig and teal respectively.

Chas. Van Valkenburg and Jim Menasco had a duck hunt on the Greenhead Clubs preserves (near Los Angeles) on Nov. 21st. The bag consisted of sixty-four ducks.

C. Westall, A. Levin and "Louis" were on the Baden marshes on Thanksgiving Day. They all had a nice sized string of English snipe and ducks at the close of the day.

Sears' Point was held down in good shape by J. Karney, J. Bruns and J. Brownlie last Sunday. They are credited with a bag numbering forty ducks. Widgeon principally.

Fred Mallory, E. Kerrison and L. Chavet at Alvarado last Sunday made a combined bag of "glassy eyes" with a few spooneys hanging on the outside for a bluff. Better luck next time.

Price Brothers brought up from the vicinity of Alviso and the Bridges, on Sunday last, a bag of ducks containing about fifty of various kinds. This was the result of several days shooting.

Miss Jennie Griffith, of Salem Oregon, who has made a specialty of raising Mongolian pheasants, sold a few days ago, thirty pair of these game birds, to D. F. Macey, who is in Oregon at present as the representative of the Board of Fish Commissioners. He desires to purchase at least two hundred pairs. H. D. McGuire, the Oregon State Game Warden is ably seconding his efforts in that direction.

Edgar and Eugene Forster were at their usual stand in the Reclamation District Sunday last, the combined bag comprising "sprigs," teal, "cans" and a goose made a score of twenty-five birds.

At San Pablo marshes Wednesday last some nice bags of ducks were made, principally sprig and teal. H. F. Emeric is credited with thirty-five birds; A. T. Vogelsang, twenty-five; and Robt. B. Murdock, forty.

Credible reports are received that the river fisherman are up to their old game again, seining ducks—an inspection of some of the birds sold by hawkers and pedlers will show that they never were shot, but met death by suffocation.

Frank Vernon and Mr. Cartwright tried the marsh at Point Reyes, last Saturday, and made a fair bag of ducks. The next day Mr. Cartwright bagged more ducks and Mr. Vernon shot quail, his string counted thirty-five birds.

"Sherman" and T. A'd. Johnson were the Black Jack's representatives at Antioch last Sunday. The bag was comparatively small, a dense fog prevented shooting to any extent. They report birds scarce and the water very low.

Deputy Clerks Fyfe and Salbach of Stockton spent Thanksgiving Day on Roberts' island and returned with fourteen fine young geese which they killed in the morning and evening shoots. They had a good day's sport, and say the time spent was greatly enjoyed.

The Pellican Gun Club (Sacramento) had a trap shoot at live birds on Thanksgiving Day. A six handed match at twenty birds shows the following score: Fred C. Yoerk 18, L. S. Upson 16, Ed Nicholaus 15, Captain Ruhstaller 14, J. Griffen 14, H. Gerber 10.

Dr. E. N. Ayers and J. Maynard, Jr., hunted for quail on Andrews Island Sunday last, only a dozen birds were bagged, the island is said to be a good place for quail but the dense fog pervading over all that river region last week prevented shooting to any great extent.

At the Lincoln Club ark last Sunday, Shaw, Le Gal, Wilson, Klevesahl, Ostrander, Franzen and Clauson were prepared to take advantage of favorable conditions, but there was many an empty loop in their straps when they came back. The day and the ducks were against them. About three dozen birds was the combined bag.

Clabrough, Golcher & Co. offer some seasonable and recherche novelties in the line of toilet and manicure setts, fancy pocket and other cutlery, shaving setts, a variety of flasks that are a revelatton in style and material. A general stock of up to date sporting goods are supplemented by a new invoice of boxing gloves and athletic goods.

Dave Hirshfeld, a merchant in Bakersfield, was arrested for violating a county ordinance prohibiting the shipment of game outside the boundaries of Kern county. He proposes to contest the validity of the ordinance. The Bakersfield Gun Club have been making every effort to have the law enforced, and they will stay with Mr. H. to a finish.

E. H. Ladd and M. J. Geary made a trip to Ignacio last Sunday on a mushroom hunt. The "pick up" was prolific of fine, fat and juicy fungi. They had their guns along, for rest and diversion. When their backs were tired they prospected for quail, and each of them bagged a fine string of birds. The "Irish water-spaniel" is quite versatile in his sport.

The pigeon shooting match between Frank Ruhstaller, Jr. of Sacramento and Henry Stellings of Davisville, was won by Stellings by a score of eighty-seven to seventy-nine. The contestants shot at live birds. Henry A. Bassford of Vacaville was the referee. As a side issue Sheriff Johnson was defeated by his deputy, Charles Schwilk, at six birds by a score of three to one.

The bay shore from San Leandro to Alviso last Sunday was extensisely prospected by hunters, but with the exception of a few; small bags, if anything at all, were the results. The day was cold and cheerless and ducks were scarce and flying high. The birds that are left in the lower bay seem to make a natural selection of Sunday as a day of rest and keep out from shore on the bay.

Frank Dolliver bagged another wildcat near Point Reyes last Sunday while quail hunting. The rival high-binder tongs had quite a time outbidding each other for the varmint but the Cum Cook alley hatchet-men were the lucky monkeys in securing the prize. The braves had a grand feast at their favorite hashery on Wednesday night. Grilled lynx heart and Rooster brand gin makes the Chinese warrior feel big and strong.

The final weekly shoot of the series between several members of the Olympic Gun Club, took place at the Ingleside grounds last Tuesday. The match was at fifty live birds. One of the heretofore invincibles was nowhere in the race and the score made by the shooter who had been picked by the talent as a sure loser was a flattering surprise to those present. We refrain from giving names and scores as the gentlemen who took part in the shoot are somewhat modest over their achievements at the traps.

Guy Lovelace, recently arrested for shipping quail from Coalinga to San Francisco markets, did not stand trial, as it was expected he would. The commission men who were to furnish funds to test the county game law did not come to the front and Lovelace pleaded guilty and was fined $10. Considerable comment was elicited by the light fine imposed by Justice Kilby of Coalinga. The arrest and other legal proceedings cost the county $50 or over, while the offender was let off with $10, the minimum fee.

The Greenwing Gun Club had an initial shoot on their new grounds at Los Banos last Sunday. A combined bag of two hundred ducks, mostly mallards, was the tribute levied by the guns. H E Carter, C K Meggett, F H Foote, J A Benson, Baldwin Wood, C D Bianchi, W F Hillegas and Otto Feudner comprised the hunting party. Feudner had his shoot with Smith, over the live bird decoys. He is unstinted in his praises concerning the cleverness shown by the ducks in their work. Smith has eleven of them. They are half-bred mallards and Rouens. One duck in particular, Polly by name, is very tame and clever; she will call whilst being handled.

Recent Los Angeles sporting notes: The Valley Rifle Club gave a grand turkey shoot Thanksgiving Day at Covina. Fred Holbrook returned November 22 from a successful quail hunt at Antelope Valley. He shot in all one hundred and twenty birds. Joe and Fred Maier, Ed Golter and Chr Krempel killed ninety-three duck at Laguna Sunday November 21. The San Joaquin Club had a big day with the canvas backs on Tuesday November 23. They got forty ducks and thirty-two of them were canvas backs, a remarkable record for the white backed fellows for Southern California. The division was pretty even, James Slawson getting twelve "daddies," Count Von Schmidt six, and Captain A. C. Jones seven. The others were divided between Cal Morehouse and Mr. Hoy.

At the Stockton Gun Club's shoot at Jackson's baths Thanksgiving Day six events took place ane the scores were as follows:

Freeze-out, $1 entrance—Entries: Condy, Jackson, Leffler, Winders, Colonel Sperry and Hass. Condy and Winders killed nine esch and divided the money.

Six-bird, $2 50 entrance—W. Ditz 5, F. Merrill 6, Johnson 6, C. Merrill 4, Colonel Sperry 3, A. Knowles 4, Geo. Swain 6. Money divided among F. Merrill, Johnson and George Swain.

Warm-up, six birds, $1 entrance—C. Merrill 6, B. Mehurton 6, F. Merrill 6, W. Ditz 6, Colonel Sperry 5, D. Winders 6, Johnson 5, H Lonjers 5, A. Knowles 5, George Swain 4, Richabau 3, E. Leffler 6. Money divided among C. Merrill, B. Mehurton, G. Merrill, W. Ditz, D. Winders and E. Leffler.

The results in the jack-pot match, the twelve-bird shoot and the shoot for the medal have not been received up to the time of going to press.

ROD.

Coming Events.

Dec. 7.—Regular semi-monthly meeting of the San Francisco Fly Casting Club. Office of State Fish Commission, Flood Building, San Francisco.

Striped bass are scarce in the bay. Efforts on the part of anglers to capture this elusive fish have not met with success during the week. The market supply has decreased, the fishermen have not made their usual prolific hauls with the nets. It is claimed the fish have gone up the river. There is evidently some truth in this, as, up river fishing grounds are the only places productive of striped bass catches.

John Benn, the veteran angler and champion fly tier, contemplates a change of location. He finds that the vicinity of Fortuna on the Eel river is a most favorable one for his health and it will also afford him unending occupation for his rod. He can tie flies up there and fill orders just as handily as here in the city.

Mr. Libby, known to the frequenters of Arthur Rochfort's hostelry, has had some good sport with the steelheads recently, they have commenced to run fairly well, although they are not very large, they are of most excellent quality however. He caught a fine lot of these fish last Sunday in the "white house" pool.

Frank Wilson speared a pike at Moore's dam, near Woodland, last week, which measured five feet from head to tail. It was a monster; one of the largest on record in that section.

Grilse are caught from the Oakland and Alameda moles, and also at Powell and Lombard street wharves. They are not very large in size, but plentiful.

A crew went up Wednesday to open the bar at the mouth of Russian River. Steelhead are reported to be plentiful and fighting to go up the stream.

"Doc" Watts whipped the Paper Mill last Sunday with quite a little success, one of his fish was a sixteen-inch beauty caught near the tide water.

Flounder fishing is still very good in the Oakland estuary. Some fine catches have been made during the present week.

I. Phillipson fished near Novato last Sunday with fair results.

A few steelhead have been caught in the Oakland estuary.

RESULT.

1st—Lock.
2nd—Dash Antonio.
3rd—Cleopatra.

We intimated in a previous issue that we would probably chronicle the success of Dash Antonio in these trials; we do so now with a great deal of satisfaction, and at the same time offer to Mr. E. V. Sullivan our hearty congratulations. A writer in Forest and Stream notes, in happy encomiums, the estimation in which this setter is held, "Mr. Bangham has now won the International Trials Cup three times with his kennel, and it now becomes his property. Dash Antonio has won the cup twice for him and Lock once. Dash won first in his Derby in these trials, and he ran second this year, so that he has his share, even had he not sired two Derby winners in these trials. His new California purchasers may be sure they get a good dog, but he will be missed in this country, where he is doing much to restore the only rational and lovable type of English setter, a breed well-nigh ruined by "field trial" squirts and whippets. Dash is by no means perfect as he ran, nor was he last year. His habit of false pointing is hard to explain, and his headstrong breaking away from control is not the loviest thing in the world by any means. Yet the old fellow wins by the strokes of brillance seen in any distinct genius, and one cannot help loving his insistence that he knows where the birds are, so long as he finds them and gets into them with such confidence in himself. He is a distinct character of a dog, a noteworthy individual and we need more such in field trials and in the field."

COURSING COMMENT.

Some Speedy Sprinting Scheduled for This Week at Ingleside Park.

This weeks coursing at Ingleside Park not only embraces the usual two days running on Saturday and Sunday, but also two stakes and both of them notable. The chief event will be an all age open stake, entry $4 and $150 added. Then there will be a stake for puppies at $2.50 with $50 added. Both were drawn at Delta Hall last Thursday evening and show among their respective candidates some of the most famous performers of the Coast. The run down of both will be pulled off Saturday, commencing at 1:09 P. M., and the ties run off Sunday commencing at 11 A. M.

Again during the past few days have the rumors of a new coursing park become rife and so much so as to gain some notice from the daily press. But it's a safe bet that nothing of the sort will be inaugurated in the immediate future and probably not for many moons. Last spring we were to have a new horse track located at—but enough said.

The famous Curtis Kennels of Santa Clara have been suffering hard luck during the past ten days, every dog in their extensive string being in one manner or another too ill for work. But word now comes that all are improving and will shortly be repeating their past work on the sward.

Canine tradition has always upheld the gameness of the bull dog and doubtless with warrant. A bull dog's tenacity of grip under trying circumstances is well known. But the gruelling work endured by the greyhounds would have taken the heart out of any dog in the world. Yet last week's coursing stake was won by one of the Merced performers and this week many more will be seen in the slips, and, moreover, they will show up as fresh and snappy as though never run before this year.

One of the likeliest litter of puppies recently whelped is being proudly shown by John Toland. There are seven of them and they are by Master Glenkirk out of Sunlight. In appearance four of them resemble the famous Skyrocket, three are like the no less famous Shortstop and one is a reproduction of the dam.

The most promising "dark horse" lately uncovered is W. E. Thompson's High Born Lady. The Lady is only a puppy, but against the odd dogs on Thanksgiving Day she handily put out Cross Patch and also the crack Granuale, albeit her first appearance in the slips. She will run again this week and amongst the puppies of her class. If in the condition of last week she should be heard from.

The improvement of the field at Ingleside, accomplished by careful harrowing and raking and by the rains has worked a remarkable improvement of form in many of the performers. Hounds that during the past summer have scarcely been up to winning their initial course have for the past month been close to, and even winners of, the final and the stake.

More Dogs For Alaska.

The promoters of the Seattle enterprise are indefatigable it seems in furthering the local success of their venture. Our readers may be interested in the following taken from the Seattle Times:

"The second carload of dogs consigned to the Seattle-Yukon Dog Company arrived on the afternoon of Oct. 23d from Chicago. The dogs were at once transferred to the training grounds at the brick yard on the Renton car line. The dogs survived the trip in good condition, only one being seriously indisposed this morning.

The dogs in the first shipment are rapidly being broken to harness and are daily visited by prospectors. Already one team of ten dogs has been sold and gone north.

The object of the gentlemen who have gone into this enterprise is to show to the world that Seattle can supply Alaska prospectors with anything and everything needed in that country. Already four hundred dogs are in training. Another carload of two hundred will arrive in about three weeks, to be followed by still others.

The matter of dog feed is a serious question with the promoters of the enterprise. Salmon are too scarce to be obtained at a price that makes it prudent for feed. For the present horses and mules that are healthy but of little worth are killed and the meat cooked with ground feed. It makes a food that could satisfy the taste of the most dainty canine, and all are growing fat on it.

It is difficult to find dogs in Eastern Washington. The agricultural sections have been thoroughly canvassed and few can be found. Even in the thickly settled States of the Mississippi Valley considerable time is necessary to pick up a carload."

Some valuable information in regard to food can be had from Spratt's Patent. They provided biscuits for the Jackson-Harmsworth Polar Expedition, which it seems gave great satisfaction. Dogs, who had never seen or been fed biscuits of any kind before, took to that food and throve upon it.

Pacific Mastiff Club.

A meeting of the Pacific Mastiff Club was held on Monday evening, Nov. 29. Dr. F. N. D'Evelyn presiding. After certain routine business had been disposed of, the members present listened to an interesting discourse on the "Mastiff's head." The demonstrator being Mr. J. P. Norman, and the mastiff dog, Juan Montez, the subject. A demonstration of the mastiff's body will be given at the next meeting by Mr. J. V. Geary. The mastiff dog owned by Mr. C. A. Spreckels will be used as the subject The Club has decided to offer a silver medal as a prize, to be awarded for the best mastiff dog and bitch exhibited by a member of the club at the bench show to be held at Sacramento next January.

Pacific Field Trials.

The interest and enthusiasm in the coming trials of the Pacific Field Trials Club is unflagging. Indications point to a most successful and interesting series of contests. The coast and local fanciers, while they appreciate and applaud the public spirit that prompted the recent Eastern importations, are determined not to be caught napping, and propose to give the Eastern cracks "a good run for the money," and if beaten, claim an equitable mortgage on the laurels.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Bulldogs and Airedale terriers are attracting some little attention among fanciers in the East.

T. Logan, of Fruitvale, has a promising young St. Bernard dog, about fifteen months old, by Grand Master—Miss Meeks. His head is said to be almost a fac-simile of Grand Master's.

The Tacoma Kennel Club will hold their bench show in connection with the poultry show in Tacoma, Or., December 26th to January 3d. C. D. Nairn, of Ballston, Ore., has been selected to make the awards.

The first coursing held in the vicinity of Stockton for years was run off near French Camp on Thanksgiving Day. A large crowd witnessed the sport, which was lively. Dan McKay acted as judge and Al Tesch was slipper.

The death of the fox-terrier bitch Golden Dot, (Warren Sage—Stiletto) sister of the prize-winner Midlight, Rapier, and Golden Dirk, is a loss that will be heard of with extreme regret by the fancy and the friends of the owner, Mr. Wm. Godfrey, the genial assistant secretary of the California Jockey Club.

Alec Truman's liver and white pointer dog puppies (Upton of Blythe—Cricket of Croxteth) entered in the Derby, for the coming field trials at Bakersfield, and recently under the care of trainer F. J. Stone, at Fresno, had to be shipped back to the Elcho Kennels owing to an attack of distemper. Truman is looking after them and confidently expects to have them in good condition again and back at work by the middle of the month.

DR. H. CLAY GLOVER, Dear Sir:—Having used with varied success most of the Mange cures before the public, not only in England but in America, I can conscientiously recommend yours as the best. I have also used your soap with very satisfactory results, and am convinced that dogs washed occasionally with the same will always be free from skin diseases. Nothing that I have tried causes the hair to grow so quickly. Yours, CHAS. H. MASON.
Highgate House, Bradford, England.

The twelve races of the initial coursing meet at Agricultural Park, Thanksgiving Day, were witnessed by 2,500 spectators. The jacks ran well. In the third ties Lady Angeline beat Trilby, Punch beat Monte and Queen beat Frisco. In the fourth ties Lady Angeline beat Punch and Queen B. ran a bye. The final was won by Queen B. (W. M. Powers), from Lady Angelina (Burt Hall), Punch (D. T. McBryde) taking third money. The purses were $25, $15, $10. Meets will be held every Sunday hereafter, if successful.

"HAUNTS OF WILD GAME"

By ISAAC MCLELLAN, edited by CHAS. BARKER BRADFORD.

A beautiful book of two hundred pages in cloth and gold; appropriately illustrated. Tells of the haunts of fur, fin and feather game, and the natural history of birds, fishes and wild mammalia.

Invaluable to the angler, gentle sportsman, hunter guide, tourist taxidermist, naturalist and boy over.

Price $1. Sent carefully wrapped to any address. Postage free, by CHAS. BARKER, BRADFORD publisher, 487 Broadway, New York.

G. Bertolacci's purchase (the Hanover—Maria D. two-year-old colt) was of Billy Muir, not Billy Muiry, as we stated. The youngster is a half-brother to Brodehead and Victorine, latter dam of the great Ornament.

Ab Stemler has repurchased Caliente at $575, the price he cost his claimer, and is therefore in a more cheerful frame of mind. Anyhow, what's the use of worrying? He bought a stake colt for $625 the other night at the Winters sale. It is whispered the youngster was let down an eighth the other day and he sent it in a very satisfactory way.

The Occidental Horse Exchange has introduced a new idea in catalogues. Those issued last week were illustrated with handsome photo-engravings of the colts and fillies to be offered for sale. The catalogues of the Reed, the Winters and the Reis sales are veritable works of art, as well as compendiums of information. Messrs. Layng & Co. deserve much credit for the way in which they manage their sales, which are conducted in a thoroughly up to-date manner.—Wasp.

Lord William Beresford has purchased Mr. August Belmont's chestnut horse Keenan for £800 ($4 000) Keenan is five years old and is by Lisbon, out of Patrimony. For the last two years Keenan has been a brilliant failure on the track or in the steeple chases. In working he has always maintained a fine showing. He was bred at the Gideon-Daly stables in this country. When placed on the track in a race he seemed to lose courage, and was easily outrun. Mr. Belmont took him to England last spring to enter him for the steeplechase races at Liverpool, and later on for the flat races. Keenan will be entered next season from the Lorillard-Beresford stables.—Manchester (Eng.) dispatch, November 25.

F. C. Lusk, the well-known attorney of Chico, will send his five horses to the Occidental Horse Exchange to be sold by auction the same night the Macdonough horses are to be disposed of. They are yearlings, two year-olds and three-year-olds by Tenny, imp. Islington, imp. Martenhurst and imp. Loyalist from the splendid mares, Joy by Wildidle and Magnolia by Milner. Nuncoma, who showed a lot of speed here last spring, is in the consignment. Catalogues will be out in a few days.

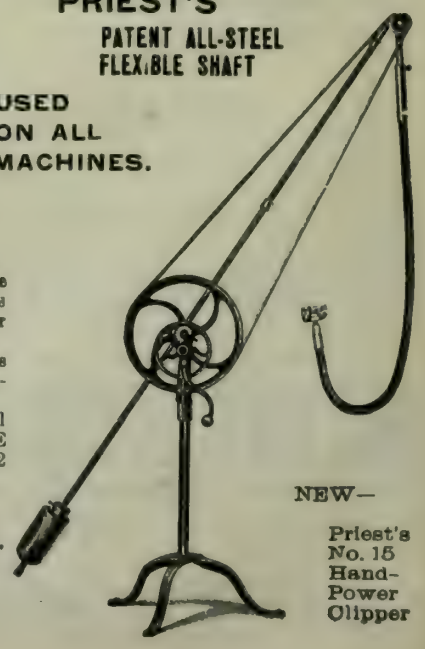
A FEW FACTS.

GROOMING BRUSHES on Priest's Power Horse Clipping Machines are a success. If the dirt is there, and it generally is, they will remove it. That's what they are for. If you want to see them in operation in New York City, for instance, we can furnish you a list that is growing every day.



BALL-BEARING CUTTERS have come to stay; they cut keener with less tension, which means less power with long life. Dirt and short hairs do not interfere with their practical working.

GROOMING BRUSHES and BALL-BEARING CUTTERS require skill and experience to build, but little, if any, to operate. WE KNOW because WE BUILD THEM, HAVE THEM TO SELL, and stand behind them with 32 YEARS' EXPERIENCE, and A REPUTATION for QUALITY of goods.

SUBSCRIPTION
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

Future Market for the Horse.

Mr. C. X. Larrabee, proprietor of Brook-Nook stock ranch, Home Park, Montana, is in the East on a business trip, and is now staying for a few days in this city. Eleven years ago Mr. Larrabee began the breeding of trotting horses, and now Brook-Nook is one of the largest establishments of its kind in the country.

Home Park is in the Ruby valley, 125 miles south of Butte. Some idea of the extent of Mr. Larrabee's ranch may be had from the fact that to ride across it and return to the starting point necessitates a trip of more than 28 miles, there being about 9,000 acres under fence. There are 400 horses now on the place, and every year the number is increasing, breeding being conducted on a larger scale at present than ever.

Unlike many prominent breeders, Mr. Larrabee did not begin with inferior animals and waste time in the slow process of "breeding up," but secured his foundation stock from the best Kentucky and other sections had to offer. The proprietor of Brook-Nook has a strong liking for the Morgan horse, believing they are superior as roadsters and gentlemen's drivers to any other family. For extreme speed he favors the tried and successful blood of the Wilkes, Electioneer and Mambrino Patchen families.

In common with nearly all the practical breeders of to-day he has no use for thoroughbred mares, believing that the correct and surest way to get trotters is to breed them from trotters. While willing to accept the thoroughbred blood as it is quite generally found now, well in the background, he does not care to infuse any new or fresher currents.

Among the richly bred brood mares of Brook-Nook are Mittylene, by Wilkes Boy, dam by Young Jim; second dam May Morning by Mambrino Patchen; third dam, Old Betsy Brown, by Mambrino Patchen.

Then there are Lena McGregor, Necklace and Ruby Silver who are daughters of Robert McGregor. The blood of George Wilkes, Belmont, Almont, Daniel Lambert is strongly represented. Commodore Belmont, an elegant son of Belmont, was for several years the premier stallion; he died last August, twenty-five years old. The blood of Electioneer has been utilized through his son Alaska; that of Red Wilkes through his son Allouez, lately sold to go to Europe. Here are Allen, by Star Eban, son of Daniel Lambert; Lambert Boy, by Lambert Chief, son of Daniel Lambert, and Alcone the sire of Benton Wilkes (213), son of Alcyone.

"I have stabling capacity for all my horses," said Mr. Larabee, to a reporter for The Herald, "and there are 150 box stalls. My colts are gentled and thoroughly halter broken when weanlings and then driven enough each year to be kept kind and tractable. There is a three-fourths of a mile track on the ranch, but no attempt is made to fully develop speed, particular attention being given to cultivating the highest road qualities. In March of '96 I sold Fellfare, a four-year-old gelding, by Bay Bird, dam Fera, by Commodore Belmont, to Dr. McDonald of Butte. He was put in training, and on July 11th started in his first race, taking a record of 2:14. On August 15th he paced to a record of 2:10¾, then the record of Montana. About that same time I sold Kappa, an eight-year-old mare, by Woodford Wilkes, and she trotted to a record of 2:18¼. Oenone, a young mare I sold from the ranch, raced last year to a record of 2:11¼."

When asked what he thought of the future market for the horse, Mr. Larrabee expressed himself as extremely hopeful.

"Possibly," said the genial Westerner, "there may not be any great advance in prices right away, but it is only a question of time before the supply cannot possibly equal the demand, especially of the higher grades. There is now an immense foreign exportation, which is constantly increasing. I look for a good market to soon be opened with Japan; in fact, a large number have already been shipped to that country from Seattle. They are the small horses of the coast, and are purchased for the Japanese army.

"There is already in the West an upward tendency in the prices of horses, cattle and sheep. One of the stockmen of Montana lately bought 700 head of cows, calves, thrown in, for $25 a head. Before he moved them he sold at an advance of $3 per head. Oh, yes, horses and cattle will bring better prices soon, and the breeders who have held on will reap the benefit."—Boston Herald.

Reply to a Hard Question.

A very intelligent friend has asked me this question: "How can I make breeding trotters a sure thing?" and as hundreds of others have sought to get an answer to it hundreds of times, it is doubtless of very wide if not universal interest. "Sure things" are very rare in this world, and somebody has said there are no "sure things" except death and taxes. However this may be, there are many things, even breeding trotting horses, in which we can approximate what is perfect, and this process of approximation is the incentive which prompts and carries forward all those engaged in this class of pursuits.

Let me illustrate this by an example that all will comprehend and accept. You have a bay mare of good size, form and style and you want to breed nothing but bay horses. The sire and dam of your mare were bays, and thus with the parents and grandparents all bays, you have some prospect for a bay colt. But the inheritance of color is feeble, for the sire or dam of one of the grandparents may have a gray, a black or a chestnut and the colt may revert in color to that ancestor. Now, add another generation of ancestors, all bays, and you begin to approximate your ideal and to strengthen the inheritance of the bay color. Then, if you will add another, and still another, generation of ancestors, all bays, you will not only have approximated your ideal "sure thing," but you will have reached it, for the colt is "thoroughly" bred in the color of his coat.

The road to a "sure thing" is breeding for high trotting speed is just as plain as breeding for color. In the example given above the application of the law is purely physical, in what remains it is psycychical and has to do with the mentality and will of the horse, but it is the same law of heredity. The careful study of this law, as presented in the "Horse of America," is earnestly commended, for it is there elaborately considered in all its relations to what we want to knew and what we want to do—in relation to breeding. The study of the law is very important, but the study of the pedigree is still more important.

There is only one way to study and determine the value of a pedigree intelligently, and that is by tabulating it out, showing the sixty-three animals, counting the extremes, on your diagram, with just what each has done or failed to do. Those with records of reputable performances to their credit are entitled to the highest honor, and I do not suppose that anybody would consider a tin-cup record a reputable performance. The secondary place of honor must be assigned to those that have produced reputable performers, but never performed themselves. The trouble with this class is in the fact that the merit may have come chiefly from the other side of the house, whether male or female. The third class may be made up of those with a trotting inheritance, but have never done nor produced anything. This is the uncertain class. If there be a fourth class that never was able to trot even a little bit and without trotting inheritance, they are wholly out of place in a trotting pedigree, are merely a hindrance instead of a benefit, and a blue pencil should be drawn through their names without hesitation.

This is the very highest type of all pedigrees, for every animal in it not only claims to be a trotter and trotting bred, but he proves his claim.—J. H. Wallacce in Horse Review.

An Exodus to England.

According to current rumors uptown yesterday there will be a general exodus to England this winter by owners of leading racing stables. It was common talk on Broadway yesterday afternoon that Mr. Keene would make no entries in this country for next year and would ship his entire stable to England. Mr. McCafferty has made quite a number of entries in English events. Jere Dunne told me yesterday afternoon that he was going to enter that superb filly of his, Sunny Slope, who almost made a dead heat with the Friar in the Brighton Cup, the best long distance race of the year—and for that matter in many years—in the Czarewitch. That means, of course, that he will send her to England early next spring.

The Horsemen's Protective Association by its hasty, ill-advised and ill-regulated conduct, is making the substantial men of the turf rather timorous about the future of racing here. All the silly talk about guaranteed stakes is likely to have the effect of inducing racing associations to cut down the number of stakes and reduce the value of the added money to those that they will maintain. In England the system of guaranteed stakes is not only considered proper, but the Association expects that they shall be self-supporting. In other words, that the horsemen should run for their own money. The Princess of Wales Stake and the Jockey Club Stakes, each of the value of $50,000, were on the point of being abandoned, but inasmuch as this year they were rather more than self-supporting, they will be reopened. London "Truth" gives the following interesting details regarding them: "The two £10,000 races at Newmarket appear to have turned the corner, and some writers who have been croaking and wailing over their failure will be doubtless surprised to hear that this year there was a surplus of £230 over the Princess of Wales Stakes, and £442 on the Jockey Club Stakes, so that no a farthing was drawn from the fund for either event. In 1894, when these races were run for the first time, there were 272 entries for the Princess of Wales' Stakes, and 276 for the Jockey Club Stakes, and the result was a surplus of £1,916 on the one race and £2,312 on the other. In 1895 there were only 178 entries for the Princess of Wales' Stakee, the result being a deficit of £1,662, while the fund had to contribute £1,277 to the Jockey Club Stakes, which had obtained 179 entries. Last year there was a deficiency of £1,994 over the Princess of Wales' Stakes with 184 entries, while the same amount of subscriptions for the Jockey Club Stakes resulted in a deficit of £2,377. This year there were 243 entries for the one race and 247 for the other. The fact is that it is impossible to estimate the pecuniary prospects of a stake of this kind from the number of entries when the race originally closes. Everything depends upon the number of horses left in after the second forfeit is declared."

Fancy an association retaining the surplus in this country! What a howl there would be from the "poor" protected horse owners and trainers! We will probably have Mr. Belmont's ultimatum in regard to the demands of the Horsemen's Protection Association before the end of the week.—"Centauer" in N. Y. Advertiser.

Hamburg's Good Mother.

Hamburg comes honestly by his speed. If he has stamina there may be some fortune about his birthright. Hanover, his sire, had already made a reputation in the stud, but his dam, Lady Reel, was practically unknown save as a good race mare. Investigation shows that Lady Reel's dam, Mannie Gray, was the greatest brood mare the American turf has ever known in the amount of money won by her produce. This prolific mare, unlike her grand son, never made an enviable record on the turf. She was bred by the late General A. Buford, that eccentric Kentucky turfman, who believed that horses had souls and that they would go to heaven. She was by Enquirer. Her dam was Lizzie G., by War Dance, and she out of a mare by Le Compte, and her dam was that great mare, Old Edith by Sovereign, thus running into the Bell or Gallopade family; from which so many noted turf performers have sprung. Following is a list of the produce of Mannie Gray, together with the amount of money won by her sons and daughters:

Ten Strike, by Ten Broeck	$ 6,000
Sir Knight, by Fellowcraft	4,000
Bandala, by King Ban	1 000
Bannerale, by King Ban (died early, did not race)
Lady Reel (dam of Hamburg), by Fellowcraft	5,000
Madam Reel, by Fellowcraft	4,000
Correction, by Himyar	50,000
Freemason, by Fellowcraft (never raced)
Domino (largest winner on American turf), by Himyar, over	200,000
Bay filly, by Himyar (died as a yearling)
Surefoot, by Himyar (died before starting)
Mannie Himyar, by Himyar (never raced)
Total	$270,000

Shortly after foaling Mannie Himyar, in 1894, Mannie Gray died and the filly was raised by hand. This so stunted her that she never attained full size and is now only 14 hands high. The sister of Domino, which died in 1892 of lung fever after being shipped to New York for sale, was the exact countepart of her famous brother when he was a yearling. Mr. Keene, having won such an enormous amount with Domino, offered Major Thomas $15,000 for his sister before she left the paddocks at Hira Villa, but the Major desiring that she should go into the sale and thus allow every turfman in America the opportunity to compete for the valuable filly. On her way to New York she took cold, which rapidly developed into lung fever, causing her death.

Considering the amount of money won by her produce and the way in which her daughters are breeding, the thousand dollars invested in Mannie Gray by Major Thomas was the best spent money ever laid out for horseflesh.

Lady Reel, although only 11 years old, and after she had won $5,000 on the turf, has produced the following winners

Strathreel, by Strathmore	$ 7,000
Amanda, by Strathmore	6,000
Clatterfeet, by Strathmore	1,000
Hamburg, by Hanover	39,000
Total	$53,000

This makes the large sum of $323,000 won by the produce of Mannie Gray and her daughter, Lady Reel.

Lady Reel has been bred to Hanover. Her daughter, Amanda, has been bred to Tenny, and Clatterfeet has been bred to St. Leonards. Mannie Himyar, the full sister to Domino, and the last foal of old Mannie Gray, has been bred to Prince of Monaco.—Daily Racing Form.

THE ONEONTA YEARLING SALE.

Good Sums Realized for the Good-Looking Ones—Purchasers and Prices.

Twenty Oneonta Stud Farm yearlings were sold Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange and the ones by tried sires brought good money, the extra good lookers even by untried sires fetching fair sums. The turfmen gathered at San Francisco are extremely intelligent, and show conclusively that individuality comes first, pedigree second. The pavilion was comfortably filled and we noticed in the audience such well-known turfmen as Clarence Waterhouse, Ed Corrigan, H. T. Griffin, Tom Ryan, J. Cornwell of Honolulu, Mr. Frazier of Oregon, Matt Storn, Judge John J. Carter, Barney Schrieber, D. Ryan, W. Fisher, B. J. Johnson, W. D. Randall and J. W. Brooks.

There were several prizes, among the number the chestnut Nomad—Royal Purple colt for $450 (sold to Tom Ryan) the chestnut colt by imp. Golden Garter—Miss Pickwick to "Butch" Fisher, the black colt by Duncombe—Victress secured by W. D. Randall for $250, the bay filly by Emperor of Norfolk—The Truant, which went to the nod of Atkin & Lottridge at $265, the half-brother to Spunwell to Tommy Griffin at $105 and the very sturdy Tenny—Fun colt to Barney Schreiber at $375. The half-sister to Midlo was also cheap at $325. Following are the details of the sale:

Brown filly by Fitz James—Alesia, Z Abrahams	$ 80
Bay filly by imp Kismet—imp. Brierfoot, R Stanley	145
Bay colt by imp Duncombe—Criasba; H E Edwards	375
Bay filly by imp Duncombe—Detrix; H T Griffin	125

The Fairview and Other Sales.

The weeding-out sales of stallions, brood mares and yearlings now being conducted by William Easton at Lexington, Ky., did not realize the figures generally expected. Mr. Easton, as usual, worked hard and earnestly, but despite his eloquence he could not rouse buyers to a pitch of enthusiasm. The average obtained for the yearlings must be voted good. Altogether forty head brought $8,500, an average of $211. The sale showed that there is no longer a market for "weeds." Three of those offered were given away. Quite a number went for $25 each, and a few others were disposed of at $5 each. Following is a list of horses that brought $200 and over:

Embrace, ch m, 4, by imp. St. Blaise—Squeeze 'Em; Milton Young	$ 250
Georgette, ch m, 9, by Forester—Thora; Milton Young	760
Ida K, b m, 17, by King Alfonso—Lerna; J. B. Viley	300
Miss Cody, b m, 11, by imp. Billet—Belle Palmer; Milton Young	200

Following the Fairview lot sixteen head belonging to C. S. Lyne sold for $2,605, an average of $163 per head. The best prices realized for these were:

Nance, b m, 6, by Himyar—Adele M; Milton Young	$ 200
Imp. Deceiver, b h, 17, by Wenlock—Boot and Saddle; J. D. Hughes	1,750

There was a large attendance in the evening at the sale of yearling thoroughbreds, property of different owners.

Bay colt, imp. Ben Strome—Pete Morris; J. E. Cushing	$ 500
Brown filly, King Eric—Imp. Cleopatra; T. Welch	925
Chestnut colt, King Eric—Electrical; S. G. Hughes	375
Bay colt, imp. Deceiver—Mary Parks; W. H May	200
Bay colt, imp. Wagner—Sue Fannie; J. W. Forsythe	250
Brown colt, imp. Wagner—Westeria; J. W. Forsythe	225
Black colt, Kingstock—Fate; Eugene Leigh	575
Bay filly, Teuton—Jean; Ed A Tipton	225
Bay colt, Teuton—Imp. Maid of Athol; P. Wimmer	650
Bay colt, Teuton—Semper Fidele; "E" A. Tipton	850
Bay filly, imp. Deceiver—Ida Walton; J. S. Hawkins	400
Chestnut filly imp. Deceiver—Dutch Girl; T. W. Fuller	200
Chestnut colt, King Eric—Elemi; W. M. Wallace	325
Bay colt, King Eric—Fannie J.; C. T. Patterson	625
Bay colt, Donatello—Nellie Whittaker; J. W. Fuller	275

Forty head brought brought $8,500. Average, $212.50.

The Champion Pacing Mare.

When Angie D. took her record to 2:07 at Detroit, which stands the whole world's record for pacing mares, she was a 100 to 1 shot, and her backers made $3,000 off the heat. Her owner writes:

J. W. Hughes, Indianapolis, DETROIT, Mich., July 13 1895

When my mare Angie D. reduced the world's record for pacing mares to 2:07 she carried the Speed Sustaining Elixir. I consider the Elixir the greatest help to a horse when in distress I know of. G. A. GOODRICH.

SPRECKELS STOCK FARM
A TYPICAL CALIFORNIA RANCHO

A person who travels over California, especially on making a tour of the breeding farms, would be prone to think that the last place visited was entitled to the premium. This, of course, does not refer to acreage or numb r of horses kept. Rancho del Paso, with square leagues enough to make something over forty thousand acres, several hundreds of broodmares, not counting aught but thoroughbreds, and a group of stallions that cannot be equalled on several other places, gives California the top place. Then Palo Alto, even after the reduction of the stock, leads in the trotting line; Santa Anita, that has shown such a succession of racehorses, San Mateo Stock Farm, that has turned out some of the grandest specimens of the "truly American horse"—though now-a-days there are two of the breed as pacers must be let into the fold, maybe the first place of 1897 is to show the preferences of the future. It cannot be called boasting when the claim is made that this coast is par excellence the racehorse region, enough having been demonstrated in the past to earn the title and with still brighter hopes for the years to come. But if Mr. Spreckels' Stock Farm is inferior to several other California ranchos in the amount of surface of the world it contains, in other respects it cannot be beaten. Difficult to imagine a handsomer location naturally, and with improvements in keeping with endowments of Dame Nature. Napa valley has always been celebrated for beauty of scenery and richness of soil. It would be difficult to find a location that would excel the rancho. Though Mr. Co, a good friend whom I met there says there are parts superior and he came so near convincing me of the truth of his statement, that the trip will be made whenever the time can be taken. From one end of the valley to the other, so that no beauty spot will be overlooked.

The house in which Superintendent Mulkey resides is on a bench elevated so as to give a view of many acres of the farm,

The grand mountains in the back ground, chapparal covered in places in other smooth. If Hogarth were correct in defining the line of grace and beauty as a succession of curves—and few will deny his authority on that point—these are fully represented on both sides of the valley. Then across the plain there is another attraction in the asylum, the many minarets suggesting an Oriental scene among the mountains of the Far East. But it is far from my intention now to discourse on the beauties which are so liberally bestowed on this section, and our fitting part of it are the buildings.

In rare good taste from the grand training barn to the little playhouse which the former owner erected, and that should suggest to the present proprietor that he do his part in furnishing occupants.

The training barn is certainly entitled to the premium. Clearly right when it is without a single exception the best in California. Elliptical in form, of size to give thirty-eight money boxes, with walks on the inside and out. A fountain and flowers in the center, though king frost had scorched the tender blossoms, but Mr. Mulky had taken precautions to protect the flowers near the house, covering them with sacks when there was a suspicion of frost in the air. And there is another thing which the Spreckels Stock Farm will be entitled to the first place. Neatness and order, carried almost to a finical point, but adding to the beauty. Not a loose straw, gravel raked, leaves gathered as soon as dropped, it is surely the model farm in this country when so much attention is paid to neatness.

The yearlings to be sold Monday evening next were walking on the outside and inside. I have always had great faith that when yearlings walked like a racehorse they were apt to race. And yet it is somewhat difficult to describe the racehorse walk. Even of motion, it may be called, and when united with form and breeding rarely fails to carry ont the promise.

Quite a number of the youngsters that walked like winners, and had also the form and the breeding to indicate the same desirable quality. Surely then within bounds to say that racehorses, a fair proportion of them, will be found among those to be sold on Monday night.

Plenty of promise in sires and dams. Crighton is so nearly a model in form that, as I looked him over in the paddock, difficult to find a weak place in his configuration. He had a companion in the paddock, and that spoke well for his disposition. An even temperament is valuable in a racehorse, in fact, of nearly as much importance as speed, when combined the two greatest qualities. Crighton showed such an immense turn of speed that his colts can hardly fail to race, and his pedigree, combining as it does some of the most famous strains of the English and Australian turf, that if like produces like, as is now accepted to be the correct foundation for breeding, the colts of this handsome horse should race.

The relationship of Idalium to Sir Modred and Cheviot is surely an augury of success. But as he has supplemented nearness of kin with race getters, with his own get of winners, there can be little question when two dams of his colts are of the right kind of breeding, and performers as well.

If a person mean to select a pedigree that would embody the great strains he would find that Watercress was very close up with any other choice. It might be troublesome to select a superior. Springfield, his sire, Whartdale by Hermit his dam. Then in the next column St. Albans, and then the "Emperor of Stallions," Stockwell. Again a wonderful list of names as the pedigree is extended. The Baron, Pocohontas, Then Splitvote. Orlando, Malibran, Pyrrhus, Palmyra, Touchstone, Beeswing—the greatest mare in the Annals of the English Turf—64 races run, 51 wins and these at distances which tried Stamina as well as speed, and before the Beeswing cross, Queen Mary, the dam of so many great horses, and the grandam of Blair Athol.

Anyone who fancies he can gain a better pedigree than that of Watercress will have quite a job on his hands, though it may be that there are other combinations equally as good, still better perhaps, but I would be pleased to see it. The colts and fillies are, of course, the main attraction. Not so much dependent on the parentage as their form. Or it might be better to put it if their forms are not up to a standard then birthright is small avail. I am always loath to select winners in their yearling form, and shall not deviate from that rule now. Still I took notes as the yearlings and two-year-olds were led around the ring, and will look quite anxiously how buyers share in the estimate. I have a practice of marking against the colt's name one or more X. the greater number, of course, indicating my estimate.

Quite a number of crosses and how these will correspond th the views of buyers, will be a matter of interest.

As the notes will be laid aside for future reference, still ore interesting to see how the prognostics are sustained by he crucial test, the alembic of actual racing.

I have little fear that these hieroglyphies will be sustained when they make their appearance on the tracks.

It might be invidious to make comparisons, and were I to select the get of any of the stallions mentioned, over the others, the racing might tell a different story.

There are two stallions which are likely to make a high mark outside of Crighton, Watercress and Idalium, Eola and Puryear D.

Each a member of one of our greatest families, and addition to membership in the Eolus clan is a big fine-looking horse. Puryear D. is also well bred and has size. Only one of their progency, a colt of Puryear D. will be offered, but it is safe to say when the sons and daughters of Eolo are placed on the market there will be a sharp demand.

Idalium had for a companion Geraldine. Only a low partition between them and evidently on the very best of terms. This companionship is certainly a good feature the stallions improved in their disposition, quieter and better contented.

TROTTING RACE FOR FOALS OF 1896.—The Alameda Driving Association will give a race for two-year-olds to take place on the Alameda Track, September 9th, 1898. One-half mile heats, best two in three, owners to drive.

Entrance fee $2.50 and $1 per month to date of race, said $1 must be paid to the Secretary on or before the 15th of each month.

Entries close January 1, 1898.

First prize—A silver cup offered by the Alameda Driving Association and two-thirds of all entrance money.

Second prize—One-third of tha entrance money.

Five entries required to fill.

No hopples will be allowed in the race.

Non members may enter a colt but must join the Association on or before September 1, 1898.

Address communication to A. O. GOTT, Secretary, 230 Montgomery street. Alameda, Cal.

The more stakes of that described is a material benefit to harness-racing on this coast, or any other sec ion of the country for that matter. It may appear trivial to get up so small a stake, but it must be borne in mind that the Alameda club has no other sources of revenue than membership and dues.

The track is not fenced, and hence no gate money. But small as the stake and monthly payments are, should there be such a surprise as there is likely to be the sums will be worthy of attention. Then the condition "owners to drive" makes it emphatically a sporting event, as in all probability those who make entries will be also the breeders of the colts, and surely to win by animals bred and driven by the owners will add to the attraction.

Then, in my opinion, the Alameda track is the fastest trot ing-track in any country, and eminently safe as well.

I was there on Sunday last and the stretches have been raised so that it is right to expect a good wet-weather track as well as an incomparable one when it is dry. There is a change in the date that can be made with advantage. September 7th is usually one of the dates of the State Fair, and it may be better, perhaps, to await the fixing of the date until it is determined when the State Fair and a meeting in the vicinity of San Francisco are to be held.

* * *

THE ANNUAL MEENING of the P. C. T. H. B. A. brough out the fullest attendance of members in the history of the association. A satisfactory meeting in every respect, though the meeting of the new Board was postponed for two weeks. That Hon. D. E. Knight will be elected president is assured and that he is one of the most popular men connected with harness horses is beyond question.

It was resolved to incorporate the Association under the State law, and that is also a good idea.

A resolution was adopted requesting the other California associations to unite with The Breeders in employing a presiding judge, and also a recommendation that all the rules must be rigidly enforced.

* * *

TOO MUCH INFORMATION. It might be good policy to curtail some of the information that comes from the tracks For instance, a horse that is entered in the races is "scratched." Some one that was intent on seeing the horse run fails to attend from that cause, and that dollar is ost to the club. Very well to state that genuine information is desirable and that the clubs owe it to their patrons to furnish them with all the intelligence that is within their ower to give. But this action is diminishing the attendnce too plain for contradiction and then again the evening apers have secured a pull over the turf journals.

The extra has an advantage over the "regulars," and when the clubs are losing a part of their income, it would appear that this intelligence could be denied with mutual benefit, The clubs cut off a portion of their resources, the turf papers, proper, lose a part of their revenue.

THE North Pacific Trotting Horse Association was organized at Portland, Or., yesterday at a meeting of the horsemen from different sections of the northwest. Dr. Ellis McLean was elected President and D. M. Wisdom Secretary. The object of the association is stated to be the protection of trotting herse owners.

I am well pleased to learn that our northern friends have organized such a society, As Mr. Tipton has declared that there will be no harness racing at his Montana meetings there will be plenty of trotting and pacing horses for Oregon and California, and hence it should be a good year north and south.

JOS. CAIRN SIMPSON.

Death of a Promising Colt.

Mr. Robert Tucker of Los Angeles had the misfortune to ose his fine three-year old pacing colt Fred Hal by Bronze Hal, by Brown Hal, dam Sallett by Judge Salsbury, second dam Moor Maid by the Moor, recently by accident. The colt had been in the hands of Wm. Durfee for two months and was showing up well. As a two-year old he seemed "'logy" and destitute of spirit, and when placed in Mr. Durfee's hands it required "the flail" to get him to show a quarter in 45 seconds. At the end of less than a month and a half he went a mile in 2:34 and a quarter in 33 seconds. The accident that resulted in the death of this promising colt occurred while Mr. Durfee was speeding him on the track at Agricultural Park, Los Angeles. There was quite a number of horses being worked out and Mr. Durfee was well outside with Fred Hal. Something caused the colt to swerve suddenly toward the fence which he struck hard enough to break a plank. A tapered splinter about three feet long entered his right side penetrating the lung. He died in ten hours after the accident. Mr. Tucker's wife, who is one of the best reinswomen in California, broke the colt to harness and is nearly heartbroken over the death of her pet. $2,000 was the sum refused for him by Mr. Tucker.

TAKE off your hats to Electrite, the nine-year-old son of Electioneer and Sprite, by Belmont! He has added no less than thirteen new performers to his list for 1897, and now stands credited as the sire of nineteen performers at nine years—a record far away beyond parallel. The new list of these thirteen new ones will be found elsewhere in our 2:30 list, under their sire, and Col. Exall writes from Dallas that, if the weather keeps good, he has his eye on a dozen other youngsters that are good for the list before January 1st, and that he expects to make Electrite the leading sire of the year. As a sire of early speed this young horse is surely a phenomenon, and of his nineteen performers four are two-year-olds, eleven three-year-olds and and four four-year-olds. The dams of six are of unknown breeding and all others are of short-bred mares. Electrite is certainly a prodigy.

ONLY three sires were this season represented by as many as three new 2:15 trotters. They were Allerton, 2:09¼; Chimes, 2:30½, and King Wilkes, 2:22½, each having just three trotters in that extreme speed list. Of the sires having two new 2:15 trotters there are seven, as follows: Mambrino King; Patron, 2:14¼; Robert McGregor, 2:17½; Waldstein, 2:22½; Warlock; Wilkes Boy, 2:24½. and Wilton, 2:19¼. It will be noticed that seven out of the 10 sires were developed enough to take a record.

B. JOHNSON has Diggs and Sutton in training. Ab Stemler has the two-year-old Arbaces, while Galen Brown has the yearling by Red Iron—Lilly Wright. All are full brothers and two are good winners. Arbaces is a grand looker and is benig galloped again. He was recently "fired." Diggs was quite a performer as a two and three year old.

ODDS ON is well named, judging by his first appearance on the turf, which was Thursday. He made his field look very yellow, and was conceding a lot of weight to everything, barring Mainbar. Odds On is a fine-looking chestnut colt, and it would be hard to pick a flaw in him outside of an enlargement of the hock of the nigh hind leg.

TOMMY LOTTRIDGE has thirty horses in training and there is not a sick one in the barn. Scarf Pin will be ready to face the starter early in the new year, as will also the California Derby winner, Scarborough. Lottridge is one of the most successful trainers out here.

WALTER HOBART recently purchased a grey pony in the northen part of this State for $50. The animal is developing into a phenomenal hurdle jumper. On the first tria he made nearly five feet. In consequence Mr. Hobart believes he struck a bargain.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.

TURF AND TRACK.

THE SULKY.

John Kelly says Direct is going well at the trot and thinks he will be raced next year.

There were 386 head of trotters and pacers sold at the Fasig sale for $155,610 or an average of $403.

A Boston horseman offered C. J. Hamlin $ 8,000 for The Abbott, 2:11¼, during the New York Horse Show.

Det Bigelow who has been at the Walnut Grove Stock Farm for the past year resigned his position last week.

Ned Thorn, 2:24½ was sired by Billy Thornhill out of Lady Nutwood (dam of Lady Grosvenor 2:27) by Grosvenor.

Percy, a bay gelding by Sidney, 2:19¾, won a pacing race at Findlay, Ohio, September 24th, getting a mark of 2:25¼.

The youngsters by Hambletonian Wilkes at the Green Meadow Stock Farm, Santa Clara, are fine looking individuals.

Anita S, by Sable Wilkes, that is reported to have worked a mile over Lexington track to 2.13¼, is an M & M stake candidate.

George Hoff, the latest of the get of Allandorf to enter the 2:30 list, is out of Lady Blanche, dam of the famous turf outlaw Alcryon, 2:15.

The Hamlins will drive The Monk and The Abbott as a double team next year and they will likely take a slice off the double-team record.

Mosul, 2:09¼, by Sultan, is now the champion five-year old trotting gelding. David B.'s, 2:10¼ was the record at the close of last year.

The three-year-old colt Senator Coke by Guy Wilkes, out of Matilda, dam of Trotwood, 2:15¾, took a record of 2:26 at Hillsboro, Tex., on October 9.

Robert Steel, of Cedar Park Farm, the home of Epaulet, 2:19, and others, has bought Una Wilkes, 2:15, by Guy Wilkes for breeding purposes.

The colt Luftenburg, by Daghestan, 2:12¼, out of Lady Clare, 2:18¾, by Elyria, promises to be one of the fastest two-year-olds in Europe next season.

Ed Lafferty, the well-known driver, has removed from San Jose to Alameda. He will erect a number of buildings near the splendid track there and open a public stable.

Frank W. Covey, Superintendent of Palo Alto, has taken hundreds of horses from Palo Alto to the East at al, seasons of the year and has never lost one of them en route.

The annual meeting of the P. C. T. H. B. Association was a good one and those present seemed determined to adopt measures to make light harness horse races more popular in future.

In the first paper published in the State—the South Carolina Gazette for 1744—thirty horses are advertised as strayed or stolen. The gait is only given in twelve cases, and ten of them are pacers.

Jasper Ayres, 2:11¾, was purchased by Mr. Sultz, a retired business man of Boston' at the Cleveland Fasig sale, not by R. W. Robbs, as was reported. Mr. Sultz will drive the horse on the road.

Mr. Ira Pierce started East last Monday with two carloads of trotters and pacers for the P. C. Kellogg sale. Samuel Gamble had charge of the horses and will have them in them in the ring in perfect order.

Have you a fast pacer or trotter you wish to dispose of? If so read the advertisement of the initial trotting horse sale of the Occidental Horse Exchange in this issue, and communicate with the proprietor at once.

Electrite might easily have had his fourteenth performer this season in the four-year-old Dean Forest, who got no record, but was second in 2:21½ in the 3:00 trot at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, last month.

Alex. McLaren of Buckingham, Quebec, is driving as a team the fast mare Wistful, 2:11¼, and Duke of Arklan, 2:29¼, by Arklan, a son of Guy Wilkes. When snow comes, Larabie 2:12½ will be driven with Wistful.

Miller & Sibley have sold the stallion Electric Bell, by Electioneer, out of Beautiful Bells, to Hon. J. H. Bailey of Texas. It is reported that he will remain in Kentucky, where he has been kept for some time past.

Richard Havey, the well known driver for Palo Alto who had his leg fractured by Pasonte at Los Angeles, is able to get around on crutches. It will be many months before he will regain the use of his injured limb.

The American Horse Breeder and other papers have been crediting the Iowa trotting mare Wyotta, 2:29½, to Othello son of Mambrino Pilot, when she was sired by Othello, son of Sultan, who is owned at Taylor Farm, near Sully.

At Madison Square Garden, New York city, Saturday last, the twenty head of colts and fillies sired by Allerton and consigned by C. W. Williams to the William B. Fasig & Co. sale, brought a total of $16,415, an average of $820.75.

W. L. ("George Wilkes") Simmons, who took George Wilkes to Kentucky in 1873 and has accumulated a large fortune out of his descendants, is to retire from breeding. Young Jim, Jay Bird, William L, Betterton, Eagle Bird and his other horses are to be sold at auction, at Lexington, in February.

The associations in California should endeavor to meet next month and complete arrangements for holding race meetings during the year. There will be neither trotting nor pacing races in Montana next season if the right kind of programmes are offered, dash races and two in three races, we believe their would be a revival in interest in this class of racing.

California has the opportunities of giving the best race meetings next year than for years. She has within her borders some of the fleetest harness horses in the world, and if the associations will offer proper inducements nearly all of them can be kept at home next season.

There will be an immense number of horses used in Alaska next year. The large steamers which will leave here will carry hundreds of our surplus horses to that land from whence they never will return. This drain on the market will cause a rise in values as the supply will be limited.

W. Wood, 2:07, is turned out at the Oakwood Stock Farm. He looks like a three year old; his legs are as clean as the day he was foaled,and as he was an ideal road horse no doubt some of our wealthy road riders will try and secure him for a spin down the speed track in Golden Gate Park.

John A. McKerron has just completed the finest set of carriage harness ever made in California. They were ordered by Mr. Louis Sloss, and to say that nothing heretofore seen in California surpasses them for style, beauty and quality, would not be exaggerating. It is not generally known that the leading people of this state have had Mr. McKerron make their harness, and are keeping him busily employed in getting up new designs. He made a set for a horse owned by Mr. Jos. Grant, at Burlingame, which has set every one of the "400" talking about its beauty and finish.

Have you ever used Priest's power clipping and grooming machines? They are the best ever made. Thousands are in use and give great satisfaction. They are the simplest and strongest ever made besides being so easy to run and keep in order that anyone with a knowledge of turning a handle can use one. Every large teaming firm in San Francisco should purchase a set of grooming brushes to affix on these horse clipping machine. Thousands of dollars will be saved by their use annually and the horses will be cleaner and better than if curried and brushed in the old way. Send for circulars at once.

Secretary W. H. Gocher, of the National Trotting Association, thus defines the rule as to the suppression of time: "It does not make any difference whether the suppression was on a track in membership with the National Trotting Association or not. If it can be shown that the time was suppressed in contest for purse, premium, stake or wager, or where admission fee was charged at the gate, the horse is liable for a fine of $100 and return of unlawful winnings from date of suppression of time until the matter is adjusted. Also, such cases must go to the Board of Review, and it alone has authority to remove disqualification imposed by rule 41, section 1."

The announcement that next year that there will be no harness races at Butte or Anaconda has caused local horsemen to discuss the possibility of having a summer meeting in Salt Lake for the pacing and trotting contingent. The harness horses that have heretofore gone over the Montana circuit have been exceptionally high class, and as many of them never leave the Northwest, they will have considerable spare time, unless the Montana dates are filled in. Opinion is that if the Salt Lake mile-track were repaired and the enterprise put into the hands of an energetic management, a meeting could be held here that would be profitable alike to the promoters and horsemen. It is a matter of comment throughout the West that no other town in the country, of the size of Salt Lake fails to support a race-track.—Salt Lake Tribune.

When ground was broken for the Harlem River Speedway about four years ago, New Yorkers who owned good roadsters looked forward with enjoyable anticipation to the time when they could use it. They hoped that it would be ready in a comparatively short time, but the various delays have caused many of them to almost forget that such a thing as the Speedway was ever promised. Now, however, that a portion of it is finished and has been opened for use, the roadsters are flocking to it at every opportunity. The completion of the Speedway will also act as a boom to the horse trade, for there are any number of men in this city who love to drive behind a blooded horse when there is a place to speed him, and who for lack of this facility have never cared to own a horse.

Among the California horses sold at the Fasig sale in New York City we noticed the following: L. 96, 2:19¼, by Electricity, $375; Roseman, by Truman—Rosemont, by Piedmont, $325; Crescendo T, by Electricity—Lady Ellen, $110; Miss Midget by Direct—Miss Inca, $275; Vorlect by Direct—Rose by Antevolo, $175; Olga by Sable Wilkes—Hannah by Le Grande, $220; Una Wilkes 2:15 by Guy Wilkes, $375; Athanio, 2:10 by Junio,$2,800;Golden Gateway by Guy Wilkes by Sable Hayward, $370; San Souci, 2:28¼ by Sidney—Miss Roy, $750; Athinx, 2:20 pacing, by Onsphinx—Athalie (dam of Athanio,2:10), $300; Anteeolo by Antevelo—Mabel, $550; Ida by Sidney—Juno by Buccaneer, 2:10; Maud C. by California Nutwood—Zola by Steinway, $400; Grover (brother to Azote, 2:04¼), $25.

Old horsemen who have watched the progress of light harness horses for several years past were agreeably surprised last week when they noted the manner in which the horses in the big sale at Madison Square Garden were selling. They had noted small prices for so long that the fair returns for good stock last week set them on edge with joy, and many of them have come to the conclusion that the tide of prices have at last turned. This news will add impetus to the breeding business, and if it continues many large stock farms, now practically abandoned, will spring into activity again, and will within a few years sends batches of young harness stock to the markets. The revival of road driving in many sections of the country and the heavy demand from Europe for good road and racing stock is responsible for the boom Buyers, however, and especially the Europeans, are more critical than they were a few years ago, and they will buy only good strains of blood, and then only when the animal has done something or looks to be promising of something above the average. Harness racing is at present one of the most popular sports in Austria, and the presence of at least a dozen buyers in New York, among them Albert Moser, Johann Fleischmann and the representatives of Schlesinger & Co., is indicative of the future of the sport in that country The buyers are sending over all the well-known strains of blood—some for racing, and a great many for breeding purposes. Hungary is splendid breeding soil, and many large stock farms have sprung up there during the past five years

Monroe Salisbury is credited by certain newspapers as having lost his wealth through his experiments with horses. This is not so. He says the depreciation in the value of real estate in Chicago, the death of his partner in Salt Lake and disastrous mining ventures have had more to do with his financial misfortunes than anything else. Until 1897 he always cleared from $10,000 to $40,000 with his horses and believes it could be done again if he is fortunate enough to secure the right kind of material.

Mr. Henry J. Crocker, who recently returned from the East, says there will be a horse show held in San Francisco in 1898 which will surpass all ever held here. We understand several orders have been sent to the large Eastern carriage houses for carriages, landaus, carts, etc., already, and the finest turnouts ever collected will be exhibited for prizes when the doors open. We earnestly hope the light harness horse breeders will make numerous entries. The trotters and pacers in the eastern shows this year were far above the average both in quality and number and attracted much attention there. We want to see our local horsemen help the association this time more than they have in the past.

Of the past queens of the trotting turf, very little blood has descended to present trotting generations. Lady Suffolk had a foal by Vermont Black Hawk, but it died young. Flora Temple refused to breed until far advanced in years, but then had three foals, viz., Kitty Temple, bay mare, by Rysdyk, Prince Imperial, bay horse, by William Welch, and Queen's Daughter, brown mare, by Leamington. None of these have cut much figure in the pedigree list. Goldsmith Maid, on the other hand, has left a son and a daughter, the former, Stranger, having made a great hit in the stud and the latter is also a producer. Maud S. has thus far failed to breed, but is only as old as Flora Temple was when she dropped her first foal. Sunol has not yet bred. Nancy Hanks has a weanling filly by Arion, and is said to be carrying by him again. Alix, we believe, has never been stinted.

The extraordinary good prices which were realized at the Fasig sale in New York, last week, must not be taken as being due entirely to an increased demand in this country, but in a good measure do the three or four European buyers who have been in this country for several weeks purchasing the best trotters in the market. Going over the list of sales of the first week it will be seen that Europe is buying more horses and leaving more money in the hands of American breeders and owners than ever before. Its representatives purchased the team Alice Leyburn and Georgia M. for $6,200; Que Allen for $4,600; Hornelia Wilkes for $3,600, and Anthanio for $2,800, making a total of $17,200 for five head. Other sales aggregate $25,485, for nineteen head—an average of $1,340 per head. In addition to this, they purchased at private sale Bismark 2:13¼ for $3,500; Countess Eve 2:09¼ for about $3,000, and dozens of others which will bring their purchases of six weeks up to fully $50,000.

As we are going to press, a dispatch from our New York correspondent brings the sad intelligence of the death of Matthew Riley, who passed away in that city on Monday of this week. Mr. Riley had been ill for several weeks, but lately hopes were entertained for his recovery. His death will be felt as a grievous loss to hundreds who knew him as a friend and had learned to esteem him as one of nature's noblemen. He was a warm friend of the harness horse, and his wealth permitted him to indulge his fancy for the pleasures of the road and track. He has owned some notable horses, and at the time of his death the black gelding Guy (2.10¾), that for some time held the wagon record, was a member of his stable. Mr. Riley was one of the most conspicuous figures on the New York speedway, and was prominently identified with the turf, serving the New York Driving Club in the capacity of president in its most prosperous days. He stood for honor and integrity in the sport of harness racing, and associated with a bright intellect were the amiable qualities of a generous heart that won him friends whenever he went. He was extremely popular, and had a very wide acquaintance.

We learn with regret that Jimmy Sullivan has about concluded to leave Willows and give up the stable of horses which he has been working for the past few years. It is stated by those in position to know that while the horses in his stable made a snug sum of money for their owners during the racing season, Mr. Sullivan himself made nothing. We are told that he is now considering several propositions to go to work for wages, with a fair prospect of his accepting any of them. We hope that this will not prove to be the case. Mr. Sullivan since taking up his quarters at our track has been quite a help to our town. He has kept employed at all times no less than four men, and has fed and trained all the way from six to twenty head of horses. It is safe to say that he has paid out monthly about $200, all of which has found its way into channels of our trade, and the loss of which at this time would be severely felt. While we do not know what our people could do to dissuade Mr. Sullivan from taking this step, yet we do know that if there is anything that can be done it should be attended to. It is pretty certain that Col. Park Henshaw will winter his stable at our track but whether they will be trained here or by whom we are not advised.—Willows Journal.

There were many of Electioneer's get that were, as colts following their dams, natural pacers in the full sense of the term. May King, 2:21¼ was, and the last time I saw him—in 1895—he still took much of his exercise at that gait. Wildflower was a natural pacer, and it was the hardest work in the world to start her going as a trotter. Manzanita, 2:16, was a natural pacer. Bonita was a natural pacer. Hinda Rose, 2:19½, was a natural pacer. There were many others that were double-gaited—including all the Beautiful Bells family. I had this information concerning mixed-gated Electioneers, first from a "swipe" who had worked several years at Palo Alto, next from an ex trainer, and, lastly, from Mr. F. W. Covey, superintendent of Palo Alto. Peruvian Bitters was not a natural pacer, but one that found the pacing gait after he got sore trotting, and his trainer took a notion to cultivate the new gait. If Ed Geers or J. B. Chandler, or any other successful trainer that has had much experience converting trotters to the pacing gait,had been turned loose at Palo Alto with instructions to make all the pacing speed possible, Electioneer would have had a long list of 2:10 pacers to his credit, and one of them would have been Sunol. Electioneer got no pacers because his get were not trained to pace.—Yarrum in Horse Review.

THE SADDLE.

THREE BARS, a much improved colt, won five races at the Lexington meeting.

W. CLANCY, the steeplechase jockey, only recently arrived from Windsor, Ont., where he piloted every horse to victory that he rode.

STARTER CALDWELL did splendid work at Ingleside last week, and as long as he keeps up that lick there will be no need of a recall flag.

GEORGE D. BENNETT has bought a fine farm ten miles from Memphis and will go more keenly into the breeding of horses in the future.

LITTLE MEANY is destined to make a very high-class horse pilot. His finish on Bliss Rucker Tuesday was a very smart bit of work in the saddle.

MRS. REIFF, mother of Jockey Reiff, has purchased the three-year-old Shieldbearer, and the latter and Jackanapes, also owned by Mrs. Reiff, will be raced at New Orleans.

THE last issue of the Spirit of the Times of New York contains cuts of W. E. Applegate and a number of the horses at his Oakwood Stud, including little Badge and old Fonso and the dams of Ben Eder and Bannockburn.

J. MATTHEWS was the most successful jockey at the Lexington meeting, as he rode no less than twenty-five winners during twenty-one days' rabing. Beauchamp came next with nineteen, followed by Randall, Dupee and H. Williams.

AT the horse sales this morning the yearling thoroughbred by Rayon d'Or, out of the famous race mare Sallie McClelland, sold for $8,000 to J. D. Smith. W. C. Smith was a contending bidder.—Lexington dispatch, November 29th.

ALL of the yearlings and a number of racehorses from E. J. Baldwin's Santa Anita Farm will be sold by W. G. Layng & Co. at the Occidental Horse Exchange Thursday night, Dec. 23d. Further particulars hereafter. Catalogues will be issued soon.

W. S. HOBART is trying to arrange a race for gentlemen riders. He says that if they can get half a dozen good horses and half a dozen gentleman jockeys and shake dice for the mounts they should have an equal chance and put up a very attractive race.

SATSUMA ran a mile in 1:40 over Ingleside course Monday, breaking the track record to the extent of three-quarters of a second. The quarter was in 0:24¾, half in 0:48¾, three-quarters in 1:14½. Ruinart and Chartreuse had run over this track in 1:40¾.

LUCKY DOG, the greatest mud horse in America, up to a mile, was the cheapest $500 horse ever sold in this country. Since Barney Schreiber bought him at that figure he has won ten or twelve races, one a stake, and Barney resold him to Sam Hildreth for $1,250.

MATTHEW RILEY, treasurer of the Detroit Jockey Club, died in New York last week of Bright's disease. He had been ill for several months. Mr. Riley was among the best known and liked racing men in the country, and was also prominent in the hotel business.

JOHN MACKEY, the veteran superintendent of Rancho del Paso, is on his way to Kentucky with a carload of brood mares and stallions from Sacramento. Imported Candlemas and Order were sent to the Kentucky farm, and with the recent purchase, Juvenal, will be the farm's stallions.

WHEN Charlie Patterson is in the horse buying line he will have nothing but the best. The other day he purchased from Bradley Bros. a yearling filly by Patron, dam a Longfellow mare, paying for her $3,000. The youngster had worked in phenomenal time at the Lexington track.

THE good Fitz James—Ysabel colt, Sir William, died very suddenly in his stall on Thursday night. He is supposed to have choked to death. Sir William was quite a colt in the mud, and won only last week at Oakland. He was owned by W. B. Sink, who paid $1,000 for the youngster.

GEORGE COCHRAN gave one of the gamest exhibitions of horsemanship on the back of Presidio ever seen, being thrown so many times and remounting that the people stopped counting. When he finally got the horse over all the obstacles and finished he got much greater applause than the rider of the winner.

BARNEY SCHREIBER received a telegram Dec. 3d announcing the death of his two-year-old, First Born. This filly was highly prized, as she was the first foal of Penny-royal and by the dead turf monarch, Morello. Penny-royal was the mare that was largely instrumental in giving Barney a start on the road to Fortune.

RILEY GRANNAN is now in England. He reached there in time to witness the closing day's sport of the English flat racing season, which practically ends November 27. Grannan is reported to have been playing the stock market, sugar chiefly, with fair success, thus retrieving some of the losses he sustained during the racing season.

EUGENE LEIGH was in Nashville this week. He and C. H. Gillock, held several private conferences, presumably about the stable horses they are to race next season. Mr. Gillock has made several entries in the Kentucky Derby to be run in 1899, and Mr. Leigh has also made some entries in that classic event.—Breeder and Horseman, Nashville.

SEVERAL weeks ago at Harlem one of J. W. Schorr's horses was bid up $800 over the entry price in a selling race. Under the rules, one-half, or $400, went to the owner of the second horse, George C. Bennett. Recently Secretary Nathanson informed Mr. Bennett, who is at Memphis, that the association owed him $400. Mr. Bennett replied that he desired the money to be distributed for charity. Accordingly the horseman's wishes were complied with, and the donation was distributed as follows: $100, Little Sisters of the Poor; $100, Salvation Army; $100, Alexian Brothers' Hospital; $50, poor of Harlem, and $50 Illinois Children Home Society.

PARAGON, by imp. Mr. Picknick out of imp. Holmdel (dam of Wernberg), won recently at Singerly, Md. By the way, it's strange some breeder hasn't picked Wernberg up. He is for sale, is a royally-bred horse with a great turf record back of him, grand individuality, and is pretty sure to make a sire of race horses. Palo Alto folks ought to secure this horse.

G. C. BENNETT, who has made a fortune on the turf and in the poolroom buisness, has purchased a big farm near Memphis, where he lives. He will convert it into a stock and breeding establishment, with a well-bred stallion or two, and a lot of choice mares. He already has one of the best stables in the West, and was remarkably successful the present season.

ED CORRIGAN is training Captive and Stentor for Pat Dunne. "The old order changeth, giving place to the new." Pat used to train for his Uncle Ed a few seasons ago. The horses were left at the Holly farm last spring and were taken up this fall. Stentor is doing well, but Captive, who was one of the best horses in the West last year, seems to be a little thick in his wind.

THE racing firm of Cougle & Creveling has been harmoniously dissolved, Charles H. Cougle retiring. His share of the stable, Abe Fashion, Fred Owen and Fontumka, has been sold to C. G. Craddock. The three colts will winter at Roby and probably go to the Rome Stable in the spring. Clem Creveling retains Ulysses, and has shipped him to St. Louis where he will winter.

THEODORE WINTERS, the pioneer horseman and breeder of the State, was at Ingleside Tuesday. Mr. Winter says that he hopes Marion is in foal, but can't tell. The mother of so many equine kings and queens is in better shape than she has for many seasons. She was bred late in the season to Lordlike, a son of Vandal. Should Marion have another foal money will not buy the half sister or brother to Emperor of Norfolk, El Rio Rey, Yo Tambien, etc.

THE Ingleside officials have suspended Jockey Snider for thirty days for the former poor showing of imp. Trance. Saturday she won with McNichols up. There will be a thorough investigation of the matter of the Australian mare's running and if Trainer Halliday does not bring some strong proofs that she is a natural in-and-outer he will be ruled off. That Trance has ever run consistently in California we question and that she has caused her admirers to curse often we know for a fact.

THE Spreckels yearlings to be sold next Tuesday night arrived at the Occidental Horse Exchange on the 10th, and will be cheerfully shown to lovers of thoroughbreds. There are several Watercresses in the sale, a Midlothian, Golden Garter, Puryear D. and several others by imp. Crighton and imp. Idalium, latter brother to Sir Modred, Cheviot and July. Among the great mares with foals in this sale are Dolly McCone, Border Lassie, Folly, imp. Atossa, imp. Yarranabee, Sweet Peggy, Glee and Tragic. Three two-year-olds bred in the purple are also in this consignment.

JOCKEY THORPE is accused of being the oldest jockey now riding actively. He has a little, weazened face, small, bead-like eyes, and sallow complexion. He might be 30 years of age or he might be 50. His face is not a telltale. One day as Thorpe stood on the scales making his weight Sloan sneaked up behind him and said to an outsider: "Mr ——, is it so that the Jockey Club has passed a rule that riders must give up work after they're fifty?" Thorpe turned slowly around and there was a twinkle in his eye as he looked squarely at the midget and said: "I don't know, Methusalem; you ain't in the infant class along with Winfield Hancock O'Connor and Danny Maher yourself by a good deal."

JAMES GARLAND ("Big Jim"), who in his day has trained as many first-class horses as any one in California, was at Ingleside Tuesday. Since the Spreckels sale Garland has had a limited stable, but is willing to enlarge it, and judging from the past record he should soon have a barnful, for there is little or nothing in the racing game left for him to learn, except to keep money when he has it. And Jim has had it often. Some years ago he took Beaconsfield East and sold him. So anxious was he to hold the money that he sent it by express to his partner, the late John Goldsmith, to keep for him. The express company charges were so high that Jim got the laugh all around and has not traded that way since, preferring to carry his money with him.

JUDGE JOHN J. CARTER is charmed with California. "I was prepared to see some fair racing," he said Friday to a BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN representative "but nothing like what the sport has been to date, and I did not expect to see such glorious race tracks, grand stands and grounds as you possess, either. The horses competing in races will compare favorably with those racing any point in the country, and, from what I have observed, the love of the sport of kings has come to stay in California and the racing will improve instead of going back. You have the best American horse market, too, I think. And the ladies of this part of the world! How beautiful, tall and queenly! Like your race horses, they are both comely and built on majestic lines. This is a great country and it has a grand future.

ONE of the most liberal stakes ever offered in the country is the one for the Tennessee Derby, to be run at Memphis, Tenn., under the auspices of the New Memphis Jockey Club. The conditions to the Tennessee Oak are also very liberal. The Tennessee Derby, formerly $5,000 guaranteed, has $3,000 added, the Oaks $1,000, and it costs owners nothing to enter in either event. The Derby should be worth $8,000 to the winner at least, and the Oaks about $8,000 to the winner. The New Memphis Jockey Club also offers $1,200 added money for the Montgomery Handicap, and it costs nothing to enter. Of the four two-year-old stake races, three have $1,000 added to each; the other is a selling event, $1,000 guaranteed. Then there is the Luehrmann Hotel Stake $1,500 guaranteed, for three-year-olds. The Tennessee Brewing Stake is a selling event for three-year-olds and upward, $1,000 added, seven furlongs, the Peabody Handicap has $1,500 guaranteed, one and one-eighth miles, and the Cotton Steeplechase Stake $750 added, about two miles. The maiden allowance of ten pounds in the Tennessee Derby has been abolished, and the best horse should win this liberal stake hereafter. The stake advertisement of the New Memphis Jockey Club appears in this issue, and every turfman appreciating liberality should enter his horses in the stakes for 1898 and 1899.

THE entries for the Racine stakes at six furlongs to be run at Oakland on December 15th, are as follows: Moreno, Gotobed, Brier Hill, Al Gorta, Abina, San Venado, San Antonio, San Carlos, Tiny P., Rosormonde, Estro, Bliss Rucker, Duckling, Eddie Jones, Napamax, Jim Brownell, Stan Powers, Sybaris, Recreation, Prince Blazes, Negligence, Einstein, Innuendo, Official, Bow and Arrow, Quirte, Iron Heels, Donator, Hals Mount, Uncle True, St. Philip, imp. Missioner, Punter, Hermoso, Tempse, Ed Gartland, Vivat Rex, Salabar, Towanda, The Ace, Dr. Sharp, Free Lady, Lord Marmion, Socialist, St. Cuthbert, Tiger Lily, St. Calatine, Gypceiver, Torsida, Morrabella, Royal Prize, Greenback II, Sorrow, Marplot, Contado, Arbaces, Deserotte, Defiant, Los Prietos, Highland Ball, Morana, Bodacia, Nevia, Ideal Beau, Morellito, P. A. Finnegan and Kittie Blake.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec 1.—La Belle Stock Farm near Yarnallton Station, the property of Mr. Eugene Leigh, was sold at public outcry at Lexington last week. It consisted of 467 acres of well-improved land, and brought a total of $28,932. The farm was sold in divisions. The first division of 101 acres, including the track, four barns, and cottages went to Milton Young at $101 an acre. Tom Welsh trainer for Charles Fleischmann, was the contending bidder, but would not go above $100 an acre. Two other divisions were sold separately and as a whole, bringing the better price by $14 per acre as a whole. The two were composed of 366 acres, and were knocked down to H. P. Headley at $78.50 an acre. Mr. E. B. Drake of Lexington was the contending bidder. The price was considered a very good one. For his farm and horses combined Mr. Leigh realized a total of $73,957.

DAN HALLIDAY and the Australian mare, Trance, have been ruled off the turf after an investigation. Halliday is the young man that came here with Stromboli, an ex-crack racer but supposed to have been past redemption for racing purposes. He got the horse ready through careful working and won some good races with him at Bay District track. Halliday has not had a world of expeoience as a trainer, however, and that might account, in a measure, for the mare's erratic running. J. D. Lewis, owner of Trance, owned Tarcoola, winner of the Melbourne Cup, and lives in Australia. He made a trip to this country about three years ago, and expressed a determination to send some racers over at an early date. Trance and Disparity (who died) were his property. We understand Trance was also under the ban in the Colonies, after which she was purchased by Mr. Lewis.

TO the publication of information regarding jockeys, scratches, etc., in the racing editions of the three San Francisco evening papers is attributed the falling off of patronage at the local tracks. The publication of this information, while deemed "good news" for the public because it puts them on their guard and prevents them from attending the races because they see certain horses are scratched or are ridden by inferior jockeys, work a hardship on the associations as well as the men who pay high prices for the programme privilege. It's like making an announcement to the public that "Othello will be played to-night at the Columbia, but Louis James and a number of the leading actors in his company will not appear." Empty benches would be as plenty as losing tickets at the race track. Why don't the associations stop this? The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN called their attention to this four weeks ago.

JACK MCDONALD is to race in England next season. Rensselaer has already landed in Newmarket. Tom Landers is to handle him. Rensselaer is to become a jumper and may try for the Paris Hurdle Handicap, one of the richest events of the year on the French turf. Leaders prepared Count Schomberg when that noted distance performer won the race, and he should know something about the event and the kind of a horse it would take to have a chance. They put much better horses over the sticks on the other side of the water than they do here, and it takes a first-class performer on the flat to win such a race as the Paris Hurdle Handicap. Rensselaer, should he winter well, should be the ideal horse for such a venture. He has the size and weight-carrying ability, possesses speed of high order, and can stay over any distance of ground. Of course he will run on the flat also, and should win in almost any company. There is likely to be a much higher class lot of these horses performing cross country in America this year. The owners of the sulking and broken down sprinters found the season of 1896 far from profitable, the young and sound horses winning nearly all of the money. The advisability of putting horses of fair class over the sticks was indicated clearly by the performance of Sir Vassar and Forget.

ONE of the best three-year-old fillies in England this year is Mr. L. Brassey's Limasol, by Poulet-Queen of Cyprus, a full sister to Maori, whose fast mile in Washington Park was the record till eclipsed by Racine. Queen of Cypress who is by King Tom-Cypriana, was bred by Baron Rothschild in 1873. Her first produce was in 1880, when she threw Berenger to Salvator, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. This filly went to France, where she became a successful broodmare. After her birth the Queen was again put in training and won several races. Her next foal was a filly by Vestminster, born in 1883, that was sent to Germany, where she won many races. In 1884 she threw another filly to Sefton that was sent to Buenos Ayres, where she was frequently successful. In 1885, when mated with Poulet, she produced Maori, mentioned above. In 1886 she had no produce. Next year she produced Lusigrian, a stake winner, also by Poulet. Her colt the next season was by Mark, and was never trained. Again mated with Poulet, she in 1890 threw William, who was sold for $30,000. A full sister to the above, Cypria, who as a three-year-old won the Cesarewitch, was her next effort. Then came two good winners by the same sire, and lastly Limasol, already alluded to. The produce of few mares is so widely scattered, as she has daughters at the stud in France, Germany, Buenos Ayres, England and this country, all of whom have made their mark, Maori possibly less so than any of the others, as, though she had two winners at Roby in Gallante and Marto, both are on the small side, so not likely to develop into high-class performers. Maori herself is in the Scoggan stud at Louisville, which is shortly to come up for sale. she is just in her prime, being now 12 years old. If she falls into the right hands, therefore, and is properly mated she may yet add to the glory of her family. St. Blaise or Order would be good blood to try.

Popularizing, Trotting and Pacing Races

The formation of a trotting horse association in Oregon on the same plan followed by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeder's Association furnishes additional proof that the truth regarding light harness horses is spreading. It also shows that horseowners and all who are interested intend to hold good meetings on this Coast in 1898. Doubtless the announcement that there will be no light harness racing in Montana has had much to do with the action of our brothers in Oregon. Over three hundred trotters and pacers were at the Anaconda and Butte meetings, but the crowd cared more for the running races than for the harness events because they said they "had quicker action for their money." Long drawn-out heats had no attraction for them. These three hundred horses will come to this Coast if suitable races are given and the question which confronts every true lover of a trotter or pacer, is "how can we popularize the sport?" It is true, if this question was left to the majority of leading drivers the answer would be: "We must do something, but for our part we like the three-in-five system." If left to the management of the race tracks, there would be a division of opinion; many would favor the old method while others would prefer two-in-three races, even the question of dashes as a side issue would also be considered favorably. And here is where the great industry is at present. The time has arrived when something must be done and done quickly We ought to cater to the public. The profits of all race meetings must come in at the gate. We should have the public bring in these profits and to encourage them to come we must follow the methods pursued by the managers of the running races. We must get out of the grove. There is not a sport that has not improved every year in order to attract the attention of the public excepting, perhaps, light harness horse racing. It has been progressing slowly, simply because the efforts to popularize it have not been as aggressive as they should be.

New races must be given. Racing to saddle (trotting and pacing) mile dashes or distances even longer. Dash races to sulky, entries to close ten days before the races. Let no regular events be more than two in three. Advertise early for stake events, with low entrance fee and make first payment merely a nominal one. [If the public wants bookmaking and will be willing to see six races or at least fourteen heats an afternoon, accomodate them, so they can wager on every one. There will be difficulties to surmount which will gradually succumb to the judgment of those having the races in charge. It has been suggested that the horses be handicapped according to their time limit and send them away from a standing start. The slowest horse being at the mile post and the rest placed at proper intervals along the homestretch according to their ability. Vari-colored flags might be set at the proper places before the races begin, so that every driver could be instructed as to position and at the firing of a pistol the horses would be sent away on their journey.

Team races (and really nearly all the fast trotters taken from the track are generally linked double) would prove attractive. A tandem race would also be a novelty, while to test the endurance of a horse, two mile events are sufficient.

With a programme bristling with novelties, promptness in starting, judges in the stand who will not hesitate to rule a driver off for life for pulling a horse, a spirit of snap and a desire to see everybody leave the track thoroughly satisfied with an afternoon's enjoyment, it would not be long before our associations will have better news for the horsemen than they have had in the past.

The columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN are open for all who desire to offer suggestions, the theme of these articles to be, "How shall we popularize light harness horse racing?" We know there are many men who are directly interested in this subject and have devoted much time and study to it; a few suggestions from them might at this time be of incalculable benefit to the light harness-horse industry of America.

Annual Meeting of the P. C. T. H. B. A.

There were twenty-three members of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeder Association present at the annual meeting last Monday afternoon, President E. P. Heald in the chair. Reading of the reports of the treasurer Capt. N. T. Smith and the Secretary F. W. Kelley followed, and the sum of $1,090.90 was shown to be in the treasury. Before the Association commenced to elect directors to fill the vacancies made by the expiration of the terms of five of these officials, several subjects were discussed which, no doubt, will be acted upon by the Board of Directors. One was a proposition to incorporate on the same lines as other similar associations. It was finally decided that the board of directors should be empowered to incorporate the association without issuing capital stock. The other matter was a recommendation that a committee be appointed to confer with other associations and secure the appointment of one presiding judge for the entire circuit for the season of 1898 and recommend that all the rules be rigidly enforced. This was finally adopted.

Twelve candidates were placed in nomination to fill the vacancies in the board of directors caused by the retirement of the five officials whose term expired this year. Those named were Robert S. Brown, D. E. Knight, A. B. Spreckels, M. S. Severance, A. G. Gurnett C. S. Neal, A. H. Holman, Park Henshaw, Wm. G. Layng, T. E. Keating, D. E. Fortin and P. J. Williams. Of these Knight, Spreckels and Severance were re-elected while Gurnett and Layng took the places of Brown and McIntosh.

The Macdonough Sale Dec. 20th.

There will be some extra good thoroughbreds sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange on the night of December 20th—yearlings and brood mares. We refer to the offering of W. O'B. Macdonough.

Ten of the yearlings of the consignment are by the best young sire in America, St. Carlo, one by imp Watercress, and in the lot will be found a half-sister to Orestes, a sister to St. Cuthbert, a St. Carlo colt out of Italia by Enquirer, a filly from Sloe by Hanover, a filly out of Miss Annie by Himyar, a sister to Socialist, a filly out of Bud by Glenmore, a gelding from Franchise by Hindoo, a colt foom Glenlivet (sister to Guenn) by Flood, and a gelding from Princess Idle (sister to Prince's First) by Prince of Norfolk. The Watercress if a gelding from Geneva, by Fonso (winner of the Kentucky Derby).

The broodmares are Bud, by Glenmore; Mirandola Filly (by St. Carlo—imp. Mirandola), Eliza (dam of the $12,500 colt, Monowai), Flora (dam of William O'B. and a sister to Raveloe, mile in 1:39¼), Mercedes (dam of Therese), by imp. Young Prince; imp. Mirandola, by the Jolly Friar; Namora, by imp. Sir Modred, and Princess dle, by Prince of Norfolk.

The merits of the St. Carlos are known to every turfman and race-goer in California. They have almost, without exception, been winners. Ruinart, by St. Carlo, was the champion race horse of California last fall, winter and spring, winning the $10,000 Burns Handicap, the Palace Hotel Handicap, and $11,650, besides establishing a Coast record of 2:06¾ for a mile and a quarter, and running a mile over Ingleside track in 1:40¾, the track record; Zamar, winner of 19 races as a two-year-old (a record); Our Climate (winner of the flat and over the sticks this fall), Charles Le Bel, Socialist, February (six furlongs in 1:13½ at Sacramento), Charlemagne, and now the great colt, Count of Flanders. Others by St. Carlo proved victorious, but these will suffice to show what grand racers the son of St. Blaise gets.

The brood mares to be offered are, for the most part mothers of great winners, and without exception they are very beautifully bred. Mr. McDonough is one of the greatest students of the breeding problem in the world, and has had more than a fair share of success upon the turf. As he has had the pleasure of breeding a larger number of winners, proportionately, than perhaps anyone on the Coast in the few years he has owned a breeding establishment, his judgment cannot but be accounted of the highest order.

The Spreckels Sale Next Tuesday.

Lovers of good thoroughbreds will have an opportunity to purchase some next Tuesday at the Occidental Horse Exchange. On that date twenty-one head of yearlings will be disposed of, also three royally-bred two-year-olds, all of great promise.

The yearlings are sired by:

Imp. Watercress (son of the great Springfield and Wharfdale, by Hermit), one of the grandest race horses in England a few years ago, as well as one of the grandest lookers anyone ever cast an eye upon.

Imp. Crighton (son of imp. Clieveden and Ghinni Ghinni, by Barbarian), a stake winner in the Colonies and a winner at Bay District track. This horse also took first prize at the San Francisco Horse Show twice. He comes from a noted racing family—one of the best in Australia.

Puryear D. (son of imp. Deceiver and Ada D. by Enquirer), a good winner East and West, by a stake-winner out of a stake-winner.

Imp. Midlothian (by Rataplan or Strathconan—Lufra by Windhound), a great race horse and the sire of Sir Walter, Tea Rose, California and many other good ones.

Imp. Chesterfield (by The Marquis—La Morna by Fireworks), a heavy winner in the Colonies and sire of Lord Coxcomb, Templestowe and other good ones.

Imp. Golden Garter (in our opinion the best-bred horse in the world), by Bend Or (winner of the Derby), out of Sanda (dam of Sainfoin, winner of the Derby), by Wenlock, St. Leger winner.

Imp. Idalium (the black brother to Sir Modred, Cheviot, Betrayer and July), sire of Veno, Therese, Little T. G., Aluminum, Miss Pollard, etc.

The dams of these youngsters are:

Glee, by imp Cheviot—Glendew (dam of Guenn).

Miss Douglas II., by Joe Daniels—Ellen Douglas by Wildidle.

Griselda (dam of Grotto), by Bishop—imp. Goula, by Exminster.

Norfolk mare, dam the winner Maggie Dale, by Owen Dale.

Agnes M. (sister to Hocksey), by imp. Glengarry—Ensue.

Border Lassie (a grand race mare(, by imp. Cheviot—Cosette, by Wildidle.

Nellie Bell (dam of Little T. G.), by Prince of Norfolk—Avondale, by Marmaduke.

Straight Tip (a good winner) by Peel—imp. Ouida by Foxhall.

Cattle Kate, by imp. Kingston—Lotta C., latter own sister to the great old Monitor, by Glenelg.

Friea (dam of Alexis), by Flood—imp. Music (dam of Princess), by imp. Prince Charlie.

Bell Guard (a winner) by Elias Lawrence—Queen Bay, by imp. Muscovy.

Headflower (a winner), by Flood—imp. Rosetta (dam of seven winners, by Struan.

Sweet Peggy (dam of Bernardo), by imp. Kyrle Daly—by Norfall. Same family as Geraldine comes from.

Dolly Varden (dam of Emma D. and Sir Reginald), by Montezuma—Nelly Bly by Bobadil.

Dolly McCone (winner of $12,115), by Joe Hooker—Lou Spencer (dam of four winners), by Norfolk.

Folly (a good winner and sister to the great Sinfax), by Wildidle—Fostress by Foster.

Imp. Zara (a winner and dam of Chartreuse, Huguenot and Kummel), by Marvellous—Stella.

Imp. Atossa (a winner), by Dunlop (winner Melbourne Cup, &c.) from Catherine Wheel (half-sister to Suwarrow, winner A. J. C. Derby, Junior Stakes, &c), by Wellington.

Imp. Yarranabee (a winner), by Hippocampus—Yattendon.

Tragic (half-sister to the great Prize), by imp. Trade Wind—Sister to Lottery by Monday.

Phoebe F., by Flambeau—Phoebe by Grinstead, second dam Phoebe Anderson (dam of Thornhill and Piquante), by Monday.

The two-year-olds are:

Makawao, ch f, by Almont—Folly, by Wildidle.

Maxlone, br g, by imp. Maxim—Abilone, by King Alfonso. This is a most promising colt, we understand, and has shown great speed.

Salvail, b g, by Salvator—Ailee by imp. Hurrah. This gelding is also thought to be a real good one, and he comes from a great racing family.

Catalogues are out and will be mailed to any address upon application.

Rich Memphis Stakes.

Memphis comes to the front with nine rich stakes, and the conditions to several are at once original, taking and liberal and in line with the Horsemen's Protective Association demands. There will be 19 days of racing at Montgomery Park, beginning April 9th and ending April 30th. The stakes offered are as follows:

Gaston Hotel Stakes, for 2-year-old colts and geldings $1,000 added; four furlongs.

Ardelle Stakes, for 2-year-old fillies, $1,000 added; four furlongs.

New Gayoso Hotel Stakes (a selling sweep-stakes) for 2-year-olds, $1,000 guaranteed; four furlongs.

The Memphis Stakes, for 2-year-olds, $1,000 added; five furlongs.

Luehrmann Hotel Stakes, for 3-year-olds, $1,500 guaranteed; one mile.

The Montgomery Handicap, for 3-year-olds and upward, $1,200 added; one and one-sixteenth miles.

Tennessee Brewing Company Stakes, for 3-year-olds and upward (a selling sweepstakes), $1,000 added; seven furlongs.

Peabody Hotel Handicap, for 3-year-olds and upward, $1,500 guaranteed. One and one-eight miles.

The Cotton Stakes (steeplechase), for 3-year-olds and upward, $750 added; about two miles.

The Tennessee Derby for 1899, for 3-year-olds, $3,000 added; one and one-eight miles.

The Tennessee Oaks for 1899, for 3-year-old fillies, $1,090 added; one mile.

Entries for the Tennessee Derby for 1898 closed last January, with 66 nominations. The second payment of $20 will be due January 15. This stake has a guaranteed value of $5,000, and among those yet eligible are Hamburg, Howland, Bannockburn, Lieber Karl, Sacket, Jackanapes, Gallivant, Isabey, Swango, Candleback, Libation, Bequeath, Bounding, Eitholin, Verify and Bashi Bazouk.

The Santa Anita Youngsters.

On the 23d of December twenty-two yearlings and four two-year-olds bred at far-famed Santa Anita will be sold by auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange. The stallions represented are Emperor of Norfolk, imp. Conveth, imp. Chesterfield, Verano, Gano and Amigo. Most of the mares were producers, and there are half-brothers or half-sisters to such celebrities as La Goleta, Estaca, Alvarado, Los Prietos, Argentina, Lady Bess, Lady Diamond, El Venado, Esperanza, Verano, Rey Salazar and Ramiro, amongst others.

Mr. Baldwin has bred many great turf performers in his day, including the American Derby-winners Volante, Rey El Santa Anita and Silver Cloud, the great mares Sinaloa II., Estrella, Santa Ana, Mollie McCarthy's Last, Fallen Leaf and Wheel of Fortune, besides Bernardillo, Rey El Salto, Rey Salazar, Alvarado, Bonita, Winona and Lucky B. It must be remembered that Wheel of Fortune was sold at one of these yearling sales

The F. C. Lusk Consignment.

On the same evening the Macdonough year lings are to be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange Monday, December 20) a choice lot of five thoroughbreds belonging to F. C. Lusk, of Chico, will be disposed of. They are by Tenny, imp. Loyalist, imp. Martenhurst and imp. Islington, all high-class race horses and sires much sought after. The dams are Magnolia by Milner, and Joy by Wildidle. The former is from the family that gave us the famous Nell Flaherty, the good Target and Jenny Hull, the latter is from a family of horses that did much to give the stud of August Belmont fame throughout the horse-loving world. Catalogues are out and will be mailed upon application.

THE coming sale of yearlings bred at Santa Anita will be a good one. The youngsters are pronounced the finest-lookers ever raised by Mr. Baldwin, which is saying a whole lot. As nearly all the Santa Anita mares have thrown winners (some four or five), buyers are taking little or no chances in buying this sort. There are half-brothers and sistors to many celebrities, such as La Goleta, Lady Bess, Lady Diamond, Verano, Estrella, Los Prietos, Argentina, Venus, San Venado and Grismer. Of the twenty-two yearlings six are by Emperor of Norfolk, eight by imp. Chesterfield, three by Amigo, three by Verano, one by Gano and one by imp Conveth horses.

THE roll of the California Breeders' and Horsemen's Protective Association has received many additional names of late, and among the number are those of Frank W. Covey and the famous breeder of racers, Theodore Winters. The members of the association expect to complete their work of getting up a constitution and by-laws at an early date. Attorneys McPike and Porter Ashe have been instructed to incorporate it. This would indicate that it is no temporary affair. Turfmen from the East declare that it is a much more imposing association than the one formed recently in New York, there being many prominent breeders and owners in the California one, no breeders in the New York association. There is now a fraternal feeling among the members—a bond of good fellowship. A member said the other evening: "Though we have asked the jockey clubs for nothing, we have noticed that both have made certain reforms gratuitously which we intended to agitate. We believe we will secure other reforms which we have in mind. We are not going to press matters. We are going along slowly and will ask for only what is reasonable and just."

WE are in receipt of a large number of stake books of the New Memphis Jockey Club and will cheerfully send them upon application by mail to any address.

Pendleton in a Race Circuit.

A meeting will be held at Portland in a few days to discuss the proposition of establishing a racing circuit to include Pendleton, Portland, Walla Walla, La Grande, Baker City, Spokane and various places in Idaho.

In line with the developments that have been in the matter of securing a good mile track here this proposed movement here is considered of the greatest importance by horsemen of this region. As the Montana association has decided to have no more harness racing in that state, it is argued that the projected circuit would draw all the best stock in Oregon, California, Washington, Montana and Idaho, that have heretofore been going to the Stub Toe state.

Pendleton has some nags that are among the best in the country and would make this point more or less of a center. There are Chehalis, that broke the world's two-mile pacing record at Salem this fall, and holds a single record of 2:07¼; Umaholis, 2:17; Westfield, 2:22; Graceful George, 2:23; Mack, a green pacer, and fifty other steeds that belong here, and would be tracked in Pendleton, if a track could be gotten in condition for the spring's work.

Prospects point to the realization of all the horsemen's hopes; for already many have taken stock in the track venture. It is proposed to have a mile track that would be the equal of any on the coast.

Said a prominent horseman yesterday: "If we get this track it would bring 300 or 400 horses to Pendleton; otherwise they would go by us. The location has not been determined upon, but would be wherever the subscribers should decide.

"Give us a track and the circuit, and Pendleton would have the state district fair, for which the legislature has appropriated $1500 a year. Then we would have 400 or 500 horses here a week during the spring and fall, and at least 5000 people. It would be a great place to make a state exhibit, and at the same time would give Pendleton a stock market.

"Why, the prospects are illimitable! Owing to our favorable climate this is the best locality on the coast, except California, for working-out horses, They can be jogged and worked here all winter. If this thing is gtoten up, Minnesota, Nebraska and other states would make it the central headquarters for their buyers, who would come to see the cream of the stock that would be placed on exhibition. It would also be a great scheme to advertise this county through the exhibits of different products."—Pendleton Tribune Nov. 18.

Walters and the Dogs.

Charles Walters, the bookmaker, is still fond of laying long odds against what he thinks are the bad horses in races.

"I've been bit several times by 'the dogs'" says Walters.

"One day I was booking at Morris Park, and some dog named Black Hawk was running against a good lot of sprinters. I laid 100 to 1 against him and could not get him played, so I boosted to 200 to 1. After awhile a little old Irishman, with a $20 bill in his hand sneaked along in front of my box, and held it up in my face.

"'Give me $2 on Black Hawk' he said.

"'Oh, make it $5,' I answered, sort of joshing him.

"'Make it ten,' he came back to me, a little hot in the collar because he thought I was trying to kid him.

"'You might as well make it $20. Think what a nice ticket it will make.

"'All right, make it twenty,' and I handed him the ticket $4,000 to $20.

"Black Hawk won. I paid the Irishman off in three thousand dollar notes, and some greenbacks of smaller denomination. He would have none of the big bills. He didn't want that kind of money. I think he hired a hack to ride into town that night.

"But I am still going after the dogs."

THAT well-known reinsman and conditioner B. O. Van Bokkelen, has been engaged by Wm. Corbitt to take charge of the trotters on the San Mateo Stock Farm. Mr. Van Bokkelen is a very careful, painstaking young man and we believe will do more toward keeping this farm to the front than any man since John A. Goldsmith had charge of these horses.

HOOF-BEATS.

THOS. KEATING is handling a number of trotters and pacers at the Pleasanton Stock Farm race track.

SEYMOUR WILKES, 2:08¼, the handsome son of Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, will make the season of 1898, at the Lakeville Stock Farm, Sonoma county.

WE understand that James Sullivan, the well-known driver, will not leave Willows. He will handle a good string of fast ones, including those at Col. Park Henshaw's, on the track there next year.

THE two-year-old filly Lucrative, that took a record of 2:26½ this year, must be a filly of extraordinary gameness. Last spring she got hung on a fence, injuring herself quite severely, but was trained and campaigned, and developed remarkable speed, being timed separately in 2:18¼ in a heat won by Nowaday in 2:16½ at Portland, Me. All this time a swelling on her belly, back of her foreleg, was causing her considerable inconvenience. After she was retired and taken home to Hartford, Conn., by her owner, Mr. E. Hyde, this swelling came to a head, was lanced, discharged a pint of pus and a long jagged sliver, which had been there ever since her encounter with the fence weeks before. Lucrative was bred at Palo Alto and was sired by Dexter Prince, out of Lucyneer, 2:27, by Electioneer, grandam the famous old pacing mare Lucy, 2:14.

A LETTER from Dawson City says that horses are worth $550 each, and that before the winter is over the price will go still higher. This is on account of the scarcity of pack animals. The letter is from Albert Pierce, a Portland man. He says that on account of the inability to secure pack horses the miners will be compelled to carry every pound of their supplies to their claims on their backs. The letter concludes as follows: "These are some of the prices we are paying here now, in pleasant weather—and heaven only knows what they will be when the dark winter sets in dead earnest: Hay, $200 per ton; wood, $35 a cord; very ordinary meals, $1 50 to to $2 50; meat, 75 cents a pound. By the time you get your grub into the mines you can't afford to sell anything for love or money. While there will be about three tons of gold coming out of here next spring—for this whole country will be turned inside out during the winter—yet I hope you will advise all our friends to remain at home. As I am here, of course I'll try to stay till I make a stake.'

A ROLLING-MOTION shoe will prevent tripping and stumbling, but all horses cannot travel with ease and comfort to themselves wearing a full rolling-motion shoe. Stumbling will arise from straight shoulders, short, upright pasterns, high heels and carrying head low. The more stiffness and soreness there is apparent, the higher the horse is to raised from the ground, to prevent the toe tripping or stumbling. To make the shoe, cut the width and thickness required, shape the shoe from toe to heel, making quarters the same as in ordinary shoe; next, take a round, blunt fullering tool, scoop out at points of the toe gradually, trimming from inside web to outside web. After wedging, clip off with a chisel (surface) surplus to the circle of the foot; the hot rasp the outer circle edge of rim of shoe, leaving the outer surface as thin as possible. If the above shoe is properly made, and the foot placed on the natural angle, the worst case can be prevented from stumbling. If heel calkings be required, set the toe back and weld on side heel calking.

LUKE WHITE'S KENNELS, BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

DR. H. CLAY GLOVER, Dear Sir—Your Distemper Cure is the best thing I ever saw or heard of for dogs afflicted with that disease. I can't express myself too highly in its favor. It has saved several valuable puppies for me since the late New York dog show, among them a handsome terrier owned by Mr. George J. Gould. This puppy was so bad at night that I had no hopes of finding him alive in the morning. I gave him the Distemper Cure merely to fulfill my last duty to him, but what was my surprise when I found him next morning gnawing on a bone which happened to be near his stall. He is now as well as ever. I have had several such miraculous cures in my experience with it. It is a positive cure when given in time, and will even be effectual when the patient seems on the verge of death.

Yours, etc., LUKE W. WHITE.

California's 2:30 List.

Following is a list of all 2:30 performers which trace to sires that were bred or owned in California as well as those that have won heats this year throughout the United States. We would be pleased if any of our readers would forward any additions to it we may have omitted or send us any corrections they may deem fit to make. We would also be pleased to receive the breeding on the dam's side of all those that have entered the list this year. It is corrected to Dec. 10th.

Metropolitan Kennel Club's Show.

The second annual bench show of the Metropolitan Kennel Club was held at the old Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, on November 24, 25, 26 and 27, 1897. There were 696 dogs on exhibition and the general quality of the various classes was excellent. The judges were selected from the amateur class, their decisions gave general satisfaction. This departure met with universal approval, and was voted a signal success. The attendance was largely in excess of the last season's show and proves Brooklyn's abilty to sustain a first class bench show. The several classes were well filled, the fox terriers leading the van, and many of the best known dogs familiar to the bench were on exhibition.

The judges of the various classes were as follows: Mastiffs Dr. R. H. Derby; St. Bernards, Mr. R. H. Burrows; Bloodhounds, Collies, Black and Tan Terriers, Miscellaneous, Mr. James Watson; Great Danes, Mr. J. Blackburn Miller; Deerhounds, Borzois and Greyhounds, Mr. H. W. Huntington; Foxhounds and French Bulldogs, Mr. J. L. Kernochan; Pointers, Mr. Charles Heath, English, Irish and Gordon Setters, Dr. H. Clay Glover; Spaniels (field, clumber, Irish, water and cocker) Dr. S. J. Bradbury; Poodles, Mr. Charles D Bernheimer; Bulldogs, Mr. Henry C. Beadleston; Bull Terriers, Mr. Perry Tiffany; Boston Terriers, Mr. J. F. Holt; Dachshunde, Mr. O. P. Amend; Beagles, Mr. Jas. W. Appleton; Foxterriers, Mr. Winthrop Rutherford; Irish Terriers, Mr. O. W. Donner, Yorkshire and Toy Terriers, Pugs, Toy Spaniels and Italian Greyhounds, Mr. A. W. Lucy.

What Ails the Dogs?

Considerable uneasiness is felt concerning the actions of a number of the dogs running the streets, as they seem to be afflicted with a mild form of craziness. It can't be called rabies, for there is no frothing at the mouth, and no particular viciousness has been exhibited by the dogs except in a few cases. About a week ago Chas. Rutledge was snapped at and his thumb bitten, but the wound was not serious. Yesterday noon when Johnnie Holborrow was coming over to school a dog ran from the pavilion and jumped on him biting his arm. Fortunately the thick clothing prevented anything worse than a severe bruise.

The dog was shot this evening. Another dog which was fighting and biting every other dog in sight was laid low by an officer this afternoon. The Marshal requests people to tie up their dogs for a couple of weeks, until the epidemic or whatever it is, passes.—Santa Monica Signal.

[Glover's or Spratts' Vermifuge will probably perform some permanent cures for the well-bred dogs. Shoot the others.—ED.]

Pacific Field Trials.

The prevailing sentiment among the Club members and with the gentlemen who have made entries for the coming field trials, is very favorable for having the judging done by an Eastern man. The Executive Committee will hold a meeting within a few days with a view to make proper arrangements for the purpose of bringing out an Eastern judge.

Santa Clara Bench Show.

The following communication from Chas. R. Harker, Esq. will be of interest to fanciers and clubs. As the San Jose people never do anything by halves, it is safe to assert that the spirit and enthusiasm prompting the preliminary and initial work of the Second Annual Bench Show of the Santa Clara Valley Poultry and Kennel Club will bring forth a very successful and satisfactory exhibition.

"The Second Annual Dog Show of the Santa Clara Valley Poultry and Kennel Club will be held at San Jose, March 30th, 31st and April 1st and 2d. In conjunction with the show will be held the first exhibition of the California Collie Club and as such specialty club displays tend to greatly advance the interest in the breed which they represent, we would like to see similar organizations on the Coast, follow the example of the Collie Club. A cordial invitation is extended to the St. Bernard Club, Mastiff Club, Foxterrier Club and all others that now are or may be organized, to exhibit with us. The enviable reputation which our club won at last year's show we shall endeavor to maintain, so if you are the owner of a good dog don't forget the San Jose Show. Spratts Patent will do the benching and feeding. Names of judges, etc., will be announced later."

American Kennel Club Meeting.

Secretary A. P. Vredenburgh of the American Kennel Club sends the following notice, under date of November 22, to the delegates of the club:

Gentlemen:—You are hereby notified of and requested to attend the regular quarterly meeting of the American Kennel Club, to be held at the office of the club, No. 55 Liberty street, New York, on Thursday, December 16, 1897 at 2 P. M By order of the President,

A. P. Vredenburgh, Sec.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Hubert White has a fine dog pup (Eboracum—Lady Berna) that he takes a great deal of pride in.

The regular meeting of the St. Bernard Club will be held on Monday evening, December 6, 1897. at the office of Dr. Clunniss, 406 Sutter St.

Enough members of the Pacific Advisory Board to constitute a quorum were not present last Tuesday evening. The next regular meeting of the Board will be held Tuesday, Jan. 4, 1898.

Dash Antonio and Luke, two of the most noted English setters in America, arrived in this city last Tuesday. The dogs will both appear in the trials at Bakersfield. They will be handled by Mr. Arthur Bennett, the noted artist and fancier.

The attendance at the Ingleside Coursing Track was large last Saturday and Sunday. Several remarkably fine courses were run and an unusual number of surprises upset the talent. The sport is gaining ground at Sacramento and Los Angeles.

A. E. Culver shipped on the last steamer to the Islands, a fine pair of bloodhound pups. They were consigned to Jailer J. A. Low, Oahu Prison, Honolulu, they will be trained to trail criminals and will be the nucleus of a bloodhound kennel in the Islands.

Spratts' Patent are introducing the P. D. Q, disinfectant insect powder. It is claimed that this powder is the best article upon the market to destroy fleas, lice and vermin from dogs, cats, all animals, poultry and plants. It is non-poisonous and washing of animals is not necessarry.

The first dog show given in America was held at Mineola, Long Island, N. Y., in 1874. Mr. A. C. Waddell now of Waverly, Miss., won the "Special Premium Cup" with his pointer dog Phil. The classes called for pointers, Irish setters, Gordon setters and setters of any breed.—Sportsmen's Review.

F. Fremont Darley sold his celebrated dog, Leo II, to Dr. James for $250. This animal comes from a pedigree of celebrated prize winners. His father, Leo I, took first prize of $1,000 at the Massachusetts field trial, and his mother won first prize at the bench show in New York city. Dr. James therefore prizes his purchase very highly.—Tokoa (Wash.) Times, Postmaster Dearborn, at Lojolla, wants a recipe for conciliating a dog that hates geese, His pet dog insists on boarding with the neighbors since a fat goose has been added to the family and declines to come nearer home than the gate. He lets Dearborn know that he hasn't wholly lost interest in him by following at a distance without the grounds, but he won't be wheedled or whistled into closer relations.

Representative sportsmen of St. Joseph, Mo., held a meeting on November 16th and organized a new field trials association. Many well bred pointers and setters are owned in St. Joseph and vicinity; if the new club can obtain the support and co-operation of sportsmen in the southwest it is believed annual field trials can be successfully held. Mr. G. L. Byers was elected president and Mr. Chas. H. Werner was chosen secretary.

Tom Irwin of the Riverside Dog Kennels is building himself a beautiful residence close to the county bridge that crosses the Paper Mill creek at Point Reyes. He is also building dog kennels to accommodate a large number of dogs and if he carries out the plans he has started it will no doubt be of very great convenience to sportsmen and fanciers. He will also tap the telephone line at his place which will put him in direct communication with San Francisco and way stations.

NOTICE TO ANGLERS.

Every angler is invited to drop us a line occasionally, telling us of the condition of the streams they have visited and the killing lure, of the number and size of the fish caught, or any other item of interest to anglers.

Russian River Notes.

The opening and closing of the bar at the mouth of Russian river during the past fortnight has been a matter of no little curiosity and speculation among the angling veterans. The latest news from that section is embodied in a communication from mine host Morgan to John Butler:

Duncan's Mills, December 8, 1897.

Dear Butler:—The bar (mouth of the river) is open. I do not know as to fish, but think there will be a big run, The bar was open for a few hours last week and some fish came in the river, but I suppose they have gone up the stream. I think if you can get away next Saturday you will have some nice fishing, as the river is not very muddy.

Yours truly, G. W. Morgan.

P. S. Tell John Gallagher he had better come up and locate them for you.

Grilse fishing at Powell-street wharf still continues to be good. A large crowd was in attendance last, Sunday in fact the angling fraternity are out in force daily. The fish average nine or ten inches in length, with now and then a three or four-pounder who plays havoc with light tackle.

W. D. Mansfield and Dr. E. N. Lowry continue their practice casting at Stow Lake. Almost every pleasant morning they can be seen hard at work. The tournament next year is very liable to bring out some surprises in casting scores.

Charley Linn caught some nice steelhead at the "black rock" at Point Reyes on Sunday last. One big fellow got away with his tackle and stopped his fishing for the day.

Frank Dolliver tried the "rock" hole at Point Reyes last Sunday, after he was through shooting, and made a nice catch of eight steelhead,

The flounder fishing at Tiburon and in Oakland estuary is of a nature to make the lazy fisherman think he is lord of the sea.

Trolling for grisle at the Oakland and Alameda wharves has been productive of good catches during the past week.

Bay fishing has been very good for the past week, reports from various fishing places give good catches of nice fish.

C. Schuster made a catch of thirty-five pounds of fine flounders in the lagoon at Tiburon last Sunday.

W. A. L. Miller caught some fine steelhead in the tide waters at Greenbrae last Sunday.

I. Kalloch made a fairly good catch of steelhead at Point Reyes last Sunday.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

How Father Carves the Duck.

We all look on with anxious eyes
When father carves the duck,
And mother almost always sighs
When father carves the duck.
Then all of us prepare to rise
And hold our bibs before our eyes
And be prepared for some surprise,
When father carves the duck.

He braces up and grabs a fork,
Whene'r he carves a duck,
And won't allow a soul to talk
Until he carves the duck.
The fork is jabbed into the sides,
Across the breast his knife he slides,
While every careful person hides
From greasy chips of duck.

The platter's always sure to slip,
When father carves the duck.
And it makes all the dishes skip—
Potatoes fly amuck.
The squash and cabbage leap in space,
Some one gets gravy in the face,
And father mutters Hindow grace,
Whene'er he carves a duck.

We all have learned to walk around
The dining-room, and pluck
From off the window sills and walls
Our share of father's duck,
While father growls, and blows, and jaws
And swears the knife is full of flaws,
And mother jeers at him because
He cannot carve a duck.

The Borchardt Automatic Pistol.

Claybrough, Golcher & Co. received by express this week two of the Borchardt Automatic Pistols, which have up to date created a great deal of interest and inquiry on the part of local sportsmen. The weapon was first introduced in the East during the great rifle meeting at Creedmoor and Sea Girt this autumn, those who saw it there were much interested and surprised by the exhibition given by a German expert who had been sent over here by an arms factory of Berlin to show Americans a weapon which is as novel as it is in advance of even the most modern firearms.

While called a pistol, the new arm is not wholly pistol, revolver, or rifle, but an ingenious combination of the three. It is of the class of automatic firearms in which the opening of the breech and reloading are caused by the "kick" after the bullet leaves the barrel.

To fire the first shot the trigger must, of course, be pulled. and then in one twenty-fifth of a second the "kick" drives back a hinged lever, which is seen on top of the pistol, and which draws back the breech-block. Out flies the empty shell, up comes a cartridge from the magazine, and the firing-bolt is cocked. Meanwhile the lever, coming back, has pressed against a strong spring, and this pushes the lever forward and down again. Unless a certain catch is set this operation is repeated automatically until eight shots are fired. But if it is desired to fire single shots the catch is set, and the pistol used like any other.

Everyone who has handled a revolver knows how difficult it is to keep the muzzle steady. The weapon is not balanced on one hand, and cannot be steadied with both hands. Borchardt saw this defect, and like the old gunmakers of the Middle Ages, put the grip or handle and magazine under the center of the pistol, instead of at the end of it. The consequence is that the loaded pistol is balanced over the hand, tremor or unsteadiness reduced to a minimum and a mere tyro can shoot at once. Major N. B. Thurston, at Creedmore, made seven bullseyes and one center in eight shots in fifteen seconds, shooting at 100 yards, the first time he had the pistol in his hand.

But something more than the construction of the pistol stamps it as a remarkable weapon. In rapidity of fire it has never been equalled by any small arm. Once loaded, it fires eight shots in eight twenty-fifths of a second, if rapid fire is desired, the eight reports blending in one "r-i-i-i-p." which sounds like a single shot.

In the marvelous rapidity of fire is another tremendous advantage. The great trouble with all modern small caliber rifles is that one shot from them will not disable a man. The bullet is too small, the shock insufficient. And it is not within human power to put two or three shots in exactly the srme place. A rifle fixed in a vice will not do that; the "kick" will destroy the aim.

But this terrible weapon fires so rapidly that all the eight shots strike the same place. And the successive blows will let daylight not only through four or five men, but through wood, stone or steel. Nothing human could withstand a regiment of sharpshooters armed with these pistols, for the number of shots fired would exceed immeasurably those fired by opponents using other weapons. Two hundred shots a minute could be fired by an expert, 20,000 shots a minute by a company of 100 men, and 200,000 shots a minute by a regiment of ten companies, provided the ammunition was on hand.

Such fire is almost inconceivable, and it is only by comparison that we can understand it. It is equal to the fire of 200 Gatling guns, of sixteen regiments armed with Springfields, of eight regiments armed with Krag-Jorgensens, of 200 regiments of the Civil War era. While a guardsman was reloading an enemy with a Borchardt could put between fifteen and twenty shots into him.

Fitted with the butt-stock, which comes with it, and which is fastened to the pistol by inserting a small tenon into the slot in the small end of the stock and turning the roughed nut, the pistol becomes a rifle with an effective range of 625 yards. Attached to the butt is a sling with an arm rest in the center. Having fastened on the stock, the rifleman puts his elbow in the rest, winds the sling around his arm, and has a firm grip on the piece and an excellent position. Clabrough, Golcher & Co. are the coast agents for this remarkable weapon.

Mongolian Pheasants.

Since the first of September, the opening season for Chinese pheasant hunting, the sport has been very favorable throughout the Willamette valley from Portland to Eugene and extending to the foothills on both sides of the river. Nearly every sportsman has some favorite hunting ground, where he has a friend who has invited him to shoot, or where he has rented grounds, or owns land to shoot over. The breeding season has been unusually fine and broods that hatched out early prospered. The quail, grouse and Oregon pheasants have also been quite plentiful, but are not found so easily as the Mongolian pheasants, which haunt the grain fields and open prairies. The introduction of the Mongolian pheasants into Oregon by O. N. Denny has been a great thing for sportsmen. The birds have flourished and increased beyond expectation, and, from their sagacity in skulking and hiding, and their swiftness both on foot and on wing, furnish fine sport. Their numbers and the manner in which they have spread over the country, especially throughout the Willamette valley, makes probably the best shooting grounds for birds in the Union to-day.—Oregon City Courier.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

W. Schendel made a bag of eight teal at Mowry's on Sunday last.

Ducks have been numerous in and around Steigers for a fortnight past.

The open season for shooting pheasants in Oregon closed December 1st.

English snipe are reported to be plentiful in the vicinity of San Bruno.

Reclamation district and Petaluma Creek marshes afford good duck this week.

Dr. Payne had fairly good luck with ducks and quail at Point Reyes on Sunday.

Joe Byers and J. Craber bagged a fair number of sprig at Alvarado on Sunday last.

Tulare and Los Banos districts furnished plenty of ducks for the markets last week.

Ducks have been seen on the surface of Tomales Bay in swarms during the past week.

G. C. De Pew made a grand bag of ducks on the Empire Club grounds one day this week.

Harry Wiess made a mixed bag of ducks,quail, and a jackrabbit at Point Reyes on Sunday.

E. Summerfield and F. L. Judd made a combined bag of forty ducks at Ignacio last Sunday.

Harry Vandall and J. C. Brickell were at Steigers on Sunday last, a fair bag was there share.

F. Stahlman had a bag containing fifteen teal and sprig on Sunday last. He shot at Sear's Point.

W. Androus drove out to Steigers last Sunday morning. A bag of thirteen ducks was the result.

Geo. Wolf stopped at "Gobine's" on Tomales Bay last Sunday. He made a good bag of ducks.

The Dayton Rifle Club (Wash.) shot for turkeys every night for a week, commencing Nov. 15th.

B. Sherock was at Newark last Sunday, his strap held twelve ducks when he returned to the city.

C. Carlson's trip to Alvarado last Sunday entitles him to a count of thirty-five ducks, principally sprig.

Mud hens and "silkies" are becoming plentiful in the marshes. This argues that they are having cold weather up north.

Frank Vernon had a string of sixty-five and Chas. Precht, thirty quail, as the result of their visit to Point Reyes last Sunday.

Frank Dolliver made a nice bag of sprig, and widgeon, with a couple of "cans" and mallards thrown in, last Sunday at Point Reyes.

Frank Schultz and Arthur Priest tried Mt. Eden last Sunday and made a bag respectively of fifteen and twelve ducks, sprigs, widgeon, and teal.

A Reliance quartette, composed of Smith, Middlemas,Sexton and Marriott were on the Petaluma marsh last Sunday. Mallard and teal was the result.

The return inter-state match between Utah and Montana trap shooters, at live birds, will be shot off at Butte, Mont., during the annual state tournament.

The three Pujol brothers bagged three hundred and twenty ducks Sunday morning at Snowball's point, near Knight's Landing, in a little over half an hour.

"June Bug" and Hale had the largest bags at the Empire Club grounds last Sunday. The members were out in force and some fairly good bags were made.

Archie Taylor and J. D. Edmunds went hunting recently north of Las Penasquitas, near San Diego. They killed a forty-pound wildcat, a ferocious looking beast. The cat was on the run when it was brought down. The sportsmen also bagged one hundred and fifty quail.

H. H. White, M. C. Allen and C. F. Grant made a combined bag of thirty-five ducks last Sunday evening on the Olympic Club grounds at Reclamation.

At the Exeter Gun Club on Thanksgiving day, T. E. Fridley made the best score, and will have the honor of wearing the gold badge until next shoot.

Those who went to Point Reyes last Saturday and Sunday had fine weather for shooting and fishing, Quite a number of sportsmen were at Rochfort's.

Dave Thom, C. A. Haight, H. J. McLain and H. Justins were in the vicinity of Livermore, on Sunday, they made a fair bag of quail, but the day was very hot.

L. D. Owens and Walter Foster, were on the Olympic Gun club grounds last Sunday. Thirty-five sprig, widgeon, teal and mallard was in the bag, after their day's hunt.

W. H. Wetmore and G. W. Debenham have had some good shooting in the vicinity of Willows recently. They remembered their friends in Oakland frequently and generously.

Carey Barney and Geo. Rupley of Woodland had quite a duck hunt recently with the Pujol Bros. on the river, where they spent two days. The party killed 841 ducks, if reports are true.

A Willows sportsman uses the following load in his 12 guage when he shoots geese or ducks. Gold Dust powder,50 grains, No. 3 W. primer, two common black edge wads, loaded in brass shells.

At the Santa Barbara blue-rock shoot on Thanksgiving Day, the Summerfield shooters, J. D. Fuller, Harry Doulton, and Al Lambert made some very clever scores and got away with the principal prizes.

Sear's Point afforded sport Sunday last for W. L. Prather, Jr., who bagged twelve fine sprig, mallard and teal. John Karney and Jules Bruns made a bag of thirty-eight, principally widgeon, at the same place.

Spratts Patent are agents for the celebrated Verner de Guise American Pheasantry and Game Farm, situated at Mountain Side Farm, Mahwah, N. J. Price lists of birds and eggs can be had upon application.

L. R. Larzalere was all by his lonely at the Spooney Club's grounds Sunday last. Twenty-five teal were looped in his strap when the day's shoot was over. Some of the other members were sorry they missed it.

Two weeks ago one of the largest flights of geese for years, was observed at Willows. The flight stretched from Willows apparently to the foot hills of the Sierra Nevadas and Coast Range. They were grey geese and honkers.

The Lincoln Gun Club mustered five in on the ark at Alvarado last Sunday. Franzen nteen ducks; Shaw and Klevesahl, eleven; Swan, fifteen, and Carlson, twenty-five. The birds were principally sprig and spooneys.

The reports which come in from the hunters are most encouraging to those who love sports. Ducks are reasonably numerous at 12, 14, and 21 mile sloughs and geese are quite thick on the islands. From the other direction come reports of fine quail shooting in the foothills.—Stockton Independent.

Geese are very plentiful near Willows. They are in the finest condition imaginable. The farmers in that region offer the glad-hand to every hunter who goes there. The local hunters anticipate some fine mallard shooting as a result of the rains this week.

Some nice bags of ducks were made at Black Point on Sunday last. W. Murdock had fifteen sprig and teal and a goose. J. Shackleton and C. Pease had seventeen sprig and teal between them; W. Price and Ed Foster made a combined bag of twenty-three teal and sprig.

W. Dodson shot at Sherman Island on Wednesday; the storm drove most of the birds from that vicinity, they sought open water and scattered over the fields; but notwithstanding he had a bag of twenty very fine duck, mallard. gray duck, and widgeon—nearly all drakes and in prize condition;

A Kansas City live-bird shoot was stopped recently by some women. That is bad enough, but now the Santa Barbara News has taken up the cudgels, and is on the war path. We hope the News will reconsider its course in the matter and not break up the game, for if the old women of the west and on the coast get after the boys, really it will be too bad indeed.

J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas City and Fred Gilbert of Spirit Lake, Ia., shot to a tie in the race for the Dupont trophy on Thursday, December 9th, at Watson's Park, Burnside, Ills. Each dropped ninety-three birds. Elliott apparently had the match, but lost the "flushed" bird at the ninety-fourth round. He asserted his second shell was defective. The shooting off at twenty-five birds was to take place yesterday.

The Black Jacks who sojourned at Antioch last Sunday were Frank Hofleng,"Sherman," "Hello" Eaton, "Bill Nye" Billy Swain, J. Maynard, and E. Johnson. The combined bag showed a count of about thirty ducks. President Lemmer, ably seconded by the affable secretary, Jim Markland, claims that the hunters would have made a far better showing than usual if they had shot more ducks and not so many decoys.

The San Diego Sun notes a plentiful supply of ducks in that vicinity in the following style: "H. Seebolt came in from Otay this morning with a fine looking load of ducks which he shot at the dam yesterday. He had in all sixty-three ducks, among which were canvasbacks, widgeon, teal and several other varieties. The canvasbacks are now selling for 50 cents a pair and other ducks bring good prices, so Mr. Seebolt will have a good showing for his day's work He said there are great flocks of ducks around the Otay dam now and that last Saturday morning Mr. Babcock shot one hundred and three ducks."

J. H. Calvert, E. P. Trempor, and W. H. White returned Teusday from a week's shooting near Port Susan on the lower Sound. They succeeded in bagging all the birds they wanted and could have killed hundreds more could they have found use for them. The shooting at Point Susan when ducks are flying is the best point on the Sound as ducks fly in three directions and all pass over the same point.—Seattle Argus.

The Butte Rod and Gun Club had a very successful bird shoot Novembea 28. Even the zero weather could not cool the enthusiasm of the baker's dozen of shooters who alternated between the traps and the big bonfires provided by the club. Messrs. Tuttle, Tuohy, Brownlee and Rockfeller came up from Anaconda to enjoy the sport. Some very good scores were made as the following will show: At 30 live birds—Smith, 28; Tuohy, 28; Cowan 27; Christianson, 27; Shultz, 27; Tuttle, 26; Brownlee, 24. At 20 live birds—Rockfeller, 19; W. Trudgeon, 19; Nicols, 18; J. Ludgeon, 18; Spargo, 17. At 10 birds—Westphal, 8.

Several hundred fast-flying pigeons and more than thirty of the most expert amateur wing shots in the country were the attractions that drew a large crowd to the traps of the Westminster Kennel Club, at Babylon, L. I. The event was the usual Thanksgiving Day shoot, and a contingent of nearly one hundred left the Long Island Station on a special train for the scene. They arrived about noon, and from that hour until darkness the trappers were busy. Four events were decided, the honors being carried off by G. S. McAlpin, George Magoun, George De Forrest Grant, H. B. Duryea, H. G. Gilbert and Robert McCook.—N. Y. Advertiser.

Market hunters are out on the Alviso marshes every night. On dark nights they can be noticed here and there with a big "Jack" lantern at the bow of their mudboats. Other shooting grounds are not overlooked at night, but in this particular section the sportsmen are handicapped by lack of game when they go over on Saturdays and Sundays for a day's shooting. Some states have laws prohibiting shooting at night. Several of our local gun club restrict their members to daylight shooting on their grounds ; in the nature of things it looks as if it would be conducive to a better condition of sport if preliminary steps were taken at once for the purpose of inducing necessary legislation against night shooting.

A synopsis of the Montana game law is as follows: Elk and moose can be killed from September 15th to November 15th. No person is allowed to kill more than two of each kind during one season. Deer, antelope, mountain goat can be killed from September 1st to January 1st but no person is allowed to kill more than six of each kind in one season. Grouse, prairie chickens, and pheasants can be killed from August 15th to December 15th, but no person can kill more than twenty of each kind of game. Geese, ducks and other water fowl may be killed from September 1st to May 1st.

The killing of mountain sheep, bison, beaver, quail, Chinese pheasants, all kinds of singing birds and storks prohibited at any season of the year.

R. S. Taglio, the cattle dealer, in company with Mike Romero, went to the Los Gatos valley, near the Hot Springs in Fresno county, last week, to purchase cattle. While there they stopped with a Mr. Aken, who stated that some wild animal was killing his hogs. Sunday morning the three saw a catamount near the house and, calling to the dogs, started in pursuit. The animal took refuge in a tree, which the dogs surrounded. Three shots were fired at the beast, the first breaking his leg and the others penetrated the heart, killing him. He dropped from the tree, and, on being measured, was found to be nine feet six inches from the tip of the nose to the end of the tail. His weight was 245 pounds. The carcass was skinned and the pelt brought to Salinas. Mr. Taglio will have it tanned and made into a rug.

In Bakersfield, the case of Dave Hirshfield, arrested for shipping game out of the county, was tried before a jury, a verdict of guilty was rendered. In Fresno county the Game Warden arrested a man named Ferguson for a similar offense. Ferguson proposes to fight the case. There is not one weak point in the law giving Boards of Supervisors authority to enact ordinances for the better protection of game and fish in the several counties of the State. This section of the County Government Act has been attacked on several occasions and it has stood the test in every instance, even in the courts of final resort. Both the Supreme Court of California and the United States Supreme Court have said that the counties are entitled to local self government through ordinances of Supervisors, not only in the regulation of killing and shipping game, but they may prohibit it entirely.

One of the most successful live pigeon shoots ever held in Santa Clara took place at the traps near the Bridge House yesterday. The shoot was arranged by the Garden City Gun Club as an experiment to determine with what amount of interest such shoots would be received by the local sportsmen. The result was more successful than was anticipated by the most enthusiastic. The fore part of the day was devoted to warming up and practice matches.

The first event in the afternoon was a six-bird match and resulted as follows: Carroll 6, Heidelberg 4, Arques 3, Lion 4, Faull 2, Holmes 4, Anderson 4. Second six-bird event: Carroll 6, Heidelberg 5, Arques 5, Hobson 4, Lion 5, Faull 2, Holmes 2, Anderson 6. Third six-bird event: Carroll 3, Heidelberg 5, Arques 4, Lion 6, Faull 3. At eighteen straight birds, Carroll killed 15, Heidelberg 14, Lion 15 and Arques 12.

Twelve-bird event: Anderson 9, Heidelberg 12, Arques 10, Carroll 10, Lion 8, John Doe 10, Faull*, Jackson*, Hobson 11, Bangs 8. *Withdrawn.

The second twelve-bird event went as follows: Anderson 10, Arques*, Delmas*, Heidelberg 11, Carroll 10, Lion 8.

For twenty-four straight birds Anderson made 19, Heidelberg 19 and Carroll 19. Arques made ten out of twelve. These events were all with unknown traps. In a squad shooting event Anderson, Heidelberg, Arques, Delmas and Carroll each made ten out of a possible twelve. The scores, all things confidered, were remarkable, and compare very favorably with those made in tournament and prize events.

It is the intention of the club to give another shoot in the near future, which will eclipse anything in the line ever attempted here before.

Imported Priam.

The recent sale by Mr. Richard Croker of his interest in the Belle Meade Stud to Gen. W. H. Jackson recalls some things in connection with the past history of this famous breeding establishment, "the home of the race horse," as some one says of it.

Belle Meade Stud has been in existence more than 30 years, and in that time some famous sires have been in the paddocks there. The English Derby winner Priam was once kept there. This horse was a beautiful blood bay, one white heel, full sixteen hands high, and as finished and elegant as a horse could be, with the most perfect action that the world ever saw in a thoroughbred. In England he was the most renowned horse of his day, and considered by many the best race horse foaled up to his time.

Priam was imported by the Messrs. Merritt of Virginia in 1837, when he was ten years old. He sired before leaving England Miss Letty and Crucifix two of the best mares of country. From his loins came also imported Monarch, out of Delphine, by Whisker. Morarch was never beaten in this country, and proved a good sire. He was imported by Col. Wade Hampton of South Carolina.

Priam cost the Messrs. Merrit $30,000 in England, and was the highest price horse ever imported up to that time. The fact is the Merritts were fortunate in securing him even at that price, for after he reached these shores the English breeders offered some very tempting inducements for his return to the mother country, a practical admission that they had made a mistake in permitting him to come to this country. The people who imported him did very little with him, and he was transferred to Belle Meade, Tennessee, where he was destroyed by excessive service the first season. He stood at $100, the top notch in those days, and 160 mares visited his paddock that year. This heavy tax upon his vital powers caused him to become blind, and destroyed his usefulness, for it is a fact he never sired anything of great merit in this country.

He died at Belle Meade.

Priam was got by Emilius, dam Cressida (sister to Eleanor) by Whiskey; second dam young Giantess, by Diomed; third dam Giantess, by Matchem.

Tithonus and Madison combine much of the same blood that flowed through the veins of Priam, and in importing these two young horses Gen. Jackson no doubt aimed to get back as near as possible to the starting point—old Priam.

Eagle and Bluster also reigned for a time at Belle Meade, and were followed by Vandal, Jack Malone, Bonnie Scotland, John Morgan, Sir Richard, Highlander, Childe Harold, Enquirer, Plenipo, Bramble, Luke Blackburn, Tremont, Iroquois, Inspector B., Imp. Great Tom, imp. Loyalist, Longstreet, Claradon, etc., and the recent importations Tithonus and Madison.

Many fine race horses have been bred at Belle Meade. The mighty grey mare Gamma, a four-miler, was foaled there; also Vandalite, Bramble, the greatest cup horse of the century, Eland, General Harding, McWhirter, Inspector B., Mariposa, Beatitude, Boulevard, Getaway, Proctor Knott, Tammany, Red Bonner, Helen Nichols, Maid Marian, Bella B., Biggonet, Tyrant, Reporter, Egmont, Wrestler, Barnum, Rambler, Clifford, Miss Ford, Uncle Bob, Tulla Blackburn, Gotham, Senator Grady, Archduke, and hundreds of others.—Nashville Breeder and Horseman.

Racing at Petaluma,

There is a project on hand to arrange for a number of running races at Agricultural park for the afternoon of New Year's day as a holiday attraction, and the matter is already assuming a business-like shape. It is proposed to provide a purse of from $100 to $150 by public subscription and to hang it up for competition for the following-named horses, the owners to also pay an entrance fee which will be added to the purse and divided into three moneys:

Stump's Mollie Mc, Chas. Rule's Estrella, Sanborn's Inkerman, P. Smith's Lulu B, D. Gale's Gray mare, and others.

The owners of nearly all of the racers have signified their intention of entering their horses, and as there is much rivalry between some of them the contest will be an exciting one. If the races are held they will be sure to bring a big crowd of country people to town, and the day will be a lively one for Petaluma.

In addition to the above race, which will be the principal one on the program, there will be other contests, and a race between local saddle horses for a suitable trophy is talked of. The present idea of the promoters of the project is to charge no admission and to invite the public to witness the sport.

Wm. Loftus is busily engaged in soliciting subscriptions and is meeting with very fair success, so the races are almost assured. The reappearance of Estella and Mollie Mc at the local track will cause considerable excitement, and all of Bodega, Occidental, and Valley Ford will come down to see the fun. These horses contested in a match race at Agricultural park in this city two weeks ago and a large amount of money exchanged hands as the result of the race. With the above-named field of starters it will be hard work to pick the winner.

THAT very serviceable performer, Enchanter, with seven victories to his credit at the Nashville meeting, has been purchased by Foster Bros., and will be raced at New Orleans this winter.

The California State Agricultural Society's

FUTURITY STAKE

For the Produce of Mares Covered in 1897,

TO BE RUN AT THE

STATE FAIR OF 1900,

TO CLOSE JANUARY 1, 1898.

A sweepstake for two-year-olds, foals of 1898, by subscription of $10 each for mares covered in 1897, and of $100 each for the produce of such mares, to be paid as follows: $10 FOR MARES TO ACCOMPANY ENTRY, $10 on produce, payable January 1, 1899 (when color, sex and marks of foal must be given), $15 payable November 1st, 1899, $25 January 1, 1900, and $50 on September 1, 1900. The State Agricultural Society to add $1,000, of which the winner is to receive $600 and the stakes paid on produce; second colt $250, third colt $150. The owners of mares at time winners of first, second and third money were foaled, to receive 60 per cent, 30 per cent and 10 per cent respectively, of money subscribed for mares on January 1, 1898.

Colts to carry 118, fillies 115 pounds. The winner of a stake of the value of $1,500, or two of $1,000 each, to carry three pounds extra. The winner of a stake of the value of $2,500, or two of $1,500 each, to carry five pounds extra.

Allowances: Beaten maidens allowed three pounds for once, five pounds for twice. If beaten three or more times and not placed 1, 2, 3, allowed ten pounds.

The produce of mares not having foaled a winner prior to January 1, 1898, to be allowed five pounds additional, if claimed at time of entry of mare. In case of sale of mare before foaling, or produce thereafter, notice therof should be filed with the Secretary, as payments not made as they become due declares entry out and releases subscriber from all liability.

If mare entered proves barren or has dead foal, entry is void, and money paid will be returned; otherwise entry follows colt.

The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, galting, driving, keeping racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Silby, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develope to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm.

ST. CARLO,

The best son of imp. St. Blaise. Winner of the Great American and Foam Stakes, 1889, and sire of Ruinart, Joan, Zamar II., St. Calatine and other grand performers.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR HORSEMEN.

To Secure Sons and Daughters of the Great St. Carlo Out of the Best-Bred Mares in America—A Description of Those To Be Offered Next Monday Night.

There are many stock farms in California on which famous horses have been bred, but the latest and the one to which the attention of all horsemen is being called is the Menlo Stock Farm which comprises about 1,400 acres of level and rolling land about seven miles from beautiful Menlo Park.

It is on this farm, which is known far and wide as the "Home of Ormonde, the Horse of the Century;" that St. Carlo, the chestnut stallion, which was bred, by August Belmont is domiciled. He is beautifully bred being by the great Derby winner St Blaise out of Carina by Kingfisher, and as a number of his colts and fillies together with broodmares in foal to him are to be sold at auction next Monday evening, the following taken from the splendid catalogue will furnish interesting information regarding him:

St. Carlo won the great American at Brooklyn, the Foam Stakes at Coney Island, ran second to Chaos for The Futurity, conceding the latter thirteen pounds, and earned nearly $29,000 as a two-year-old. St. Carolus and Prince of Monaco, brothers to St. Carlo, were also stake-winners.

Imp. St. Blaise, sire of St. Carlo, won the Derby and other great stakes in England and sold by auction for $100,000. St. Blaise is the sire of Potomoc (winner of The Futurity, Realization, etc.), St. Florian, La Tosca, Clarendon, Belisarius, St. Jacob, St. Brandon and many others of note.

Carina, dam of St. Carlo, is an own sister to King Crab (winner of 79 races), King Cadmus and Carnot. Carita, grandam of St. Carlo, won the Champagne Stakes, Ladies' Stakes and other races, and besides Carina, King Crab, King Cadmus and Carnot, threw St. Charles and Cara Mia, winners, as well as Carlotta, dam of Simon Pure and Anglo Saxon. Imp. Camilla, third dam of St. Carlo, threw such celebrities as Carissima, Carmen, Caroline, Camillus, Campanini and Clara.

St. Carlo is a wonderful young sire, amongst his get being Ruinart (winner of the Burns Handicap, Palace Hotel Handicap and $11 650), Zamar II. (winner of 19 races as a two-year-old and $7,695 to July 1st), Joan (winner of $3 510), February (six furlongs in 1:13½), St. Cuthbert, St. Calatine, Count of Flanders, Charlemange, Our Climate, Lord Marmion, Tiger Lily, and many other winners. To July 1, 1897, two and one-half seasons of racing for the St Carlos, they had won $28,290. Since that time St. Calatine has won three stake races, Our Climate captured a race on the flat and over the sticks, while Zamar, St. Cuthbert, February and Tiger Lily have proven victorious, adding perhaps $4,000 to the $28,290.

Taking such a grandly bred horse and placing him on a farm where only choice mares were selected, Mr. Macdonough's faith in the success of the experiment was never shaken. The splendid fields of natural grasses, the rolling hills on which the finest of wild oats and alfilleria grow luxuriantly, the colts and fillies had opportunities for exercise not found on any other stock farm in California; the air being pure and water plenty, the very best of horsemen, Jas. McDonnell, to look after their welfare, it is no wonder the first crop of St Carlos startled all race-goers. The second crop has caused them to stop and ponder and the conclusion arrived at is, that if anyone wants a race horse they must buy a St. Carlo. Count of Flanders, one of his colts, sold for $3,000 the other day and has won every time he has been started since.

There is a peculiar thing about all the St. Carlos—they are much like in appearance. He has the power of transmitting his shape to all of his progency. They have the very best of feet and legs; not one of them ever broke down, no matter how they were raced or over what kind of tracks they have been run on. And this fact alone makes them invaluable, especially when combined with good constitutions endurance, gameness and phenomenal speed. Where can better qualifications be found in the progency of any sire in California?

So well is this known to such an observant horseman as A. B. Spreckels that he has leased the services of this horse for 1898 and will breed his best mares to him. The produce should make the Spreckels mares famous.

On Monday evening there will be an opportunity for seekers after bread-winning racehorses to buy the cream of the St. Carlo for Mr. Macdonough has ordered all the foals of 1896 to be sold, without reserve, by Wm. G. Layng, at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 225 Tehama street, and the individuals to be sold are the most uniform lot ever offered and should attract the attention of every horseman on this Coast.

There are eight brood mares to be sold next Monday night, and of this number three are producers of note (viz. Eliza, Flora and Mercedes), while three of the others are very young, one but two years of age.

It is of the yearlings, eleven in number, that we will speak principally. Ten are of St. Carlo, one by imp Watercress No one paying the slightest attention to the sport of kings in this part of the world can have failed to notice the regularity with which the St. Carlos' win races. They know that Ruinart was the champion race horse of the far West, winner of the $10,000 Burns Handicap, one and one-quarter miles in 2:06¾, with 116 pounds up; the Palace Hotel Handicap with 118 pounds in the saddle; that he ran over Ingleside track in 1:40¾ (the track record) and he defeated Salvation, Buckwa and all the cracks of the day in California. They know that Zamar won more races than were ever credited to a two-year-old, viz, nineteen. They acknowledge that Count of Flanders is the best two-year-old colt in the far West, and that St. Calatine is about as good a filly as we have seen in California for half a dozen years. Last Wednesday three St. Carlos started in as many races, and two were returned as winners, the other ran second.

But regarding the yearlings to be sold next Monday night:

No. 9—A sister to the winner, Socialist, by St. Carlo—Anarchy (a young mare), by imp. Sir Modred. The second dam, Tyranny, is own sister to the great Tyrant, winner of the Withers, Belmont, Stockton Stakes, etc, and sire of Charmion, etc. This one is of the family of Mollie McCarty, Gamma, Fitz James, Alta, Hidalgo, etc.

No. 10—A chestnut filly by St. Carlo—Bud (dam of Cadeau), by Glenmore. A nicely-bred one.

No. 11—A black gelding by St. Carlo—Franchise (dam of a winner), by Hindoo. His dam comes from the same family as Tyrant, Gamma, Mollie McCarty, Fallen Leaf, Hidalgo, Fitz James, Alta, Mikado, Kinglike, and many other turf celebeities.

No. 12—Bay gelding by imp. Watercress—Geneva, by Fonso. Watercress was one of the best horses in England in his day. The dam is of the family of great Bushwhacker, Banner and Greenbush.

No. 13—A chestnut gelding by St. Carlo out of Glenlivet (sister to the great race mare Guenn, and to Geoffrey and Guardsman), by Flood. Of the same family as Tenny, Ban Fox, Potomac, the unbeaten Sensation, Marion C. and Susquehanna.

No. 14—Chestnut gelding by St. Carlo—Italia (dam of a winner), by Enquirer; second dam by imp. Bonnie Scotland (sire of Luke Blackburn, Bramble, Brambletta, Bootjack, Beatitude, Barrett, etc.). The dam comes from the same family as did Carnagie, Can't Tell, Marmeluke and Champion.

No. 15—Brown filly by St. Carlo—imp. Kissing Crust (dam of the game colt, Orestes), by Sweetbread (son of Brownbread and Peffar, by Adventurer). The fourth dam of this filly, Mayonnaise by Teddington, won the 1,000 guineas, as did her fifth dam, Picnic by Glaucus.

No. 16—A chestnut filly by St. Carlo out of Miss Annie by Himyar (sire of Domino, winner of $202 000). The filly's third dam, Lily Babbitt, by Victory, was a good race mare.

No. 17—Chestnut gelding by St. Carlo from Princess Idle. (sister to Prince's First) by Prince of Norfolk; second dam Lizzie Idle, by Wildidle. Dam came of the family of Bonnie Belle, Gladiator, Neilson, Vixen, Silver Cup, Wild Oats and Langford (latter sire of the best long-distance horse of America, Thad Stevens)

No. 18—A full sister to St. Cuthbert, being by St. Carlo—Santa Cruz, by Double Cross; second dam Eliza (dam of Monowai, sold for $12 500) by Norfolk. Dam of the family of Argyle (sire of Fairy, Rinfax, Articus, etc) Cuba, Betty Ward, etc.

No. 19.—Chestnut filly by St. Carlo from Sloe, by the greatest race horse and sire of his day, Hanover; second dam Kelp (half-sister to Duke of Montrose), by imp Strachino; third dam the great Kelpie, by imp. Bonnie Scotland; fourth dam Sister to Ruric (dam of Grinstead), by imp. Sovereign; fifth dam the immortal Levity, by imp. Trustee; sixth dam, Vandal's dam, by imp. Tranby, to which source trace more great race horses than any other in America, including Salvator, Luck Blackburn, Leonatus, The Bard, Volturno, Elias Lawrence and Ornament.

By the best young sire of race horses in America, opportunities considered, out of mares from weighed and-not-found-wanting racing families, next Monday night's sales should be the banner one of the season, yes, the best held in many seasons.

Third race, one and one-sixteenth miles, selling, three-year-and upward, purse $400. Garland Barr (Piggott, 107), first, driving by a head. Double Quick (Clawson, 105), second, by twelve lengths. Imp. Devil's Dream (J. Woods, 98), third. Bernardillo, Harry Gwynn, The Plutocrat, and Paul Pry finished up as named. Time, 1:50½.

Fourth race, one mile handicap, all ages, purse $500 Ostler Joe (Thorpe, 112), first easily by two and one half lengths. Spunwell (Clawson, 85), second, by eight lengths Sweet William (J. Woods, 97), third. Fonsovannah and Rey el Santa Anita also ran. Time, 1:42½.

Fifth race, seven furlongs, selling, two year-olds, purse $400. Bliss Rucker (Thorpe, 106) first, easily by three lengths; Geo. Lee (Piggott, 104) second by seven lengths; Don Luis (H. Martin, 106) third. Yule, Al Koran, Greenback II and Mordecai finished as named. Time, 1:29½.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 14.

First race—Five and one-half furlongs, selling, three-year olds and upward, purse $300 Pleasanton (McNichols, 98) first, easily by one length; Sleepy Jane (Clawson, 97) second by one-half length; Mrs Shade (Thorpe, 105) third; Hazel D., Gov. Budd, Sandow III, Ed Ladrone, Charlie Boots, Jay Wheeler, Paso Tempo and Mt. Air finished in the order named. Time, 1:11.

Second race—Six furlongs, selling, three-year-olds and upwards purse $400. Aquinas (H. Martin, 105) first, easily by three quarters of a length; Polish (G. Wilson, 108), second by five and one-half lengths; Myth (Piggott, 108) third William O'B., Alma, Emma D, Sen. Morrill, Ricardo, The Drummer and Dick Behan finished in the order named. Time, 1:17½.

Third race, seven furlongs, all ages, purse $400. B & W. (Thorpe, 117) first, easily by two lengths; Lucky Star (H. Martin, 104) second by two and one-half lengths; Morinel (McNichols, 91) third. Al Koran, Bonnie Ione, Florinel, Dr Marks, Castake, Claudiana and Don Daniel finished in the order named. Time, 1:31.

Fourth race, one and one eighth miles, selling, four year olds and upward, purse $400. Thelma (Gray, 87) first, cleverly by a neck; Palomacita (Meany, 87) second by two and one-half lengths; Donation (McNichols, 87) third. Argentina and Song and Dance also ran. Time, 1:58¾.

Fifth race, six furlongs, selling three-year-olds and upward, purse $400. O'Connell (Conley, 120), first, easily by one and one-half lengths. Don Fulano (Piggott, 113), second, by eight lengths. Dumboy (Clawson, 107), third. Lone Princess, Mainstay, Midas, and Floreanna finished in the order named. Time, 1:16½.

Sixth race, five and one-half furlongs, selling three-year-olds and upward, purse $300. Jack Martin (Stevens, 107), first, driving by two lengths. La Mascotta (H. Martin, 107), second, by two lengths. Los Cerrillos (Clawson, 97), third. D. J. Tobin, Triumph, Don Carillo, Chappie, Tobey, Capt. Rees, and P. F. finished in the order named. Time, 1:10½.

WEDNESDAY DECEMBER 15.

First race, five furlongs, for two-year olds, purse $300. Valencienne (Gray, 108) first easily by three lengths; Rebel Jack (Conley, 111), second by a head; Imperious (H. Martin, 108), third. Prince Blazes, Moringa, Mainbar, Flushington, Kaiserin, Ocean Blue, Rosa, Henry C., Toto, Iraden, Bessie Lee and Bodacio finished in the order named. Time, 1:03¾.

Second race, six furlongs, for all ages, purse $400 Count (of Flanders (Clawson, 92), first driving by a neck; Mercotio Piggott, 112) second by eight lengths; Monitor (Golden, 114), third. Prompto, Walter J., Chic and Midleton finished as named. Time, 1:17.

Third race, five furlongs, two-year-olds, purse $300. Watomba (Tuberville, 115) first, easily by three lengths; Lord Marmion (W. Martin, 118) second by three lengths; San Venado (Hennessey, 118) third. El Moro, Lady Ashley, Elidad, Carbineer and Hertha finished as named, Time, 1:04½.

Fourth race, six furlongs, two-year-olds, The Racine Stakes, value $1 000. Morellito (H. Martin, 113) first, driving by one length; Eddie Jones (Thorpe, 106) second by one half length; Torsida (H. Martin, 110) third Sybaris, Novia and Hermosa finished as named. Time, 1:16½.

Fifth race—Seven furlongs, selling, for three year-olds and upward, purse $400. Lucky Dog (H. Martin, 116), first easily by five lengths; Double Quick (Clawson, 108) second, by three and one-half lengths; Etta H. (G. Wilson, 106) third. Harry Gwynn, Masoero, Tom Anderson and Moylan finished as named. Time 1:30.

Master Horse Shoers' Association.

The attendance at this association's meeting last Tuesday evening was quite large. The organizing committee was complimented for its good work, and when the names of eighteen applicants for membership were read the enthusiasm was unbounded. Many valuable suggestions were offered, and no doubt they will be adopted at the next meeting. The association has applied to the Master Horse Shoers' Association of America for a charter, and, the application having been received, the charter will soon be in the hands of the President, to be framed and kept ever before the members. The success which has attended this local organization is remarkable; in fact, it has been most flattering to all concerned, for the existence of such an organization means a great deal, not only to the farriers but also to the horse, owners. One of the principal objects of the association is the education of horse-shoers, and by the interchange of ideas, disseminate views regarding the best methods of shoeing horses and in every way advancing the best interests of the craft.

For many years these workers in iron have been drifting apart and learning how weak they are, but now that they have come to realize that in "union there is strength," we look for everyone who shoes horses on this Coast to become members of this Association. There is need for it, and no one knows this better than the hard working men who do so much to keep our horses from injuring themselves on our badly-paved streets. The next meeting will take place at the hall, 1159 Mission street, and a full attendance is requested.

NEW YORK, December 10.—Assistant Secretary Hanlon of the Jockey Club gives out, under instructions, in view of the statement which was made after the meeting of the American Turf Congress at Cincinnati, on December 7, the following telegrams, which, he says, give the exact phase of the situation: CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 7, 1897.—August Belmont, President Jockey Club: At a consultation here today of friends of legitimate racing including several members of the Turf Congress, about the unfortunate situation of those racing at Pimlico since Nov. 30, under Turf Congress by-law, No. 6. It is the sentiment that no purpose existed to violate the by-laws by those participating, and the members of the Turf Congress will be asked to relieve the Pimlico people as soon as action can be had with the belies that the Jockey Club and Turf Congress will hereafter reach a mutual position on winter racing. Can you express an opinion on the probability of accord between the bodies on that subject? C. C. MAFFITT, Pres. American Turf Congress. Mr. Belmont replies as follows: NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—C. C. Maffit, President American Turf Congress: The Jockey Club has held itself ready at any time to consider any proposition from the American Turf Congress, since the Congress broke its agreement with the Jockey club, but could not under any circumstances take the first step. I see no reason why an understanding cannot be reached. You must recognize, however, in this connection that if the Jockey Club is to maintain its authority and dignity in a manner to be expected of it, it could not tolerate the extension of any of your regulations over race meetings under Jockey Club rules within what is accepted as its own territory. AUGUST BELMONT.

JOCKEY FRANK ("DOC") TUBERVILLE, set down indefinitely by Judge Murphy at St. Louis some time ago for his poor showing on a mare owned by Mattingly, the Kentucky distiller, has been reinstated (at least allowed to ride) for W. D. Randall alone upon probation). He had the mount on Watomba, a 7 to 1 shot, and landed her in front most artistically Tuberville began the business with Charles Kerr of Bakersfield, made something of a reputation riding the horses of Billy Appleby and Henry Schwartz, went East and enhanced it, secured an engagement with Marcus Daly, piloted Ogden to victory in the Futurity, is rumored to have had a severe case of swelled cranium, got into bad odor, and now will have to reinstate himself in the good graces of the public by selecting good company and keeping in the middle of the road. He's a good rider and with age will come better judgment.

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

"BUT THE CHIEF ROOTS of our best horses may be considered the three following Eastern horses:—First, the Byerley Turk, of whom nothing now is known than that he was Captain Byerley's charger in Ireland in 1689; secondly, the Darley Arabian, imported by Mr. Darley of Yorkshire, very early in the eighteenth century, supposed about 1712, and the Godolphin Arabian, or Barb, imported a few years later and first used as a sire in 1731."

That quotation is from the very able and popular work, "British Rural Sports," the author J. H. Walsh, editor London Field, better known under his "pen name" of "Stonehenge." One of the most gifted writers among the large number of talented men of his time who "wrote horse." But in selecting these three horses as the three chief roots of the best race horses in the land of good racehorses, few, indeed, of his contemporaries of any ability who would disagree with him.

Holding various opinions, perhaps, as to relative merits but the triple crown cheerfully conceded.

There were good reasons for awarding these horses the highest place among all the importations from the Oriental countries.

Previous to the Byerley Turk the importations were mainly Spanish horses and Barbs that is in connection with producing racehorses. Few are aware that the Spanish horse had any share in laying the foundation of the grandest horses—when the test was speed and endurance and rarely, indeed, is there any reference to them in the writers of the eighteenth century. By far the best-informed horsemen of his time, when all the breeds are considered; born in 1592 and living to 1696, he lived during the reigns of all the Stewarts, in England, and it is well known these kings were the greatest promoters of horse-racing. Newcastle closely connected with the court, that, and his fondness for horses, gave him opportunities no other person of that era enjoyed He wrote two books on the horse, one in French, the other "A New Method to Dress Horses," published in 1667, which is by far the most comprehensive of any of the old works.

In that is described all the most noted breeds, and in order to show how composite the horses of England were even at that early date it is only necessary to state that in the chapter headed "Observations on Horses" are included, "Of the Spanish Horse; of the Barb; of the English Horse; of the Frison; of the Denmark and Holland Horse; of the Almain or German Horse; of the Courser of Naples; of the Turkish Horse; of the Arabian Horse; of the Hungarian Horse; of the Polander Horse and of the Swedish Horse."

Twenty-seven quarto pages taken up in these descriptions. The Spanish, his prime favorite, for the mannage, though in connection with the production of racehorses, while giving the preference to the Barb he states: "Conqueror was of a Spanish horse; Shotten—Herring was of of a Spanish horse; Butler was of a Spanish horse, and Peacock was of a Spanish mare, and these beat all the best horses of their time so much as horses ever run near them."

The form of Turks, Barbs and the highest class Arabians were well adapted to aid each other in forming a superior race and the Spanish and English horses also presenting peculiarities of configuration that could not fail to be of service. The only Arabian Newcastle had seen, at the time of writing his books was the Markham Arabian which King James paid five hundred pounds for him and the account states: "He was a bay, but a little horse, and no rarity for shape, for I have seen many horses far finer; and being trained for a course, when he came to run, every horse beat him.

He thus describes the Barb and Turkish horses, "The Barb, he says, 'is of gentle nature, docile, nervous and light. He is as fine a horse as can be, but somewhat slender and a little lady-like. * * * But commonly he is sinewy and nervous, and hath a clean strength; is exellently winded and and good at length to endure great travel.'" The Turk, he writes: "I have seen very few of them, but two merchants brought three Turkish horses to Antwerp, very fine horses, but oddly shaped; their heads were very fine, but like a camel's head. They had excellent eyes, and their necks excellently risen; somewhat great bodies; the croup like a mule's; legs not great, but marvelously sinewy; good pastures, and good hoofs; and their backs risen somewhat like a camel's."

Newcastle has little to tell about the action of the various breeds. "The Barb," he says, "so lazy and negligent in his walk, as he will stumble in a bowling green; he trots like a cow, and gallops low, and no action in any of therr actions." The Turk, "not so fit for the mannage, as for to run a course, which, I believe, they would have scoured; they trotted very well, and no ambling at all."

His favorite, the Spanish horse, he describes with so much enthusiasm that it cannot fail to be appreciated. "If he be well chosen, I assure you he is the noblest horse in the world. First, there is no horse so curiously shaped, all over from head to croup. He is the most beautiful that can be; for he is not so thin and lady like as the Barb; nor so gross as the Neapolitan; but between them both. He is of great spirit, and of great courage, and docile; hath the proudest walk, the proudest trot, and the best action in the trot; the loftiest gallop, the swiftest careers; and is the lovingest and gentlest horse, and fittest for a King in a day of Triumph to show himself to his people, or in the head of an army, of any horse in the world."

The English horse is fully described.

Newcastle tells: "Certainly English horses are the best horses in the world for all uses whatsoever, from the cart to the mannage; and some are as beautiful horses as can be anywhere, for they are bred out of all the horses of all nations. * * * For English mares, there are none like them in the world to breed on; but then you must choose them fit for such horses as you would breed. * * * If you would have mares to breed running horses of, then they must be shaped thus: As light as possible, large and long, but well shaped; a short back, but long sides, and a little long-legged, their breast as narrow as may be, for they will gallop the lighter and nimbler, and run the faster, for the lighter and thinner you breed for galloping is the better. Your stallion, by any means, must be a Barb, and somewhat of the shape that I have described the mares to be of; for a Barb that is a jade will get better running horse horses than the best running-horse in England; as Sir John Fenwick told me, who had more experience of running-horsess than any man in England, for he had more rare running-horses than all England besides, and the most part of all the famous running-horses in England that ran against another, were of his race and breed."

"Some commend the Turk for a stallion to breed running-horses; but they are so scarce and rare, that I can give no judgment of them; and therefore I advise you to the Barb, which, I believe, is the much better horse to breed running-horses."

There are far better Arabian horses than the one King James bought, Persian and some of the Barbs being wrongly called Arabians.

These breeds, however, are the foundation of the modern thoroughbred and the first great native examples were Herod, Matchem and Eclipse. Herod, a direct descendant in the male line of the Byerly Turk, Matchem from the Godolphin Barb, and Eclipse from the Darley Arabian. At this day many of the most learned of students of race horse breeding, class them according to the number of strains of the trio named that are carried.

ST. CARLO, ST. BLAISE, HERMIT, NEWMINSTER, TOUCHSTONE, CAMEL, WHALEBONE, WAXY, POT 8'OS, ECLIPSE; Everyone of these names worthy of being put in big capital letters, a succession of "illustrious predecessors" which is seldom equalled, and it might be said never excelled.

The ninth remove from St. Carlo, in the direct male line, Eclipse, so in accordance with general usages, St. Carlo is of the Eclipse line. With all respect and admiration for the three great lines, Herod, Eclipse and Matchem, I cannot go so far as to agree that a sire's qualities should be entirely gauged by the preponderance of the number of crosses in his pedigree of the most fancied one of the three big guns of the turf, as Stonehenge classifies the three named. Were there never so many strains of Herod, Matchem and Eclipse in the eighth, ninth or tenth removes, but with intermedate crosses of minor value, the pedigree, to me, would not be nearly so satisfactory as with a smaller number of spaces occupied by the names of the trio, but without such great excellence in those nearer of kin. If in place of the great St. Blaise, a horse of medium renown, in lieu of Hermit, a horse of only fair standing, were every mare and horse thereafter full of the choicest blood, Herod, Eclipse, Matchem, in the greatest profusion, it would not avail.

While the nearly unanimous opinion that the male lines are of the greatest importance is supported by the weight of testimony presented by the Stud Books and Racing Calendars, no one, who has sufficient knowledge of the problem of race horse breeding to warrant decided opinions, will underate the importance of the female lines. Eclipse is credited to the Darley Arabian, by the virtue of direct descent, he carried twice as much of the blood of the Godolphin Barb. Herod, representing the Byerley Turk, has more of the Darley Arabian, and Matchem a lineal descendant of Godolphin, has the Byerley Turk cross, the only one of the three, however, without a cross of the Darley Arabian.

Then on both sides of the house the big guns were well supported, and following out the line of reasoning that much depends on the dams embraced in the pedigree, St. Carlo is bountifully endowed on that side as well.

Were all the excellences mentioned, however, not borne out by individual traits they would be comparatively valueless. Before making his mark in the stud the only things to guide in the choice of a stallion are form and performances.

Some years since I saw St. Carlo six years ago, but I have a very distinct recollection that he is a horse of very high form. Good size, muscular and yet with plenty of quality. In fact, depending on my recollection, quite nearly a model.

Form and performances, united to such breeding led one to expect that he would succeed in the start, and yet a person who had ventured the prediction that he would make the showing he has would have been, to say the least, highly enthusiastic. A wonderful exhibition truly. Whether measured by the number of winners in proportion to the number of starters, extent of his progency, length of time in the stud and the "class" shown, to call it a surprising success is not out of bounds.

Also quite reasonable to suppose that success will not be confined to the past, and that the future will bring like results. There have been "off years" for stallions as well racehorses, and the "glorious uncertainty" that never can be entirely lineminated. But again the statement that "like will produce like," is a guarantee that under similar conditions be, the same results will be obtained.

Youngsters by St. Carlo, from mares bred like many of them represented in the sale catalogue can scarcely fail to race. For instance, the filly from Kissing Crust brings in plenty more of the blood of the "big guns."

But were I to go into further disquisitions on those famous old lines, and present only a small portion of their salient features, a chapter and not a short one at that, would be required and then "the half not told."

THE DOUBLE KICKING STRAP—The following notice which has been going the round of horse papers since the mare made her wonderfully good campaign antedates, by a good many years, the first appearance of Dandy Jim. As long ago as 1864 Warren Peabody had a big chestnut mare, Dayton Belle, but everything but a belle that would pass muster for tractability. Any ordinary contrivance to stop her fighting furiously was of no avail and a double one as heavy as a good-sized trace had to be used. A pad was placed over her coupling the straps crossing it, and even with that had to be buckled so close as to interfere with her action.

Nourmahal was of the same temperment and that greatly aggravated by the abuse of the man who broke her.

One of exactly the same pattern as that described in the clipping was a grand success, and when I sold her in 1873 to come to California, the strap came with her. Mr. John McKerron made me a duplicate and it was generally approved, a good many being sold.

There was one slight drawback, the straps had to suit the configuration, a sloping hip requiring a shorter strap for the rear leather than if the hip were straight.

Now this is remedied by connecting the straps so as to form loops, a stirrup buckle being used so that there will be little friction and no difference in the shape of the hips causes trouble, in perfect adjustment all the while.

I have advocated the use of the kicking strap on the ground of safety from accidents other than to guard against viciousness, in fact recommend their use as what should be a part of every racing harness. Of the pattern mentioned and neatly made they are not unsightly.

"The double kicking strap which the Texas trainer, Foote, had on Rilma this season attracted much attention. In front of the mare's hips was one strap and back toward the roots of the tail ran another, the two uniting just below the hip bone, and running from there to the sulky thills as one strap. Many were the remarks the writer heard passed as to this peculiar form of kicking strap, but the Western trainer, Ewing, who used to drive Dandy Jim, and who uses a similar strap on nearly all his horses, recently told one of the staff writers on the Horse Review that such a strap has a double use. Is is a good kicking strap, according to Ewing, and it also prevents a sulky from dropping down on a horse's heels in case a wheel gets taken off in a collision or other accident. Perhaps the double strap would be quite the thing among the half-mile track followers if its merits were generally known."

HON. D. E. KNIGHT.—Were a hundred names selected from which to choose the President of The Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders for the coming year, it is nearly safe to say that which is placed at the head of this article would receive a unanimous vote. Thus far in unanimity that if the conditions attached were that ten should be designated, the name of Mr. Knight would be on every ballot. I have arrived at this conclusion from conversations with a great many people connected with harness horses and harness racing, and in response to the suggestion of Mr. Knight for the presidency there was, invariably, enthusiastic approval.

As I have stated before, to present all the good qualities possessed by Mr. Knight for the place, would require a long enumeration, much more briefly say—and that will cover the ground—there are none unfavorable. But above all, his strict integrity and firm determination that everything in his power will be done to insure square racing. A great deal in example. When that is reinforced by a position which will give force to example the effectiveness is enhanced many fold.

It can truly be said that the name of Mr. Knight will be a "tower of strength" to the association, and as his election is virtually assured, I offer my congratulations to all concerned, even if in advance of actual consummation.

THE two great jockey clubs here have decided that in future at Ingleside and Oakland and until further notice it shall be optional with the judges as to the extent of disqualification in cases of fouls. It has been a custom for all times when a horse is disqualified for a foul that he shall be placed last. Racetrack magnates here have decided to give the judges power to places the horses back in a position in the race instead of putting them last. Thus, if two horses are out in front clear of the field and one bumps the other without interfering with any other horse, the judge may reverse the positions of the two horses without affecting the position of any other horse in the race. Should a horse interfere with more than one horse his position in the race may be changed accordingly. Intentional or willfully foul riding will be strictly dealt with. This looks like a very correct thing to do, though, of course, the judges are given a great deal of power. It does seem pretty hard though, that when a horse simply fouls one horse in a race, preventing it from winning, that it should be set back last, when it did not interfere in any way with the others or cause them to lose ground.

THE young mares, Rhodesia and Royal Rose, that have been racing this season are now at Castleton, and already begin to show the benefits of their run at grass. Handspring, who has been at Castleton for two months, has improved wonderfully. He has taken on flesh, and his feet, which have always been his weakness, have grown out considerably.

In all probability hoppled horses will be barred at Lexington next year.

It always makes one feel like going around the corner to smile when he hears a fastidious owner refer to his foal's dam, as its "mamma."

Lady Merrill, 2:30; Muriel, 2:28¼; Jennie Wells, 2:28 and Janette, 2:29½, all daughters of Sphinx entered the 2:30 list at Saginaw, Michigan, last month.

C. W. Williams don't believe in training colts by leading. He wants them harnessed every time. Some times we think they sell better when shown by the halter.

Wakeman, who recently sold for $1,000 at auction as a hackney is one of the best-bred trotters living being by Bow Bells, out of Almeta, who was a daughter of Almont and Alma Mater.

The opening of the Harlem speedway has been an extra incentive to wealthy New Yorkers to invest money in road horses. It was this fact that induced Mr. Hoffman to purchase Pixley, 2:08¼.

H. T. Bossart & Co., of Latrobe, Penn., we are informed by wire, have made an assignment. They were the manufacturers of a patent article used in veterinary practice and known as "Curine."

W. W. Benson, of Dubuque, Ia., has two two-year-olds of extra promise. One is by Nutwood, out of Pitti Sing, sister of Suisun 2:18½, by Electioneer, and the other by Algy 2:19¾, son of Nutwood.

Castaway, by Ansel (2:20), out of Sally Hamlet, by Hamlet, died recently of inflammation of the bowels at Forest Park Farm, Brandon, Vt. Castaway was a ten-year-old stallion and was bred at Palo Alto.

Breeders and farmers: A good racing circuit in this country means better prices for your young horses, better service fees for your stallions and better prices for your hay and oats.—North Pacific Rural Spirit.

John F. Betz, the Philadelphia brewer, has received two thoroughbred horses from the stables of the King of Wurtemburg, in return for a team of American trotters presented to the king two years ago by Mr. Betz.

Woodmark, 2:30, who got his record at Salinas, was sired by Winwood (son of Antevolo, dam by Nutwood), out of a mare by Black Prince. She is the dam of Lady O, 2:15. Woodmark is owned by O Marchand of San Pablo.

The very satisfactory prices received for good horses possessing speed at the recent sales show which way the wind blows. The trotting industry is all right, and there will be more breeding done in 1898, than for several seasons past.

Elicimont, 2:22½, the highly bred son of Chimes and Cologne, by Mambrino King, gets a new performer in the four-year-old Snip, that took a record of 2:29¾ at the late meeting at Springfield, Mass. Snip is out of Kitty S., by Thought.

Mattie Young, the bay filly (4) that took a record of 2:26¼ this year, is by Election 6217, son of Electioneer, out of Lenape Maid, by Deucalion 809; second dam, Fanny A., by Aristos, 2:27¾; third dam, Nelly Lambert, by Daniel Lambert.

A numbers of people of Phoenix, Arizona, are greatly interested in Wallace Duncan, a nephew of Gen. Lew Wallace. It is not, however, because of "Ben Hur," but because young Duncan and a number of valuable horses disappeared at the same time.

Only eight four-year-old trotters have ever beaten 2:10. In order of record they are: Directum, 2:05¼; Fantasy, 2:06; Beuzetta, 2:06¾; Arion; 2:07¾; Onoqua, 2:08¼; The Monk, 2:08¼; Pat L, 2:09¼, and Dare Devil, 2:09¾—four stallions, three mares and one gelding.

Wert, 2:15½, by Warlock, is given in the last Year Book as "dam unknown." We are reliably informed, however, that he is out of the great brood mare Steinette (dam of Bourbon Russell, 2:20 and Baron de Stein, sire of Henry Bassett, 2:10½), by Steinway, 2:25¾.

Mr. J. Parrott, of San Mateo, has a magnificent yearling by Panjabi out of Nenestin by Connaught, 2:24, second dam Lady Brigand by Brigand 1812, that is one of the finest young colts we have seen. His breeding is the best, and a perfect outcross for most of our California-bred mares.

Jacob Hagely of Danville, Kentucky, has sold to Colonel Snowden of Philadelphia, the two-year-old trotter, The Dutchman, for $3 000. The Dutchman has no record, but finished second to Janie T. in 2:14¼ in the big Stock Farm stake at Lexington in October He was sired by Winks, dam Lady Pepper, the dam of five performers by Onward.

Al McDonald one of the best known and most competent young horsemen in California has been engaged by A. G. Gurnett to take charge of the colts and fillies on his farm near Walnut Creek, known as the Sulphur Springs ranch. Mr. McDonald has recently returned from the East where he had charge of Directina, 2:16¼ and Miss Margaret, 2:11¼; he has worked for Mr. Salisbury for years and has achieved a splendid reputation as a careful and painstaking horseman. He gave Prince Bismark, Lady Thornhill, and others, their records. This farm is one of the finest in California for pasturing horses. There are several sulphur springs on it which have a most beneficial effect on all stock drinking the water.

Electric Bell, by Electioneer—Beautiful Bells, by The Moor, and consequently full brother to eight fast performers has been purchased by Congressman J. W. Bailey, of Texas, and will be kept on Major P. P. Johnston's farm near Lexington. A severe illness left this horse in such shape that he could not be trained as a colt as the rest of his brothers and sisters were, but he certainly had as much speed naturally as any of them.

A. Barnard, who is connected with the American Sportsman, in Cleveland, says a plan is on foot to put a stop to the judges suppressing correct time in order to keep up the record of certain horses, to the disadvantage of many others. According to Mr. Barnard, it is proposed by the racing association to send a timer unknown to the judges to each race in the circuit to take the actual time and report and a discrepancy will result in an investigation.

The story is told of a very wealthy breeder that took a violent fancy to a certain mare, and hunting up her owner got his price—which was several thousand dollars. "I'll take her," he said. "Send her to me and I'll give you a check for the amount." "All right, I'll do it," replied the vendor, "but now the deal is closed I'll tell you that the mare has two curbs." "Where are they," queried the millionaire, and the vendor remained buried in thought for some time.

The black weaning colt Hauser, by Directum, dam Fedora (dam of Isaac 2:23) by Newcomb (son of Nutwood); second dam Maud Maple by Orphan Boy, Jr., is a youngster owned by Gil Curry, that gives promise of much speed. He has been entered in the Kentucky Futurity, the Kentucky Stock Farm purse for foals of 1807, and several other large events. He was named for Mr. Curry's friend and employer, Leopold Hauser, of Vienna, Austria. Gil thinks him a prospect for a money earner.

H. H. Helman, lessee of the Hollister race track, arrived there last week with the highly-bred stallion "Alta Rio," sired by the great Altamont, and out of Tecora by C. M. Clay Jr. 22, being a full brother to Chehalis, 2:07¼; Del Norte, 2:08; Touchet, 2:15, three-year-old; Tenino, 2:19¼. Chehalis holds the world's two-mile record, 4:1v¾. Alta Rio is a seal brown, four years old, and, like his renowned brothers, has speed. Barring accidents, he will have the figures of 2:10 or better set opposite his name after the next season's campaign.

In 1898 there will be foaled more trotting bred colts and fillies than have been foaled in the past four years. This may seem a strong assertion but it is true nevertheless. For the past four years there has been but very little breeding most stallions standing the whole year without service, but next season every good brood mare and good stallion will be brought into use. And long before the colts of these unions can be grown into maturity, the cry will go out why did we not begin breeding more earnestly sooner. The price of four-year-olds next season will advance nearly fifty per cent is our prediction.

The four-year-old filly Cross Patch, that took a record of 2:30 this year is a highly-bred filly, standing 16 hands high, weighing 1100 pounds, and was foaled at Glenview Stock Farm, the property of R. K. Warner, New York City. She is by Egotist, 2:20½, son of Electioneer and Sprite, out of Lassie, by Pilot Mambrino, son of Pilot Jr.; second dam, Calumet, by Volunteer 55; third dam, Flight, by Woburn 342, son of Hambletonian 10; fourth dam, Silver Tail, by American Star 14; fifth dam by Wildair, son of Grey Messenger. Cross Patch is owned by R. Ferris, Austin, Minn., who says that she has trotted quarters for him in 21 seconds.

During recent years many heavy horse owners neglected to pursue a policy of increasing this class of stock on their farm. It is now discovered that the supply is very much reduced throughout the country. In the Mississippi Valley prices advanced on good average work-horses in August more than 25 per cent over the prices paid last March. This fact ought to stimulate those who have brood-mares to set about a policy of breeding in the very best lines at once. It is evident that for several years the most rigid economy in methods of breeding is called for. The very best breeding foundation in both sexes must be sought if the proper returns in the future are realized.

The report has been going the rounds of the press that hoppled horses will be barred from contesting in races at the meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association in 1898. Mr. Wilson, the Secretary, was seen by the Stock Farm a few days ago, and he stated that there was no truth in the report, and added that it was not the proper thing for any one association to take the initiative in such a move, and that it was a matter for the parent association to take in hand. The report probably grew out of the statement of ex Secretary Tipton, who is also a large stockholder in the K. T. H. B. A., that he favored the abolition of hopples and would use his influence to that end.

There is general interest in the proposed sample road building by the United States Government at the New York State agricultural experiment station at Geneva. The sample road will be more than 7,000 feet long. About 800 feet will be macadamized in the centre to the width of eight feet, with rolled dirt on either side, this designed as an improved country road. The remainder, something over a mile, will be macadamized in the center fourteen feet, with dirt roads on either side. It is now proposed also to lay at least 200 feet of the steel track, which is now attracting so much attention as a possibly efficient and economical road, in sections where stone is scarce and costly.

Three hundred bales of horses manes and tails to be be used for upholstering furniture have been larded at Philadelphia by steamships from London. They came from far away Siberia and are taken from horses used by the Cossacks that have outlived their usefulness. Horses are cheap in Russia and after the horses have seen better days their manes and tails are the only things left of a commercial value. Very often these hirsute appendages are taken from sound animals and the beasts left to their fate. In this country the upholsterers use the hair for stuffing chair backs and other articles of furniture, and the material from Russia brings the best price because the hair is the longest.

Prince Serge Galitzine's filly Cleopatra, who won the Russian Derby this year, has just accomplished a remarkable performance, trotting a mile in 2:23¼ without being hurried at all. She is a three year-old by Prince Warwick (American) son of Algona, and Karl, a noted Orloff broodmare. This filly, driven by Caton, trots under the colors of Messrs. Knopoline and Kouschin, whose string of trotters has been remarkably fortunate for the past two years, heading the list of winning stables last year, with a clear gain of 100,000 roubles (about $54.000). Cleopatra has a very promising stable companion, Little Kitty, by Amber, Russian born and bred, and son of the noted American Amber and an American dam by the name of Kitty.

The outlook seems bright for the trotter, and it will be in a year or two for the breeder. The trotting of horses in races is an established sport, and will continue popular with the masses. That being the case, a horse that can trot will always have a value, and the men who can produce trotters will have a ready sale, and those that do not produce them will find great difficulty in disposing of their colts. The time will unquestionably come when youngsters will all show some speed as soon as broken, as the thoroughbred does now. With the return of more prosperous times and the completion of the speedway in New York, the demand will be increased, while the supply is limited and will be for some years, owing to the scarcity of foals in 1895, 1896 and 1897.

Andy Welch is quoted with endorsing the plan of ending races with three heats, paying a horse for what he does in each heat. He says it is the best plan yet devised for all concerned This is my opinion, deliberately expressed in the course of a recent talk on the subject of harness racing and he gives his reasons for holding this opinion. He says that under such a plan there would be less laying-up of heats, and that a horse when he got a record would be paid for his mark, whereas, now, it not infrequently happens that a heat winner gets no part of the money, and again, it would be more satisfactory to spectators, who would be assured that when they go the track they can get back home at a respectable hour, and have the satisfaction of having seen the afternoon's programme completed. Furthermore, he says that a horse would be able to go more races in a season and win more money for his owner, as prolonged races mean a great waste of the vital energies of a horse. Mr. Welch's experience lends weight to his words.

On the question of the future of the trotting horse industry R. W. Goodrich, Poultney, Vt., writes: "There is sure to be a famine in horses within two years, and is now for that matter in nice carriage horses. I have put in three solid months, this fall, attending fairs and looking about the country for choice horses and I can count on one hand all the really good horses that I have seen that are for sale. I made arrangements last week, with Mr. Larrabee, of Montana, who has over half a million dollars invested in a ranch and horses in Montana, to send me on two carloads of horses. Over 50,000 horses went across the water last year to foreign countries, and 75 000 will go over this year I think. Long before colts can be grown up to mature horses people will tumble over each other to get a good horse. I am only a dealer, but if I were a breeder I should now commence to load up. The large sales this winter will close out about all the large stock farms owned by city gentlemen, who went into the business for pleasure and have, for the past three years, thrown their stock on the market until it was literally flooded."

One of the most remarkable sales of trotting stock that has taken place since 1892 occurred last Saturday in New York when 20 young trotters and pacers by Allerton, 2:09½, brought $16,415 under the auctioneer's hammer, an average of $821 each. The animals made up the entire consignment of C. W. Williams, Galesburg, Ill., and nearly all of them were bred and developed by him. Williams will be remembered as the ex-telegraph operator of Independence, Ia., who created such a stir in the trotting horse world about ten years ago. From a couple of mares that cost him something like $500 he raised in one year the great colt Axtell, 2:12, that he drove to the world's record for stallions as a three-year old and sold for $105,000, and the equally great Allerton, 2:09½, who also lowered the stallion record, and for whom Williams is said to have refused an offer of $125 000 in 1890. With the money that he got for Axtell Williams built the famous Independence kite-shaped track, put up a modern hotel and opera house, constructed an electric street railway, and set out to make a city of his native village. When the panic of 1893 came along, he lost all his property at Independence, and, taking his horse Allerton and the few brood mares that he had left, went to Galesburg, Ill., where the citizens built a trotting track for him to manage. The enterprize proved unsuccessful, and for two or three years Williams has given all his attention to raising and training trotters by Allerton. In 1896, and again this year, the son of Jay Bird stood at the head of the list of winning sires, 35 new 2:30 performers by him entering the list in these two seasons.

Now Let Us Be Thankful.—Yes, let us rejoice first the values have increased; that the two-minute mark has be n passed; that more speed has been shown in harness in 1897 than in any preceding year; that countless records have fallen; that colt racing has been reinstated; that the trotting bred high stepper has proved such a colossal success; that the United States government, urged thereto by its Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, has at last concluded to do some thing for its horse breeders; and lastly, that the value of so many different kinds of horses has increased so largely that thousands of breeders have good reason for rejoicing with us. August 28, A. D. 1897, Star Pointer, the great and glorious, paced a mile at Readville, Mass, in 1:59½, and the long predicted, long looked for "two-minute horse" was a glorious reality. Since that mile was paced and the wonderful record announced few have stopped to consider what a marvelous—truly marvelous, performance it was. The American public has a happy knack of simply accepting some phenomenal feat as something that had to come in the natural course of American events and paying little farther heed to the matter. To go a mile in 1:59½, Star Pointer had to traverse every furlong in less than fifteen seconds, yet while his great feat is taken as a matter of course, we hear men on every side say, when desirous of showing how desperately fast a horse is, "he can go an eighth in fifteen seconds." There is a difference only the wide world can contain between going one eighth in fifteen seconds and eight eighths each in less than fifteen seconds. Verily, it was a great mile.—Horseman.

THE SADDLE.

PIERRE LORILLARD won $31,970 in purses and stakes on the English turf this year.

BY HOLLY has named his yearling El Rayo—Fusillade's Last colt Horton, after Sam Horton of the Post.

MATTIE LOORAM, his jester, Billy Cowan, and the rest of the outfit will journey to California next week.—New York Telegram.

CALIFORNIA-BRED horses sired by imported Australian stallions have won about $550,000 in the past three years on the American turf.

AT New Orleans, December 8th, two three-year-olds by imp. Whistle Jacket, proved winners. They were Bombardon and Eton Jacket.

ARCHDUKE and a Knight of Ellerslie yearling were sent to England with Rensselaer. Clifford's half-brother is better than his racing showed.

BONNEVILLE, a recent winner at Singerly, Md., is a brother to the great campaigner, Sunday, being by Sun Dance out of Norma (dam also of Trifle and Annie Moore).

GUS STRAUSS, who bought Bersan at the Lexington sales, thinks there is a great future before the horse, and he will be bred to some of the best mares that he can secure this coming season.

THE filly by Patron—Lady Hemphill recently purchased by C. T. Patterson for $3,000, is pronounced a wonder. She recently worked a fast mile at Louisville, going the half in 50½ with 110 pounds up.

GREAT TOM died at Belle Meade last Monday. He was a beautifully English bred horse, old enough to vote and only a mild success as a sire of racehorses. His fame comes through the racing progency and will grow.

EUGENE LEIGH, who had custody of Arezzo, Good Times and others out here last season, is once again on his feet. He was deeply involved, but his recent sale was so satisfactory that he will have plenty of money to buy a first-class racing stable.

DAN HONIG is in a quandry over what he will do with Magnet. The beautiful son of St. Blaise works so well every time the St. Louis turfman about makes up his mind to retire him to the stud that he gives up that idea, and then after that the horse does not do so well.

San Venado and Argentina, the only two starters Saturday bred by E J. Baldwin at beautiful Santa Anita, won their races in fine style. In the Baldwin sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange on December 23d there is a half-sister to San Venado and a half-brother to Argentina.

JOHN BODEN, a popular and well-known newspaper man of New York, took in the races for the first time in California Tuesday. He expressed himself as being surprised at the scale of magnificence on which racing was conducted and was delighted with the climate. Ed Powers showed Mr. Boden around.

MILLIONAIRE J. NAGLEE BURKE has first call on Eddie Jones for the present racing season and may sign the boy for longer. Jones has been riding in much improved form lately, and if he attends to business he should soon be second to none, for he can ride a handy weight and is young enough to learn.

NELLIE S, a recent winner at Singerly, Md., is a full sister to Jim Gore, being by Hindoo-Katie. Another winner the same day was Bessie Browning, a four-year-old sister to Buckrene, by Buchanan—Irene. Buchanan won the Kentucky Derby and Irene was the great old Blend mare that won some clinking races.

BROMLEY & Co. of Chicago have leased the part of Kenmore, the farm of J. W. Sayre, that was used by E. L. Graves and Julius Burr, and will winter there. Among the horses in training will be First Mate, Typhoon II, Orion, Rondo, Kenmore Queen, and, in addition, those that were purchased at the Easton sale.

ROCHE, at one time one of the best handicap horses in the country, is in training again after over a year at Rancho del Paso, where he has been doing stud duty. Roche is by Panique out of Rebecca Rowett and was named after the big gambler, Dick Roche, of St. Louis, once a turfman, later a backer of pugilists, among them Jack McAuliffe.

FALSETTO, the old Woodburn sire, who was sold when Mr. Alexander closed out his thoroughbreds last month to J. J Douglass, Louisville, Ky., for $2 000 has been resold at a handsome advance to a large Eastern farm, the owners of which expect the old horse to sire another Dew Drop before he goes the way of all flesh. Falsetto is twenty-two years old.

LITTLE FRANK KENNEY, the Assistant Secretary at Butte and Anaconda, writes that their aim is to bring their meetings up to the San Francisco standard, no trotters nor pacers—strictly running. He says that Butte will start out with a big programme, and that horsemen must not think that the Advertiser Stakes are all they will give, for several others will be offered in the spring.

THERE has been a strong inquiry for Henry (Skeets") Martin recently, but Frank Brown says he is not open for engagements for 1898. Brown expects to go to Europe with the Keene stable, in which case Martin goes along. If Brown does not go, Sloan will ride for the Keene stable in the East. In the event of Brown not having the Keene stable, Martin will ride for a prominent New Yorker who has the next call on him.

TEN YEARS ago Tod Sloan, the jockey, who has created such a furore in England, was domiciled on the Peublo tract in the employ of Charley Johnson as cook and was required to gallop one of the horses in the string. At that time, which was in the winter of 1887-8, he knew more about dancing than he did about riding, for those around the stable that winter say that after the dinner was over and the table cleared off Tod invariably got on the table to show himself off as a dancer.

W J. JACKSON, a prominent horse owner and trainer of the Middle West, is in California looking for some good horses. Mr. Jackson intends purchasing material that is ready to race and race in the best company. It is his first trip to the Coast, and he is so well pleased with the game here that he intends getting together a first-class stable. He has handled such horses as Brazos, Josie D., Henry Owsley, the latter one of the best mud performers in the West. He is a man of ability, and if he can secure what he is after should win his share of the money.

THERE was a meeting of the California Breeders and Horsemen's Protective Association last week at the Baldwin Hotel. The committees on by-laws and constitution turned in their reports, which were after some discussion, adopted. The discussion was principally over a clause in the constitution which says that "no one who is a shareholder or in any way financially interested in a race track can become a member of the association. Members are to be elected only on a three-fourths vote. There are now over 120 members in the association." Attorney McPike and Porter Ashe were instructed to attend to the necessary legal proceedings to incorporate the association.

A BOARD of stewards was elected Tuesday night at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Pacific Coast Jockey Club. Their duties are to pass upon appeals from decisions of the judges. Heretofore the board of stewards has consisted of the two judges, Murphy and Wilson and one director Henry J. Crocker. The judges, therefore, passed upon their own rulings and generally sustained them, thereby causing dissatisfaction on the part of the appellants. Under the new arrangement of the new board of stewards consists of five members, only one of whom is a judge. Those chosen last night were M. J. Tarpey, J. C. Simpson, Edward Corrigan, W. S. Hobart and J. D. Murphy.

IT is believed that the Maryland Legislature will this winter make some restrictions as to racing. As the law now stands each association is permitted to race thirty days, but the law has been evaded by the building of many tracks. There are three at Iron Hill, two at Singerly and one at Elkton. This gives 180 days of continuous racing out of a possible 313. Last year the authorities came down upon Iron Hill people who were operating all three tracks under one charter. There was a wholesale transferring of deeds, and separate corporations were organized. It was one of these transfers that caused the recent trouble at Iron Hill. The Legislature may not, however, interfere with the outlaws.

W. BROWN and "Sandy" McNaughton, two men well known in sporting circles and not unknown to the turf, were warned off Oakland track yesterday, charged with attempting to swindle a doctor out of the winnings made with $50 on Garland Barr on Monday. The Pinkerton men did not catch the operators (who, strange to say, did return the $50 stake to the medical man, much to the surprise of the members of the ancient order of touts). McNaughton used to own half interest in a grand string of gallopers (in which were Judge Denny, Semper Lex and Basso, Semper Lex was burned to death, Denny taken away for money owed and altogether McNaughton has had much hard luck. He has quite a number of friends who sympathize with him in his troubles.

MANY great horses have been given to the turf as the result of purely chance mating. The celebrated instance of the Godolphin Arabian may be quoted. Had chance not interfered he would never have been mated with Roxanna, the world would never have seen Lath and there would have been no Matchem line for the thoroughbred enthusiasts to talk and write about. Squirt, the sire of Marske, was ordered shot, and but for the intercession of his groom the order would have been carried out. As it was, the order was countermanded, and Squirt lived to sire Marske, Syphon, the great Squirt mare and others, that mare being the dam of Purity, Pumpkin and other great horses. Marske, who at one time covered at two dollars and a half, in return begot Eclipse.

JOHN MADDEN'S two-year-olds of 1893 will be prepared for early auction and in two divisions will sharply seek western prizes. C. T. Patterson will handle one division and Madden the other. There are firteen in the band, bred as follows: Bay colt by Bramble—Mary C, bay colt by Leonatus—The Widow, brown colt by Hanover—Josie H., chestnut colt by Hanover—Despania, bay colt by Candlemas—Lady Reel, chestnut colt by Spendthrift—Gold Coil, brown colt by Duke of Montrose—Babette, brown colt by Spendthrift—Llandrino, brown colt by Spendthrift—Lillie M., chestnut colt by Falsetto—Cottona, chestnut colt by Hanover—Katrina, bay colt by Order—Happy Sally H., bay colt by Sir Dixon—Emma Hanley, brown colt by Strathmore—Ortawin, and brown colt by Hanover—Cinderella.

NEW YORK, December 12.—The World to-morrow will publish a denial by former Secretary of the Navy Whitney that it was he who purchased the great two-year-old Hamburg. "I am not the purchaser of Hamburg," said Mr. Whitney. "I have not looked at him with a view to buying him, inasmuch as I am not going into the racing business. While in Lexington recently I visited the breeding farms and attended the horse sales. I purchased several animals which struck my fancy, but they are not to be raced. The reports that connected me with the sale of Hamburg have not escaped my notice, but as I had already denied that I was to go into racing I paid no attention to them." Hamburg was purchased last Saturday for $60,000 by W. L. Powers, and it was presumably for Mr. Whitney. A rumor is now current that the colt was bought for J. B. Haggin.

PROBABLY the most disheartened man at Ingleside Saturday was Charlie Lind, better known to race-goers as Frisco. Last spring he purchased the little bay colt Count of Flanders for Jim Smith, brother of Al and Supervisor Smith. Only $600 was paid for the youngster and Frisco babied him along, treating him better than he did himself. Nothing was too good for the Count, and he has repaid the confidence by winning three races since the game opened. His last victory, in the mud, was so impressive that Tom Ryan offered $3,000 for which, after consultation between owner and trainer, was accepted. In recognition of Frisco's faithful services Mr. Smith generously gave him $1,000 with which to pick up a colt. Frisco says he was never treated better in his life, but he never hopes to get a youngster like the Count. "Why, he was like a child, and no one has seen yet how good he is."

JOHN HUFFMAN'S stable is in winter quarters at Greenville, Ill. It is headed by What Er Lou, Dare II, Our Chance, Noama, Xallissa, Marzella, and Found. Marzella won a stake at St. Louis. She belongs to Mrs. John Huffman. Before he left Nashville Huffman sold Farondale to W. L. Hatchett, the owner of Nick Carter, for $450 Beau Monde was claimed at Nashville by Alex Covington for $350. on Soir and Valid were sold. Huffman has seventeen ming two-year-olds on his farm. W. L. Cassidy, the St. uis stockman, is interested in twelve of them. A filly out Tulla Blackburn, a Hindoo colt, and a Magnetizer filly, are the most promising of the yearlings.

THE J. B. Chase yearlings were sold by Killip & Co. in the paddock at Ingleside last Saturday just before the races began and brought fair prices, though they would have fetched more if sold at night, for the Morellos are in great demand. Following were the purchasers and prices: Modwena, b f, by Morello—Glen Ellen, R. Hughes, $725; Mirello, br c, by Morello—Phœbe Ann, P. Archibald, $250; Glengabar, b c, by Morello—Miss Lou, Hugh Jones, $550; Midia, blk f, imp. Mariner—Bessie Barnes, T. D. Warwick $350; Martillo, b c, by Morello—Centella, by J. McCormick, for Burns & Waterhouse, $800, and May Bloom, b f, by Morello—Rosedale, Hugh Jones, $275. Total for six head of yearlings, $2,050; average $491 66. Novia, the good Islington—Hileen filly owned by M. F. Tarpey, was offered, and B. C. Holly got her at $850. There was no bid for Ygnacio nor for a brother to Belle Boyd.

THE Coney Island Jockey Club stakes for 1898, including all the old popular fixtures, have been announced, and with them comes the announcement of the closing of The Futurity for the year 1900. The Futurity to be run at the autumn meeting closing the nineteenth century will be the first to close, the time fixed being January 4th next. The other stakes for the June and autumn meetings of 1898 are to close on January 10th. The most important of these is the Suburban Handicap, to be run at the June meeting on the famous old Sheepshead Bay course, at the time-honored distance, one and one-quarter miles. The value of this has been increased to $10,000 guaranteed cash value, as against $7,500 for the Suburban of last spring. The other big stakes are the Great Trial, $20 000, and Double Event, $10,000, for two-year-olds at the June meeting, and the Great Eastern Handicap, $5 000, for the autumn meeting —N. Y. Dispatch, December 12th.

SAN VENADO made the fifth Duncombe to win this season, out of five starters by the horse. Venado was bred by E J. Baldwin, and is out of the good race mare Lizzie B, by Hindoo—Eppie L., by Surprise. The last-named is credited with having won over 100 races. At the Baldwin sale in the Occidental Horse Exchange, December 23d, there will be sold a half-sister to San Venado, this one by Verano (son of Grinstead). Argentina's good win on Saturday will not hurt the coming sale of Magno either. He is a bay colt by Emperor of Norfolk out of Dolly L. (dam of Argentina), by Ten Broeck. There will be in this sale Rio Chico, a colt by imp. Chesterfield, out of Jennie D. (dam of Grismer, Salonica and Verano); La Petaca, ch f by imp Chesterfield—Blossom (dam of the great La Toleta), a half-sister to Venus (by Amigo), and other youngsters by Emperor of Norfolk, out of Espirito Santo, Ruby Payne, Santa Zalida, Hook Blonde and Josie Anderson.

WITH the fall of the hammer at the thoroughbred sales at Lexington, one of the famous horses of a decade passed from Hiram Scoggan to Milton Young for the insignificant sum of $30, says a Lexington special. It was Terra Cotta, the noble brown son of Harry O'Fallon, who in 1886 and 1887 and 1888 was the prime favorite of race-goers in Kentucky; a horse that could carry weight, go any distance and fight every inch of the route, a colt that for three years met all comers, and in only rare instances permitted the cherry and old gold to trail in the dust. After winning over $36,000 and selling for $17,500 as a four year-old, he was knocked down to the owner of McGrathiana for 30 simoleons. Such is fame. But he is only a horse, 13 years old, blind, and not a great progenitor of bread-winning racers. But for the soft spot in the heart of Milton Young, the carcass of the once great "Cotta," as his lovers call him, he would have been sold for soap grease and his hide to some one-legged shoemaker.

IN a talk yesterday with an Eastern man well up on the racing game the following was elicited anent the alleged sale of Hamburg for $60,000: "You can bet your life that John Madden did not get more than half that amount for the Hanover colt, and furthermose, he has one in his barn that can give Hamburg cards and spades when it comes to going a route. I refer to Plaudit. Why, Hamburg went into two races at seven furlongs, was beaten in both and was stopping badly to boot. I think he's a sprinter and will not like over six and a half furlongs—seven at the most. I may be mistaken, but believe my judgment will be proven correct. If Mad en had a great Derby colt, why did he sell him, even if he got $60,000, which figure is, as said before, just about double the sum realized. A Derby colt like Prince Lief or Ornament could be won out before the season was half over. Therefore, I say go and bet your life that Plaudit or something else in Madden's stable can lose Hamburg going a long journey, and the man that gave even $30 000 for the celebrity has secured a large sized gold brick filled in with gold filings."

A LONDON cable to the world says: The report that Mrs. Langtry will be again taken into society is more than offset by a resolution that has been passed by the Jockey Club which is aimed directly at her and the Prince of Wales. The resolution says that "For the future, ladies other than the wives, daughters and sisters of members of the club, will be admitted to the inclosures and private stands of the club at Newmarket and on other race courses only on presentation of a voucher signed by a member of the club, together with the payment of £1." It is doubtful if Mrs. Langtry has any great desire to get into society again, and it is absolutely certain she could not do so if she tried. Of course the turf would be the easiest path, and now this has been closed to her The Jockey Club has practically placed her beyond the pale. And the Jockey Club is a power. Even the Prince of Wales cannot overcome its dicta. Until the resolution was passed a member of the club had a right to pass into the Jockey Club inclosures and into the private stands any woman he saw fit. The new rule changes things. It is regarded as practically a vote of censure for the Prince of Wales for his attention to Mrs. Langtry.

The New Era.

There is a decided movement on foot to infuse new life into the light harness horse industry of California. The splendid reports from associations in the East, the high prices obtained from trotting stock, and the revival of good times, have all been factors in giving confidence to breeders and horseowners.

The idea of incorporating the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association is an excellent one and we offer a suggestion in this relation which we believe will meet the approval of every member of this sterling organization. The title, Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, is too long, besides, it is a misnomer, for the pacing-horse breeders are entitled to some recognition hence a more general title should be claimed. We suggest the name, "California Horse Breeders Association," and hope it will be adopted.

This organization, strictly speaking, is a California institution, although horse-owners outside of this State have been allowed to enter their trotters and pacers without becoming members. The formation of a splendid organization at Portland on the same foundation as that of the P. C. T. H. B. Association will be the means of attracting members to it from Washington, Idaho and Montana, as well as from Oregon. With this powerful ally in the North, our newly incorporated association working under the title: "California Horse Breeders Association," would attract the attention of all horsemen and create a friendly rivalry which would be productive of much good for the industry and revive in every way the hopes of every lover of man's best friend and pride, "the light harness horse of America."

At the meeting of the Board of Directors at which many suggestions will,no doubt, be offered, it is earnesly hoped that everyone present will have something to suggest which may prove beneficial, not only to this organization, but to every association on the Pacific Coast.

We admit we must get out of the old rut and try and make racing popular. The public must be drawn to our race meetings and furnished entertainment.

The prejudice against "running horse" methods must be overcome. If the progressive managers of these associations adopt certain laws and usages to induce people to visit their tracks, wager money on the races, and send them home satisfied they had a "run for their money," and determined to repeat their visit, we should do the same; and it's an idea we would like to see control the management of the light harness horse industry everywhere in California.

The report has been freely circulated that the two leading racing associations of the Pacific Coast are antagonistic to the efforts of the light harness horse industry on this coast. This is not so. The Presidents and directors of these prosperous associations are more than anxious to help in every way the district fair associations as well as the P. C. T. H. B. Association. We admit that at one meeting in this state the majority of the judges selected were not from among the directors but were employes of these racing associations, and that they showed a disposition to place the thoroughbreds in a better position than they did the trotters and pacers, thereby causing much dissatisfaction among the owners and drivers of the latter. This fault will be remedied hereafter, and men whose minds are not biased will be placed in the stand to officiate as judges, even if we have to require the services of qualified paid judges.

In 1899 we shall have appropriations for district fairs restored, for the candidate for Governor who does not state his views clearly and distinctly in favor of this measure will be as badly defeated as Jimbudd would be if he attempted to run for office in this State, no matter how insignificant it might be.

With our district fairs in full force, where horsemen can develop their horses, stock men win prizes for their stock,and farmers and mechanics receive encouragement to pesevere in their good work, we shall see such a revival in the great industries that emanate from our agricultural and live stock interests; that which will put to shame those who were instrumental in trying to crush out of existence the leading industries of this State as well as the only means of furnishing opportunities for hard working taxpayers in the interior to enjoy a week's rest away from the drudgery of the farm, the silence of the cattle range, the hum of the mill, and the heat of the vineyard and orchard.

There's a good time coming and with this hope let every one stand shoulder to shoulder and keep the great industry moving onward and upward.

Santa Anita's Baby Racers.

The Santa Anita sale catalogue is out, and we believe it will be declared a work of art. Mr. Baldwin's colors, as almost everyone knows, are black with a red maltese cross on back. The catalogue cover is black, and on the back is a red maltese cross. The printing on the front of the cover is in red "bronze."

The consignment to be sold in the Occidental Horse Exchange on Thursday night, December 23d, consists of four two-year-olds (three by Amigo and one by Emperor of Norfolk), and twenty yearlings sired by Amigo, imp. Conveth, by imp. Chesterfield, Verano, and Emperor of Norfolk. There is a brother to Estaca, a half-brother to Midas, a half-brother to Venus, a half-sister to La Goleta and Atalanta II. (good winners), a half-brother to Chiqueta, a half-brother to Alvero, a half-sister to La Ventura, a half-sister to Los Prietos, yearling half-sister to Venus, half-brother to Rey El Salto, Grismer, and Verano, half-sister to Lady Bess and Lady Diamond, half-sister to San Venado and Republica, half-sister to Laredo and Esperanza, a colt from a good race mare, Formosa (sister to Caliente), a filly by Emperor of Norfolk—Esperito Santo, a colt by Emperor —Santa Zalida (latter half-sister to Silver Cloud, winner Amsrican Derby), a half-brother to Argentina, a colt by Emperor of Oorfolk—Josie Anderson by Hock Hocking a wonderful stout-bred one), a filly by Amigo—Vera by Verano, a filly by Emperor of Norfolk out of the great race mare Ruby Payne and San Augustin, a colt by Emperor of Norfolk—Hock-Blonde (latter half-sister to Floreanna and Aureala).

Surely turfmen should want this kind, near relations to great turf celebrities, and the sale should be a notable one.

The Lusk Horses.

After the Macdonough horses are disposed of next Monday night five beautifully bred young racers bred by F. C. Lusk, of Chico, will be sold by auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

Mr. Lusk's large law practice so engrosses his attention that he finds it impossible to even see his gallopers race when they were in condition, hence his determination to sell them to the highest bidder by auction. The horses are by imp, Islington, the great Tenny, imp. Loyalist, and imp. Martenhurst, all sires of very great merit, besides being racers of high degree. The dams are Joy, by Wildidle, and Magnolia, by Milner, the former from a great racing family well-known in the far East (August Belmont owned Joy's grandam), the latter from the family from whence came the famous Nell Flaherty, Target and Jenny Hull, among others. The horses are fine individuals, and but one (Nuncomar) has been raced. He showed a world of speed, and has beaten some very high-class horses, though he did not win. We believe that buyers are taking very small chances in buying youngsters bred like these, good-lookers from racing families of note, and there should be some very lively bidding on them. Just think of it—youngsters by imp. Islington (brother to Isinglass and sent back to England), the grandly-bred Loyalist, the famous Tenny and the wonderfully successful Martenhurst!

NOTICE for delinquent subscribers to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN have been sent, and it is earnestly hoped that they will be the means of bringing in returns. It costs money to publish a paper as large as this,and as it is the only one devoted to the best interests of the breeders and sportsmen we hope our petition for what is due us will not be heard in vain.

ELECTION for officers of the P. C. T. H. B. Association will take place next Tuesday afternoon.

Occident Stake for 1900.

There is no stake named in California which has a greater interest for all breeders of light harness horses than the Occident Stake, which is decided annually at the State Fair. Secretary Edwin F. Smith, in sending the advertisement this year, says it is almost unnecessary to call the attention of progressive horsemen to the importance of this stake. It is increasing in value every year. There should be no hesitancy on the part of owners of trotters or pacers that were foaled this year (1897) in making entries for this rich stake. The terms are remarkably low, $10 to accompany the entry; $15 January 1, 1899; $25 to be paid January, 1900 and $50 thirty days before the race. Nominations are only held for the amount of money paid in and NO MORE. Entry blanks may be obtained on application to Secretary Ed. F. Smith, Sacramento, or at this office. Every good well-bred colt and filly that can trot or is bred to trot should be entered in this stake. It enhances their value and if they are to be sold, are worth considerable more than if they had no chance for such a rich prize.

State Fair Stakes, 1900.

Entries for the California State Agricultural Society's Futurity Stake for the produce of mares covered in 1897, to be run at the State Fair of 1900, will close January 1, 1898, and it is of the greatest importance to all breeders of thoroughbreds that they make entries to this stake. It enhances the value of the colt or filly, creates a deep interest in the welfare of the youngster, and at once gives it a reputation that it would be impossible to get otherwise. The entry fee is only $10 for mares and must accompany the entry. The distance is three-quarters of a mile and the conditions as to weight, allowances, etc., appears in the advertisement in our business columns. Entry blanks may be obtained from Secretary Edwin F. Smith, Sacramento, or at the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office. Remember entries close January 1, 1898.

The St. Carlo Babies.

More interest is felt in next Monday night's sale of St. Carlo yearlings than in any of the preceding ones, and no wonder, considering St. Carlo is the best young sire in America and two or three win sometimes in a day. One day this week three by this horse started at Oakland two proved winners, the other ran second.

The youngsters to be sold are all from well-bred mares and their breeder, Mr. W. O'B. Macdonough, is one of the best judges of blood lines in the country, and the best proof of that is that all the St. Carlos are money-winners, nearly all race winners. Not only are the baby racers bred on winning lines, but they are grand individuals as well. They are now at the Occidental Horse Exchange and will be shown to visitors cheerfully. However, turfmen know what the St. Carlo colts and fillies can do, and will show their appreciation on Monday night by bidding lively.

THE appointment of Joseph Cairn Simpson as a member of the Board of Stewards of the P. C. J. C. was a gratifying piece of news, and no better selection could have been made had a list been scanned containing the names of every man in the United States. Mr. Simpson has taken an interest in the affairs of the turf for at least half a century, is a recognized authority on all matters appertaining thereto, is vigorous of mind and body and though well up in years, a relentless foe to wrong-doers, a man that will stand for the right though the heavens fall, and has, through his writings and actions, done as much to bring the racing here up to its present high standard as any one alive, and is in every way qualified to fill satisfactorily not only a stewardship, but any position that has any connection with racing.

IT is rumored that Adolph B. Spreckels will be appointed one of the Park Commissioners. It is hoped that this will prove true, for one better acquainted with the needs of Golden Gate Park cannot be found in San Francisco. From boyhood he has watched its growth and ridden over its smooth roads, and as he has excellent taste and a world-wide experience, he will, if appointed, introduce many improvements which will rebound to the benefit of the taxpayers and make this park second to no other in America. He has the respect, good will and best wishes of everyone, and we hope he will be appointed and accept the honor.

READ the advertisement of the Coney Island Jockey Club in this issue. We shall have entry blanks to distribute among our horsemen and breeders next week.

TURFMEN who intend crossing the Rockies nexs season should keep the Memphis (Tenn.) meeting in view. The club expects to give at least two jumping races per week, so Secretary M. N. McFarlan informs us, and the stake are exceedingly liberal. We received a number of the stake books, and hope to see a number of entries sent on from California.

HOOF-BEATS.

HARRY C., a recent Iron Hill winner, is by imp. Galore out of the Australian-bred mare Phoebe Marks. The same day he won Hint (by Fresno--Haytienne) finished in front.

PRESBYTERIAN, a Rancho del Paso-bred colt, won the $3 000 Preliminary Derby (sixfurlongs) Wednesday at New Orleans. He is by imp. Prestonpans (sire of Plan) out of Dareka.

ED A. TIPTON has purchased Lady Reel, dam of Hamburg, and a brood mare by Rayon d'Or of S S. Brown for $15,000 for the two Hamburg's dam being rated at $13,000.—Lexington, (Ky.), dispatch, December 16th.

AN Anaconda, Mont., dispatch of December 16th is as follows: Marcus Daly was seen to-night and said he knew nothing about Hamburg. When asked if he meant he had not bought the horse, he said: "No, I don't say so, but I decline to be interviewed on the subject."

WHAT turfman does not want a St. Carlo in his string? Wednesday the record of the St. Carlo family was: Three starters. Two winners. One second. There will be eleven St. Carlo yearlings bred by W. O'B Macdonough sold next Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

ED CORRIGAN secured a bargain in a horse Wednesday when he ran Lucky Dog from $700 to $1,200 after he had won the last race. The big horse is nearly invincible in any kind of mud, and as there's considerable mud-running in and around San Francisco, the Dog will more than win himself out.

LAST Wednesday night an amicable understanding was reached between Ed Corrigan and Sam Hildreth by which the latter horseman again becomes the possessor of Lucky Dog. It will be remembered the Hawthorne turfman boosted the horse after he had won a selling event on Wednesday from $700 to $1,200 and Hildreth let him go.

TO SHOW how highly tried racing blood is prized even in New Zealand in these hard times, the owner of Eros wants 2.000 pounds sterling for that horse delivered on board the boat at Auckland. Eros is a bay, 16.2 hands in height, nine years old, by St. George (brother to Chester, Clieveden and Roodee), dam Idalia (dam of Sir Modred, Cheviot, July, Betrayer and Ida ium) by Cambuscan (sire of Kincsem, winner of fifty-three races and never defeated).

TOD SLOAN will honor San Francisco with a visit. The crack American-English jockey will be here in February. Andrew Jackson, the well known club man and gun shot, is in receipt of a letter from Sloan asking him to have his bird dog, which was left in Mr. Jackson's care, in good shape for the early part of February. Sloan stated that he would be here for a little sport. He will probably not ride in the races here, being content to dazzle the public with his new clothes and irreproachable manners.

L. A. LEGG sold Floreanna to Adolph Spreckels for breeding purposes. She is a five-year-old, sound, by imp. Cheviot—Atalanta II., and a winner of over twenty races. Since she has been in California she developed a sulky temper and wouldn't start. Mr. Legg thought it best to sell her and save his money. She is the last of his stable which he brought here. "I may buy some more before the season is over," says he. "If I see any horses which I think will win races and I can buy reasonable I will get them. For the last twenty years I have been buying and selling."

R. H. POTTER has a band of yearlings on the North Side in care of Tom Luckey. The youngsters are galloped in the sand along the lake shore and thrive under such work. One, a bay colt by Onondaga—Jersey Girl, has, it is reported, worked a quarter in 28½ seconds. The others in the lot are: Bay colt by Hayden Edwards—Lady Montrose; chestnut filly by Hanover—Arragon; bay colt by Free Knight—Emma Manly; chestnut filly by Aintree—Mandolin; the latter is a good looker and well tried. Gray Dog, who raced in Tom Luckey's name the past season, was stolen from the stable some time ago and no trace of the horse can be found.—Daily Racing Form.

There is nothing more annoying to horse breeders and owners than to have their horses trot or pace at meeting, and when the Year Book appears to see that on account of the negligence of the secretaries the records appear under the heading "Rejected Records." The secretaries of the following meetings have failed to send their reports in: Colusa, Cal., May meeting; Fresno, Cal., October meeting; Capitol City Driving Association meeting at Sacramento, May 24th; State Fair meeting, Sacramento, September 6th to 15th; San Jose, October meeting; Ventura, October meeting, and Woodland, August 30th to September 4th. This "reminder," we hope, will not be overlooked.

A New York special has the following concerning Tristan and the brood mares belonging to Mr. Appleby, which are now located at Beaumont Stud, near Lexington: "L. O. Appleby has sent his great stallion and a score of his best broodmares to Kentucky, where they will be located On one of the best grass producing farm of the State. Tristan is a holder of the best time on record at one mile and a furlong, covering that distance in 1:41¾ at Morris Park on June 2, 1891. He was then six years old and carried 114 pounds. By Glenelg, out of Traviata, he was by birth entitled to sire first-class racehorses, and Mr. Appleby has never lost faith in the horse's ability to get good racehorses. He will now, for the first time, have the chance he desires, and if the people of Kentucky have a better looking horse within their borders Mr. Appleby would like to see him. The mares which accompany him were the flower of the Silverbrook Stud."—Thoroughbred Record.

Leading Sires for 1897.

Pacing enthusiasts will not gain much material for argument in the tables of 2:20 trotters and 2:15 pacers compiled from the results of the campaign of the past season. Of the forty-one sires having three or more with new or reduced records, only eighteen have new pacers with records of 2:15 and better, while every sire in the table, save Roy Wilkes, has one or more performer at the diagonal gait. All but four of the leading sires of extreme speed for 1897 have secured new trotters during the season. If this is not a sufficiently plain statement, let it be put this way:

Sires of three or more in the "2:20 trotting, 2:15 pacing" table for 1896 numbered 37; had 36 new pacers and 73 new trotters; total, 109. Sires in a like table for 1897 numbered 41; have 20 new pacers and 86 new trotters; total, 115. That is to say, despite the increase of four sires and six more new performers, there are seven less new pacers and thirteen more new trotters. If the fact is borne in mind that this brief analysis is not a comparison of the pacer with the trotter, but of the pacer of 1896 with the pacer of 1897, and of the trotter with the trotter in like manner, then one may ask, in all candor, is it not a false premise to assume, as he has been the very general rule with all writers for the past two years, that the pacer is making speed while the trotter, per contra is retrograding?

Allerton, 2:09¼, is the leading sire of 2:20 speed this year, as he is also of the standard sort. His seven new 2:20 trotters is a greater number than any other sire ever secured in a single season. Last year Gambetta Wilkes had six new ones but four were pacers This year he has six with reduced records, but, strange to say, not a new trotter or pacer in the 2:20 and 2:15 lists. Wilton makes a splendid showing with four new and three reduced trotters, one new and one reduced pacer, which places him on the plane with Allerton, the latter having two trotters with reduced records, a total of nine for each. Baron Wilkes reached a total of ten in 1896, but only five were newcomers. This year he has the same number of new ones, but only three reduced records, and thus stands in third place.

Of the leading sires of the year, it will be noticed that there are developed horses with fast records. Direct, 2:05½, Heir-at-Law, 2:05¾, and Roy Wilkes, 2:06½; Stamboul, 2:07¼, Allerton, 2:09¼, and Axtell, 2:12, are all found among the leaders this year. This emphasizes the fact that it can rarely prove a mistake to breed to a champion, for all but one of these six at one time and another held the crown.

The above table, which includes only the records of the present year, is interesting, as showing the trend of present day speed—noticably that the six leaders comprise three sons and three grandsons of George Wilkes. Two out of three of the sires having three or more in the table are of the Wilkes blood. But even greater interest will be felt in the second group of sires, for in that is the summing up of the records of all time. The list of 2:20 trotting and 2:15 pacing speed is rather severe one, and there are but twenty-eight sires with twelve or more performers within the prescribed lines. The youngest of these is Chimes, thirteen years old, and now having sixteen in the list, a greater number than any horse has had at a like age. Chimes' four new trotters this year have advanced him some six places in the table. Baron Wilkes is the next in age, being now fifteen years, and he has now a total of twenty-three performers, seven of them being pacers. There are now but seven sires ahead of Baron Wilkes in this table, and they have from three to fourteen years the advantage of him in age. Electioneer is still in the lead with six more than his nearest competitors, Onward and Red Wilkes, and all of them are trotters. Nutwood having but one new trotter, has dropped from second to fourth place, and the two Wilkes horses are a tie for honors next to the dead premier of Palo Alto. Noticeable improvement has also been made in position by Robert McGregor, Pilot Medium, Wilton, and Wilkes Boy. On the other hand, Guy Wilkes, Alcyone, Bourbon Wilkes, Dexter Prince, Gambetta Wilkes, and Director have dropped behind the positions held at the close of 1896.

There are possibly a dozen sires with eleven performers which are not included in the above table. These include Allerton, Axtell, Sphinx, King Wilkes, Elyria, Aberdeen, Belmont, C. F. Clay and Princeps. Stamboul has now ten. Another year will find a number of the young sires entitled to a place in the table. Last year Brown Hal was the leading sire of 2:15 pacers. Alcantara and Bourbon Wilkes are now upon equal terms with the Tennessee horse.—Horseman.

The Great Horse, Bouncer.

This is to certify that I used the Speed Sustaining Elixir on Mascot during the match race with Hal Pointer on Friday Aug. 9. I found it of great benefit, the horse showing less distress than ever before in a long race. He seemed better after the fourth heat than any time in the race, and I gave him the Elixir between every heat. W. J. ANDREWS.
NEW YORK, Feb. 18, 1896.

This is to certify that I have used the Speed Sustaining Elixir upon Bouncer in every race she trotted last season (1895) after and including her Detroit race.
W. J. ANDREWS.

Bouncer made her record in the last race of the season, which was also the fastest she ever went. This alone should convince anyone that the Elixir is harmless. Bouncer was the greatest money winner in 1895.

Spohn Med. Co. HARRODSBURG, Ky., Dec. 15, 1895.

Dear Sirs:—I used the Spohn's Distemper and Cough Cure and find it a wonderful medicine for all contagious and chronic throat diseases of horses, a great cure as well as a sure preventative. It should be in every stable. I will keep it on hand. Please find remittance for a half-dozen package. Yours truly, CRIT DAVIS.

FOXCROFT, ME.

I find ABSORBINE works like a charm.
Yours truly, W. A. HILLMAN.

W. M. MURRY has secured the highly-bred Abalanzar, the only Bramble horse in California, and will stand him at Sacramento. He will breed all his mares to him, and he has a dozen or more. Abalanzar is by Bramble (sire of Ben Brush, Rambler, Daisy Woodruff, etc) out of Flotilla by Clipsea (son of Alarm); second dam Flotsam by Waverly (sire of Lida Stanhope and Strathmore), third dam Ida May by Planet (sire of Katy Pease and Hubbard). He is bred on sire lines and ought to be extremely successful.

WILL MCDANIELS, who has been offered the place of trainer for one of the big Eastern stables next season, is on the lookout for a first-class jockey. McDaniels would like to get "Tiny" Williams, the crack colored rider, who was with the Turnley Brothers last season. Yesterday McDaniels called on Williams and made him a very tempting offer to go to England next spring, but Williams said he preferred to ride in America, and McDaniels will have to look elsewhere for a good jockey.--Cincinnati (O.), dispatch, Dec 11.

The Horse and Horseman as Portrayed By Shakespeare.

Horse! a horse! my kingdom for a horse.
Richard III.

In Shakespeare, knowledge and description seem to vie with each other and go hand in hand. While it is a matter of astonishment that any one man should know so much of all themes universally, our wonder and admiration are equally great at his powers of portrayal. It is probably because he excells all authors in terse and epigrammatic brevity of expression and felicity of construction, combined with his rare knowledge, that make him quoted more than any other author in the world; of which the present theme is no exception, either in comprehensive scope or practical knowledge.

Think, when we talk of horses, that you see them
Printing their proud feet i' the receiving earth.
Henry VIII.

which description is as realistic as life, and as true to nature as a photograph. Indeed, he is as graphic in style, as photographic in accuracy and minute detail:

Look, when a painter would surpass the life,
In limning out a well proportion'd steed,
His art with nature's workmanship at strife,
As if the dead the living should exceed:
So did this horse excell a common one,
In shape, in courage, color, pace and bone.
Round-hoof'd, short jointed, fetlocks shag and long,
Broad breast, full eye, small head and nostril wide,
High crest, short ears, straight legs and passing strong,
Thin mane, thick tail, broad buttock, tender hide:
Look, what a horse should have he did not lack.
Venus and Adonis.

It is, however, in action, when entirely free and not ammelled, that the horse appears to the greatest advantage, and in all his glorious strength and beauty:

Imperiously he leaps, he neighs, he bounds,
And now his woven girths he breaks asunder;
The bearing earth with his hard hoof he wounds,
Whose hollow womb resounds like heaven's thunder;
The iron bit he crusheth 'tween his teeth,
Controlling what he was controlled with.

His ears up prick'd; his braided hanging mane
Upon his compass'd crest now stands on end;
His nostrils drink the air, and forth again,
As from a furnace, vapors doth he send:
His eye, which scornfully glistens like fire,
Shows his hot courage and his high desire.

The intimate, dependent and reciprocal relations existing between man and the horse have no other parallel in nature; and no association between man and beast is so productive of love and admiration—of which the following is a pertinent illustration:

It is a theme as fluent as the sea; turn the sands into eloquent tongues, and my horse is argument for them all: 'tis a subject for a sovereign to reason on, and for a sovereign's sovereign to ride on; and for the world, familiar to us and unknown, to lay apart their peculiar functions and wonder at.
It is a beast for Perseus: he is pure air and fire; and the dull elements of earth and water never appear in him, but only in patient stillness while his rider mounts him.
—Henry V., 3-6.

A man who is a good horseman and sits his steed well is always dignified, and sometimes almost defied on horseback; and we love thus to picture our military heroes. Something akin to this feeling must have animated the breast of that incomparably lovely woman, Cleopatra, in thinking of Mark Anthony—

Stands he, or sits he?
Or does he walk? or is he on his horse?
Oh happy horse to bear the weight of Anthony!
Do bravely, horse! for wot'st thou whom thou mov'st?
The demi-Atlas of this earth, the arm
The burgonte of men.
—Anthony and Cleopatra, 1-3.

It was probably man's first appearance on horseback that gave rise to the mythical and poetical conception, the Centauer—a being half horse and half man. A perfect seat in the saddle is said to be hardly attained, and is not achieved except by early and constant practice. Shakespeare has given us many examples of perfect horsemanship—of which the following are good illustrations:

'Well could he ride, and often men would say
That horse his mettle from his rider takes;
Proud of subjection, noble by the sway,
What rounds, what bounds, what course, what stop he makes!
And controversy hence a question takes,
Whether the horse by him became his deed,
Or he his manage by the well-doing steed.
—Lover's Complaint.

Here was a gentleman of Normande,—
I have seen myself and serv'd against the French,
And they can do well on horseback: but this gallant
Had witcheraft in 't; he grew into his seat;
And to such wondrous doing brought his horse.
As he had been incorps'd and demi-natur'd
With the brave beast.
—Hamlet iv.. 7.

I saw young Harry
Rise from the ground like feather'd Mercury
And vaulted with such ease into his seat,
As if an angel dropp'd down from the clouds,
To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus
And witch the world with noble horsemanship.
—1st Henry VI., 4-1.

Come, let me taste my horse,
Who is to bear me like a thunderbolt
Against the bosom or the Prince of Wales.
After him came spurring hard
A gentleman, almost forspent with speed,
That stooped by me to breathe his blooded horse.
2d p. Henry IV.. 1-1,

With that he gave his able horse the head,
And bending forward struck his armed heels
Against the wanting sides of his poor jade
Up to the rowel-head and starting so
He seemed in running to devour the way,
Staying no longer questions.
Was that king, that spurred his horse so hard
Against the steep uprising of the hill?
Whoe'er a' was, a' show'd a mounting mind.
—Love's Labor Lost, IV-1.

Horses also seem to sympathize and share with their masters their feelings of exultation, pride, spirit, and in courage and daring to emulate their riders, challenging their adversaries in "high and boastful neighs"—

York: Then, as I said, the duke, great Bolingbroke,
Mounted upon a hot and fiery steed
Which his aspiring rider seem'd to know
With slow but stately pace kept on his course,
Whilst all tongues cried, 'God save thee, Bolingbroke!'
—Richard II., V-5.

So he nodded
And soberly did mount an arm-gaunt steed,
Who neigh'd so high that what I would have spoke
Was beastly dumb'd by him.
—Anthony and Cleopatra, 1-5,

Fire answers fire, and though their paly flames
Each battle see's the other's umber'd face;
Steed threatens steed, in high and boastful neighs
Piercing the night's dull ear.
—Henry V.

As a contrast to the above, we have in the following true and graphic description a picture of horses "dead beat" with fatigue:

Your uncle Worcester's horse came but to-day;
And now their pride and mettle is asleep,
Their courage with hard labor tame and dull.
That not a horse is half the half of himself.
—1st Henry IV., 4-3.

The horsemen sit like fixed candlesticks,
With torch-staves in their hand; and their poor jades
Lop down their heads, drooping the hides and hips,
The gum down-roping from their pale-dead eyes.
And in their pale dull mouths the grimmal bit
Lies foul with chew'd grass, still and motionless.
—Henry V., 4-2.

Here follow other characteristics of the horse which are but indexes, exhibiting but a portion of our poet's familiar, technical and extensive acquaintance with nearly every phase of this interesting and profitable theme:

Stampede.

Anger is like
A full-hot horse, who being allow'd his way,
Self-mettle tires him.
—Henry VIII., 1-1

The times are wild; contention, like a horse
Full of high feeding, madly hath broke loose,
And bears down all before him.
—2d, Henry IV., 1-1.

Horsmanship.

You have good judgment in horsemanship.

Trotting.

Dau. Would I were able to load him with his desert! I will trot to-morrow a mile and my way shall be paved with English faces.
Con. I will not say so, for fear I should be faced out of my way.

Brags Dismounted.

Even as your horse bears your praises, who would trot as well were some of your brags dismounted.
—Henry V., iii:1.

Abated Fire.

Where is the horse that doth untread again
His tedious measures with the unbated fire
That he did pace them first.
—Mer. Venice.

Forced Gait.

I had rather hear a brazen canstick turn'd,
Or a dry wheel grate on the axle-tree:
And that would set my teeth nothing on edge,
Nothing so much as mincing poetry:
'Tis like the forced gait of a shuffling nag.
—1st, Henry IV., iii:1.

The Pace.

Indeed, he has no pace, but runs where he will.
—All's Well, iv:5.

As for my wife,
I would you had her spirit in such another:
The third o' the world is yours: which with a snaffle
You may pace easy, but not such a wife.
—Winter's Tale, i:2.

Stumbling Horse.

Leon. What! canst not rule her?
Ant. La you know, you hear;
When she will take the rein I let her run;
But she'll not stumble.

It is said that even a stumbling horse will not trip when going at full speed; and have we not here an illusion to the existence in Shakespeare's time of pacers and the kind of saddler now known as gaited? "He has no pace but runs," and "the forced gait of a shuffling nag" point that way, at least.

Disease of Horseflesh. In the following are enumerated just thirteen diseases that horseflesh is heir to:

Spavin and Springhalt.

His horse hipped with an old mothy saddle and stirrups of no kindred; besides, possessed with the glanders and like the mose in the chine; troubled with the lampass, infected with the fashions, full of windgalls, sped with spavins, rayed with the yellows, past cure of fives, stark spoiled with the staggers, begnawn with the bots, swayed in the back and shoulder-shotten; near-legged before and with a half-checked bit and head-stall of sheep's leather, which, being restrained to keep him from stumbling, have been often burst and now repaired with knots.
—Taming Shrew, ii:2.

Sands: They have all new legs, and lame ones: one would take it,
That never saw 'em pace before, the spavin
Or springhalt reign'd among 'em.
—Henry VIII., i:3.

Spurgalled.

I was not made a horse;
And yet I bear a burden like an ass,
Spurr'd, gall'd and tired by jauncing Bolingbroke.
—Rich. II., v:5.

Horse and Ass.

A message well sympathized; a horse to be ambassador for an ass.
—Love's Labor Lost, i:3.

Mar: My purpose is, indeed, a horse of that color.
Sir And: And your horse now would make him an ass.
Mar: Ass, I doubt not.
—Twelfth Night, i:5.

Colts.

The colt that's back'd and burden'd being young
Loseth his pride and never waxeth strong.
—Venus and Adonis.

Your colt's tooth is not cast yet.
Henry VIII., 1-3.

Stalking Horse.

Duke S.: He does his folly like a stalking-horse, and under the presentation of that, he shoots his wit.
—As You Like It, 5-4.

The above simile may well be applied to our author. Shakespeare lays all nature under contribution to furnish metaphors and illustrations for his numerous themes, and then dawns upon his marvelous resources of languages to give to his thought or theme apt and pertinent expression—and "under presentation of that he shoots his wit."—Ira Gale Tompkins in the Horseman.

Retrospective.

Great indeed must the season of 1897 be called, and especially great so far as the harness turf is concerned. Racing is usually a correct index of a nation's prosperity and, with the tremendous drepression which existed in United States commercial circles in 1895 and 1896, it was hardly to be expected that racing would be as prosperous as it was in the years which came just before and after the beginning of the present decade. Fortune be thanked, though, these days are gone, let us hope never to return. Those who stood by the horse these dark days past are now in a position, if they have profited from the experienced gained, to reap an adequate reward for their labors. There is no doubt now that the breeding of trotters and pacers may be carried on profitably. The last sales have taught us that, if nothing more. When breeders can obtain, at public auction, average prices of from three to eight hundred dollars for large numbers of yearlings, two-year-olds, three-year-olds, and four-year-olds, developed and undeveloped, broken and unbroken, there need be no longer any hesitation about investing money in brood stock so long as the purchasing public's demands are complied with. More than ever, though, is the buyer discriminating, keenly, conservatively discriminating. He declines to take anything on trust—the seller's statement from the auction is only listened to so far as it agrees exactly with what can be seen. Development, too, is paying the breeder more handsomely than ever. Development only will bring out speed, and while the undeleveloped colt or filly that shows great promise will bring a handsome price, the one that because he has been trained can show what he can do will net a very neat profit on the amount invested in his training. Another point that must strike the keen observer of the market is the peculiar concentration of the demand into certain lines and grooves, the extreme popularity of certain strains of blood and the almost total desertion of others more or less eagerly sought after a comparatively short time ago. Thus, paradoxical though it may sound, the demand has expanded and contracted at the same time.

Two changes are doubtless mainly responsible for this particular condition, in addition, of course, to the fact that the evolution of the harness breed has shown the families and nicks and crosses that produce winning speed in the greatest profusion and with the greatest proportion of prizes to blanks. The first of these changes is a natural one, the second may be called artificial. First we note that each year now a very large number of young, green performers come forth equipped with speed and staying powers to battle with the best. What did it avail this year, for instance, to have carefully kept covered up for a season or two a trotter to win the slow stakes, with such green material as The Monk, 2:08¾, Rilma, 2:10; The Abbott, 2:11½, Emily, 2:11, and others that might be named; or a pacer when such as Passing Belle, 2:08¼, Courier Journal, 2:08¼; Joe Wheeler, 2:07½, etc., stood in the way? Did it pay to train and bother with any horse so that he might have a record much slower than he could have taken when he had to meet younger, better bred and faster horses than himself? No. Men who campaign horses find now that to win in the slow classes they must pick from the green division, because by doing so they stand to win. Why did the Hamlins sell their stable of great winning campaigners? Because they have better ones, younger ones coming on. Why are so many men selling their record holders? Because they can pick better ones in the later generation. It will not be long until the slow classes on the trotting turf are filled by green performers, as the races for two-year olds are on the running turf, and after graduation therefrom in a single season, these same performers will take their chances in the all-aged division. Colt stakes we will always have, but the youngsters raced in them will obviously not long remain eligible to the slow classes. We will risk the prediction that in a year or two at most there will be but one short season, five months' racing say, for the trotter and pacer of merit and value, between his debut on the track and his appearance in some fast class, where his races will be harder and his winnings less. This condition must surely ensue.

Just at present the demand originating in continental Europe for campaigners of proven merit, is assisting in constraining the market in the grooves referred to. The doughty deeds of Colonel Kuser, Bravado, Nominee, Azmon, and others in Austria and Germany have stimulated the desire among wealthy horsemen of these countries to own great winners and a recount of the performers bought or sought to be bought this autumn for export show how greatly this demand must be operating to support the values of such campaigners. Take, for instance, Countess Eve, 2:09¼, Senator A., 2:10, Athanio, 2:10, Emily, 2:11, and the many others with records, ranging, say, to 2:14. Obviously it would be hard for any one of them to win any great sum of money in this country, and though undoubtedly valuable animals, the foreign demand adds to their worth. This may also be said of what may be termed the intermediate class, those with records of from 2:16 to 2:20. Such animals may be campaigned with profit and used in the stud to advantage in Europe, hence there is an increased value placed upon them.

So, summing up conditions, we find that for the good green ones the American demand is so keen that they stay at home; for the proven campaigner, with good staying powers and fast record, the foreign demand is brisk; for the intermediate class the demand is also good, though not so good as for the two already named; and for the slow record holding division there is least competition of all. We are not dealing with outclassed or unsound animals, but we point in support of this argument to recent sales, to the prices brought by Intact and other colts by Allerton, Abnell, All Day, Receiver; to the prices brought by Athanio, Emily, Passing Belle, Cephas, Royal Victor, Abnet; to the prices brought by Hornelia Wilkes, Amby, Greenlander Girl, and to the prices brought by performers of some age and records of from 2:20 to 2:30.—Horseman.

ROBERT T. KNEEBS EXPELLED.

National Trotting Association Punishes Him for Frauds on Tracks in Germany.

New York, December 10.—The Board of Review of the National Trotting Association, which has been in session for four days, to-day has announced the following decisions:

Robert T. Kneebs and H. O. Heffner of Sioux City, Iowa were expelled. Kneebs for his connection with frauds on German tracks by racing the mare Bethel under another name, and Heffner for his connection with several irregularities on American tracks.

Jacob Isenger of Warren Pa., was expelled for entering the horse Doc F. out of class. The horse was also barred.

William Brannigan of Windsor was expelled for repeated violations of association rules.

William Carmack of Cleveland, Ohio, and E. Lease of Tiffin, Ohio, have been expelled for starting the mare Maud Pollard under the name of Jane. The mare was also expelled.

A. B. D. Hart and A. H. Kretz of Redding, Pa., were suspended until unlawful awards received by them are returned.

Charles A. Wolfe, of Polk, Pa., was expelled for starting the horse Paddy Moran under the name of J. Wolfe. The horse was also expelled.

C. A. Metcalfe of Chicago was expelled for several questionable transactions.

The Spreckels Sale.

The Occidental Horse Exchange was fairly well filled las night, the magnet being the sale of A. B. Spreckels' year lings and two-year-olds, all bred at his magnificent Napa Stock Farm. Imp. Idalum was the only tried sire represented in the sale, many of the baby racers being by imp. Crighton, Puryear D. and imp. Watercress and one by imp. Golden Garter. The sale must therefore be accounted a great success. Certainly William Fitch was never in better voice (which is saying a great deal), and had all the magnetism for which he is noted. Mr. Fitch ought to have been a politician. He makes large additions to his friends' list every time he appears in the stand,and, once on that list, they are there to stay. Comparisons may be odious, but the fact cannot be gainsaid that he is, as the darkey would say "De on'liest hoss auctioneer on de Coast," and Mr. Wm. G. Layng, in securing his services, showed most excellent judgment and is entitled to the thanks of a long-suffering public, of breeders and owners of thoroughbreds in particular.

There were many bargains secured. Barracouta, a brown filly by imp. Crighton—Border Lassie, a trim-built little miss like her fast mother, was a prize at $130, and Roy Caruthers, the young Kentucky turfman, secured it; Flumendosa, a bay filly by imp. Idalium—Frisa, a mighty good looking one, was cheap at $125; Pompino, a racy-looking bay gelding by Puryear D. out of the dam of Bernardo, looks a great bargain at $255; Sevens, a queenly-looking bay filly by imp Watercress-Folly, a highly-tried one, cheap at $605. and N S. Hall is to be congratulated on getting her, and Yaruba, a bay gelding by imp. Golden Garter—imp Yarranabee, was worth many times the $200 George Berry paid for her, in our opinion.

The total for seventeen head was $4,010, an average of $235.88. Following were the purchasers and prices.

Abano, b g, by imp. Crighton—Glee, P Clarkson	$ 40
Abistado, ch, by imp Crighton— Miss Douglas H., J G Hayes	50
Adgie, b f, by imp. Crighton—Norfolk mare, W C Ayres	55
Agape, b f, by imp. Idellum—Agnes M, J G Hayes	80
Barracouta, b f, imp. Crighton—Border Lassie, Roy Carruthers	125
Canace, ch f, by imp. Crighton—Nellie Bell, N S Hall	325
Chispa, b f, by imp. Crighton—Cattle Kate, W W Ayers	100
Flumendosa, b f, imp. Idalium - Frisa N S Hall.	125
Glister, b f, by imp Crighton Bell Guard, M Johnson	100
Headwater, b g, by imp. Watercress—Headflower, P Clarkson	675
Pompino, b g, by Puryear D.—Sweet Peggy; G. Dunn	255
Purolah, ch g, by Puryear D,—Dolly Varden; N. S. Hall	130
Sevens, b f, by imp. Crighton—Folly; N, S. Hall	605
Watossa, ch g, by imp. Watercress—imp. Atossa: W. Ayres	450
Yaruba, b g, by imp, Golden Garter—imp, Yarranabee; Geo. Berry	200
Zaurak, b g, by imp. Crighton—Phoebe F; M. Johnson	100
Salvall, b g, 2, by Salvator—Allee; H. Lowden	235
Total	$4,010
Average for 17 head	$235 88

PLEASANTON, winner of the first race Tuesday at odds of 30 to 1, cost L. Rockman $100, and Whitehat McCarty took his money out in ginger ale. For a long time Pleasanton's stable name was Ginger Ale, and Rockman was afraid he would never pop in a winner. Joe McCarty gave $135 for the gelding at the Palo Alto sale. He was a very small youngster, but he's grown considerably and is likely to turn out a good one. Mr. Rockman had lost about $1,000 on him up to Tuesday.

Sacramento Bench Show.

The Sacramento fanciers are devoting a great deal of care and attention to the coming show next month. This exhibition will be the first to be held on the coast under the new classification rules of the American Kennel Club. Many of our local fanciers are now getting their dogs in shape Spratts Patent will do the feeding, etc, in their usual satisfactory style. Every indication to date points to a highly successful show.

NOBLE LADDIE. GOLDEN DIRK.

Golden Dirk (Warren Sage—Stilleto) owned by Wm. B. Godfrey, Esq., assistant secretary of the California Jockey Club, was the winner of first prize in the puppy and novice classes at the last San Jose bench show,and first in the puppy class at the San Francisco Kennel Club show this year. This dog is a grand looking specimen of the fox terrier type and is descended from a long string of prize winners, in fact as many as any dog bred in this country, tracing back to some of the choicest strains bred in England. Dirk has two crosses of the Venio and three of the Vesuvian blood in him and is now about sixteen months old. Mr. Godfrey will have his dog in the bench shows of 1898. Norfolk Laddie is more of the old type of fox terrier, but a very useful dog and the sire of some very fine dogs.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

J. B. Martin of this city, has again sent his fox terrier bitch Champion Golden Jewel to the kennels of G. H. Gooderham, Toronto, Canada, to be bred to Champion Veracity.

W. A. Wegener has recently become the owner of a fine young brown and white pointer pup (J. H. Keifer's Baldy—H. C. Golcher's Beulah) which gives flattering prospects of becoming a dog of note.

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Dear Sir—I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of Glover's Dog Remedies. With the Vermifuge I cured a dog of mine which I considered a hopeless case.

G. E. DAVIS, City Sheriff.

Coursing is becoming popular at Stockton. Another coursing match of the free-for-all order is scheduled to take place near that city on Christmas Day. There have been thirty-two greyhound entries at $1.50 each, to which $10 will be added. Entries may be made with J. McDonald, 18 N. Sutter street. It is understood that the business men of Stockton have interested themselves to the extent of subscribing to a fund.

Captain Cooper of the English ship Royal Ford has recently placed a very fine young R. C. St. Bernard dog in the keeping of S. Stutz, Jr. The dog is for sale. He was whelped January 13, 1897, weighs one hundred and sixty pounds, has a good body and fine orange and white coat. He was bred by A. H. Guy, Swansea, Eng., his sire is Retford Lion (Minstrel Boy—Lady Plym) and his dam Countess (Sir Morrell—Countess.)

Sometimes a dog will appear in good health, but his appetite being poor he will continually be low in flesh. Frequently this may be due to worms; if such is not the case, the following treatment is often very efficacious: Feed on lean raw meat for awhile, administer twice a day a pill containing two grains of sulphate of quinine mixed with a small quantity of extract of gentian. Boiled rice and currants are a good diet, as a change, for bad doers of the pet kind and others.

J. Bradshaw has started a boarding kennel in this city upon Lake street, between 11th and 12th avenues, it is a splendid location, being quite convenient to the cars, and close to a large fresh water lake where the dogs can take a swim. The yard is enclosed with a tight board fence, and includes about a quarter of a block of land. The dogs are kept in a large roomy stable divided into three compartments. Mr. Bradshaw has made a good start, having fifteen dogs of various breeds, many of which are being prepared for the spring shows.

NOTICE TO ANGLERS.

Every angler is invited to drop us a line occasionally, telling us o the condition of the streams they have visited and the killing lure of the number and size of the fish caught, or any other item o interest to anglers.

Electricity and Fishing.

Electricity, as applied to angling, is in its infancy; but there is no doubt that eventually portable batteries and electric lamps will be part of the outfit of every angler who fishes at night. Two or three years ago it was tried on the Thames and the results were startling. It is wonderful how quickly Nature will adapt herself to circumstances. Such, at any rate, is the moral of a story told at a London Angling Club. "A friend of mine, who is engaged with an electric firm," said the narrator, "has invented an electric lamp, and we went to Sunbury to try it. It worked liked a charm, and was the greatest success imaginable. In fairly clear water, it lights up the bottom of the river for quite a long distance. Imagine the bottom of the river lighted by a big bonfire; that is the nearest thing I can compare it to. A strong battery is carried in the stern of the boat. When you have anchored and are ready for fishing, the submarine lamp is lowered, and a push on a button does the rest. A white light below renders visible all objects within twenty yards of it. Your sport begins. The fish are attracted by the light, and swim toward it to investigate. At first they are timid; but they soon grow bolder and swarm around the lamp. It's the easiest thing in the world to catch 'em then. All you have to do is to drop down a biggish hook and bring 'em in, one at a time; no rod is necessary—nothing but a line and naked hook. It requires no skill to make a catch; and if the Conservancy Board bailiffs don't catch you, it is capital sport. We had two nights at it, and caught four hundred barbel; and the best of it is you can pick your fish; you needn't hook into the small 'uns. Oh! it's a great invention." For a moment the silence was painfully oppressive; then it was broken by a noted barbel fisher, who inquired in a low mellow voice: "When did you do all this?" "Last July." "At Sunbury?" "At Sunbury, as I have stated." "Ah! that accounts for it. I was fishing there myself last July, and made a very fair basket of barbel, but until now I have never been able to explain how it was that every one of the fish wore a pair of blue spectacles!"—Rod and Gun.

The angling fraternity were represented on Sunday last at Point Reyes by some of the "old vets." Some nice catches were made by those who were fortunate in running into the right spots in the creek, while others not only caught no fish but had the bad luck to make a strike on a large steelhead and have their tackle carried away. Some of those fishing were Meiklejay Geary, whose creel held a decent number of medium-sized fish; Del Cooper, caught thirty nice fish, that averaged from ten to fifteen inches in length; Dr. Payne caught eight steelhead; Frank Dolliver is credited with sixty fine fish, one of them ten pounds in weight. H. Battu, Tim Marshall, and Mat Meyers were of the unlucky ones, big fish broke their tackle and spoiled the sport for them.

John Butler's friends noticed lately and with some solicitude that the veteran has been very restless, preoccupied and apparently ill at ease—these symptoms were premonitory evidently, to an outbreak of some kind. Tuesday morning the climax was reached and down came the rods, creel and tackle that had been put in order and stored away for the winter and off to Point Reyes he went with his friend Dr. Von Hoffman. The telegrams and stories from Point Reyes, anent the steelhead fishing and the Russian river trip of W. R McFarland, Al Wilson and other choice spirits was more than Butler Butler could stand.

Smelt fishing in the Oakland estuary is remarkably good at present. Last Sunday the Park street bridge, in Alameda, was crowded with eager Waltonians and on the water about twenty five boats were manned by fishermen just as eager. An immense number of these delicious fish were caught One party of three, had over six hundred fish when they they came ashore.

The Throckmorton Lagoon on the Tamalpais Club grounds is suspected of containing some fine salmon just at present. John Berges made a bluff at trying to catch some of them last Sunday but his success for the time being was indifferent.

Frank Hall, the genial assistant yardmaster in the southbound freight yards at Butler's, caught a beautiful large salmon at Point Reyes last Sunday. He shook a pocket silver spoon at it and landed the fish in great style.

The Spring Valley contingent at Point Reyes last Sunday treated H O2 with an indifference and contempt that was refreshing to the observer. Their devotion to matters spiritual was in the nature of a deluge.

Mullet are now running in San Diego bay in large numbers. The local anglers cannot induce them to take the hook, much-sport is found, however, in spearing them.

Some fine rock fish and sea trout catches were made at Tiburon and Point Cavalho last Sunday. Bay fishing is reported to be good at present

The first heavy rain will clean out the Paper Mill, and make the Point Reyes fishing first class; tho' they seem to be doing well enough now.

Grilse fishing continues to be good and is indulged in by quite a number daily, at Powell-street wharf and the railroad wharves across the bay.

Frank Maskey, last Friday at Point Reyes, was credited with a catch of ten steelhead, weighing from one to five pounds each.

Still the fat, flapping flounder is plentiful in number and nice in flavor in the Tiburon lagoon and Oakland estuary.

Telegrams received from Geo. Morgan and Arthur Rochfort last week created quite a little stir among the anglers.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. Kansas City Trap Shooters Win.

Watson's Park, Burnside, Ills., for the week commencing Dec. 6, was the scene of one of the largest and most successful live bird tournaments ever held in the United States. The list of visitors included nearly every famous amateur and professional wing shot in the country, among whom were: F. W. Quimbey, New York; J. A. R. Elliott, Kansas City; John Fanning, the Gold Dust representative, San Francisco; Chas. Willard, Hartford; Harvey McMurchy, representing the Hunter Arms Co., Syracuse; Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck, Minneapolis; Jas. Whitfield, Kansas City; Dr. Whittier, Kansas City; Chas. W. Budd, Des Moines; E S Rice, R. B. Organ, T. H Keller, New York; Rolla Heikes, Dayton; W. L Sheppard, Col. Felton, Fred Gilbert, Spirit Lake; Chas. M. Grimm, Clear Lake; Fred H. Lord, Ed Fulford, Fred Kimby, Capt. Bartlett; John Watson; E. Bingham and a host of others.

The principal event for the first day of the tournament was a 100 bird match for the Cast Iron Medal and $100 a side, between Rollo Heikes of Dayton, Ohio, and Chas. M. Grimm, of Clear Lake, Iowa. The medal carries with it the live-bird championship of America. Grimm had held it since Dec. 23, 1896, when he won it from Dr. Carver. Heikes proved to be the winner.

In this contest Grimm was seconded by Fred Gilbert and Heikes was looked after by Tom Keller and Fred Kimby.

Following is the summary of the way the birds flew when liberated:

Heikes—Left quarters, 27; incomers, 45; drivers, 7; right quarters, 19; towerers, 2.
Grimm—Left quarters, 37; incomers, 34; drivers, 10; right quarters, 13; towerers, 6.

The score was as follows:

Heikes—2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 0, 2, 2, 2 2 0, 2, 2 2 2, 2 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2. 2, 0 0 0, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 0, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 0, 2, 2, 0, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2. 2. 0. 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2, 2,

The birds were extremely lively, and many a "screamer" soared away from the men before the traps. The first event of the day was the last twenty-five birds of the Herman-Roll contest, which had been postponed from Friday night.

The score by teams was as follows:

CHICAGO		KANSAS CITY
Wright	40	Porter	42
Eth	39	Hickman	43
Shaw	42	Stockwell	44
Mussey	37	D. Elliott	44
Ruble	45	Cur ice	39
Roll	45	Herman	46
Frothingham	43	Riley	44
Van Lengerke	41	Gottlieb	42
Bingham	43	J. B Porter	37
Kleinman	42	J. A. R. Elliott	43
Total	417	Total	424

By a score of 424 to 417, out of a possible 500 birds, the Kansas City team of wing shots defeated Chicago's best marksmen at Watson's park, Burnside, and established beyond question their title to the inter-city championship.

After the inter-city contest was concluded, several sweepstake and "miss and out" matches were held. In the evening, as a fitting close to a successful week, a dinner was held at the Chicago Athletic Association club house in honor of the visiting sportsmen.

It will be noticed in the foregoing sweepstake scores that our friend Jack Fanning held his own in pretty hot company, in fact, he has made many friends in the East who not only admire him for his many genial qualities, but have a great appreciation of his splendid work at the traps, and they are now beginning to understand what he has so frequently demonstrated that the Gold Dust is a model for regularity and reliability. Recent advices from Indianapolis state that Fanning has again shown his mettle. "The Grand Central handicap was the closing event of the Limited Gun Club's live bird tournament which has been on for four days. J. S. Fanning, of San Francisco, shot through the match without losing a bird, and was declared the winner. Ed Fulford and Chas. Budd tied for second place."

Fight With Two California Lions.

About five miles this side of Magalia, up near Oroville, lives W. H. Nied, whose son Fred, a boy of but 16 years of age, met with, not alone one, but two thrilling experiences, a few days ago, that would have tried the nerves of many an older person.

Going out for a stroll one evening, when about sixty rods from his home, a large California lion started toward him, coming out of some thick brush not over four or five rods from him. Fred's dog pluckily tackled the beast, which retreated into the brush, but came out again when the lad fired a shot near him. The lion again charged Fred, and again the dog stopped his further progress for a minute by a tackle in genuine football style, and Fred took advantage of that momentary lull to fire two well-directed shots into the beast's carcass, ending his career, and lucky for the boy the shots proved fatal, for otherwise it no doubt meant death to him in a horrible form, as he would have been torn to shreds by the terrible claws of the infuriated beast, which measured six feet in length and stood over two feet high.

The next evening, at nearly the same spot, the dog started up another lion, and again the boy's unerring aim stood him in hand, although the beast was much smaller than the one killed the evening before, measuring four feet eight inches from tip to tip.

The animals are thought to have come over from the east side of Feather river, as they are the first that have ever been killed so low down on the ridge. The lad skinned them and is saving their pelts as a record of his prowess as a hunter.

Crows Trying a Hawk.

Every one who has lived in the country knows how much a crow hates a hawk. Once upon a time I came slyly upon a conclave of caw-caws in the edge of a wood. Their talking had attracted me to the spot. There must have been several hundred of them, sitting in a circle on the ground. You know that crows have sense—more than a man—and hold councils of war, have sentinels, throw out skirmishers, elect captains, etc. The hawks eat their young, hence their enmity. In the center of the circle was a hawk, and the crows were putting him through his paces. He turned a somersault and they caw-cawed heartily. He flew around in a small circle and they caw-cawed again. He ran from one side of the circle to the other, and again there was infernal laughter. When he wanted to rest the master crow punched him up, and he went on doing stunts. How long this might have lasted I know not for my gun laid low half a score of the jury and the prisoner. It has always been a matter of regret that I did not await the issue of the trial. —Atlanta Journal.

Some Good Rifles.

Mr. F. L. King, representing the J. Stevens Arms and Tool Co., has been in the city for the past week in the interest of this well-known house. Judging from the attention paid him by local marksmen and sportsmen in the inspection of a remarkably fine line of sporting and target rifles, and also target pistols, the Stevens guns must possess many commendable features. Lack of space forbids a description of these guns, the smaller bore arms for field work in particular. We suggest to our readers that it will repay them to send to Chicopee Falls, Mass., for descriptive printed matter—much valuable and up-to-date information can be obtained.

The Oregon Pheasant.

The Board of Fish Commissioners have received three hundred and fifty Oregon pheasants up to date. These birds all came to hand in good condition and are fine specimens. They will be distributed in favorable cover localities in counties where game wardens are in vogue, so that they may be looked after until they become settled, and careless sportsmen or others will be prevented from molesting them. Club preserves offering conditions that are satisfactory will not be overlooked in the distribution.

Special Train for Sportsmen.

Under the management of J. E. Locke, a special train for hunters and anglers will leave the city at 11:30 to-night for Point Reyes, Millerton, Bay View, Marshalls, Hamlet and Tomales. Returning, leaves Tomales at 4 P. M. to-morrow. Special permission has been secured for hunters on large tracts of land near the points mentioned. Tickets via Saturday's regular 7:25 A. M. and 1:45 P. M. trains will be good for return on the sportsmen's special Sunday night.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Plenty of ducks are reported in the open water at Suisun.

Chas. Precht made a combined bag of quail and ducks at Point Reyes last Sunday.

Shooting in the vicinity of Seattle, Wash., is very good. Ducks and geese abound.

E. R. Goodspeed made a good bag of ducks in the San Mateo marsh last Sunday.

A. Roos and two friends at San Pablo last Sunday made a bag of one hundred and fifty ducks.

H. H. White and C. F. Grant made fair bags on the Olympic Club grounds last Sunday.

A fine boat for bay and along shore hunting is offered in our advertisement columns this week. It is a bargain.

Recent reports are that ducks are coming in on the Sherman Island district in large numbers.

Widgeon are plentiful in the markets lately. They are sent down from the river above Sacromento.

Canvasbacks are beginning to frequent the Alviso and Alvarado marshes and the lower part of the bay.

F. Feudner and J. Peltier were shooting at Irvington Saturday. Their bag was quail and English snipe.

Frank Maskey made a good bag of quail and also caught a few steelhead one day last week at Point Reyes.

Ed. Foster tried Black Point on Sunday last, and made a bag of twenty ducks, "cans" and teal principally.

About twenty-four members of the Empire Gun Club were on their grounds last Sunday. Some fair bags were made.

Mr. E. T. Allen, of E. T. Allen & Co., 416 Market street, returned Wednesday from an extended business trip through the East.

Some of the guests at Coronado have recently been taking advantage of the splendid quail shooting to be found on North Island.

The shooting on the Petaluma marshes and Reclamation district was very favorable for the hunters last Sunday. Birds were rather plentiful.

E. W. S. Van Slyke had a morning shoot off the San Mateo marsh a week ago and made a bag of three pair of "cans" that were in prime condition.

L. Larzalere, J. R. Burfiend, and J. Miles had poor luck on the Spooney Club grounds last Sunday—low tide and a hot day kept the birds out of range.

John Karney and Jules Bruns collected their usual feathered dividend at Sear's Point last Sunday. Nearly two dozen birds, mixed in variety, was the bag.

Shooting has been good at the mouth of Little Coyote recently. Lathrop has taken a number of hunters out over that shooting ground and they always get good bags.

L. S. Dahl holds the medal of the Spokane Challenge Live Bird Shooting Association, having recently defeated C. Hoffman in a match at fifteen birds. The score was 13 to 12.

A trap shoot at bluerocks was held at Truckee, Sunday, December 5th, the following scores were made: Rowlison 14. Teeters 13, Rutherford 6, Blinn 11, Cox 9, McElory 6, Shoemaker 7.

Jim Chesley and Walter Burlingame saw lots of ducks at Suisun last Sunday, but they were very far away. The weather was foggy in the morning and very hot in the middle of the day, so only a small bag was their reward.

The Lincoln Club shooters came near having empty bags last Sunday--birds were very scarce and shy. Sharp, Franzen, Shaw, and Klevesahl made small bags, and Carlson, who had a three days' shoot, only brought in about a dozen birds.

Wednesday morning E. W. S. Van Slyke made a fine bag on the San Mateo marsh. Seventeen fat "cans," some of them phenomenally large; ten teal, seven spooneys and a few other odds of ducks is a bunch to be slightly elated over for a short morning's shoot.

At a regular meeting of the Black Jack Club held on Tuesday evening, President Lemmer and Secretary J. Markland were unanimously re-elected. The President appointed Messrs. J. Maynard, Jr., Wm. Swain and Wm. McCrea as a Board of Directors pro tem.

The Black Jacks had a fairly good supply of ducks on their grounds last Sunday, enough to afford quite a little sport. J. Maynard, Jr. and "Sherman" were the only regulars present. Dr. E. N. Ayers and E. C. Johnson were their guests Seventy birds, nearly all "gravducks," fell to the four guns.

C. A. Haight made a bag of ten fine canvasbacks, and also a good bunch of other ducks, on the Olympic Club grounds last Sunday. The location of his blind was a most favorable one, just so as to catch the morning flight in such a manner as to make every shot fired add fresh enthusiasm to the sport.

H. C. Park "won" the Goldman gun at Bakersfield on Sunday, Dec. 5th. There were two shooters at the trap besides Mr. Park—L. Crusoe and H. A. Blodget. As the latter had both "won" the gun twice the only way for the contest to be kept up was to have them beaten this time, which was done.

Elmer Mason, the well-known marksman and former member of the Santa Ana Gun Club, is now engaged in market hunting on Lake Buena Vista, Tulare county. He states that the season will soon open for grebe, a bird which brings a good price by reason of the utility of its skin in the manufacture of ladies' furs and muffs.

Frank Dolliver got three more wild cats at Point Reyes last Sunday. The Cum Cook hatchet-men invited their friends the Go Bang clan of highbinders and one day this week they had a great feast of wild-cat, washed down with gallons of forty-rod Rooster brand gin. Dolliver controls the solid vote of Chinatown from this time on.

"Sugar House" was the triumphant bearer of a fine string of larks and blackbirds on Sunday last. He is suspected of cleaning out all the blackbirds in the vicinity of Point Reyes. He has recently received from a friend up the river, a fine bunch of selected tule-stems. With these he will be enabled to properly flagellate "Dickey Boy" into proper behaviour.

Among the many attractions offered to the public at the coming Sportsmen's Exposition and Bicycle Show at Madison Square Garden, New York, will be a series of competitive events at rifle and revolver shooting, fly-casting, etc. For the champions there will be handsome medals and prizes more elaborate and costly than those given at the 1897 tournament.

The Woodland Mail of December 9th notes as follows: John Franklin has returned from a hunting trip with the Edson brothers on the Klamath river and reported unusually good sport. It may be something to know that the canvasback duck inhabit the section in large quantities. A general impression has been prevalent in this vicinity that these birds were to be found only in lower, marshy regions. Mr. Frankin said that the party killed more than three hundred in one day.

The Petaluma sportsmen have been availing themselves of favorable shooting conditions recently. Among those that were out, we notice that J. F. Studdert and C. F. Northrup made the largest bag of ducks of the season on the club's preserve at Burdell's, Wednesday evening, December 8th. Sixty-six ducks fell before the two guns. Ben F. Phillips and friend killed eleven and Joe Steiger and Wm. Knowles got seventeen the same evening. W. Dittman, Jas. Park, and Will Stolker shot in the vicinity of Neil's island and bagged forty birds. A number of other good bags were made in the vicinity of the island.

The Davisville Gun Club now numbers twenty-three members. Its hunting preserves include nearly 1,000 acres, which have been leased from Bob Armstrong. The grounds embrace the best part of the sink of Putah and include some good ponds and marsh lands. There has already been some good hunting, and later in the season when there is more water, it is expected that the shooting will improve. The rules of the club are very stringent. No hunting is allowed at any time when the flash of the gun can be seen. No member of the club is allowed to invite more than one guest, and he must live in the same precinct.

The close of the season for shooting deer in Oregon is noted by the Portland Oregonian of December 1st: Yesterday was the last day of the season for shooting deer, and a large number of carcasses of venison were rushed into market, some of them very fine ones. Half a dozen fat bucks were seen hanging in front of one game dealer's shop, either of which would weigh about 200 pounds. Of course, all this amount of venison could not be disposed of yesterday, but dealers will have the usual five days' grace to dispose of any venison they have on hand to-day. Those who are fond of venison will embrace the opportunity to brave one more feast, which will have to last them till next fall.

J. G. Dow, an old resident of Sutter county who at present lives in Oakland, has written the following letter to the Appeal which will explain itself:

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 8, 1897.

Ed. Marysville Appeal—Dear Sir:—I have secured five pairs of pheasants from the State Board of Fish Commissioners which I will turn loose in a few days in the Sutter county Buttes near my place, and I request that you notify the people of the fact in order that hunters may not molest them. Of course it is not probable that anyone would maliciously injure such rare birds, but for the sake of greater security the Board of Supervisors will be asked to pass an ordinance for their protection. These birds are of a fine variety from Oregon and are very handsome. The people of the surrounding country will greatly admire and prize these birds when they become more numerous.

Very respectfully, J. G. Dow.

—Marysville Appeal.

Recent advices from San Luis Obispo state that the hunters are having quite an inning just now. Large numbers of ducks have been brought in, and the much prized canvasbacks were found quite generally represented. Gibson's Lake on Los Osos, is a favorite place, and the head of Morro bay is said to be good.

The ordinance passed by the supervisors, prohibiting the shipment of the birds out of the county, has eliminated from the lagoons and creek inlets a whole army of hunters. Those who were familiar with the vast amount of game killed and shipped out of this county in past years will readily understand this statement. The hunter who braves the perils of a lop-sided canoe and the possibility of sinking into dangerous weeds of the laguna nowadays, only does it for the purpose of securing a few ducks for himself.

A. L. Hampton killed a dozen canvas-backs on Gibson's lately. He came very near having a serious accident. He was tossed out of his boat, but soon regained his seat.

Vincente Estudillo and Johnnie Ghiglotti came in with a spring wagon well loaded with ducks.

Wild pigeons are commencing to appear over the mountains in large flocks.

No large bags of quail have been reported this season. There were just swarms of them during the summer months, when the law shed its protecting wing while they devoured the farm, but now they seem to be keeping close to the brush.

A grand shooting tournament is promised in Santa Maria for Christmas Day. It is to be under the auspicies of the gun club of that place and an invitation is extended to all outside clubs and gunners to attend. Prizes will be offered and as a side issue there is to be a big turkey shoot.

Millionaire Charles Fleischmann Dead.

CINCINNATI, O., December 10 —Charles Fleischmann died at 4:30 o'clock this morning from paralysis. The stroke came at 2:30 Thursday morning,and he never regained consciousness.

Mr. Fleischmann was born in Hungary in 1834, and came to America in 1866 and to Cincinnati two years later. The foundation of his great fortune was laid by the invention of patented machinery for use in distilleries. This was followed by utilizing a by-product of distilling for the production of yeast.

Until recently he was president of the Commercial Tribune Company. He was also president of the Market National Bank. He had an extensive interest on the turf, and was the employer of the famous jockey, Tod Sloan.

Mr. Flischmann served two terms as Senator of Ohio from this district,and held a number of offices such as Fire Commissioner, and was trustee for various associations and societies. His wife and two sons, Julius and Max, and one daughter survive him.

It is stated on the best authority that the racing stable of Charles Fleischmann & Son will be run next year in the East, and that the contract with Tod Sloan will hold good. Mr. Fleischmann, who used to run horses under his own name, took the precaution to take his son Julius into partnership to avoid invalidating entries in the East in case of his death.

St. Louis' 1898 Stakes.

The St. Louis Fair Grounds Association has announced its 1898 stake array. There are eighteen stakes on the list, of a guaranteed value of $33,300, guaranteed for a similar number last year. The Golden Rod has been changed from a handicap for three-year-olds and upward, six and one-half furlongs, se l ing, to a three-year-old,selling, seven furlongs. Entries close January 15, 1898. Following are the stakes:

The Inaugural Handicap, three-year-olds and upward, 1 mile; $2,000 added.

Debutante, two-year old fillies, 4½ furlongs; value, $1,500. Junior Championship, two-year-olds, 5½ furlongs; value $2,000.

Memorial Handicap Sweepstakes, all ages, 5½ furlongs; value, $1,500.

Club Members' Handicap, three-year-olds and upwards, 1¼ miles; value, $2 500.

Brewers' Handicap Sweepstakes, two-year-olds, 6 furlongs; value, $1,500

Mississippi Valley Selling Sweepstakes, three-year-olds and upwards, 1 mile; value $1,500.

Meramec Selling Sweepstakes, three-year-olds and upwards, 1 mile ; value, $1,500.

Laurel Handicap Sweepstakes, three-year-olds and upwards, 6 furlongs; value, $1,500.

Missouri Selling Sweepstakes, two-year-olds, 6 furlongs; value, $1,500.

Independence Handicap Sweepstakes, three-year-olds and upwards, 1 3-16 miles; value, $1,500.

Coney Island Stakes.

NEW YORK, December 12.—The Coney Island Jockey Club stakes for 1898 including all the old popular fixtures, have been announced, and with them comes the announcement of the closing of the Futurity for the year 1900.

The Futurity to be run at the autumn meeting closing the nineteenth century will be the first to close, the time fixed being January 4th next.

The other stakes for the June and autumn meetings of 1898 are to close January 10th. The most important of these is the Suburban Handicap, to be run at the June meeting on the famous old Sheepshead Bay course, at the time-honored distance, one and a quarter miles

The value of this has been increased to $10,000 guaranteed cash value, as against $7,500 for the Suburban of last spring.

The other big stakes are the Great Trial, $20.000, and double event, $10 000, for two-year-olds, at the June meeting, and the Great Eastern Handicap, $5,000, for the autumn meeting.

The Draft Horse Situation.

"Eastern horses and especially the users of draft horse teams, realize more fully the great shortage of draft horses than the farmers who still think that electricity and bicycle are driving out the horse. Merchants and manufacturers are still using horses in the streets, and farmers are still doing the farm work with horses. While we have quit breeding for some years the cities are using up horses rapidly and a great export trade has taken thousands of our best horses. It is therefore not strange that business men are alarmed about the short supply of good horses, and eagerly inquire where they can get good draft and coach horses until farmers can raise them, while they now gladly pay a big price for extra good horses. They see that prices must be higher than ever before known in this country before the demand can be supplied Many farmers too are finding that they need better horses to do the farm work, as all the good geldings, most of the draft stallions, and many of the draft mares have been sold, sacrificed, eager to get rid of them before the horseless age overtook them. All the farmers were so eager to sell that dealers have picked out the best at their own price, until only the scrubs remain, and the farmers will wish long and loud for the good grade of mares back again, and wish that they had continued breeding and now have some good mares to sell.

The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Silby, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develope to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm.

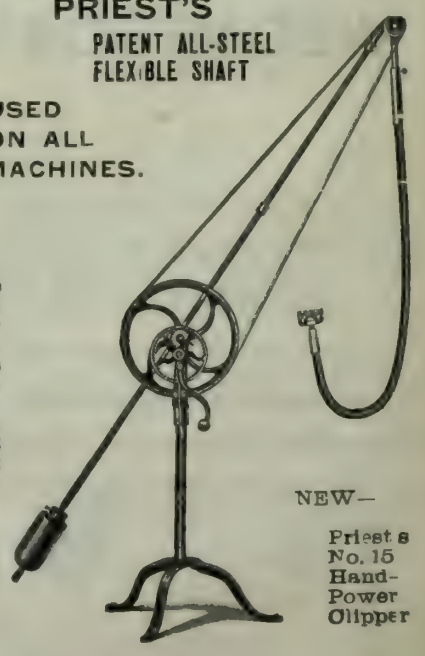
ARE THE ACCEPTED STANDARD.

A FEW FACTS.

GROOMING BRUSHES on Priest's Power Horse Clipping Machines are a success. If the dirt is there, and it generally is, they will remove it. That's what they are for. If you want to see them in operation in New York City, for instance, we can furnish you a list that is growing every day.



BALL BEARING CUTTERS have come to stay; they cut keener with less tension, which means less power with long life. Dirt and short hairs do not interfere with their practical working.

GROOMING BRUSHES and BALL-BEARING CUTTERS require skill and experience to build, but little, if any, to operate. WE KNOW because WE BUILD THEM, HAVE THEM TO SELL, and stand behind them with 32 YEARS' EXPERIENCE, and A REPUTATION for QUALITY of goods.

CONEY ISLAND JOCKEY CLUB

THE FUTURITY

With $8,750 Added, of which $3,750 to the Breeders.

For the AUTUMN MEETING of 1900 To Close JANUARY 4, 1898

BY SUBSCRIPTION of $20 each, OR ONLY $10 IF THE MONEY BE SENT WITH ENTRY, for mares covered in 1897, and a further subscription of $50 each for the produce of such mares unless struck out by July 15, 1899, or $100 unless struck out by July 15, 1900. All starters to pay $250 additional, all of which shall go to the second and third horses as further provided. The Coney Island Jockey Club to add EIGHT THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS ($8,750); the second to receive $1,000 of the added money and two-thirds of the starting money; the third $500 of the added money and one-third of the starting money. The breeders of the winner, of the second horse and of the third horse, namely, the owner of the mare at time of entry, to receive $2,000, $1,250 and $500 of the added money respectively, whether they be the owners of the horse when the race takes place or not. Colts, 122 lbs.; fillies and geldings, 119 lbs. Winners of $2,500, 3 lbs.; of two races of $2,500, or one of $4,500, 7 lbs.; of four of $2,500, or two of $3,500, or one of $9,000, 12 lbs. extra. The produce of mares or stallions which have not produced a winner prior to January 1, 1898, allowed 3 lbs.; of both (mare and stallion), 5 lbs., said allowance to be claimed at time of entry. Maidens allowed 10 lbs., which allowance shall not be cumulative. Mares may be entered by persons not their owners, the owner having the prior right. If a mare in this stake drops her foal before the first of January, or if she has a dead or more than one foal, or is barren, the entry of such mare is void and the subscription, if paid, will be returned. By filing prior to July 15, 1899, with the Coney Island Jockey Club, an accepted transfer of the produce with its engagement in this stake, accompanied with all forfeits to date, the original subscriber will be released from any liability as to the engagement of the produce. Should a subscriber or transferee die before the race, the entry shall not be void provided it be assumed by the then owner of the horse; notice in writing to that effect, accompanied by the payment of all accrued liabilities, being given within three months after such demise. Futurity course (170 feet short of six furlongs).

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN

Vol. XXXI. No 26.
No. 313 BUSH STREET.

SAN FRANCISCO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1897.

SUBSCRIPTION
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

[Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

The Rivals.

[A FABLE OF THE ROAD].

Elate at having jolted off
Its rider in the dust behind,
A bicycle, which stood inclined
Against a wayside water trough,
Thus rhyming in iambic feet,
Made audible its self-conceit:—

"How marvellously made am I!
So light, symmetrical and strong!
My builder had a mind for song;
But his invention ran awry;
Else I might be The Standard Ode
Instead of Monarch of the Road,

"My wants are few: give me such care
As teething babyhood requires;
Renew twelve times a year my tires:
Feed me with oil (my only fare),
And always let my route be o'er
The smoothest street—I ask no more.

"Compared with me, how huge, how coarse
Is that unwieldly quadruped.
That fallen fogy in whose stead
I hold supremacy, the Horse!
How drear, how dull their sport must be
Who favor him and frown on me!

"He drinks—and lo! a drought succeeds;
He eats—forthwith a famine reigns;
He grows impassioned—iron chains
Prevent him not from wanton deeds;
While I, devoid of fleshly wish,
Keep sober as a frozen fish.

"So sober too, my lovers are,
Their creed excludes the drunkard's ghost
From racing with the joyous host
Around the ring-encircled star:
Souls of departed wheelmen dwell
In Saturn. Horsemen go to ——"

Where horsemen go it failed to say;
For suddenly an equine cough
Made billows in the water-trough,
And charged the air about with spray.
And equine language, tremulous
With rage, rebuked the braggart thus:—

"Fin-de-siecle prodigy,
Compound of uncongenial things,
Of garden-hose, piano strings,
Gas-pipe and dog-chain, hark to me.
Weave no excuse, for ev'ry word
Of your soliloquy I've heard.

"The Anti-Liquor prejudice
Your lovers have is due to fear.
The bicyclist is ever near
Annihilation's black abyss;
As your late pilot might allow
Were he not whirling in it now.

"You prate of grace and strength—behold
This sturdy form, and learn to see
That no such supple symmetry
Is framed by man, but must be foal'd.
You boast how wealthy in design
Your maker is—consider mine.

"The Pow'r by whose command this globe
Lives with inimitable seed
Made me and gloried in the deed.
(See Chapter thirty-ninth of Job).
I trace my line through ancient lore
Back to the Deluge and before.

"I, too, can boast—perhaps I shall—
For now is all my soul awake;
I grow inspired, I sweat, I shake
With flutterings intestinal.
My eyes review old things, my ears
Ring with the sounds of bygone years.

"I see again the winding track
Half-girt by crowds that gape and squeeze;
I hear of records, pedigrees
And broken seams in Fortune's sack:
I pass the Ladies' Stand, and share
The high impatience vibrant there.

"The course is clear; the steeds are lined;
The signal falls—away they bound!
They hurl their hoofs along the ground:
They fling the grey dust far behind.
Like hammerings of Vulcan spread
The shock and thunder of their tread.

"On, like an avalanche that brings
Its spoil of pines unfallen still,
They bear their riders down the hill.
They count the hurdles trifling things.
Far forth they reach for room—a mile
Delights them but a little while.

"Runs leader of the hast'ning group,
A proud, grey stallion, coursing free.
He seems to mock the rest and flee
To seek his match. Of all the troop
His fame is broadest. Swift indeed
Must be the overtaking steed.

"And surely swift and bold and strong
And black and beautiful withal
Is he that, like a cannon ball
Low-aimed, careers the turf along.
Draws from the vanquished band away
And throws his length beside the grey.

"Now sit the riders boot to boot;
Like wings their silken elbows wave;
Aslant they rock themselves, and rave,
Each helping, urging on his brute
With tug and threat and plea and whip
To break the dual leadership.

"They come! they come! the black, the grey Long-leaping, panting o'er the last
And fateful furlong—ne'er so fast
Advanced the tiger on his prey
Alternately their limbs excel,
But which has vantage, none can tell.

"They come! they come! the goal is nigh;
The grey ahead by half his length—
Comes lavishing his boarded strength,
And victor seems to every eye.
But lo! the black improves his pace,
O'erhauls him—leads him—wins the race!

"Hark, how the gleeful multitude,
Proclaiming its release from doubt,
Sends forth its soul in one wild shout
That shakes the earth for many a rod!
O! bloodless, pathetic Bike,
You know not what true sport is like."

"Insatiable fodder mill,
Your being black suggests, of course,
That you were the successful horse;
But what about your doctor's bill?
Your blacksmith's, jockey's, guard's and spy's
Did not their sums exceed the prize?"

"Officiating prig, expect from me
No stable-auditor's report.
I deal not in finance, but sport;
And though not what I used to be,
Yet, on occasion, I become Extravagantly frolicsome.

"For instance"—Here he smelt the ground
A moment; in the next, the wheel,
Impelled by his disdainful heel,
Flew skyward with a trembling sound.
How far it rose, and where it fell
My inkstand is too dry to tell.

JOHN B. LAYNG.

San Francisco, Dec. 1897.

John S. Phippen.

This gentleman who was formerly trainer and driver at Palo Alto Stock Farm has opened a public training stable at San Jose and is now located at Agricultural Park ready to commence work. His success as a developer of speed while at Palo Alto and his long term of service, sixteen years, is a good enough guarantee of his ability to owners of horses who may wish to have them developed.

During his service at Palo Alto he developed the yearlings Adbell, 2:22, world's champion; Sweet Rose, 2:25¾, Jessie, 2:24¾, Mary Osborne, 2:37 and Glubar, 2:38¼.

The great two-year-old Sunol, 2:18, world's record was taken from his string shortly before she got her record. He also developed Rowena, 2:17 (2), the first two-year-old to best 2:20 in a race. Palita, 2:16, the champion two-year-old filly of her year was also developed and driven by him.

The list of two-year-olds that follows that were developed by Mr. Phippen places him in the front rank as a developer of speed: Avena, 2:19½, Bell Bird, 2:22, Donchka, 2:24, Fonnibel, 2:24¼, Marie Ansel, 2:25, Athena, 2:25¼, Sweet Water, 2:26, Loraneer, 2:26½, Ameer, 2:27, Elwina, 2:27¼, Lent, 2:28 Elma Sontag, 2:29, Bessie Belle, 2:29¾, all of these two-year-olds, and getting their records in one year, 1892. In 1893 he developed and drove the following two-year-olds: Rio Alto, 2:22¾, Palatine, 2:23½, Aria, 2:27, Welbeck, 2:30½, Fresa, 2:31, Carmelito C., 2:32, Attractive, 2:32½. The list of three year olds developed by Mr. Phippen contains the names of many stake winners, such as Aria, 2:16¾, Rio Alto, 2:16½, Elden, 2:19½, Bonnibel, 2:22¼, Helena, 2:21, Electioneer, Jr., 2:22½. The three-year-old stake winners of this year Nordeau, 2:17¾, and Anselor, 2:21½, were handled by him in their two-year-old form.

Truman (4), 2:12, Orphina (4), 2:17¼, Advertiser, 2:15¼, and many other celebrities at Palo Alto were handled and driven to their records by Mr. Phippen.

In severing his connection with Palo Alto, Mr. Phippen left with the good will of all connected with the farm. His record as a developer of speed is a phenomenal one. He is a young man of excellent habits and industrious. These good qualities, together with his record as a developer and the experience he has had, should make his services eagerly sought for by those having horses to be developed.

RIO ALTO.

Buckman and Carragher Win.

The National Trotting Assocattion, sitting in New York as a judicial body, has affirmed the decision of the Pacific Board of Appeals, wherein the latter body gave a ruling in favor of Carragher & Buckman and against the Yolo County Agricultural District Association. In affirming the decision of the Coast Board the National Association places the Yolo County Association under the ban of suspension until certain moneys due the Sacramento horsemen are paid.

The case grows out of the failure of the Yolo County Association to decide a "futurity" stake of the value of $1500 in 1897, for foals of 1894. Carragher & Buckman entered Fraulein Dexter, and four other nominations made final payments on their entries, the aggregate amount being $812.

Last July the Directors of the Association declared the stake off, and returned the money to the nominators who had made final payments. Carragher and Buckman refused to accept the returned money, and on the day fixed for the event sent their entry over the course and demanded the stake money.

THE sale of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm trotters and pacers was a success in New York City.

The P. C. T. H. B. Association.

The most progressive meeting ever held by the directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association took place at 22½ Geary street Monday afternoon. Several new suggestions to make trotting and pacing races more popular with the sporting public were offered, and almost unanimously accepted. The movement is to change the system of racing by discarding old customs and adopting modern ideas. Many of the rules in vogue on running race tracks were considered the proper up-to-date methods.

The meeting was called for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and this business was first transacted. The directors present were as follows: E. P. Heald, Joseph Cairn Simpson, C. A. Hug, John F. Boyd, H. J. Agnew, A. B. Spreckels, F. W. Covey, D. E. Knight, A. H. Cohen, T. J. Crowley, A. G. Gurnett and William G. Layng. The election resulted as follows: President, E. P. Heald (re-elected); first vice-president, D. E. Knight; second vice-president, A. G. Gurnett; treasurer, Captain N. T. Smith (re-elected); secretary, F. W. Kelley (re-elected).

A resolution was offered by A. B. Spreckels that met with the approval of all present. It was that breeders and owners of trotters and pacers should be advised to abandon the use of hobbles in races. The idea is to produce pure-gaited horses. It was also agreed that shorter races should be given in the future, instead of having only "two in three" and "three in five" heat races; the idea is to change to mile dashes, mile and a half dashes and the like, with some "two in three" races.

Hereafter book betting will be permitted. Bookmakers will be given privileges as in running races instead of confining the betting to auction pools and Paris mutuels. Steps will be taken to positively prevent the practice of laying up heats.

A. H. Cohen was appointed as a committee of one to prepare the necessary papers for the incorporation of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association as a corporation without stock. It was suggested that the name of the new organization be known as the California Horse Breeders' Association and that the cumbersome P. C. T. H. B. A. give way to the spirit of progressiveness. In fact, everything advanced in the editorial columns of the Breeder and Sportsman was considered worthy of adoption.

It is probable that the association will give a two or three weeks' meeting in San Francisco or Oakland beginning the first or second week after the close of the State Fair next September or October. A professional starter and judges will probably be employed hereafter.

The second payment of $10 for each entry in the Breeders' Futurity stakes will be due January 1st. As these stakes are to be trotted and paced in 1899 and 1900 the value of the colts entered is considerably enhanced by the fact that they have a chance to win a good sum of money.

Sacramento's Race Course.

The State Board of Agriculture is employed in perfecting arrangements for the sale of Agricultural Park, preparatory to investing the proceeds in other property for similar purposes. This is being done in accordance with an Act of the last Legislature, which authorized the Board to sell the present Park property, on the ground that it had become too valuable for park purposes.

The delay in making the sale has been due to the fact that there was some flaw in the title by which the property is held by the Board of Agriculture; but as soon as this is straightened out the sale will be made. It is understood that it will not be more than a few weeks longer until this is done.

The Legislative Act authorizing the sale to be made, also authorized the purchase of other property, but did not say where such property should be located. That it will be located in or near Sacramento, however, there can be but little doubt, as six members of the twelve members of the Board are from Sacramento. This number will be reduced to five on January 1st, by the resignation of William Land, the City Charter prohibiting any city official from holding a State office.

The majority in favor of Sacramento is said to be so great, however, that the resignation of Land will make no difference.

In speaking of the intended purchase and sale of the property, Dr. W. P. Matthews, of the State Board of Agriculture, said to-day to a Bee reporter that the Board was already beginning to look around for a new site for the race track.

"It must be near the line of railroad, either to the east or south of the city," Dr. Matthews said, "for transportation is the all-important matter to be considered. It must also be located where street cars can reach it, and should not be too far distant from the center of the city. It is easy enough to get a crowd to a place of amusement because people do not all come at once, but it is a different proposition when it comes to getting the crowd back home, after the performance is over. This is the reason the park will have to be situated where the street cars can reach it handily."

Dr. Matthews refused to say what land had been looked at by the Board, but there is a well-authenticated rumor to the effect that the Board has its eye on a tract of land lying near the Catholic Cemetery.

It is not impossible, so it is stated, that the next fair will be held on the ground, although the delay occasioned in the investigation of the title of the present premises has rendered this chance rather remote.—Becord Union.

Tipton on Futurities.

Ed. Tipton, one of the best authorities in the south on trotters, in an interview in the Chicago Dispatch on the matter of racing colts trained as harness horses, in their two and three-year-old form, has given out some very interesting matter which should be read by owners of both the runners and trotters.

"I believe that the large associations all over the country make a serious mistake," said Mr. Tipton, "in making their three-year-old events for colts eligible to a certain class, thereby barring the colts that took first records as two-year-olds, with the expectation that such a course will bring them more entries.

"The history of the turf proves that the best three-year-olds of their respective years nearly always come from among the green ones or those with slow two-year-old records.

"Fantasy had no two-year-old record, yet as a three-year-old she could make everything else of her age look cheap, and the same thing is true of Directum in his three-year-old form.

"Beuzetta was not considered much of a colt down around Lexington in her two-year old form, and yet as a three-year-old she beat all the good ones.

"Next year they will make classes that will bar out Janie T. and Nowaday and others of that sort, and then Peter the Great and Dutchman or some other green one will prove to be the best of the year.

"Taking this into consideration, why wouldn't it be a good plan to make all the large three-year-old stakes and purses free-for-alls, and thus insure better contests and minimize the possibility of walk overs and tame racing?"

In a conversation with several members of the Board of Review after formal adjournment, very strong opinions were expressed as to the necessity of reform legislation at the next meeting of the congress, which will be held in New York in all probability. Some members are in favor of shortening the distance and of abolishing heat betting. It is to be hoped that the congress will also favor sending all non-heat winners to the barn after the third heat, and do all in their legislative power to shorten races. Mile heats in the fast classes is a sufficient strain on valuable horses, and even then a race of split heats can be as long as desirable.—Spirit of the Times.

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

"IN-AND-OUT RUNNING." A troublesome topic, a puzzling problem, a sore trial to the temper of racing officials, a mysterious muddle to layers and punters, a Pandorean box from which issue a whole tribe of jeering imps; in short, the greatest obstacle in the way of the grand sport, the in-and-out running of horses. Then, too, the savior of sport, as it may be termed, for if horses, like machinery, could be made to go every day alike, then the same horses, when once pitted against each other, under nearly the same conditions the outcome could be foretold with reasonable certainty.

Few who attend races—if gifted with a small part of common sense—who are not aware that horses are not like watches made by skilled artisans that can be regulated to run so closely together that even in a race covering hours, or, perhaps, days, a small fraction of a second will mark the difference; but susceptible to sudden changes and an apparently easy task for them on one day cannot be repeated for many occasions thereafter, and that when the most skilful trainers are doing their utmost to keep them in the best order. Then there is the converse of the case; a horse which has run poorly every time out, "picks up" unlooked for speed, another that has only shown capacity to go three furlongs at his best rate can "negotiate" double that distance at nearly the same rate, and still another which "shuts up" whenever collared overcomes the craven disposition and fights it out to the bitter end.

All those and other instances that could be cited are legitimate. That is from some cause, sometimes easily accounted for, in others a probability of a correct cue for the change while in still others beyond the ken of the keenest observer. Now comes the problem. If trainers are puzzled to account for the divergences with every opportunity to learn the cause, how shall the judges arrive at a correct conclusion?

Intentional in-and-out running, when managers of horses have decided upon the course, is influenced by the enmoluments that will follow. A direct return, the object, by betting against the horse, or a future coup when the odds are long.

However skillfully carried out that which prompted the scheme is oftentimes the means of detection, and when vagaries in the betting market are accompanied by suspicious riding there is a strong case against the schemers. Then again when it is shown that the "stable" or those closely connected with the stable, only bet when the horse wins,or nearly wins, there is a strong presumption of intentional wrong doing in the races in which no money "went on." But even that without corroborative proof may not give a true line, so that as in the other cases, the testimony presented directly to the judges must be the main dependence, or rather when there is cumulative evidence the task is easier. A "weak ride" of itself might not be sufficient for judicial interference. When coupled with other incriminating actions it is clearly a case that demands careful investigation and adequate punishment.

It may appear somewhat harsh to punish without the proofs of guilt are so conclusive that they cannot be questioned.

But the immense interests dependent on public support must not be jeopardized by what may be termed an overlenient treatment of criminals, or for that matter, presumptive criminals. Let the impression obtain that racing officials are not as careful as they should be in guarding against attempts to swindle; should the idea prevail that there is a disposition to shield in place of correcting, not only unquestioned violators of the law, but also those whose actions are such as to justify a prevailing belief that they are guilty, then the day is not far distant when racing will enter into a decline, grow weaker and weaker, drop into an unhonored grave, the only mourners those who lament that further opportunities for swindling are denied them.

Modern racing cannot be sustained without the closest surveillance of those who are in charge. Men of quick perception to discover fraudulent schemes, of firm determination to punish, and happily these are the men who are now connected with the prominent clubs of the country.

Were the lax methods to prevail that were followed when I first became acquainted with the management of racing affairs, the present race of schemers would have a clear field. That was before pools were sold, long before book-betting was established in this country. Mainly weight-for-age races over long courses and heats at that. Everyone trying to win, the chief endeavor of the people who engineered swindling operations to "slip weights" or misrepresent age. Quite cute, too, in these branches the knights of the old days of racing, though comparatively an easy job to thwart them than it is to block the machinations of the tricksters that now congregate on modern racecourses.

Anything but a sinecure the position of present time racing judges, and when so sorely tried to keep the sport clean it is manifestly the bounden duty of everyone who has the future welldoing of racing at heart to uphold them. "Human to err," though presumptive error must be well established before judgment is reversed.

* * *

SOME OF THE OLD-TIME METHODS.—In a former article I mentioned that the methods of "long ago" were different from those of the present time. Not so much then about in-and-out-running as to guard against fraudulent winning. "Slipping weights" was frequently attempted and, doubtless, in very many instances successfully carried out. Adepts at the work. Never a prestidigitator that could have equaled the sharp ones of the craft in changing light weight into the proper impost at the critical time.

Rather a "raw job" was attempted at Chicago a good many years ago. The race was one and a half-miles, with a large field of starters, among them a chestnut horse which afterwards came to California. The party that had him in charge was somewhat shady in reputation, charges of slipping weights and running their horses under age oftentimes made.

The horse won handily, and expecting that he would not be brought very close to the weighing room I met him as he was walking back. The groom stood by the inner fence, a big blanket ready to be thrown over the horse. As the horse was not turned the groom was on the off side; another groom took hold of the bit, the jockey unbuckled the girths, and as he reached his hand to the horse's back to grasp the cantle of the saddle the blanket was projected with that skillful twist that experts like to display in clothing a horse, and at that moment I pushed the jockey away and the weight was placed in the wrong hand, to them. Just thirteen and a half pounds of shot neatly done up in canvas and made to fit the space in an open-tree saddle. The horse won so easily that it seemed as though he could have been first with his right weight. Everyone of the party flat broke, at least all their ready money gone, all of them expelled, and hence the trip to California.

A Mr. J. C. K———, of St. Louis, made quite a snug fortune during the war, and toward the close of the struggle owned a number of racehorses. He began life as a jockey, had ridden the "fiery-footed Reel," the dam of Lecompte, Prioress, Starke et al, and he took great delight in relating his early experiences. Never a story of purposely losing a race, many of them about the sharp tricks to secure a match under conditions that would almost ensure winning, and one about making up shortage in weight that he took especial pleasure in telling. It was a long race and he felt assured from the watchfulness of the officials, and the care taken to note everything carried, not a rubbing cloth omitted, that an attempt to carry out the original plan would be frustrated.

The track was muddy, heavy and holding, but thin enough for him to effect his purpose. He had lead enough of the other horses to insure his horse winning, however badly ridden, and in the last furlong he reeled in the saddle, relaxed the reins, and in place of the "clip in the knees" then held indispensable in good jockeyship, his legs were loose.

As he passed the stand, one foot was out the stirrup, a short distance beyond his head dropped on the neck of his horse, a little further he rolled off. He turned over and over as if the motion given by the fall was the cause of the rotatory movement, and as he rolled he clutched handfuls of the glaur and thrust it inside of his jacket. The horse was caught and apparently in a half-dazed state, mud from head to feet, he was helped into the saddle. Greeted with a tornado of cheers when his horse was led under the wire, these a weak testimonial in comparison to the music of the scale beam as it struck the upper part of the loop, showing that there was enough over to account for a part of the mud, and when the clerk announced "weights all right," he was so highly elated that he came very nearly forgetting his part in the play, and walking with brisk step to the stable.

"RUNNING-HORSE METHODS."—"The Prejudice Against Running Horse Methods Must be Overcome."—The opening sentence of a paragraph is an editorial in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of last Saturday is that above quoted, and is well worthy of the emphasis gained by italizing. I heartily endorse it, have iterated and reiterated the same advice, and amplified on the topic until it may appear that, so far as I am concerned, the subject is worn threadbare.

There are a good many of the methods of racing officials that can be copied with great advantage. In fact the management of the "legitimate" all through is superior to that which prevails among a number of associations that have charge of harness racing, and while a few of the most prominent trotting clubs in the country emulate the example of the Jockey Clubs, these are the exceptions and not the rule. By far the most important is the scrupulous attention paid to secure square racing. It is the foundation of success. The "eternal negligance" displayed to check those who are scheming to defraud the corner stones, arch, keystone—the entire building, in part, of the temple of sport.

The buttresses are also strong, the whole fabric built on the plan drawn by wisdom, and this now is a general symmetry, aptitude for the purpose, exterior and interior in harmony.

The principle on which the actual racing is managed is, that while there is no desire to impute intentional wrongdoing to anyone, such guards are established as will make it extremely difficult to carry through swindling operations. The honest man is not or should not be offended by being brought under these rules. Simply this. The protection of the industry demands that the people who attend the races shall be satisfied with the squareness of the "game," so far as it is in our power to gratify the demand. Somewhat similar to business methods which require that persons who are trusted shall submit to regulations which will prove that they are worthy of the trust reposed in them.

If I handle the money of others it is for my protection that in place of saying S is honest the reply shall be "our guards are so strict that there is no chance for dishonesty."

While scarcely analogous the comparison is not entirely without force. A horse shows a striking reversal of form. The judges are entitled to know the cause for the "in-and-out" performances if there is anything to base reasons upon, and if owner or trainer can aid them in coming to a conclusion it is certainly their duty to render that assistance.

When summoned to the stand in place of resting on their dignity and waxing wroth at what they consider a reflection upon their integrity, cheerful compliance with the wishes of the judges, in place of being derogatory, will redound to their honor and satisfy those who depend upon the watchfulness of the occupants of the stand.

No good will come from denying that drivers give frequent cause for suspicions. Cheerfully admitting that a great many of the races which are designated "jobs" have been honestly won and lost, enough has been shown to warrant the assertion that "running methods" must prevail in the management of harness-racing if the same confidence is felt in them as is awarded the gallopers. For instance, in one of the races of the circuit a horse was losing heats in much slower time than was made in winning heats a few days before. Questioned by the judges he admitted he was not trying to win, his reason being that he knew he could not beat the horses he was meeting. Without doubt the driver was honest in his conclusions, but grant the right to "lay-up" on that pretext and harness-racing will not even retain the limited support it now has in California.

Whenever a horse starts in a race, running, the judges insist that he must win if he can. Not only win the race: Rule 20, American Racing Rules, reads, "Horses must be run and ridden out to win second and third as well as first money, and any failure to do so shall receive like punishment."

National Trotting Association, Rule 28, opening sentence Section 5: "Every heat in a race must be contested by every horse in the race; an honest endeavor on the part of every driver to win." The racing rule is enforced so far as it is in the power of the judges to enforce it. Can we say the same of the harness-racing law?

Heretofore I have endeavored to show the superiority of many other points of management by the racing officials, and now that the editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN takes the same view in that, at least, we are of the same opinion, and as the subject is so important, the editorial columns and the "special department" can be profitably employed in arguing the adoption of the good features of turf management by trotting associations.

THE PACING YEAR.—1887, the year to be marked with a white stone in the calendar of the pacers. The two-minute mark broken for the first time, when the horse that "did the trick" had no help in the way of pulling the vehicle. Then the number of heats, in actual races, were within a very short margin of the 120 seconds, and, best of all, the fine racing between Star Pointer and Joe Patchen. Not a suspicion of hippodromes, not the least flavor of malodorous practices. "Honest endeavor" on every occasion, and though the Tennesseean got rather the best of the Kansas cyclone, the trotting-bred pacer gained great renown. While far inferior from a sportsman's view-point, the tour of Robert J. and Gentry was far inferior to the stern battles, not only of Pointer and Patchen, but also of seveaal others of the fast amblers that marked a new era. Magnificent, royally gorgeous, a triumphant tour of gold and brocade, and banners flying, "all the pomp," if little of the chivalry, of the days of knight errantry, if that can be called a triumph.

California has not been behind in furnishing her portion of sensational pacers. In fact Searchlight and Betonica have elicited nearly as much talk and printed comments as the bright particular stars of the harness-racing world. Especially Betonica. The speed shown may be termed ultra-marvelous when that was acquired so rapidly as to be phenomenal. From a workout in 2:12¼ at San Jose, 2:10½ the fifth heat of a race the next week at Los Angeles, and only a few days further along,2:06¾ a public trial at Santa Ana "last half" in 1:01¼, and according to all accounts quarters at a rate that would make the Star stretch his neck. Then again the startling intelligence that Palo Alto had sent a pacer through the circuit, though as Betonica was broken (he may have been foaled there) at Vina, the up country rancho may be charged with the hetherodox hero. And still more wonderful, according to some of the experts on the horse, Azmoor, the sire of Betonica, half thoroughbred, without counting the scattering strains, and his dam by Wildidle, a grand racehorse and getter of race horses, the sire of his dam. A racing-shaped fellow this side-wheeler, and while the late Bruce Lowe, one of the best judges of form, claimed that a leg bent at the hock, so as to give a forward angle was inimical to a racehorse, inasmuch as it was likely to give too long a stride, a majority of pacers are a bit short in their stride.

Joe Wheeler must not be left out of the list of California pacers, and Anaconda, too, will enforce attention. That Joe can go faster, with apparently little exertion, than any of them, is my belief, and as he raced under a "heap" of disadvantages, 18:8 may find him in the first flight.

I have a filly by Whips from Santa Cruz by XX, her dam Eliza by Norfolk—Mary Wade by Woodburn that shows pacing capacity and as Mary Wade is one of the thoroughbred strains in Joe Wheeler's pedigree,and he has two more Lexington crosses—my filly has four strains of the hero of Woodburn—the pace may have come from that source.

Anaconda is a "natural born" racehorse and made some wonderful strides towards the front position among the pacers so there is little hazard in predicting that if all our pacers stay at home, there will be exceedingly sharp controversies to settle the question of supremacy..

QUINN'S OINTMENT

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well-known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bell Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches, it has no equal.

Price $1.50. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail.

Remember, the closing entries to the Occident Stake is set at January 1, 1898. Every owner of a colt or filly should make an entry in this event.

Thos. Keating is to take a trip to Honolulu, H. I. He has been a sufferer from bronchitis, and the trip and a sojourn in this beautiful isle of the sea will greatly benefit him.

Ed. Tipton, the manager of the Butte and Anaconda tracks, will be in Denver in a few days to make arrangements to have a two-weeks' race meeting there some time during June of next year.

The directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will, no doubt, change the title to the one proposed by the Breeder and Sportsman, viz, California Horse Breeders Association, when the latter is incorporated.

Chas. A. Durfee purchased Miss Jessie 2:14, and will bring the great McKinney 2:11 to Oakland next month. We predict he will have little trouble in filling his book with the names of good mares. Every owner of a McKinney says he has a two-minute performer.

Jimmy Hague, 2:13¾, and Lillian Sidney, 2:14½, will hereafter be driven as a team, on the Chicago boulevards, by C. G. K. Billings. Mr. Billings bought Jimmy Hague at auction at the Splan sale last week, and paid the purchaser of Lillian Sidney, at the same sale, an advance over her auction price in order to secure her.

There is no truth in the story now going the rounds of the Eastern papers about the permanent retirement of Orrin Hickok, one of the oldest knights of the sulkey in America. Hickok is now in this city, and states that he will do no driving in 1898, that he fully expects to do so in 1899. He is taking a year's rest at the suggestion of his physician.

Marcus Daly's Bitter Root Farm in Montana is a wonderful estate. It contains 16,000 acres, and has on it some 600 horses. It employs 425 men the year round, and the stables and quarters are a marvel. Every stall is lighted by an electric light, the walls and partitions are of two-inch plank, with a dead air space in each, and in every particular the place is fit for human beings.

Circuit formation for the season of 1898 should now be given the earnest attention and consideration of association managers. There will be no harness racing in Montana next year, which makes it all the more necessary to form a circuit at home. Early action on the part of managers in arranging dates will greatly stimulate the racing interest, which will react in their favor by more horses being trained, consequently a larger entry list.

News was received in Petaluma of the death of T. T. Unckless better known as "Daddy Unckless" which occurred in Portland, Oregon, on November 30th, at the home of his daughter Mr. Collins. The veteran horseman has been ailing for some time and left this city a short time ago thinking that the change might be beneficial to his health. "Daddy" had a large circle of friends who will be grieved to hear of his death. The deceased was about eighty years of age and a native of England.—Argus.

Mr. Ed A. Tipton last week bought the following highly-bred youngsters: From Dr. W. F. Galbreath, this county, the two-year old chestnut filly Frances Mays, by Red Wilkes, dam Mary Mays (dam of Ralph Wilkes, 2:06¾), by Mambrino Patchen. From Mr S. D. Clay, of Bourbon county, the two-year-old bay filly by Baron Wilkes, out of Lamberta (dam of Baronet (4) 2:11¼; Barolite, 2:21¾, and Jingles, 2:28½) by Daniel Lambert. From Mr. John H. Gilbert, of Lexington, the yearling grey filly Annie Foushee, by Red Wilkes, dam Anna B. (grandam of Limerick (2) 2:19½), by Hambletonian Mambrino. Besides being a highly bred lot, these fillies are first class individuals. Instead of returning to Montana at any early date, as has been reported, Mr. Tipton will spend the winter in Lexington.

The announcement that Miller & Sibley, the well-known breeders of Franklin, Pa., have leased the farms at Lexington, Ky., recently managed by the late Barney Tracy, will be good news in more sense than one. It means that a splendid farm which has long been identified with the raising of blooded horses and which is most admirably situated for this business, is to be continued to this use and it means further that Messrs. Miller & Sibley are to become more active in the horse industry than they have been in recent years. All of their horses are to be removed from Franklin, Pa., by the first of the year and Charles Marvin will go to Lexington to superintend their care. The change, it is believed will be very beneficial, as the season in Kentucky is much earlier than about Franklin and the weather is more generally suited for constant training. It is understood that Messrs. Miller & Sibley have taken a lease of seven hundred acres for seven years.

Mr. A. B. Spreckels offered a resolution at the annual meeting of the P. C. T. H. B. Association which is a good one, and that is that hobbles should be abolished at all trotting and pacing races. It is a curious fact, but nevertheless a true one, that this gentleman was the first one in California to use this kind of "leg jewelry." In the early seventies he purchased Jennie (dam of Hulda, 2:08¼) and as she was inclined to be mix-gaited, he determined to make her trot. In those days the secrets of balancing trotters were unknown and the young man cudgeled his brain to find some way by which he could overcome her uneven way of going, so he drew a sketch of a set of hobbles and had them made by a harness maker in this city, and after using them a while got his mare going smoothly. Then he discarded them and today they are ornamenting the harness room at the Aptos Stock Farm. In appearance, they are heavy and cumbersome, but with this exception they are exactly the same as those in use to-day. Mr. Spreckels always smiles when he looks at them and thinks of the predictions of instantaneous death which greeted him when he first put them on his good game mare's legs. He says he knew what hobbles are capable of doing and ever since has dreaded to see them used on horses in races where lives and property are endangered by them.

The great brood mare Alma Mater produced fourteen foals of which eight have public records in 2:30 and better, two others have records of 2:31¼ and 2:32, and one other has gone a public trial in 2:26½, Alma Mater and twelve of her produce have been sold at different times for the snug sum of $97,575. P. S. Talbert once refused the snug sum of $25,000 for Alastion, by Sultan out of Alma Mater. Alma Wilton, now three years old, by Wilton out of Alma Mater, is the last of her illustrious dam's foals. The late Dr. Talbert paid $400 for Alma Mater when she was one year old, and finally realized $64,750 from her and eleven of her foals.

Several turf journals have recently published as a sage remark, and as if it settled the question, a statement of Ed. A. Tipton that hopples must go. Hopples will go, because they are an accident-producing contrivance. They will go, because the time has arrived when drivers who value their lives will not drive in a race with a horse that wears them. It is inevitable that a rule will be passed by the two great trotting associations prohibiting the use of them in races. It has come to a pretty pass when a horse must wear two sets of harness, one on his back and another under his belly, to make him trot. The writer decided four years ago that hopples will go in time, when he saw four horses piled one on top of the other, with two drivers underneath, all due to one horse having his legs tied together. The quicker the turf rids itself of the devil's contrivance the better it will be for all concerned, drivers, owners and breeders. The two greatest drivers on the American turf have pronounced against them, and will not use them. This will do more to abolish them than any mere statement that they must go.

Oats is the best grain food for horses. The breeders of horses should bear this in mind and make ample provision for a supply of oats, particularly for their young and growing stock. For bone and muscle development no grain food goes further than a proper supply of oats and wheat bran. Corn is a fattening food, but is lacking in material to build the bony and muscular structure. On all breeding farms steps should be taken to raise a liberal supply of clover hay, and oats. It is almost impossible to raise colts in a thrifty manner and give to them good size and quality without oats and clover hay. Size has become such an important requisite in the sale of horses, at good prices, that it cannot be ignored, and it is only by good feed and good care and proper shelter that such growth can be obtained. In addition to oats and clover hay if colts can be turned to pasture in winter on rye fields for a few hours a day such thrift and growth can be obtained as to make yearlings look like two-year-olds. The negligent system in horse raising will no longer pay. Only the best will bring remunerative prices. Pedigree and size and quality are indispensable nowadays.

From the Valparaiso, Chili, Times of October 23, we learn that great preparations are now being made for the races under the auspices of the Valparaiso Sporting club, which open on Thursday next. The program of entries shows the names of the best horses in Chili and some good sport is anticipated. With the exception of the steeplechase, good fields will face the starter in every event. For the convenience of the general public, and especially ladies, we understand that the directory this year proposes to erect special grand stands, which will be a very great boon. All the "ramadas" are already taken and soon the directory will have to take into consideration the advisability of increasing the number of these comfortable family stands. Amongst the sporting community there is this year great enthusiasm shown, and the sales of the names of the horses in the different events in many of the cafes are realizing large amounts. Everything gives promise of the different meets of the Sporting club providing good sport. From which we may infer that though the racing equipment in Chili is by no means first class, speculations on results is as brisk as it is elsewhere.

C. X. Larrabee, proprietor of Brook-Nook Stock Farm in Montana, bought the well-bred stallion Alfonso, 2:29¾, at the Splan-Newgass sale in Chicago last week. Alfonso is the son of Baron Wilkes, 2:18, the greatest sire of extreme speed in the world, and his dam is the unqualifiedly great mare Alma Mater. Baron Wilkes, 2:18, sired Bumps, 2:04; Rubenstein, 2:05; Rachel, 2:09½; Oakland Baron, 2:09¼; Baron Rogers, 2:09¾, and forty-five others with records of 2:30 or better. Alma Mater, by Mambrino Patchen 58, besides being the dam of Alfonso, is also the dam of Alcyone, 2:27; Alcantara, 2:23; Allandorf, 2:19½, Arbiter, 2:29¾. Besides these producing sons, Alma Mater is the dam of Alicia, 2:30; Amami, 2:28¾; Almater, 2:28. Alfonso himself is the sire of eight in the list at eleven years of age, which is more than his brother in blood, Alcantara, had at the same age. It is more than Red Wilkes, Onward, Nutwood, Electioneer and many other famous sires had at that age. His stud season has been very limited the past few years, owing to the sickness of his late owner. Alfonso is a seal brown, 15.2½ hands high, and weighs 1130 pounds. He is perfectly sound and is possessed of extreme speed, for he was only out of the paddock seventeen days when he took his record. Alfonso, no doubt, will be placed in the stud at Mr. Larrabee's Montana farm. The price paid for him was $2,250.

Too much precaution cannot be taken by the owners of valuable horses against the awful results of fire. The desirability of having separate buildings for stallions so that in case of fire they are not so readily exposed and the further benefit of having the stallion barn of brick or stone, if possible, is generally understood if not always followed out. But if no extra precaution is taken in the way of separate buildings every farm should have some appliance right at hand by the aid of which an incipient blaze can be checked and a serious conflagration possibly prevented. When nothing more elaborate is arranged, small chemical engines, hand grenades or something of the kind that are not expensive but always effective, should be provided. The Scientific American recently published simple directions where nothing else has done and may prove of value. Take twenty pounds of common salt and ten pound of sal ammoniac (nitre ammonia, to be had at any druggist), and dissolve in seven gallons of water. Procure quart bottles of thin glass, such as are ordinarily used by druggists, and fill with this, corking tightly and sealing, to prevent evaporation. In case of fire throw so as to break in or near the flame. If the fire is in such a place as to prevent the bottle from breaking, as in wool or cotton, knock off the neck and scatter the contents. The breaking of the bottles liberates a certain amount of gas, and the heat of the fire generates more, thus working its own destruction.

With the largest plant of the kind in the world, the greatest facilities, and backed up by thirty-two years of experience, the American Shearer Manufacturing Company, Nashua, N. H., are certainly in a position to verify their claims that no manufacturer can turn out a clipping machine that, for quality, durability and service, can surpass Priest's Clipping and Grooming Machines. The company guarantees its machines to be the best that experience and skill can produce, and that no machine, quality and durability considered, is as cheap. The constant repairing of cheap machines usually amounts to several times the original cost, and the American Shearer Company believe that the best is the most economical. At any rate, their experience and the fact that they have no dissatisfied patrons are matters of significance to buyers. Get their catalogue before buying. It costs nothing but the price of a postal card, and may mean many dollars to you if you intend purchasing a clipper.

A horse that carries a small head well up in a showy manner is always admired—s bject, of course, to a tolerably correct form at other points of his frame. Such a style of carriage is not only beautiful, but is otherwise of importance. A horse with a large and drooping head shou'd be avoided. If a horse is carefully weighed it is found that the fore legs take more than half the body weight, and the position of the head considerably affects the weight on the legs. If the head be raised up when the fore part of the horse's body is weighed, the weight on the fore legs will be found to be carrying over twenty pounds less weight than if the head was dependant. The practical application of the fact was obvious—buy horses that carry their heads properly, and keep a stumbler well in hand. It may be added that, as a horse's head weighs between 40 and 50 pounds, the position in which he maintains it is of importance. The fore limbs, which are generally the first to give way, and the most severely taxed, should be relieved of their burden as much as possible.

The chances are quite favorable for a good race meet at Kapiolani Park in the beginning of the year. A meeting of the Jockey Club will be called for the purpose of considering the matter. There are a number of animals in and about Honolulu itching to stretch their legs and their owners are just as anxious to have them do so. The introduction of some stock which has been imported in the Islands since the Kamehameha day meet would add considerable interest to the racing. The movement started some little time ago to raise funds for the purpose of putting the track in proper condition met with good success. In the neighborhood of $1,500 was subscribed by horsemen, members of the Jockey Club, merchants and business men. Of this amount $800 has been collected and in the care of the committee. The remainder is gilt edged. The horsemen are determined that the sport shall not die out in Honolulu. They say that a town that can support a half dozen baseball clubs, three football elevens, two cricket teams, a golf club, athletic club and a Cyclomere, can certainly keep up sufficient interest in horseracing to have semi-annual meets. It is their plan to have races on June 11th—Kamehameha day—and late in the fall. Once the track is in first class shape there will be smooth sailing. The horsemen who are interested in this undertaking will come together shortly to discuss the advisability of proceeding with the work of improving the track.—Honolulu Star.

Down in Arcola, Ill., they have a keen sense of humor when it comes to trading or selling horses. Not so long ago—it was a month—one Frank Devore was the owner of a horse and wagon with which he was wont to do odd jobs of light hauling. One night he stopped his outfit—which, by the way, included a wondrously pieced and mended harness—before John Shea's restaurant on North Oak street. The restauranter came out and began to banter the owner for a deal on the horse and wagon, with the harness thrown in as a necessary part of the outfit. Devore asked for a bid and Shea replied that he would give a supper and five ham sandwiches off the counter for the lot. "It's yours," was the response, and Shea took the beast off to his stable. That night the animal, finding himself in strange quarters, developing an inquiring turn of mind and, slipping his halter, a trick of which he is a past master, nosed around until he found the corn bin and, as corn is now selling in Arcola, devoured twenty cents worth of grain, returning to his stall when full, and no doubt sleeping the sleep of repletion. In the morning he ate a hearty meal, when it was placed before him, but when the work of the midnight marauder came to light, Shea sent for Devore, and offered him twenty-five cents to take the beast off his hands. "It's a trade," again laconically remarked Devore, and drove the horse away, disposing of the lot a few moments later for the sum of one dollar each to a peddler on Main street. Great, indeed, are the transactions in horse flesh in Arcola, Ill.

Here is an English diction concerning the important operation known as weanling foals: "The foal is usually weaned when from five to six months old. The youngster will, doubtless, become a little fractious at first, but this will easily be conquered in time. It is not altogether desirable to treat the foal to artifical food before he is weaned, although for show purposes many argue that flesh is necessary and give accordingly concentrated food in the form of bran, linseed cake and oats. There is not so much objection to the latter, as it is a bone and muscle-forming food, but linseed cake, with its fattening properties, should never be used. Gross feeders only make use of it, believing, doubtless, that flesh covers a multitude of faults. The young animal should not be forced. At the same time, it is equally essential to observe that the foal-flesh is kept on the ribs. A backward month with a young foal will not be recovered in three times the time when he is older, especially if he is inteaded for the showyard as a yearling or two-year-old. If the dam has a fair supply of milk the foal will manage to pick up his living, and be all the better for it in after years. A few weeks before weaning begin with a little bruised oats. The mare and foal will both benefit by this food. If the mare has been subject to hard work and the foal allowed access periodically only, it is well to give the dam a little concentrated food. If the grass season is over at weaning time, put the foal into a loose box and give it 2 or 3 pounds of bruised oats per diem. A little green food should also be fed; fresh cut grass would do well, or a little tare, if handy. Fresh water, too, is an important element. It should be frequently offered. If a pasture has been purposely saved for the foal, equal parts of boiled barley, oats and chaff, would form a capital adjunct."

THE SADDLE.

SALVOR, a recent winner at Iron Hill, is by the mighty Salvator out of the great mare Vandalite.

ST. ROGUE, a recent winner at New Orleans, is by imp St. Blaise out of Ella T., dam of Tea Tray, &c.

CAKE WALK, a recent Iron Hill winner, is by The Bard —Heel and Toe, therefore a sister to Song and Dance and Frank Jaubert.

AMERICUS, formerly Rey de Caredes, won £555 on the English turf this year. Armitage, by Surinam—Paloma, started five times but never finished inside the money.

JOCKEY DICK CLAWSON is under suspension by Starter Ferguson, who says that the boy pulled up on Judge Stouffer at the barrier because he did not have the best of the start.

THE great Magnet, bred on the same lines as St. Carlo, will be exhibited Monday night at the time the Macdonough yearlings are to be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange.

JOSEPH A. MURPHY, presiding judge at Ingleside and Oakland, has been officially notified that he has been reappointed secretary of the St. Louis Fair Grounds Association.

SALVADO broke the coast record for a mile and a sixteenth Monday when he took up 107 lbs. and ran the distance in 1:46½. The mile from wire to wire was run in 1:39, the first five furlongs in 1:00.

L'ALOUETTE'S win of The Futurity gave turfmen faith in the ability of fillies, and it spread to California, where the highest price paid for a yearling this year was for a filly—the one by St. Carlo—imp. Kissing Crust.

NEW YORK, December 21.—W. L. Powers announced to night that he purchase Hamburg for Marcus Daly, of Montana, and that the great two-year-old will race here next season. He will be trained by William Lakeland.

BLISS RUCKER'S mile in 1:40 is the record at the distance for a two-year-old, we believe. He could have gone it a little faster, too. The Salvators, like their sire, fancy a long route, and it is of such stuff that Derby-winners are made.

THE St. Carlo yearlings brought the largest average at the sales here this winter—$980. The Morellos yearlings came next, averaging $559.37. Among the untried sires, the Golden Garters and Watercresses showed well to the front.

T. W. MOORE sold last week to P. Dunne the brown yearling colt, Prince Harry, by Harry O'Fallon—Nyleptha, for $1,500. This colt worked last month a quarter in 23½ seconds, and looks the race horse all over.—Thoroughbred Record.

WE only hope The Examiner was right when it said Prince Poniatowski had entered the ranks of turfmen. He is a thorough sportsman, a splendid judge of a horse, and besides, has an ample fortune, which will enable him to buy the best horses in the market.

A. B. SPRECKELS made a ten-strike when he secured the services of St. Carlo for 1898. The great horse will be mated with the Macdonough mares, and after that the Spreckels mares go to Menlo Farm. Every St. Carlo yearling can be counted as worth $1,000 at the least.

THE Owen Brothers of Fresno have purchased for breeding purposes the grandly bred horse Wernberg, once a great racer. Zeke Abrahams tried to win a race with the Burns & Waterhouse cast off, but found the task too difficult and gave it up. He should make a success at the stud, bred as he is.

JOE ROSE, the well-known young bookmaker, did not go on last Saturday, and thereby hangs a tale. He is out something over $2,600, and where it went or who got it is a mystery he cannot unravel. The supposition is it was extracted by some sneak-thief while everybody working on the book was busy.

COL. M. LEWIS CLARK is still in the city, but meditates going to California directly after his son's marriage, which takes place in a week or so. Col. Clark has been re engaged to preside in Harlem's stand during next season, and will doubtless handle whatever running meetings may obtain locally.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE well-known thoroughbred sire, Jils Johnson, died at the home of Frank B. Harper, his owner, Thursday, of colic. He was 21 years old, sired by Longfellow—Fannie Wells, by Sovereign. He was a good race horse and during his earlier years in the stud a succeseful sire.—Lexington (Ky.) dispatch, December 17th.

AT a meeting of the St. Louis Fair Grounds Association held Thursday of last week the following officials were elected: Robert Aull, President; A. B. Ewing, First Vice President; James Campbell, Second Vice President; Charles Clark, Third Vice President; Joseph A. Murphy, Secretary; William Lockwood, Treasurer.

THE career of the brown St. Carlo—imp. Kissing Crust filly, St. Kristine, will be watched with interest by those interested in thoroughbred horses, for the reason that she brought the highest price of the season in California for a yearling ($2,500). She is in the hands of the crack young trainer, Jimmy Coffey, who will give every opportunity to prove that she is worth the sum paid for her.

THE late W. H. Leigh's horses were sold at the St. Louis Fair Grounds December 15th, as follows: Horse Shoe Tobacco, b c, 4 by Phœnix—Sarmienta, W. L. Cassidy, $730; chestnut colt, 1, by Kosciusko—Eaglemere, W. L. Cassidy, $375; black colt, 1, by Blazes—Wishbere, W. L. Cassidy, $135; Sam Tracy, b c, 2, by King Galop—Betsy, was sold to J. C. Meyers for $25, and Serenia to H. J. McCune for $40.

THE Americans now racing in England have enjoyed a good season. A partial list of their several winning reads: Pierre Lorillard, $31,970; Lord Beresford, his partner, $33,435; August Belmont, $160; Richard Croker, $5,260 and J. R. Keene, $1,725 John Gubbins, owner of Galtee More, heads the last of English owners with $113,695; L. D. Rothschild, second, $87,420, and Prince of Wales, tuird, $78,850

JOCKEY "HYP" CHEVALIER, who was mixed up in the Little Pete scandal and afterward ruled off by the jockey club, has applied to the Turf Congress for reinstatement. Chevalier is at present at New Orleans. Since being ruled off in the West Chevalier has been riding at the outlawed tracks in the East, where Chorn and Heinrichs, two more of Little Pete's associates, also took mounts during the past season.

H. D. ("CURLY") BROWN is steadily making his way to the front as a starter, and during this coming year will preside over the starting gate at a number of excellent racing points, such as Nashville, Detroit, Newport, Fort Erie, Toronto, and perhaps he will get work at several other places. We predicted years ago that Brown would make a great name for himself, and he has done it, for his starting has been uniformly good.

IT would not surprise us to hear of Marcus Daly purchasing the grandly-bred, superb race horse, Maguet, of Dan Honig at an early date, and it would be a sorry day, and be saying little for our breeders, if this horse, sure to be one of the best sires in the country, were allowed to leave California. He's a dirt cheap horse at $5,000, and we understand Mr. Honig will take that for him—on a pinch. He has refused an offer of $3,500 within the week.

JOE PIGGOTT is again on the fence. Mr. Corrigan says he has done all he can to persuade Piggott that he is a jockey and should assume his responsibilities, but the lad don't realize it, and so his employer decided to allow him to exercise for a while. Sundays always seem to land Piggott in trouble. He has an idea that they don't count and never shows up, even when requested. If there are jockeys more kid-like than Piggott we don't where they reside.

ED. PURSER'S good colt, Yankee Doodle, was "boosted' $500 above his entered selling price after winning the last race Saturday. Tommy Griffin did the hoisting and as his Break o' Day was only beaten a head for the money, Griffin actually takes down more than first money, for Purser retained his horse at $5 advance, which gave Griffin $252.50 of the run up, and second money, $50; $302.50 in a $300 purse. Not so bad for the irrepressible selling race boy.

CINCINNATI, December 20—The Western Turf Congress met here today with all the clubs represented, save the Washington Park, Detroit and Pacific Coast. During the session all the horses, horsemen and officials that raced at Pimlico during the first four days of this month in violation of the rule which prohibits racing in the North after December 1st were reinstated. The rules were changed to permit cities of 200,000 population to offer $250 purses, instead of $300.

THE German Emperor has rather a dislike for racing, because he regards it as giving encouragement to gambling, but he is, indirectly, the largest owner of race horses in Germany, as the Graditz stud belongs to the crown, and the horses trained there have won more than those of any other owner. The Graditz stud has been credited with nearly £12,500, while the only other owners who have won more than £4,000 are Herr May, Her Simon, Prince Furstenberg and Baron von Oertzen.

JOHN MCCAFFERTY has sent Requital to winter in New Jersey. The horses purchased by W. C. Whitney in Kentucky last week will be raced next year. It is not known whether they will run in W. C. Whitney's name or that of his son, H. P. Whitney, but it is more than likely that they will run in the name and colors of the latter. W. P. Burch has been engaged to train the lot, and they will winter with the horses in the stable of F. R. & T. Hitchcock, Jr. Burch trains all the horses of the Hitchcocks that run on the flat.

THE Horsemen's Protective Association held a meeting today and decided not to accede to the wishes of The Jockey Club and disband. When the decision of the association was announced, J. J. Hiland, the president; W. C. Rollins, the secretary; James Rowe, A. J. Joiner and Frederick Taral withdrew from it. They said that they had found it to their interest to resign, but declared that they are not particularly opposed to the continuance of the protective association, which is largely composed of horse-owners, trainers and jockeys.—N. Y. dispatch, December 15th.

SUCH a sale of yearlings as was held last Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange is mighty encouraging to breeders. It teaches them that they must get a good tried sire to place at the head of their studs, and while they are raising colts and fillies by such a horse they can afford to take a chance with a young stallion bred on sire lines that has proven worthy. It's a wonder breeders, considering the prices the sons and daughters of St. Carlo brought, don't go on a still hunt for St. Blaise horses. It was the sire's reputation that made those youngsters go like hot cakes at big prices, for most of the dams of the babies were young matrons that had not thrown a winner.

ON January 10th, 1898, there will be a great combination sale of thoroughbreds, at which the following, among others, will be sold: Ethel Dixon, blk m, by Blazes—Henrietta, by Harry of the West; three Morellos, two Trentolas; Sadie W. (a grand race mare), by Hayden Edwards—Petulance, by Stratford; five Brutus yearlings from Elmwood Stock Farm; Duke of Norfolk and several of his get out of Wildidle mares; Fig Leaf, Joe Terry, Potentate and two grandly-bred yearlings, besides others that will be announced hereafter. Anyone having horses to consign to this, the first combination sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange, should notify W. G. Layng & Co. at once, so that their merits can be set before the public in a proper manner. Wm. Fitch, the clarion-voiced auctioneer, will officiate, as usual, and we all know what the result will be.

THE police intended to raid the Chicago pool-rooms December 17th, but the proprietor got the tip and when the "peelers" made their appearance there was nothing doing. The Inter Ocean printed a list of the establishments as follows: Horace Argo, No. 255 South Clark street; Smith & Perry, No. 256 South Clark street; J. E. Wagner, No. 262 South Clark street; J. E. Wagner, No. 169 South Clark street; Leo Mayer, No. 12 Plymouth place; Harry McKenna, No. 17 Plymouth place; James O'Leary, Nos. 11 and 23 Plymouth place; Harry Hoffman, No. 14 Custom House place; Louie Metz, State and Polk streets; Frank McWhorter, No. 3846 South State street; Ben White, No. 26 Jackson boulevard; John O'Neill, No. 244 Wabash avenue; James O'Leary No. 4185 South Halsted street.

CONLEY'S riding is not generally admired, but it is of the "get there" order nevertheless. After one of his wins this week Tom Ryan made this comment: "That colored boy will break some of these gamblers who are laying against everything he rides. Conley may get off badly sometimes, but he can finish with any of them." "This is in Conley's favor," asserted Dan Honig, who overheard the conversation. "Conley knows the shortest way 'round the track, which only a few riders have found, I think he can beat most of the boys riding here." Conley's ability is best shown in his work on long shots. He has been marvelously successful with them, and as a result is known as "Long-Shot" Conley.

THE following are the weights for the Flood handicap for three-year-old, to be run December 25th, at the Oakland track, one and one-half miles, purse $1,500: Scarborough, 110; Don Clarencio, 106; Miss Trillion, 100; imp. Sain, 110; Destra, 00; Altamax, 127; Candelaria, 116; Colonel Wheeler, 112; Osric II, 108; General Arthur, 107; Parthemax, 112, Tom Smith, 105; Fanny S., 90; Estaca, 116; Vincitor, 115; Claudiana, 100; Nonchalance, 105; Personne, 105; Loch Ness, 104; imp. Devil's Dream, 110; Charlie Reif, 103; Ethelinda, 103; Sandow III., 95; Sly, 100; Naranja, 100; C. S. Bush, 105; Rey del Tierra, 110; Greyhurst, 112; Aquinas, 107; Sister Hazel, 90. Winners of other than selling races after date will carry five pounds penalty.

The new Louisville Jockey Club has opened eight stakes for its fifteen day spring meeting to begin May 4. Here is the list: Debutante Stakes for 2 year old fillies, ½ mile, value $1 300; Wenonah Stakes for 2-year-old colts and geldings, 4½ furlongs, value $1,300; Louisville Handicap, for 3-year-olds and upward, 1 mile, value, $1,500; Blue Grass Stakes, for 3-year-olds that have not won a sweepstake or two races prior to the time of entry, 6½ furlongs, value, $1 300; Mademoiselle Stakes, for 3 year-old fillies, selling, 7-8 mile, value, $1,300; Premier stakes, for three-year-olds, value, $1,300; Frank Fehr Stakes, for 3 year-olds and upward, selling, 1 mile, value, $1,300; Juvenile Stakes, for 2-year-olds, selling, 5-8 mile, value, $1 300. Besides the above stakes, the $6,000 Kentucky Derby, $3,000 Kentucky Oakes, and $4,000 Clark Stakes are to be run at the spring meeting.

THERE are about 300 high class sires located in Great Britain for the season now commencing, and among the new sires added are the following, nearly all of whom raced this year: Florizel II, by St. Simon, the property of the Prince of Wales, at the Heath Stud Farm, Newmarket; Worcester, by Saraband, at the same establishment; Blairfinde, (brother to the Derby winner, Galtee More), at Bruree, Limerick; Tanzmeister, by Saraband, at Broome Manor, Swindon; Green Lawn, by Kendal; The Owl, by Wisdom, and Count Schomberg, out of Regimunde, by Petronel, at Sheffield Lane; Best Man, by Melton, at Bowbury Stud; Bedford and Perigord, by St. Simon; St. Florian, by St. Simon, at Knockarry, Ireland; Whittier, by Laureate, at Meakston Hall, Yorkshire, where is also Dare Devil, by Robert the Devil; Victor Wild, by Albert Victor, at Lordship Farm, and many others, not to mention the Australian sires, Trenton, by Musket, and Carbine's near relative, Canage, at Cobham.

AS MIGHT have been expected, the steeplechase jockey, James Mars, was condemned promptly by the stewards of the National Steeplechase Associa ion, at their recent meeting. On November 13th, he rode Mars Chan, a favorite, in the concluding steeplechase. His ride was so bad that the stewards suspended him at once and reported the case to the stewards of the National Steeplechase Association. The stewards at the meeting were S. Howland Robbins, J. G. Heckscher, Fred Gebhard, J. G. Follansbee, Dr. J. O. Green and Col. Edward Morrell. Mara claimed that Mars Chan had no speed and that he did not wish to punish him unnecessarily. The excuse did not prevail and the stewards ruled him off. Action in the case of the steeplechase jockeys, McInerny and Dunlap, was deferred, as the stewards are desirous of giving them a hearing. They likewise put up inferior races at the Bennings meeting and were suspended. The stewards are determined to elevate 'cross country sport to the same high level which it has attained abroad, particularly in France, where the sport has risen to even a higher plane than in England, all because of vigorous management.

THE great California racing firm, Burns & Waterhouse, has twenty-seven yearlings in training. They have all been named, and the list with pedigrees is given below: Cosenza, b f, by imp. Midlothian—Cosette; Midlove, b f, by imp. Midlothian—Free Love; Lothian, b c, by imp. Midlothian—Loleta; Napian, b c, by imp. Midlothian—Napa; Polka, ch c, by imp. Midlothian—Minuet; Engea, b f, by imp. Goldfinch—Firefly; Bullion, ch c, by imp. New Ideas Adopted.

The editor of this journal has offered suggestions to the directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association ever since the last meeting at Oakland, and it was a gratification to see that at the last meeting of the Board of Directors they were adopted. The incorporation of this organization, and the probability that it will be known hereafter as the California Horse Breeders Association, cannot be too highly commended, The report of the meeting, which appears in another column, shows that there is a disposition on the part of the directors to introduce methods which will inspire confidence and restore light-harness horse racing to its former standing, bring out the crowds to witness the exciting finishes, and make every one feel that they should repeat the visit. The time has arrived when every member should keep the great industry intact, and not only the members, but the officers should also endeavor to do their share. There is no time to be lost. No useless expenditures must be allowed. New stakes must be arranged, which will meet with the approval of the horsemen, and to get the expression of the members they should be printed and forwarded to every member, asking that they give their opinion regarding them and also that they offer some suggestions which may prove beneficial to the great industry.

The election of Prof. E. P. Heald for the fifth time to the presidency shows how well he stands in the estimation of the directors of this Association. He stated that he would devote more time and attention to the affairs of the Association, and with the assistance of the officers will work hard to make the meeting of 1898 a success. That he will do so is a foregone conclusion.

Coney Island Jockey Club Stakes.

The attention of turfmen on this coast is called to the many rich stakes of the C. I. J. C. now open and booked to close January 10, 1898. The Futurity, America's richest two-year-old event, closes January 4, 1898. The latter has $8,750 added. Following are the stakes. For the June meeting, 1898, for three-year-olds and upwards: The Suburban, cash value $10,000, one mile and a quarter; The June Handicap, cash value, three races, $5,000; Coney Island, $1,000, six furlongs; Sheepshead Bay, $1,500, one mile; Long Island, $2,000, one mile and a furlong; The Grass Inaugural, added money $750, six furlongs on turf; for three-years-old, The Swift, added money $1,000, seven furlongs; The Spendthrift Handicap, added money $1,000, one mile and a furlong; for two-years-old, The Great Trial, cash value $20,000, Futurity course; The Double Event, cash value $10,000; First part, $5,000, five and a half furlongs; Second part, $5,000, Futurity course; The Zephyr, added money $1,000, Futurity course; The Spring, added money $1,000, Futurity course; The June added money $1,000, Futurity course; The Vernal, for fillies, added money $1,000, five furlongs; The Daisy, added money $750, five furlongs on turf; The Pansy, added money $750, six furlongs on turf.

For the Autumn meeting, 1898, for two years old—The Great Eastern Handicap, cash value $5,000, Futurity course; The Autumn, cash value $3,000, Futurity course; The Flatbush, cash value $3,000, seven furlongs. For two years old and upwards—The Flight, added money $1,250, seven furlongs. For three years old—The September, added money $1,250, one mile and three furlongs. In all races where the added money is $750, the starting will be $30, the forfeit $15, or only $5, if declared out by May 15th. Races with $1,000 added, the starting fee will be $50, the forfeit $20, or only $10 if declared out by May 15th. See the advertisement in this issue.

To Determine Which is the Champion.

As several turf writers throughout the country have been suggesting stakes that will prove attractive alike to to turfmen and race-goers, we will try our hand at it. The winner of the following stakes would be real champions, for there are no penalties attached to winning and no allowances on any score. As all the races would be run late in the fall or early in the winter, the distances have been lengthened as much as possible. Where penalties are imposed for winning the question of which is really the best horse cannot be determined, and where a maiden gets a big allowance, and is saved for a particular race and wins, it puts people at sea as to whether the victorious one is really a champion or not. Then as to getting up a stake that will attract the attention of turfmen all over the country. Liberality is recognized every time. With $10 making horses eligible for three stakes, any one worth from $5,000 to $8,000, the starting fee to be paid the day before the race comes off, with judicious advertising, the result would be a list of entries of astonishing length and the best horses in America starting in the three stakes. On the day any of these stake races were to be decided the grounds would hardly be adequate to hold the mass of humanity gathered at the track, and thus the club offering the stakes would be well repaid for its liberality, the winning owners would gather in tidy little fortunes and the race-going public would have something to enthuse over every time the name of one of the great winners was mentioned.

No. 1—The Pacific Coast Champion Two-year-old Stakes, horses to be entered when yearlings, race to be run the last Saturday in November of each year; colts to carry 120 pounds; geldings, 117 pounds; fillies, 115 pounds; $2,000 added; owner of second horse to receive $500 out of the stakes; owner of third horse, $250; owner of fourth horse to save stake; $10 to accompany each nomination, $90 additional to start. Horses in No. 1 eligible to Nos. 2 and 3. Six and one-half furlongs.

No. 2—The Pacific Coast Champion Three year-old Stake, horses to be entered when yearlings, race to be run on first Saturday in December of each year; colts to carry 122 pounds; geldings, 119 pounds; fillies 117 pounds, $2,000 added; owner of second horse to receive $500 out of the stakes; owner of third horse, $250; owner of third horse to save stake; $100 to start. Mile and a half.

No. 3—The Pacific Coast Champion Four-year-old Stake; horses to be entered when yearlings; race to be run the last Saturday in December of each year; colts to carry 125 pounds; geldings, 122 pounds; fillies, 122 pounds, $2,500 added; owner of second horse to receive $750; owner of third horse to receive $375; owner of fourth horse to save stake; $100 to start. Two and one-quarter miles.

Westchester Racing Association Fixtures.

This is an important season for owners, trainers and breeders, as the various racing associations are announcing fixtures to which entries will close in the near future, and considerable foresight should be exercised in making nominations. No association in the country is more deserving of patronage than the Westchester Racing Association, whose course at Morris Park is the equal of any in the country. Its labors in the interests of racing are a matter of turf history and the association is proverbial for liberality and generosity in its dealings with owners and trainers. Its fixtures are formulated with the greatest care, every effort is made to make them conform to the ideas of practical racing men and at the same time to elevate the sport and assist the breeding interests of the country.

The Westchester Racing Association announces elsewhere in this issue The Matron of $20,000, to be run at the Autumn meeting, 1900, to which entries close Tuesday, Jan. 4, which is also the date of the second closing of entries to the Nursery Handicap, for two-year-olds, to be run at the Autumn meeting, 1898.

The Matron appeals particularly to breeders, as it is for the produce of mares covered in 1897. The value is $20,000, of which $14,000 goes to the winner, $2,000 to the second, $1,000 to the third, $1,500 to the nominator of the dam of the winner, $1,000 to the nominator of the dam of the second and $500 to the nominator of the dam of the third. Mares may be nominated by other persons as well as their owner, but the owner shall have the prior right. The race will be run as two-year-olds, in the Autumn of 1900, over the Eclipse course.

The Nursery is a handicap of $5,000, for two-year olds, foals of 1896, the Eclipse course. The first closing of entries was Aug. 16, 1897. We hope to see these fixtures fill well. Entries close Jan. 4, 1898, and should be addressed to H. G. Crickmore, Clerk of the Course, 173 Fifth Avenue, New York City, from whom entry blanks and information may be secured.

Lessons for Breeders From the Sales.

The sales of yearling thoroughbreds teach a lesson to breeders. The lesson is that the sires are looked at much more than the dam when there are thoughts of buying. A better illustration could not be had than the last Macdonough sale, where the best average of the season was secured for the St. Carlos, nearly all out of young, untried mares. The top price ($2,500) was for a filly, too—one out of a mare that has not, as yet, thrown a winner, though one of her foals, Orestes, was as game a baby racer as ever looked through a bridle. Another illustration of what we say occurred at the Reis sale, where a good-looking yearling colt by Morello brought $1,525, while his dam, a fine-appearing stud matron by Himyar, and the mother of a winner, fetched but $50.

Nomad was a grand race horse, but he's an untried sire, and his youngsters brought very little. The Duncombes all race well and brought excellent prices. The same could be said of the Morellos. The Apaches are useful racers and brought all they were worth. Great race horses as were Watercress and Golden Garter, and from the most noted racing families of Great Britain, they are untried as sires and their sons and daughters did not bring one-fourth of the amount we can look for when the progeny of these celebrities have raced and won in good company.

Turfmen and breeders do not stop to consider that a yearling has at least sixty per cent of the blood of the dam coursing through its veins, still such is declared by veterinarians to be a positive fact. Yet there is little wonder that the blood-lines of the mothers are not regarded as carefully as the matter would seem to warrant when a person thinks of the sons and daughters of such horses as St. Carlo, imp. Midlothian, imp. St. Blaise, Hanover and imp. Sir Modred, and how they race. One by any of these horses that does not win a race is a rarity, instead of the successful ones being few and far between.

It would, therefore, seem a waste of time and money for those in the breeders' ranks to mate their mares with untried stallions, no matter how much racing merit the horse might have possessed (unless bred on the same lines as some of the famous sires of the country). After consideration of the sire comes the individuality of the animal led into the sales ring, then the soundness of the horse, and last of all consideration of the blood lines of the animal on the female side of the house. In England and Australia, among close students of the breeding problem, the breeding of the dam—consideration of the list of performers from her family—comes after conformation, and the book written by C. Bruce Lowe, which has attracted a vast amount of attention, makes students think more of "the dam's family" than they did once upon a time. Some day we will get up a table for America on the Bruce Lowe system, or something like it, instead of basing it upon winners of any four particular stakes, basing it on real championship form, as shown by the records. Then we will know more of the worth of those coming from "American racing families" as well as being able to calculate the merit of those that are of English, Arabian or Barb origin.

The Sales East and West.

The Spirit of the Times has the following: The prices obtained at the recent thoroughbred sales held at Lexington, Ky., and at San Francisco, Cal., prove conclusively that the thoroughbred interests as well as trotting are recovering from the depressed condition under which they have labored for the past few years. There is a good healthy tone to the market which should greatly encourage breeders, for with it comes the assurance that they will realize a fair dividend on the capital which they have invested. Overproduction was one of the chief causes of the slump in the market a few years ago, but a part of it at least could be traced to the uncertainty of racing legislation in this and other States. Confidence has been restored and the future is promising. It is to be hoped that breeders will profit by past experience and will not rush wildly into indiscriminate breeding merely because the values have risen. Quality is what every exacting purchaser of thoroughbreds demands and this should always be borne in mind by those who send horses into the sales ring.

Prices are seldom, if ever, lower than they were two-years ago, but twelve months ago the market began to show signs of improvement and that this improvement has been steady is confirmed by the sales of a year ago and those recently held. Take the two immense sales held in December, 1896, at Lexington, Ky., one by Woodard & Shanklin and the other by the Easton Company. The lots sold contained yearlings, broodmares, stallions and horses in training. The former lot included 283 head and the average price was $87; the latter included over 150 head and the average was exceedingly gratifying, even when the extremely high prices of some of the stallions sold is disregarded. At the sales recently held at Lexington, Woodward & Shanklin disposed of 383 head at an average of $280, and the Easton Company's sale averaged $248. The result were most gratifying and everyone was surprised, not dreaming that the horses offered would command such prices.

J. D. LEWIS, who owns imp. Trance, does not stand ruled off the turf, and we erred in stating so in our daily edition of Thursday. The trainer, Dan Halliday, and the mare, are under the ban, not the owner, who is held blameless in the matter of the mare's running. Mr. Lewis stated to us that he did not imagine there could be any rule against Trance running in America, because he knew that Marcelle (under the ban in the Colonies was raced at Bay District track a number of times, also that a man ruled off for life in Australia for alleged fraud had a large string racing around San Francisco. Furthermore, Trance and Disparity were, after the former was ruled off, sold to a man named Darcey, then he in turn sold her to Mr. Lewis. They were sent over in Halliday's hands to be trained, raced to win, and then, after their merits were shown, to be sold. Mr. Lewis has been visiting relatives in Connecticut for more than five months and took little interest in the animals further than to hear that they were running well and would therefore bring good prices. The Australian was not even at the track on but three occasions when she ran, for he visited around the State ("seeing the sights"), having had a surfeit of race-going in his native country. On not a single one of her races did he ever wager a cent. It was more to his interest for the mare to run well than poorly, and he stated that had she won one or two more races in good company he intended putting her up at auction in San Francisco. A petition is now being framed asking the mare's reinstatement, and Mr. Lewis will set forth the facts in the case as far as he is concerned. That the officials will see that justice is done in the matter is more than probable.

The following should be read by everyone: State Argicultural Society, Occident Stake of 1900, Trotting Stake for foals of 1897. To be trotted at the California State Fair of 1900. Entries to close January 1, 1898, with Edwin F. Smith, Secretary, at the office in Sacramento. One hundred dollars entrance, of which $10 must accompany nomination; $15 to be paid January 1, 1899; $25 to be paid January 1, 1900; and $50 thirty days before the race. The Occident Cup, of the value of $400, to be added by the Society. Mile heats, three in five, to harness. First colt to receive Cup and sixtenths; second colt, three-tenths; and third colt, one tenth of the stakes. Five to enter, three to start, otherwise N. T. A. Rules to govern. Nominators are not held for full amount of entrance in case colt goes wrong only forfeit payments made, which relieves you from further responsibility and declares entry out. This stake is growing in value each year. In 1897 it was worth $2,160. Remember, the date of closing is January 1, 1898.

THE Klondike craze will break out afresh in about four weeks and the exodus to that "golden empire" will far exceed any ever witnessed in the history of America since the "days of old, the days of gold, the days of '49." Hundreds of horses will be shipped there and those who are to use them should be sure they will pack their loads before purchasing. A little care exercised in this part of the preparatory work will save not only valuable goods but many lives also. Our advice is, do not buy an unbroken mustang, he may be crazy and as vicious as a tiger when cinched up for the journey over the rough trails in that bleak country.

THERE are more really fast horses seen on the speed track in Golden Gate Park at present than has ever been noticed before. Processions of fast pacers and trotters move to and fro over the course, and if at the next session of the Legislature a bill is passed authorizing the Park Commissioners to erect a suitable building about the center of this course, a greater interest than ever will be noticeable among those who love to ride behind a fast stepper.

THE leading turf journals of the East are advertising H. S. Bossart & Co.'s Curine. This concern has been insolvent for some time and our contemporaries should try and ascertain if they can get any money from this Latrobe (Pennsylvania) firm. We deem it a friendly duty to inform all who are striving to build up a business similar to ours to steer clear of all such advertisers.

IN another year we will have a Governor of California elected that will make everyone as happy as our present figurehead has made them miserable. Governors are not all alike but, this one, no matter what his political views may be, will be outspoken for appropriations for district fairs.

THERE will be a grand combination sale of thoroughbreds (the first one to be held in 1898) at the Occidental Horse Exchange, Monday evening, January 10th. Racehorses in training, broodmares, yearlings and two-year-olds of the very highest class will be disposed of.

SKY POINTER is the first stallion in California to have his card inserted in our business columns. He is a grand individual, beautifully bred, and will be a valuable acquisition to the ranks of fine stallions on this Coast.

THERE has been considerable "ringing" on the Eastern circuits in 1897, while in California there has not been a single instance of this nefarious scheme for robbing the public.

THE Christmas number of the Chicago Horse Review is one of the best ever issued, and is filled from cover to cover with most interesting turf matter.

The World's Records.

Printed below is a complete list of "best on records," embracing all those standing as the fastest ever made at both harness gaits and all ages and distances, including, also, race records for different heats and races of heats, the team, saddle and wagon records, those for half-mile tracks—in fact, all either of importance or interest. Carefully revised and brought up to date, it will be found the most useful and valuable compilation of its kind ever printed—one to be filed away for reference "many a time and oft" during the coming campaign on the "track around the stove." Glancing down its length it will be observed that the date of 1897 appears thirty-six times, which is evidence that last year's work was a truly notable one.

—Horse Review.

The Driver of Alix, 2:03 3-4, Says:

RED OAK Ia., June 28, 1895.

J. W. Hughes, Indianapolis, Ind.:

Dear Sir—I used your Speed Sustaining Elixir on the horse Dick, by Ira M., son of Blue Bull, in the 2:30 pace here this week. In the first two heats the horse finished tired and exhausted, dying like a bull from the head of the stretch. The time of these heats was 2:19 and 2:18¾. At the end of the second heat I administered the Speed Sustainer and finished second in third heat in 2:16. In the fourth heat he was third in 2:15, going the mile himself in 2:16 flat. Please send me personally one large bottle. It does the work.

Yours respectfully,
A. MCDOWELL, Driver for Monroe Salisbury.

NUMBERS of horsemen are wondering how it is that certain horses once known as "dogs" and "hounds" have shown their ability to defeat high-class racehorses at Ingleside and and Emeryville. The reason is easily ascertained for the owners have been using "Speed Sustaining Elixir" and it works as well here as it did in the grand circuit in the East. Every wide awake horseman has a bottle of it in his medicine chest and would not be without it for anything.

California's 2:30 List.

Following is a list of all 2:30 performers which trace to sires that were bred or owned in California as well as those that have won heats this year throughout the United States. We would be pleased if any of our readers would forward any additions to it we may have omitted or send us any corrections they may deem fit to make. We would also be pleased to receive the breeding on the dam's side of all those that have entered the list this year. It is corrected to Dec. 10th.

The New Association's Work.

The North Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Protective Association was organized in Portland yesterday, at a meeting of horsemen held in the office of the Rural Spirit.

The purpose of the new association is to encourage harness racing and the breeding of trotting horses in the Northwest, and at the meeting a number of well-known horsemen of the State were present, showing great interest in the new movement. Among those present were W. W. Smith, of Lafayette; George McKnight, of Tallman, Linn county; T. T. Condon, John Sawyer, Samuel Casto, John Green, E. McLean, D. Schilling, F. Sechtem, W. Kern, L. Galbraith, C. Shorner, M. D. Wisdom, J. Cunningham and J. W. Bailey.

Permanent organization was effected by the election of Dr. Ellis McLean as president, and M. D. Wisdom, secretary. J. W. Bailey presided at the meeting, and in a general way stated its object to be to organize an association for protection of the trotting horse-owners, and in view of the fact that a number of horsemen in the State who desired to become members of the association were not present, he suggested the appointment of a committee of three to confer with managers of the various race associations so as to arrange dates for circuit meetings next year. This suggestion was adopted, and M. D. Wisdom, E. McLean and Joseph Buchtel were appointed.

It was evident that about every horseman present at the meeting had something up his sleeve for the State Board of Agriculture. Each is still sore over the treatment received last fall. Out of the dozen or more meetings held in the Northwest this year, Salem was the only place that failed to pay the purses hung up. D. Schilling was the first to bring the matter to the attention of the meeting by reading the following resolutions and asking the adoption of the same:

WHEREAS, The members of the Oregon State Board of Agriculture have for the past two years refused and failed to pay in full the amounts of premiums offered for speed contests at the Oregon State Fair, held at Salem, Or., and,

WHEREAS, Such action of said Board is dishonorable, unfair, unjust and detrimental to the racing interests and breeding industry of this State, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the horsemen and breeders of the North Pacific here assembled do condemn the action of the said Board of Agriculture in not keeping faith with the horsemen in this matter; and, be it further

Resolved, That the horsemen hereby agree not to enter or race any more for purses offered by said Association in the future, unless the premiums already earned by the various horsemen are fully paid; and, be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the President, Secretary and each member of the Oregon State Board of Agriculture, the Governor of this State, the Secretary of the National Trotting Association and to the different turf journals of the United States.

"I offer this," said Mr. Schilling, "with the view that all the members of this association confirm it and agree not to enter any horse for the state fair races until the back purses are paid in full. This will require some little thought on part of the horsemen here. If we are to stand by our association we must stand by this resolution."

George McKnight, of Linn county, strongly advocated the adoption of the resolutions. "They should be passed," he said. "It is a little obnoxious to walk around the state fair grounds and hear the men who have chickens, cows and produce on exhibition say, 'All the money is going to the horsemen.' I, for one, would like to see them try to hold a state fair, without races."

Mr. Schilling called attention to the fact that last fall there were good races, honestly conducted at the state fair grounds. "President Looney, Mr. Baker, in fact every member of the board, told me two nights before the closing of the fair that there was plenty of money on hand. On Salem day, 10,000 tickets were sold to people who had come to the fair to see Chehalis break his record, and he did it. Two days before the fair closed, Baker told me that they were $1200 to the good the next day. Friday he didn't know just how the money stood, and on Saturday said the board was $1800 to the bad. There is a difference of $4000. What would you think of a man conducting his business that way? He would soon be in the hands of the sheriff. I will not say that the board acted dishonestly, but it showed gross negligence. If you want to race with such people go ahead, I don't."

Mr. Baily thought that if the resolution passed it should be by unanimous vote, and Mr. McKnight thought that some of the horsemen not present would not feel obliged to stand by the resolution. This again brought Mr. Schilling to his feet with the remark: "They may as well stay home as race in Salem. There is no other association in the Northwest that did not pay its purses this year. All that is needed on our part is to pull together. I would like to see them have a fair at Salem without racing."

When the Chairman put the question, while there was no dissenting voice, it was apparent that all did not vote in the affirmative. M. D. Wisdom said he thought it was the duty of every one present to express himself one way or the other, and moved that a rising vote be taken. Every man in the room was on his feet in an instant, giving unanimous indorsement to the resolution.

George Sawyer suggested that all harness races be mile heats, 2 in 3, and that the various Boards of Managers on the circuit be requested to adopt such rule.

Mr. Bailey made an argument against money being devoted for special purses, as they accomplish no good. "With such custom in vogue," he said, "men with horses who pay no entrance fee hang around the track to pick up a special purse. A few of them will get together, put up an even amount of money, pick out the horse to win, which they play at the pools, and after the race is over go behind the bar and divide the profits. No division of purses should be allowed, as it was not in the interest of good racing."

After some discussion it was agreed to recommend to the different racing associations the election of a starter who should follow the circuit, and officials at all races, as such a rule would insure the quick dispatching of horses.

There being no further business before the meeting, an adjournment was taken until April 2d, when the committee appointed to arrange for the race meetings next year will report.

Van B. DeLashmutt, who takes a great interest in racing matters, was expected to be at the meeting, but was detained at Spokane, and sent an interesting letter to the association, giving his views as to the forming of a Northwest circuit. He says:

"The discontinuance of harness racing in Montana will help rather than injure the North Pacific coast from a racing standpoint, for the season: To all intents and purposes it was a running meeting this year, since there was but one harness event each day, while they pulled off from four to five running races each day. Not appreciating this fact until it was too late, horsemen connected directly and indirectly with harness racing were induced to go there, and, of course, helped materially to swell their attendance and increase their receipts. Next summer the harness horsemen and patrons will stay away from there, and those who were there last summer will do this without any regrets.

"We therefore can rely upon their presence to help us out with horses and horsemen for our fairs and race meetings. The signal success of the North Pacific fairs and race meetings this season will give the necessary confidence to offer still better purses this coming season, and the knowledge that we must rely upon ourselves will tend to unite our efforts for one general purpose, which is the object of this meeting.

"First and foremost, our sparsely settled community necessitates much travel to encompass a circuit consuming the season; hence particular care must be exercised to do this without the necessity of traveling over the same ground twice; and to back this up must be favorable transportation both of men and horses, and without this latter, it would be next to impossible to give any meeting, unless it may be the Oregon State Fair, anything but a local significance.

"Portland, Salem, Spokane and Boise are the four principal points to be considered in connection with a circuit—the last two of which can be held earlier and later than the other two, with the probabilities of favorable weather.

"Local conditions are such that it does not make much difference when Spokane holds its meeting. With Boise it is different, and hence it seems to me it should come among the very last.

"Eugene, Independence, Albany, Salem, Portland and Tacoma can operate with Portland as the pivotal point. Coming to the East, The Dalles, Walla Walla, Lewiston, Moscow, Colfax, Spokane, Yakima, Peddleton, La Grande, Baker City and Boise should be the order of the circuit. The run from Yakima to Walla Walla and Pendleton via Pascoe is a short one, and the fact that the state fair is held at Yakima renders it absolutely essential not to overlook it. We have been in the habit of considering it as rather an out-of the-way point, but by following the route indicated above, and taking advantage of the state appropriations and favorable transportation, which can be easily obtained for the purpose of keeping the state fair alive, it should not be overlooked.

"Vancouver, Victoria, etc., form a distinctive branch, to be taken up so as to make close connection with the Portland-Tacoma meetings, either going or coming, and owing to the interest being taken in racing in that section, it should by all means be encouraged in every possible way. Great care should be taken to not to divide our forces, and especially so as not to interfere with any of the principal meetings.

"In some minor points, and where not too close together, and where the purses are so small as only to justify the attendance of local horses, the conflict of dates is not of so much importance. There is nothing definite as yet, as to a meeting at Spokane, although there is little doubt but some one will secure the the track and hold a meeting; and therefore it should by all means be included in the circuit."—Oregonian.

MACDONOUGH SALE OF YEARLINGS.

The Most Successful Ever Held on the Pacific Coast—The Purcasers, Prices and Incidents.

They will pay well for good goods in California, and true merit is appreciated. That was plainly demonstrated Monday night at the Occidental Horse Exchange, when eleven yearlings bred by W. O'B. Macdoneugh brought $10,650, or an average of $968.63. The ten St. Carlos averaged just $980. This is a record for the Pacific Coast, and Auctioneer William Fitch is to be congratulated upon being the orator of the night. His winning ways had much to do with the success of the sale, and never was he in better voice or in happier mood than on this night. And little wonder! For did not the crowd want to purchase St. Carlos, and was he not just as anxious to see them secure baby racers by the best young sire in the country? The sale also showed in the plainest manner the difference in prices for yearlings by untried and tried sires. The wins of two two-year olds by St. Carlo Monday, (one, St. Cuthbert, ran six furlongs in 1:13½ with 116 pounds up) doubtless had its effect, and St. Calatine's win on Saturday last and Count of Flanders' before that made horsemen keen on the trail of baby racers bred on the same lines of those that had done so well.

Jimmy Coffey (one of the best young trainers in America) was the principal buyer. He was presumably acting for Eddie Graney, who intends embarking upon the stormy sea of racing with a lot of youngsters bred to race and looking like race horses. James McManus, of plunging fame, was also a lively bidder at the sale, as was Zeke Abrahams and A. B. Spreckels. Other purchasers were "Frisco" Lind, W. M. Murry and Rienzi Hughes.

The top price, $2,500, was for the beautiful brown filly by St. Carlo from imp. Kissing Crust (dam of Orestes), by Sweetbread. She went to Jimmy Coffey's bow after some lively competition, in which we also noted as competitors A. B. Spreckels and Dr. Rowell. Mr. Spreckels got a racy-looking chestnut filly by St. Carlo out of Miss Annie by Himyar for $500, and she looks a bargain at that figure. Violence (No. 1), sold to James Coffey for $1,600, was a sweet-looking filly, and looks well worth the amount she brought. The Watercress-Geneva gelding was a big, good-looking fellow, and looked a bargain at $850. The sale will be long remembered, and the careers of the youngsters will be watched by all those that take an interest in thoroughbred horses. It was a well conducted sale, and Auctioneer Fitch and Proprieter Layng are entitled to the congratulations of the host of horse-lovers of California for making the market what it is.

Mr. O. W. Adams of Corinth, Maine, writes March 2nd, as follows: "With Quinn's Ointment I removed a bunch from the jawbone of my horse, which was the size of half an egg and as hard as the bone itself. Every horseman who saw it said it was there to stay. For curbs, plints, spavins, windpuffs and all enlargements use Quinn's Ointment, a remarkable remedy. Price $1.50. Address W. B. Fun at the Horse Show.

There is always a tendency to lay at the door of country folk anything that savors of an ill knowledge of the world and its ways. While at the New York Horse Show recently at Madison Square Garden, I saw and heard some things that brought a smile to my face. A fat little lady who had been admiring the proportions of a big brown horse in the stable downstairs, asked the hostler:

"Did he get a blue ribbon?"

"Nome," was the laconic reply.

"Didn't he get anything?"

"Yessum."

"Oh, the red ribbon?"

"Nome."

The woman hesitated, then scowled and said, with a you've-got-to-answer-me-or-be-reported air:

"What was it he got?"

The man looked up with an oh-you-really-want-to-know-do you look, and said, dryly:

"He got d' nasty t'row-down by d' jedges!"

The tandems were on show in the ring. The last tandem to enter came to a sudden stop inside the gate.

"Pahdon," said one of the attendants to the driver of the tandem, "Will you please drive further in?" We cahn't close the gate.

The driver said:

"Gee yup!"

The leader would neither gee nor yup.

The attendant took the leader by the bridle and tried to drag him along, whereupon the leader squatted upon his haunches.

The driver was red in the face and now the onlookers began to say things.

"Hiddim!" said one.

"Stick a pin in 'im," said another.

'Come down, Chawley, and go in on a bicycle!" vouchsafed a witty onlooker.

Then, without provocation or motive, the horse got up and walked into the ring, and when somebody said, "He'll get a blue ribbon, sure!" every one laughed.

A smart papa who had brought his little boy to the show was telling the kid about it. He was saying sarcastic things loud enough for people to hear. The boy was chewing caramels and making believe to listen.

"Willie, the show's a fake!" said papa.

"M—yeh!" remarked Willie.

"People come to show themselves off—not to see the horses."

"M—yeh!"

"Those people in the boxes think they're better than we are."

"M—yeh!"

"They don't look it, do they, m'boy?"

"M—yeh!"

"It's very stupid, isn't it?"

"M—yeh!"

"Come, Willie, I guess we'll go."

Willie howled.

"Naow! I don't wanter go home! I wanter sit up in a box. M—yeh!"

Then somebody snickered and papa turned red and shut up.

Somebody brought his papa to the show and lost him.

At any rate, papa was standing against the railing, solemnly stroking his white beard and watching a man running around the ring with a stallion. He watched this proceeding for a long time and then, like an honest old man looking for information, he turned to a dapper young chap and asked:

"They aint a-racin,' are they?"

"Oh, no, sir. He's just showing off the horse."

"Jest'z bad! Jest'z bad!" muttered the old man.

A lady, tall and angular and looking as though she had never been kissed since she was an infant, was gazing through a tortoise-shell-rimmed lorgnette at one of the horses in the stable.

"What a noble creature he is!" she said to the hostler, who was chewing tobacco.

"Yessum," replied the hostler; "he ain't wuth a d—n by hisself, but he's h—l in a team!"—Horse World.

Satsuma cut half a second of the Pacific Coast record for six furlongs Wednesday when he ran the distance in 1:12⅖ with 112 pounds up. The world's record over a circular track is is 1:12¾, made by O'Connell (121 pounds) at Oakley (Cincinnati) July 18, 1895. The former Coast record (1:13 flat) was held jointly by Charmion, Thelma and Ducat. Silver State, who won Wednesday at odds of 20 to 1, once ran six furlongs in 1:13¼ at Bay District track.

Abe Stein returned from San Diego Sunday and was seen in the ring again Wednesday says the Bulletin. He was losing his health as well as his money, so he took a vacation. "I guess I didn't lose much," remarked Abe, looking over last week's results. "I was in such bad form that I went away to the ocean, and I feel better, even if I didn't make any money. I have been beating them a little since I came back, but not a great deal."

Beginning January 1st, the clerk of the scales at Ingleside will collect the money for the mounts before the jockeys are weighed out. As it is at the present time, a great many of the owners stand off the jockeys, and only a small percentage can be collected, and then only when a winning is made in many instances.

Fred Taral, the famous jockey, is now the proprietor of a billiard room located at Fourth avenue and First streets, New York City. This place was opened Saturday last. Taral intends to continue riding, but, always a devotee of pool, thought he would like to own a table or two himself.

Senator John McCarty, of Brooklyn, has leased the Pooler Farm, in Orange County, near the Goshen track, and John Dickenson will be head trainer. He has in his stable Fred Kohl, 2:12½; Fred S. Moody, 2:14, and other fast ones.

Tulol Hoof Cure.

Tulol will positively cure lameness caused by hard and brittle feet, contraction and corns. It is the surest and quickest cure for Thrush. One to two weeks is sufficient to cure the most aggravated case of Thrush of long standing. Thousands who are using it will testify to the foregoing. It also forms the best hoofstuffing on earth; two stuffings with Tulol per week will keep the hoof elastic and tough. It prevents contraction and keeps the hoof in a healthy state. Horseshoers will find it of great merit when using it as a packing between leather soles. It is handier, cleaner, better and cheaper than tar and oakum. Tulol never dries, never sours, nor leaves a fetid smell in the hoof. The packing adheres firmly and needs not to be changed even if the horse remains in the stable for a month, and when it is removed it will smell as sweet as the day when packed.

We publish only one of the many testimonials regarding it:

C. P. Kertell, San Mateo:

Dear Sir: I am using TULOL in our stables since 1894 with the very best results. It is the most reliable cure for thrush, brittle and hard feet I have ever used. It forms a handy stuffing, prevents contraction and corns, and makes the feet tough. Oil-cake, blue mud and all the other watery stuffings leave the feet brittle, but TULOL makes them elastic and takes out the lameness when in the foot.

Yours truly,
Z Birdsall, Superintendent.

Lexington, (Ky.), December 22.—John E. Madden has purchased of Thomas C. McDowell the bay colt David Garrick for $5,000. David Garrick is by Hanover dam Peg Woffington. Besides the money consideration, McDowell is to have a percentage of the colt's winnings should he be lucky enough to get money in the Matron and Futurity stakes, in both of which events he is entered.

Tom Boyle, Adolph Spreckels' former trainer, will retire from the turf shortly and open a saloon in Sacramento. Of late years he has been racing on his own hook with varying success. He thinks there is more money to be made in the liquor business, so he will sell his horses as soon as he can find buyers. Tuesday he disposed of Castake for $300 to W. L. Stanfield, owner of George Miller.

The California Jockey Club has appropriated $1000 which President Tom Williams will apportion to ten different charitable institutions in this city and Oakland for Christmas presidents.

Ed Geers, when asked whether an open or blind bridle was preferable for race horses, said: "That depends altogether on the horse. In most instances I have found that an open bridle is preferable. An intelligent horse with experience in racing learns to locate the horses in the race against him; if he is fitted with an open bridle he can do that and thereby save himself in a close finish. On the other hand, I have had a good many horses that would loaf with an open bridle, and I have been obliged to adjust blinders to make them do their best. But all in all, experience has taught me to favor the open bridle if the horse is the right kind to work that way. I recall an instance where I had won a heat with a certain horse and lost the next two I left certain that the horse was not doing his level best, and before starting out for the fourth heat I removed the blinders and hooked him with an open bridle. I had everything to gain and nothing to lose by the change, and so left justified in making it. In this case the change was a success, for the horse acted like a different animal and I won the next two heats and the race.' John Splan, who listened to what the Village Farm trainer had to say, remarked: "Race horses are not unlike men. Some try to succeed, while others shirk and fail. I have in mind two horses out of the many I have driven in races that tried and kept trying to win and did nothing else. They were Rarus and Wedgewood. The latter was a most remarkable horse. Pitted against horses that were his superior in speed, he never knew what it was to give up. Race after race he was beaten all the way almost to the wire, when he would make one more desperate struggle and land a heat. The year I drove the Grand Circuit and won every race I don't believe that the aggregate of all his finishes would exceed five or six rods. Time after time I have said to myself as we neared the stand, 'Well, I guess it's all over this time,' only to find Wedgewood a nose or a head in front when we got to the wire."

Shelbyville (Ky.), December 22—Mrs. A. M. Brown to-day sold to E. H. Tipton of Lexington, Lady Reel, the dam of the two-year-old Hamburg, for $15,000 cash. Mr. Tipton, it is said, has the mare placed for $20,000. Lady Reel is in foal to the sire of Hamburg—Hanover. The price received for her is the hightest any broodmare ever brought in Shelby county.

The noted old trotting stallion, Jerome Eddy, 2:16½, was sold recently in Rhode Island for $105. In 1883 Henry C. Jewett & Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., paid $25,000 for him to Messrs. Dewey & Stewart, of Owasso, Mich. He is now twenty-four years and is the property of Wanton R. Carpenpenter, of Matawack, R. I.

Mad Dogs.

President John P. Haines, of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has sent to the local societies throughout the country some valuable information about dogs supposed to be afflicted with rabies, and the sign by which this dread disease can be told from all others.

The disease itself is exceedingly rare, and the danger of hydrophobia is very slight, even if a person should happen to be bitten by a dog that is really rabid. In most cases, what is called hydrophobia is simply an hysterical nervous disease caused by unfounded dread.

The best thing to do when bitten by a dog that is supposed to be rabid is to take a few vapor baths, as hot as they can be borne. The prespiration will eliminate any poison that the bite may have introduced into the system. Then the patient should simply endeavor to forget all about it, when the chances are incalculably great that he will be perfectly safe.

Among the popular fallacies concerning mad dogs the most common are these:

1. It is suposed that a mad dog dreads water. It is not so. The mad dog is very likely to plunge his head to the eyes in water, though he cannot swallow it, and laps it with difficulty.

2. It is supposed that a mad dog runs about with evidence of intense excitement. It is not so. The mad dog never runs about in agitation; he never gallops; he is always alone, usually in a strange place, where he jogs along slowly. If he is approached by dog or man he shows no sign of excitement, but when the dog or man is near enough, he snaps and resumes his solitary trot.

3 If a dog barks, yelps, whines or growls that dog is not mad. The only sound a mad dog is ever known to emit is a hoarse howl, and that but seldom. Therefore, if any dog, under any circumstances, utters any sound other than that of a hoarse howl, that dog is not mad.

4. It is supposed that the mad dog froths at the mouth. It is not so. If a dog's jaws are covered or flecked with froth, that dog is not mad. The surest of all signs that a dog is mad is a thick and ropy brown mucus clinging to his lips, which he often tries vainly to tear away with his paws or to wash away with water.

5. If your own dog is bitten by any other dog, watch him carefully. If he is infected by rabies you will discover signs of it possibly in from six to ten days. Then he will be restless, often getting up only to lie down again, changing his position impatiently, turning from side to side, and constantly licking and scratching some particular part of the head, limbs or body. He will be irritable and inclined to dash at other animals, and he will sometimes snap at objects which he imagines to be near him. He will be excessively thirsty, lapping water eagerly and often. Then there will be glandular swellings about the jaws and throat, and he will vainly endeavor to rid himself of a thick, rony, mucus discharge from his mouth and throat. If he can, he will probably stray away from home and trot slowly and mournfully along the highway or across country, meddling with neither man nor beast, unless they approach him, and then giving a single snap. The only exception to this behavior occurs in ferocious dogs which, during the earlier stage of excitement, may attack any living object in sight.

These symptoms of rabies are condensed from valuable information received from physicians of undoubted authority.

New Coursing Club.

Merced has a coursing club, which was organized Dec. 9th at a meeting of local coursing enthusiasts held at the Concert Band hall. It is known as the Interstate Coursing Club of Merced and starts off with a charter membership list of about 25. The following officers were elected:

Joe Goldman, president; James Garibaldi, vice-president; Roy Bartlett, secretary; Pat Griffin, treasurer; Rob't Atchison, Will McDonald, Jack Griffin, Fred Bedesen and Dave Dowst, executive committee; Dr. Hyde, judge; R. L. King, alternate judge; Dave Dowst, slipper; C. H. Wiley, alternate slipper; Rob't. Atchison and Dan Miller, field stewards.

A coursing meeting will be held every Sunday on Hartley's field.

The first meeting of the Interstate Coursing Club took place Sunday, December 12th on the Hartley field. The jacks were plentiful and there was a large attendance. The judging of Dr. Hyde was satisfactory and the majority of the courses run were good.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Coursing at Sacramento and Los Angeles is on the boom.

The first exhibition of the Collie Club of California will be seen at the coming bench show in San Jose.

H. A. Wegener has now a kennel of fine cockers. Viscount Dufferin, Tootsie, Peg Woffington and Polly Pastime is a string of cockers that are hard to beat.

Coursing at Ingleside Coursing Park will not be held today. It is contrary to established precedent of the leashmen to course on Christmas Day. A fine programme is offered for tomorrow.

The attendance at the Ingleside Coursing Park last Sunday was large and enthusiastic. Several surprises were sprung on the talent during the day. The final course run was a brilliant one.

Alec Truman has lost Don Croxteth, who died of distemper, a promising young pointer who was entered in the coming field trials at Bakersfield. Bang Croxeth is well again and Truman hopes to have him in good shape very shortly.

John Heffernan, of Stockton, was on a visit to the city last week. He reports his fox terrier pup, Midlight II., by Warren Sage--Stiletto, as developing well, and he expects him to duplicate the record made by his dead brother, Midlight.

F. J. Walker, of Lathrop, Cal., has a very promising litter of fox terrier pups by Warren Crack--Ripple II, and if everything goes right in the rearing of these pups, Mr. Walker's name will figure among the list of winners at next season's shows.

Fox and Stuart the well known horsemen have recently acquired from Caesar Young the bulldog Snow. He was formerly the property of Fox & Johnson, the proprietor of the New Orleans race track. The dog is the father of Snowflake the unbeaten dog of Detroit.

It is said that George E. Gray, a well known Eastern field trial handler, has contracted with the Verona Kennels, to take charge of the kennels for three years after he has completed the Eastern circuit of field trials. He is expected on this coast in the latter part of January.

MR. H. C. GLOVER, D. V. S. TOMS RIVER, N. J.

Dear Sir—I have used your Mange Cure in numerous cases of mange in my kennels with great success. Would recommend it to all owners of dogs. Yours truly,

JOHN P. HAINES,

Proprietor of the kennels of Smooth-Coated St. Bernards.

We are in receipt of a copy of Spratts Patent Calendar for 1898. The edition is a most beautiful example of the art preservative, is embellished with many very fine pictures of typical dogs and besides contains a fund of very useful data and information. It is of value to the fancy, and as the edition is limited it behooves expedition in applying for copies.

W. B. Frue, of San Jose, is the owner of two very promising collie pups, whelped on September 7, 1897 by, Baby Duke (Smoky—Mamey Trefoil)—Mascot (Jeannot—Juanita). The dog is white with a sable head and white blaze, and the bitch is dark sable in color, with white feet, white blaze and white collar. The markings on both pups is more than ordinarily even and symmetrical, so much so as to excite most favorable praise and comment from those who have seen the pups while the striking contrast in prevailing color between the two is such as to make them, outside of their good points in breeding, a most remarkably fine brace of collies. We shall watch with some interest the future of these little beauties.

Anglers' Tournament.

At Madison Square Garden, New York City, January 13-22, the second annual anglers' tournament will be held under the auspices of the National Sportsmen's Association. The contests will commence at 3 and 8 P. M. on each day of the exposition. The prizes in each contest will be a handsome gold, silver and bronze medal, donated by the National Sportsmen's Association of New York. The tournament will be under the direction of a committee composed of Messrs. Wm. C. Harris, (American Angler), Chairman; Robert B. Lawrence (Blooming Grove Park Association), Gonzalo Poey (The Fly Fishers' Club), Secretary; Frederick Engle (Blooming Grove Park Association) and Charles A. Bryan (St. Marguerite Salmon Club). The rules governing the contests will be as follows:

Rule 1—All contests shall be governed by two Judges and a Referee. In case of disagreement the Referee shall decide.

Rule 2—No one shall be permitted to enter any contest except those "Open to all," who has ever fished for a living; who has ever been a guide or has been engaged in either the manufacture or sale of fishing tackle.

Rule 3—All persons competing for prizes shall pay an entrance fee of two dollars for each event, or five dollars for three events, and one dollar for each event in excess of three. No entrance fees will be required in the Ladies' and Press contests.

Rule 4—The order in which contestants shall cast shall be determined by the Judges. The contestants must be ready when called upon by the Judges.

Rule 5—The leader and fly in each contest must be intact at the time of record by the Judges, and the length and weight of rods must be recorded.

Rule 6—Arrangements shall be made by the Judges to accurately determine the point at which the fly or frog falls.

Rule 7—Contests shall be called promptly at 3 P. M. and 8 P M.

Rule 8—After the contestant has taken his place on the stand his time shall be counted from the moment he says "Ready," and the first cast thereafter shall count. The longest cast during the five minutes succeeding the word "Ready" shall be taken as his record for distance.

Rule 9.—The rod must be held in one hand, and shall not exceed eleven and one-half (11½) feet in length, except when otherwise specified.

Rule 10—The barb and point must be removed from all hooks used.

Rule 11.—Trout flies on hooks not smaller than No. 12 shall be used unless otherwise specified. Leaders, which must be of single gut, shall not be more than nine (9) feet in length, or less than six (6) feet, unless otherwise specified.

Rule 12—Time will be allowed, in case of accident, to make repairs, at the discretion of the Judges.

Rule 13—The Switch, or Pritchard, style of casting will not be allowed, except in the class devoted to that method of casting.

Rule 14—All difficulties or disputes arising and not provided for in these rules shall be decided by the Judges.

Lack of space in this issue prevents a description of, and the order of contests, which are of an interesting nature.

Keeping Fish Alive.

Under the heading of "Tub versus Fishing Basket," Mr. J. H. Leech describes in The Field, the German method of keeping trout and other fish alive after they are caught.

"The method of keeping trout alive, is first to place them in a small barrel of water (personally, I prefer large metal bait cans), which a man carries on his back; if this gets too full of fish, the usual way is to transfer them to a barrel-shaped net kept distended by a couple of light wooden hoops; this, after being securely closed, is suspended in the river from a low-hanging branch or root. The fish will keep well in these nets (which weigh very little, and take up scarcely any room when folded), and can be sent for later on. In rivers where large catches are frequent boxes with perforated sides are fastened to the banks at varying distances. On good rivers, where bags of 20lb. to 30lb. per rod are not uncommon, a considerable amount of care must be taken in keeping fish alive; the water should be frequently changed, and if that is not possible, as when driving home, for instance, the tub should be well shaken about from time to time, or aerated by means of a common garden syringe.

At an Irish shooting lodge where the delivery of sea fish was somewhat erratic, I instituted a trout box on the German principle, hung it in a small burn at the back of the house, and people who went fishing took a boy with a bucket with them; if the stock got short through no one wanting to fish, the boy took a rod and a bag of worms with him as well as his bucket, and the supply was kept up. I give this tip to all occupiers of out-of-the-way shooting boxes. When a day is set aside to fish the loch, do not forget the stable buckets and the garden syringe; and a couple of big wine cases, hung in the barn, will hold the 100 odd trout not wanted for dinner, until required. Few Englishmen who have not eaten them abroad know what a fresh boiled trout tastes like; simply because the fish must not be allowed to get stiff. This has been stale news all over the Continent longer than anyone living can recollect, and if any sauce should be asked for, nothing but plain, fresh melted butter will be forthcoming. Perhaps in sheltered places on the coast, a floating box well anchored might be found useful after a big catch of sea fish.

The work of collecting salmon eggs at the California Fish Commission hatchery on Sacramento River at Anderson closed December 13th. The results of the season's operations are the most remarkable on record. Forty-eight and a half-million eggs were collected. This exceeds previous records made at this station by 22,000,000, and is 28,000,000 more than were collected at all the other hatcheries on the Coast this year. These eggs will be hatched, and the fry planted in the waters of the State, with the exception of 3,000,000 that will be sent to Oregon and 6,000,000 that went to the New England station on the United States Commission car, December 14th.

The steelhead fishing has been very fine in Russian River for a week past. Al Wilson and W. R. McFarland have sent down to Jno. Butler about two dozen fish ranging from ten to twenty pounds each. Tuesday morning Butler received a beauty, weighing eighteen pounds. President Lemmer took it home. Judge Evens, Doc Simpson and Chas. Breitenstein have made good catches also and are high in their praises of the royol sport affordep during the last ten days.

Grilse fishing at Powell street and the railroad wharves has been moderately fair during the week. Good catches of rock-fish, sea-trout and capazoni have been made at Lime Point and Tiburon.

The anglers at Point Reyes last Sunday did not catch many small fish, these steelhead seem to have left the waters there and gone up the stream. Three fine large steelhead were caught, however.

A few grilse, some of them two and three pounds, are reported to have been caught recently at the mouth of San Leandro creek.

Tomales Bay net fishermen need looking after. They are setting their nets for steelhead and shipping them to market.

Russian river is clearing rapidly, and trolling with a spoon should be good until the next heavy rain.

I. Schuster made a large catch of most excellent flounders in the Tiburon lagoon last Sunday.

Silver smelt are caught daily in large numbers in the Oakland estuary.

The bar at Russian river is closed again.

THE GUN.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

If secretaries of gun clubs will send us the full scores of their regular monthly shoots we will be pleased to publish them; but we must receive the copy on Wednesday to insure its insertion that week.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba

Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

GAME IN THE YELLOWSTONE.

All the Species Except the Buffaloes and Antelopes in Good Condition.

The superintendent of the Yellowstone National park has forwarded to Secretary Bliss a supplementary report in which he deals with the condition and numbers of the big game in the park. The Interior Department is particularly anxious to prevent the slaughter of big game by the hunters of the neighboring regions, and a letter from Lieutenant Lindsley of the Fourth Cavalry shows what is being done in that line to prevent it Lieutenant Lindsley says that few signs of buffaloes were found during the summer, but he is confident of finding at least twenty five of the animals when snowshoe time sets in, and perhaps double that number; and now that Idaho has followed Montana and Wyoming in prohibiting the killing of buffaloes he expects to preserve them from further attacks of the poachers

Moose are increasing in numbers in the southern part of the park, especially in the southern forest preserve, where there are more moose than in all the rest of the park Lieutenant Lindsley recommends that this preserve be placed in the park itself. He gives a glowing account of the condition of the elk in the park. He happened to be at the southern boundary of the forest preserve when the first snow fell, on October 13th and 14th, and saw that the country about Jackson lake was literally alive with elk. It was estimated that 10 000 crossed the southern boundary this fall. The bands of elk winter in different parts of the surrounding country; some go down the Madison, some down the Gallatin, and some down the Yellowstone. All that survive return to the park, as soon as the snow will permit, to raise their young At least 5,000 winter in the park, and 15,000 leave it in the early winter. Last season was a very severe one, and the elk suffered greatly, but it is thought that the herd is not diminished. Of those that winter in the park the largest herd ranges north of the Yellowstone river in that strip of land which it has so often been proposed to cut off from the park. Lieutenant Lindsley says that it is doubtful if any more would winter in the park under any circumstances. The park furnishes an ideal summer range for 40 000 elk, but not enough winter range for 10 000.

There are many deer and they are very tame. Their protection, as yet, offers no problem. About 200 winter in the immediate vicinity of the post. Last winter drove many of the antelopes from the park, and where there were 1,000 last year there are now not more than half that number. The antelopes are threatened with extinction by the coyotes, which kill some and worry them all. The coyotes are increasing and if something is not done to rid the park of them the antelopes will cease to winter in the park and will not return in the spring.

There are plenty of bears and a few wolverines and mountain lions in the park. Of the fur-bearing animals the beavers seem to be doing the best. They are scattered all along the waterways, and there are more of them now than at any time in the last six years. and if unmolested they will rapidly increase. They are difficult to protect as their skins are quite valuable. Otters are fairly abundant, and have increased since the barren streams have been stocked with fish. Mink, foxes, badgers, martens, wildcats and rabbits are plentiful. Lieutenant Lindsley concludes by saying:

"On the whole the park is a great success as a game preserve. The variety of species is great, and the condition of most of the species is satisfactory. The exceptions are, first, the buffaloes, which are undoubtedly away from their natural range, the open plains, and the next the antelopes, which are suffering for lack of suitable winter range and from the coyotes. The elk problem is not a serious one as yet, but it undoubtedly will be in a few years, unless more suitable territory is provided for winter range. This territory can now be acquired with little difficulty and at insignificant expense and if it is acquired promptly there always will be elk hunting about the edges of the park. The longer the acquisition of this winter range is deferred the more difficult it will be, until, perhaps, a few generations hence, the elk problem will become as difficult as that of the buffalo is now."

On the morning of November 4th a large band of antelopes from the slopes of Mount Evarts drifted across the north boundary of the park. The ever-watchful hunters were on hand, and before they could be stopped they killed ten of the antelopes. Later in the day Lieutenant Lindsley and a detachment of men formed a long skirmish line and herded them back into the park.—Inter-Ocean.

Fight With a Deer.

George Haigh, of Healdsburg, has a deer park, and in it a number of deer. An antlered stag of noble proportions (about 200 pounds) is the king of the paddock. One night recently the noble stag leaped over the barrier, wandered down the lane in the early morning hours and was found in front of Ransome Powell's barn.

A Mr. Garrett, a resident of Surprise Valley, down visiting Mr. Wood's family, was much surprised in his early morning walk to find himself on the horns of a dilemma, or rather on the horns of the aforesaid deer. Turning and grasping the buck's horns he found that he was no match for the animal, and called loudly for assistance. Mr. Woods, hearing the call for help, threw down his armful of wood, and tackled the deer. More help was needed, and both men called lustily for succor. Mr. Brown rushed out and joined in a rush on the deer. Not enough yet; so more calls were made. Mr. Watson, who lives further away, heard the calls, and he too came to the assistance of the engaged trio. The turmoil awakened the entire neighborhood, and all were calling over the way: "What's the row down at the barn?" There was a jumble of men and deer enveloped in a cloud of dust.

Finally things grew quiet and the frightened denizens of Rose Villa arose and cautiously circled about the spot where the tangled mass of men and deer lay.

Mr. Garrett came forth with a hook over the ear, two holes in his hat, and his coat damaged. Mr. Woods had several limbs knocked off and twigs bruised. Mr. Brown's pants had sustained a compound rupture, and Mr. Watson lost some cuticle from his hands. It was a jolly fight, and those, not in it, enjoyed it much, especially the children, who said that they had not had so much fun since they all had the measles.

The buck made a home run, Mr. Garrett had a touchdown, and Mr. Woods a touchup. Mr. Brown got a hook, and Mr. Watson went out on a foul. So ended the best contested game of buck ever seen on Dry Creek.

Petaluma Notes.

We are indebted to the Petaluma Argus for the following notes respecting the doings of sportsmen in that town:

An interesting meeting of the Petaluma Sportsmen's club was held at Steigers' gun store Monday evening, December 13th. A large membership was present and considerable business of importance was transacted. The matter of hunters poaching on the preserve was discussed. A number of hunters have been shooting on the club's grounds and when requested to vacate by club members, have refused to do so They have also been shooting at night at the baited ponds. President Robt Brown was instructed to swear out injunctions against every man who has been poaching on the preserve. It is the club's intention to vigorously prosecute any intruder hereafter. The postponed club hunt will take place Sunday, Dec. 26th, the weather permitting E. E. Drees and Robert Brown have been selected as captains. The loosing team is to pay for a supper to be given at the club house. The club members who were out on their grounds last Sunday made fine bags of ducks.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Geese are becoming very numerous in the vicinity of Tracy.

J. Shackleton tried Alameda last Sunday and bagged eleven teal.

Dr. Hibbard made a moderate bag of ducks at Point Reyes Sunday last.

Frank Schultz and friend made a fair bag of ducks at Mt. Eden last Sunday.

B. Sherock gave Newark a trial Sunday and bagged ten widgeon and teal.

Some good scores were made with Smith guns at the Inter city trap shoot.

J. Maynard Jr. and Dr. E. N. Ayers had only fair success at Byron on Sunday.

W. E. Murdock made a bag of fourteen teal and sprig at Black Point last Sunday.

The Price boys made a bag of teal and sprig in the vicinity of Alviso last Sunday.

L. Le Gal and a friend made a bag of fifteen sprig and teal at Novato on Sunday last.

John K. Orr bagged three dozen English snipe on the country club grounds Sunday last.

Gray geese and honkers were very plentiful on the Reclamation district last Sunday.

The Empire Club were out in force on their grounds Sunday. Some fair bags were brought in.

"Sherman" and a friend bagged fifty-nine grey ducks on the Black Jack's preserve Sunday last.

Fish Commissioner Ferguson will liberate a consignment of Oregon pheasants in Fresno county.

E. W. S. Van Slyke had a very fair morning's shoot near the mouth of Little Coyote last Sunday.

The Lincoln Club members who were at the Alvarado grounds Sunday had some pretty good shooting. Ostrander bagged twenty-one teal and sprig. Klevesahl and Shaw had twenty-four teal and sprig and Franzen made a bag of seventeen mallard and sprig.

Phil J. Bekeart and Clarence Nauman left Tuesday night for a couple of days' shooting on Reclamation.

Santa Barbara trap-shooters have a shoot every Sunday on their new grounds. Interest in the sport is increasing.

The Wheatland Four Corners complains of the wanton slaughter of ducks during the night time in that vicinity.

L. R Larzalere, J. Burfiend and Geo. Miles were at the Spooney Club grounds Sunday. They had pretty fair shooting.

Chas. M. Grimm has challenged Rollo Heikes to a return match for the Cast Iron Medal, under the rules governing the same.

Frank Vernon bagged several fine ducks on the Point Reyes marsh on Saturday and next day made a nice string of quail.

The match at live birds between young Ruhstaller, of Sacramento, and Henry Stelling is likely to be repeated for $250 a side.

R. Wenzel and B. Schendel, at Mowry's last Sunday, bagged respectively fifteen and ten ducks, principally cans, teal and sprig

A party of five went duck shooting in the vicinity of the San Joaquin Duck Club, near Newport, recently, and secured 150 ducks.

Alec Hamilton and J Woodward of the Country Club bagged thirty English snipe and a mixed lot of ducks last Sunday on the Club preserve.

John Karney, Jules Bruns and J. Brownlie made a combined bag of sixty-three birds Sunday at Sears' Point, widgeon, spoonbill, teal and sprig.

Some of the shooters who went up on the Sportsmen's special last Saturday, turned loose on the mudhens Sunday and just brought in bags-full of them.

Al Newman turned loose on mudhens. Ed Ladd had nine ducks, "Sugar House," Dolliver and others made respectable bags of quail, duck, etc, at Point Reyes Sunday.

Trapper Poe brought in a fine fox and a beautiful civit cat this week. Both animals were alive and attracted much attention on the streets, says the Wheatland Four Corners.

Chas. Van Valkenburg, Sam Alexander and J. L. Fishback journeyed to the Greenland Duck Club in Orange county last Saturday and shot ducks. The bags made were large.

Live bird trap shooting affords the Spokane Live Bird Shooting Association a great deal of sport these days. On Sunday, December 12th, Dahl won the challenge medal for the fourth time.

Rudolph Spreckels has leased the Ringstrom duck shooting grounds, Sonoma county, and has erected a hunting lodge on the same, which will be used by himself and friends when they have occasion to visit the marshes for sport and recreation.

Ed. Forster, F. Haight, W. J. Golcher and Bert Golcher were in good position last Sunday on Petaluma creek. They caught the morning flight just right. Sixty-five ducks fell to their guns, sixteen of these were fine "cans," the rest were sprig, widgeon and teal. Eight of the cans were bagged with two barrels at Haight and Forster's blind.

A special meeting of the Columbia Pistol and Rifle Club was held Thursday evening. Arrangements were made for the distribution of cash prizes at the final shoot. The final shoot and team match for the year will be held to-morrow. The annual dinner and awarding of medals and prizes will be held tomorrow evening. A great time is anticipated.

At a meeting of the Empire Gun Club, held Tuesday evening, December 21st, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, F. Stewart; Vice-President, G. Green; Financial Secretary, H. Justins; Recording Secretary, F. Williams; Treasurer, H. Ricklifson; Captain, G. C. De Pue; Manager, W. F. Andrus; Assistant Manager, F. W. King; Board of Governors, H. T. Huie, J. Hauer, G. G. Billington.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the California Inanimate Target Association was held at the clubhouse of the Olympic Gun Club, 1309 Van Ness avenue. The principal question before the meeting was the selection of a time and place for the holding of the next State bluerock tournament. Communications were received from the Pacific Tournament Association tendering the use of its grounds at Alameda point, and from the Olympic Gun Club, tendering the use of its grounds at Ingleside in this city. Action was deferred until the next meeting and in the meantime all clubs in the association are to be consulted and asked for an opinion in the matter. An amendment was adopted permitting interior clubs to vote at all meetings by proxy. Notice was given of another amendment, which provides that in future the annual meeting of the association and the election of officers shall be held in conjunction with the first tournament in each year.

A meeting of a number of sportsmen was held at Los Banos December 11th, and a "Hunters Union" formed. The purpose of this organization is to protect the interests of the hunters of the west side, and it is intended to extend the membership so as to include the whole valley. Mr. Kennedy was elected President of the Union; Mr. Raymond, Vice-President; Frank Smith, Secretary; John Olsen, Treasurer; Executive Committee, Messrs. Flansburg, Lange, Weddle, Berro and Reeves. The first matter to which this association will direct its attention is the "big gun law," which prohibits the hunters from shooting a gun larger than a number 10 The constitutionality of this law will be tested through their attorney, V. G. Frost. In pursuance of this determination James Knight was arrested at Los Banos and found guilty by Justice Bertholff of a violation of that law, and fined $20 Not paying the fine he was committed to the county jail, and was then released on bonds pending the determination of a writ of habeas corpus issued by the Superior Court and made returnable on Monday, December 20th, at which time the constitutionality of the big gun law was to be argued by Mr. Frost.

The California State Agricultural Society's

FUTURITY STAKE

For the Produce of Mares Covered in 1897,

TO BE RUN AT THE

STATE FAIR OF 1900,

TO CLOSE JANUARY 1, 1898.

A sweepstake for two-year-olds, foals of 1898, by subscription of $10 each for mares covered in 1897, and of $5 each for the produce of such mares, to be paid as follows: $5 FOR MARE TO ACCOMPANY ENTRY, $10 on produce, payable January 1, 1899 (when color, sex and marks of foal must be given), $15 payable November 1st, 1899, $25 January 1, 1900, and $50 on September 1, 1900. The State Agricultural Society to add $1,000, of which the winner is to receive $600 and the stakes paid on produce, second colt $250, third colt $150. The owners of mares at time winners of first, second and third money were foaled, to receive 60 per cent., 30 per cent. and 10 per cent respectively, of money subscribed for mares on January 1, 1898.

Colts to carry 118, fillies 115 pounds. The winner of a stake of the value of $1,500, or two of $1,000 each, to carry three pounds extra. The winner of a stake of the value of $2,500, or two of $1,500 each, to carry five pounds extra.

ALLOWANCES: Beaten maidens allowed three pounds for once, five pounds for twice. If beaten three or more times and not placed 1, 2, 3, allowed ten pounds.

The produce of mares not having foaled a winner prior to January 1, 1898, to be allowed five pounds additional, if claimed at time of entry of mare. In case of sale of mare before foaling, or produce thereafter, notice signed by seller should be filed with the Secretary, as payments not made as they become due declares entry out and releases subscriber from all liability.

If mare entered proves barren or has dead foal, entry is void and money paid will be returned; otherwise it becomes colt.

CONEY ISLAND JOCKEY CLUB

THE FUTURITY

With $8,750 Added, of which $3,750 to the Breeders.

For the AUTUMN MEETING of 1900 To Close JANUARY 4, 1898

BY SUBSCRIPTION of $20 each, OR ONLY $10 IF THE MONEY BE SENT WITH ENTRY, for mares covered in 1897, and a further subscription of $50 each for the produce of such mares unless struck out by July 15, 1899, or $100 unless struck out by July 15, 1900. All starters to pay $250 additional, all of which shall go to the second and third horses as further provided. The Coney Island Jockey Club to add EIGHT THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS ($8,750); the second to receive $1,000 of the added money and two-thirds of the starting money; the third $500 of the added money and one third of the starting money. The breeders of the winner, of the second horse and of the third horse, namely, the owner of the mare at time of entry, to receive $2,000, $1,250 and $500 of the added money respectively, whether they be the owners of the horse when the race takes place or not. Colts, 122 lbs.; fillies and geldings, 119 lbs. Winners of $2,500, 3 lbs.; of two races of $2,500, or one of $4,500, 7 lbs; of four of $2,500, or two of $4,500, or one of $9,000, 12 lbs. extra. The produce of mares or stallions which have not produced a winner prior to January 1, 1898, allowed 3 lbs.; of both (mare and stallion), 5 lbs., said allowance to be claimed at time of entry. Maidens allowed 10 lbs., which allowance shall not be cumulative. Mares may be entered by persons not their owners, the owner having the prior right. If a mare in this stake drops her foal before the first of January, or if she has a dead or more than one foal, or is barren, the entry of such mare is void and the subscription, if paid, will be returned. By filing prior to July 15, 1899, with the Coney Island Jockey Club, an accepted transfer of the produce with its engagement in this stake, accompanied with all forfeits to date, the original subscriber will be released from any liability as to the engagement of the produce. Should a subscriber or transferee die before the race, the entry shall not be void provided it be assumed by the then owner of the horse; notice in writing to that effect, accompanied by the payment of all accrued liabilities, being given within three months after such demise. Futurity course (170 feet short of six furlongs).
